Ramon Novarro gets a big hand from the press for "Devil May Care"

"Ramon Novarro turns out to be the most charming player of light romance on the screen. 'Devil May Care' is one of the most engaging talkies on Broadway."
—Cohen, Jr., Sun

"Novarro must now be definitely set down as one of the triumphant personages of the new cinema. Admirable singing voice, expert comedy manner, thoroughly engaging."
—Watts, Jr., Herald-Tribune

"Delightful entertainment. Novarro one of the best of the audible screen stars."
—Pelswick, Journal

"The best bet on Broadway. The girls are going crazy over the New Novarro. You have no idea what he can do until you've seen 'Devil May Care' It's a knockout."
—Bland, Mirror

"A thoroughly charming musical romance. Novarro is the best interpreter of romantic roles on the screen today."
—Boehnel, Telegram

"The production is magnificent and the picture thoroughly entertaining."
—Crewe, American

"Watch the Novarro fans grow after this exhibition of his talents. 'Devil May Care' a thrilling story."
—Shawell, Graphic

"You'll love hearing him sing 'The Shepherd's Serenade,' 'If He Cared,' 'Charming,' 'The March of the Old Guard' and 'Pompadour.' A grand triumph for the already triumphant Novarro."

Motion Picture News

Vol. XLI NEW YORK CITY, JANUARY 4, 1930 No. 1

THE SILENT NEWSREEL—FILLING A REAL NEED

SOUND and silent, the newsreel fills its place more effectively than any other individual type of motion picture made. An observation that is anything but new. Yet, it has been brought to mind and is now passed on for general consumption because, according to report, several newsreel producers are preparing the burial services for their silent newsreel releases.

A typical instance of the cancerous infection developed by sound. This is not to be construed as a knock against talking newsreels. The terrific strides made in sound in the last two years rather effectively dispel all arguments to the contrary. At the same time, there are certain very definite values in both mediums.

The Double Function

News events that take place by pre-arranged schedule, for instance, are more properly covered by sound. Realism and effectiveness are thereby added and, aside from those considerations, sound is commerically the thing. Accidents and the unexpected—the stuff that ordinarily supplies newspapers with their headlines—present an entirely different problem. Here it is that the silent newsreel does, or should at least, play its most significant role.

Leeway for Both Newsreels

To date the method of recording sound outdoors entails the use of complicated mechanism reposing in a truck. The limitations are plenty—any sound newsreel cameraman will tell you that.

It seems to us that the camera should be sufficiently detachable from the sound recording apparatus to permit photographing news events as rapidly and as effectively as possible. If circumstances permit the use of sound, fine. If not, the public should not be deprived of what it is accustomed to, and what it enjoys merely because the sound fetish has gripped an entire industry by the throat. Newsreels, sound and silent both, very definitely belong.

The day that one is pushed out of the ranks by the other will be a significant day—downward—for the industry.

ONE of the refreshing commentaries on the 5-5-5 conferences which this column again stresses because of its vast potential good for the entire industry is the general agreement which prevails over arbitration. The Allied group has been called Bolshevik and a number of other not-so-nice things in some quarters of the business for adhering rigidly to its principles. That, however, is another story.

Some Spots Undergo a Change

The point is that Allied, strangely enough in the face of what has been said, acknowledges the value of arbitration in this industry. It does object to the method. But so does the M. P. T. O. with all of its producer-chain theatre members.

With a general accord struck—even if in principle only—it would seem merely a matter of deliberation before the difficulties can be ironed out. Lurking in the background as a powerful factor in inducing changes in the formula as it stands today is the Thacher decision. Distributors are not contesting the weight of the legal mouthpiece. Rather are they taking necessary steps to swing arbitration out of the dubious path labeled anti-trust violations and into a haven of immunity.

Overseas Neighbors Complain

Europe is raising a merry wail over the murder of her variegated languages via poorly translated titles and dialogue. Many American producers are shortsightedly skimping on the attendant expense and proceeding in complete ignorance of the rapidity with which they are turning good overseas customers into bad. It sounds stupid and is.

The real danger is to be found in the fact that poor business like this hastens production abroad and imperils the standing of American pictures which are in none too good a position anyway in this era of sound. The exhibitor in this country enters into the reckoning far more importantly than he perhaps realizes, for if rentals from overseas continue to drop it is he who will be compelled to bear the additional tariff.

KANN

An Insider's Outlook

AT a time when the M. P. T. O. A. and Allied States Ass'n., with the Hays organization cheering from the sidelines, are negotiating a merger of the two exhibitor bodies, the formation of a new exhibitor unit in Illinois is a matter of interest. This new organization intends to confine its membership to independent exhibitors, insisting that the problems of the independent as contrasted with the chain operator, are essentially and radically different.

Since its formation, Allied has charted its own course, so far as membership is concerned, although at the outset many affiliated theaters were induced in its various units. Both Allied and the M. P. T. O. A. believe that there is a mutuality of interests, and that there should be one national organization independently controlled. Wonder what the attitude of the new Illinois independent unit will be in event the proposed M. P. T. O. A.-Allied merger becomes fact?

Peace in Canada

Montreal despatches Friday night reported that differences in the directorate of Famous Players Canadian Corp., have been patched up, so that all is serene along the Canadian sector. The plan of N. L. Nathanson to build a rival chain throughout the Dominion is to be dropped, it is stated, with possibility that he may return to the company whose managing directorship he resigned when balked in his effort to have stockholders act upon his recommendation that the circuit be sold to Gaumont British. Nathanson's proposal was blocked by Adolph Zukor and I. W. Killam, the other voting trustees, who insisted that Gaumont British was controlled by Fox and to make the proposed sale would take control out of Canadian hands and place it in the hands of Fox.

Whether the new development in the situation and the reported dropping of Nathanson's plans for a circuit, had anything to do with the Fox financial situation has not been disclosed, Nathanson, so the story went, had Fox's backing in the new venture. At any rate, if he is back in the saddle of the firm he founded and directed to success, it's going to be mighty hard for any competitor to dislodge it from the formidable position it occupies throughout Canada.

Oh, Yeah?

Some of the old time railbirds thought the millennium had arrived when they witnessed the two Petes, Woodhull and Harrison, having lunch together at Schrafft's, and apparently enjoying it.

The former M.P.T.O.A. president, who now is executive vice-president of General Talking Pictures, and the publisher of "Harrison's Reports," who have had many hot arguments in the past, were "brought together" by Col. Hawkins, also of General.

However, it must be added that the pair always got along well socially. Whatever differences existing being matters of viewpoint on conduct of exhibitor organization affairs.

Moving Fast

Joseph P. Kennedy is moving rapidly these days in his moves to reorganize Pathe production. This week witnesses installation of E. B. Derr and Charles Sullivan as chiefs of the staff, replacing William Sistrom and Ralph Block. Production of pictures of extended run caliber is said to be Kennedy's aim, with short subject production to be concentrated on the Coast.

A few weeks ago it was practically set that Edwin Carewe would take the Pathe production helm. Kennedy and Carewe had a deal set for production of "The Spoilers," but something happened to crab the act. Now Carewe will make "The Spoilers" for Paramount and will not join Pathe.

The Tiffany Slant

"Of course we do not expect to make money on every franchise deal. The proposition was conceived on a volume sales basis, and it should not be lost sight of that a principal reason for the franchise agreement was to keep many little theaters open."

That is the way Oscar Hanson, Tiffany's general sales manager sums up his company's attitude toward the smaller franchise holders on which Tiffany seems destined to lose money. The company, however, is building good will, he emphasizes, adding that in some instances it is smart business to lose money for the present. Hanson estimates that business written on franchises to date, represents over the five year period rentals of $30,000,000, which is a lot of money in any man's picture business. An interesting experiment this, which promises more new developments as it progresses.

Reverting to Type

Once an exhibitor, always an exhibitor, runs the old saw. It's being demonstrated almost daily in various sections of the country. For instance, out in Seattle, Jensen & Von Herberg, once kingpins of the Far Northwest exhibition field, who sold their holdings to retire from exhibition, found the urge too great and are returning literally with both feet.

After operating a number of suburbans, the partners are reverting to their first love, the first run field in Seattle. With Fox and Publix as chief opposition, the result of their reentry into the first run situation where they formerly held practically undisputed sway, should furnish some snappy reading in months to come.

A Shocking Tragedy

The entire film world was shocked Friday when the news was flashed from the Coast that an air accident had claimed the lives of Director Kenneth Hawks and nine members of his technical staff taking air scenes for his new picture. Only three of the bodies had been recovered late Friday, those being hurtled from the crippled planes prior to their plunge into the sea. A thorough investigation into causes of the disaster is hoped for that aerial picture taking may be made safer and prevent recurrence of accidents of this kind. MOTION PICTURE NEWS extends condolences to the families bereaved.

30 Day Protection from End of Run As Basis Seen Independents' Plan

Protection Limitation to Be Individual in Each Zone but One Month Clearance Expected to Be Key City Limit Asked

Whittling down of the time of protection granted big chains in certain keys to a level of 30 days from the end of the run, except for exceptional situations, is understood the goal of independent exhibitors in the 5-5-5 conferences, to be resumed late in January or early in February.

The protection question has been a knotty one during the last year and is assuming greater proportions due to the sound picture development, because some circuits are demanding increased rather than decreased clearance, basing their demand on the higher rentals being paid for talkers.

Subsequent runs, however, counter with the declaration that the talker development makes it more essential now than ever before that a "reasonable" protection period be agreed upon. They point to the decrease in number of pictures because of sound and also state that as popular music is a big factor in the majority of sound films, these songs soon outlive their popularity, thereby greatly lowering the picture's draw if it is held up for any considerable period.

Proposals of the M.P.T.O.A. and Allied States Ass'n., show that both are agreed that there must be a limit placed on protection, this to be determined by zoning committees of exhibitors and distributors.

At the present time, protection varies greatly in various sections of the country, ranging from a few days in some instances up to one year in others in time and often as many as fifty or sixty miles in all directions of a theatre so protected.

Legality Under Fire

Los Angeles—Legality of extended protection in the industry is to be tested in trial here Feb. 5 of Fox West Coast Theaters and ten distributors, on a Federal grand jury indictment obtained by the Department of Justice, charging a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The government bases its action on alleged agreement between defendants thereby preventing independent theatres from securing certain product.

Nathanson Dropping Plans for New Chain?

Montreal—Differences which some time ago split the trustees of Famous Players Canadian, leading to retirement of N. L. Nathanson as managing director, have been ironed out, it is understood.

As a result, Nathanson is said to have abandoned plans to build up a rival circuit throughout the Dominion, and there is reported to be a possibility that Nathanson will return to the company from which he resigned when Adolph Zukor and I. W. Killam, the other voting trustees, blocked Nathanson's plan to submit to stockholders a proposition to sell the circuit to Gaumont British.

Adolph Zukor could not be reached Friday night for comment on the Montreal despatch.

Building at Vancouver

Vancouver. — Famous Players Canadian Corp. has secured a site at Broadway and Granville, on which a $400,000 theater is being erected. Famous Players recently spent $100,000 on the Vancouver Capitol to improve acoustics.

DeForest-Fox Suit Slated for Feb. 5

The sound-on-film suit brought by General Talking Pictures (DeForest Phonofilm), against Fox-Case Corp., et al., is understood to be scheduled for hearing on Feb. 5th at Wilmington, Del. The case was originally scheduled for the New York courts, but a switch is said to have been decided upon. Infringement is charged.

Guy Wonders Quits Stanley to Become Fox District Chief

St. Louis.—Guy L. Wonders, manager of Stanley Theatres in Atlantic City, is the new Fox divisional manager in this territory.

Honored

Establishment of the all-sound news reel policy at the Embassy, New York, is listed as one of the outstanding achievements of last year, and the theatre placed on the "Honor Roll for 1929" by "The Nation."

The Embassy, or Newsreel Theatre, as it is now known, is termed "a unique institution where one may enjoy the talkie newspaper without waiting for the end of someone's superfeature."

Shanberg Reenters Midwestern Field

Kansas City—Formation of Salina Theater Co. in Kansas marks the reentrance of Shanberg & Woolf in local territory. The company, incorporated by M. B. Shanberg, Ed Shanberg, Herbert Woolf and E. Beagle, will build a $100,000 house at Salina.

Shanberg, backed by Woolf, prominent K. C. clothing merchant, recently sold his Midland Circuit of 60 Kansas, Missouri and Iowa theaters to Fox, and his new Salina venture is considered the forerunner of another Kansas-Missouri chain.

New Year Ushers In Studio Expansions

Hollywood.—Extensive expansion of Coast studio facilities will mark the new year under plans announced by a number of companies. Among those contemplated are a $2,000,000 building program by Radio Pictures, recently announced by William Le Baron; completion of a $1,000,000 program at United Artists, with several hundred thousand dollars in new buildings later on in the year; a $1,500,000 program by Tiffany; erection of several new sound stages, enlargement of others and reconstruction of at least two silent stages at Paramount, and a $1,000,000 expansion at M-G-M.

First National plans a number of improvements, including a new ventilating plant, while Universal is engaged in enlarging facilities.

Lasky in Mexico to Study Latin-American Talkers

Mexico City—Jesse L. Lasky is here for a six weeks' stay to study the Latin-American picture situation, and language requirements for talkers for distribution in Mexico.

Another Assault On Arbitration System

Omaha.—Another assault against the arbitration system has been launched here by Klassik Theatres in a Federal court suit brought against nine distributors for damages of $142,500, charging violation of the antitrust laws. The complaint charges the Strand, Newton, Ia., was forced to close due to an alleged blacklist which followed refusal to arbitrate a dispute with Fox. Defendants, in addition to Fox are: Pathe, Educational, RKO, Vitagraph, Columbia, M-G-M, Universal and Warners.

125 Day and Date Runs Set on "Show of Shows"

One hundred twenty-five days and date showings are scheduled this week for "Show of Shows," Warners state.

Tough

Minneapolis.—This tightening of restrictions by the border patrol in northern Minnesota is being felt by film salesmen making International Falls and nearby points, who like all other automobile drivers almost invariably on the return trip to the exchange are subjected to an intense search for contraband liquor. To date, no arrests of film men have been reported.

Number of Trade Practice Changes Seen As Result of Allied, M. P. T. O. Confabs

Both Units Favor New Standard Contract, Resumption of Arbitration and Protection Limit, Proposals Emphasize

Rewriting of the standard contract, resumption of arbitration, establishment of limitation on protection through operation of zone committees and a new arrangement on availability of films loom as changes to be made in industry trade practices in event a merger of the M.P.T.O.A. and Allied States Ass'n. is brought about. Both exhibitor units are agreed upon the above changes, it is emphasized in analyzing their respective proposals for betterment of industry conditions.

On the matter of theatre expansion, however, the two organizations are far apart, Allied wanting a zone committee to pass upon proposed expansions, subject to review by a national appeal board, while the M.P.T.O.A. insists such plan is unfeasible "since the parties who combined themselves to this agreement would not be the only ones who can build theatres and that a number of exhibitors who are in neither of the exhibitor organizations, and who would not be bound to this agreement could do the very thing that such an agreement would try to prevent." Affiliated exhibitors are strongly opposed to any plan to limit expansion, the group having passed a resolution to this effect.

The two organizations are agreed that several proposed terms for the new contract must be written. These are:

Granting the exhibitor the right to exclude up to ten per cent the number of pictures on the contract without payment.

Elimination of score charges.

A warranty from the distributor as to the fitness of prints and records.

Making the work sheet part of the contract.

The M.P.T.O.A. proposes the work sheet shall be part of the contract when it is signed by the parties.

Allied asks that the work sheet and announcement books shall always be considered a part of the contract.

Allied also asks for the exhibitor the right to cancel contracts after a theatre is closed 90 days.

Voluntary Arbitration Is Favored by Both Sides

Both organizations favor arbitration, the M.P.T.O.A. believing that the present system has been effective, but in order to make arbitration voluntary, that a separate agreement to arbitrate should be made on each contract. Under the plan four arbitrators each would be named by the Film Board and local exhibitor unit, the litigants having the right to reject any three. The board could act with two, four or six members, but never more than three from either side. At all times the board would be evenly constituted as to distributors and exhibitors. Allied wants either a specific agreement on each contract or a blanket agreement between the local exhibitor organization and the Film Board. If the exhibitor so elects, the board would be composed of one exhibitor, one distributor and one member selected from among nominees of the American Arbitration Ass'n.

Out of New York

Next meeting of the conference committees named to consider advisability of merging the M.P.T.O.A. and Allied States Ass'n will not be held in New York, it is understood. Cities being proposed for the meting are: French Lick Springs, Indiana; New Orleans, Havana or some Florida city.

Lights And Phones

Talking pictures have eliminated the ringing telephone on sound stages. A red light is now the only method signifying a call. While working on a First National stage, Louise Fazenda spied the flashing light from a corner of the set. She called out:

"The phone is ringing! Is everybody color blind?"

Allied wants the three and three set-up of the old system, with a seventh to be chosen from among the nominees of the arbitration association. Cases, it is asked, should be decided on merit and not necessarily on terms of the contract. Moral support of the national exhibitor organization and its component units is seen as assuring enforcement of awards, and also removing prejudice against enactment of state arbitration laws.

Protection Limitation and Availability Clauses Cited

Limitation of protection and new arrangements on availability are favored by both sides, the M.P.T.O.A. seeking a national committee of two distributors, two affiliated exhibitors, and two independent exhibitors to review disputes of zone committees named by the parties involved. The national committee would be named as the occasion arose.

Allied wants zone committees named to limit protection, also limitation of time after availability when day and date films must be played, and to make available to all theatres of a zone any film on which protection has been waived by one theatre in favor of another. A national review board similar to that asked by the M.P.T.O.A. is favored, with Allied suggesting that in case of no decision, disputes shall be turned over to an arbitration board of one exhibitor, one distributor and one appointee from five nominees of the American Arbitration Society. Allied also asks that exhibitors be allowed to play pictures in the order of first run and allowed to cancel pictures held up by the first run, in cases where the exhibitor is forced into the market to fill the play dates concerned.

Independent Control Seen by Both as Desirable

Both favor one organization independently controlled, the M. P. T. O. wanting one based on terms mutually agreeable. Allied, however, goes further outlining conditions upon which it believes establishment of one national body could be brought about. These include the placing of an "outside man" as executive head, the organization pointing out that experience teaches the head of an exhibitor body must have no interests to be affected favorably or adversely by any of his efforts in behalf of exhibitors. In addition, attention is called to the fact that regardless of any arrangement made the contract of Abram F. Myers must be fulfilled.

Allied believes its structure offers the best means of establishing the one national exhibitor body sought. Each regional unit, it is proposed, would name a member of the national board of directors, these to select an executive committee of ten independent exhibitors to govern the organization, with two non-voting affiliated members named to the committee. It also believes that affiliated exhibitors should be admitted to membership in all regional units, upon the same basis of dues as independents, and that there should be an affiliated director, without vote, in each regional unit. Such an organization, it is stated, must have a minimum annual budget of $100,000.

Non-Theatrical Parley Is Slated for Capital

Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News

Washington—Producers and distributors of educational and industrial films are to be invited to a conference here about Feb. 1 under auspices of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce. Problems of the industry, co-operative sales efforts and sound films are among subjects slated to be discussed. More than 375 firms are making non-theatrical films for educational or advertising purposes, states E. I. Way of the department.

Can't Cover It

So says Dorothy Mackaill, via the publicity department, appropos of her forthcoming picture in which she wears decidedly mannish garb throughout.

"If you haxe sex appeal you can wear burlap or muslin and still IT will shine through," declares the star.

Believe IT or not.

Coast Plans Foreign Tongue Stock Companies; Studios To Split Cost

One Troupe for Each Major Language to Be Maintained, with Producers to Pro Rate Charges and Keep Overhead Down

Hollywood.—Importation of stock companies from European countries to make talker versions of films in their respective language is understood planned by a number of producers. As a first step, actors are expected to be imported from Spain, with possibility that producers may get together to distribute costs of such an undertaking, so that overhead per company might be brought down "to a sensible basis."

Paramount and M-G-M have decided to produce Spanish dialogue versions of a number of their talkers, selecting those which lend themselves best to translation. J. Carner Ribalta, Spanish dramatist and translator, has been brought to the coast to handle translation of "The Doctor's Secret" into Spanish. He will work under Geoffrey Shurlock, foreign department representative at the studio, and a regular director assigned to the film, assisted by a dialogue director, conversant with Spanish, using Spanish-speaking players. Ralph de Alberich is in charge of Spanish production at M-G-M, working on translations. He is expected to direct M-G-M's initial Spanish talker.

There has been some production of all-Spanish talkers in recent months, but actors capable of speaking real Spanish are decidedly hard to find. The argument is advanced, after investigation by one man interested in making Spanish versions, that many applicants for parts in those pictures cannot speak intelligent Spanish, but have either a Mexican or South American dialect which makes them unavailable for real Spanish versions. Although Hollywood has representatives from every country in the world, investigations tend to show that there are fewer actors who can speak intelligent Spanish needed for dialogue pictures than for any other of the major languages.

Warners have been at work for some time on Latin shorts in the Vitaphone Varieties series.

Tri-Linguals in Work

Hollywood—Four companies are at work at the Roach studio on two-reel talking comedies with Spanish and French versions. The first with a French version is a Laurel and Hardy film entitled in English, "Blotto."

Three separate casts work with the stars, an English, Spanish and French group. Interpreters are assisting James Parrot, who is directing all three versions. Harry Langdon's "The Shrimp" will have a Spanish version, and a second Our Gang in Spanish version is being completed. Charley Chase is working on an idea for his next.

French Making Plans to Speed Talker Production

Paris.—France's first talker has made its appearance here. Its reception presages speeding up of production, with distribution planned throughout France and her colonies, Continental Europe and Quebec. France has a real problem, in that there are none but American talkers available in sufficient quantity to fill the needs of the 40 wired houses of the republic. There has been a strong reaction to the English dialogue, with the claim advanced that the French language is being threatened.

Atwill and Sales About to Sign for Talkers on Coast

Lionel Atwill and Charles ("Chic") Sales, both of whom have made talker shorts for Fox, are to join the stage colony in Hollywood with contracts to appear in dialogue pictures. Leo Morrison, who has them under contract, is about to close for their services.

Morrison has placed Gus Shy, comedian, who appeared in the stage version of "Good News," with M-G-M for the picture version and also George Olsen and his band.

W. E. Installations Continue at Rate of 50 Each Week

Installations of Western Electric sound reproducing equipment are continuing at the rate of 50 weekly, Electrical Research Products states. Installations in the United States total 3,181; in Canada, 177; in Latin America, 50; in the Far East, 231, and in Europe, 584, making a grand total of 4,212. In addition, 157 review room installations have been made.

New Pantages, Hollywood on Its Own; Chain Deals Out

Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News

Hollywood — With the new Pantages nearing completion, it is understood that the house will be opened and operated by the two sons of Alexander Pantages. Deals for leasing or selling the theatre to Publix, Warners and R.K.O. have been discontinued during the past two weeks.

French Versions From Old Features

Hollywood.—M-G-M's initial production in French dialogue will be a version of "Unholy Night," which Jacques Feyder will direct with a cast of French linguists. The company first intended to produce an original story written by Feyder as its first French production, but switched plans to experiment with a foreign remake of a regular production that had already been made in English. If the present experiment with "Unholy Night" is successful, Feyder will direct and produce only French versions of current pictures.

First German Bi-Lingual Film Opens in London

London—Described as the first bi-lingual talker to be made, the German picture, "Atlantis," had its premiere at a special New Year's showing at the Alhambra, famous old London variety theatre which John Maxwell has just taken over for pictures.

Finishes Mexican Film

Hollywood—David Kirkland has returned from Mexico City where he directed "The Heart of Mexico" for Mrs. Juliet B. Rublee.

"Vagabond King" Big Time Entertainment

Hollywood—There is no doubt of the calibre of "Vagabond King"—it's one of the biggest productions scheduled for 1930. It cost a load of money, even in these days of sound and color, but rates plenty of cash from the public in return.

"Vagabond King" is Paramount's initial operetta in film form. It is an excellent production no matter from what angle viewed, and will easily take its place in the $2 field of screen entertainment for extended runs.

The picture has been assembled in a most capable manner. There is gorgeous color via Technicolor, beautiful sets, tuneful music by Rudolph Friml, fine voices, good direction, and a faster tempo than has been the rule in previously filmed operettas.

Dennis King plays and sings the title role in a sincere manner. Jeanette MacDonald duplicates opposite. But O. P. Heggie easily runs away with by far the best performance in the picture from an acting standpoint.

"Vagabond King" demonstrates the latest advance in screen entertainment from a filmsical standpoint. It rates to do outstanding business in both large cities and the smallest towns.

Independent Exhibitors Form Own Unit In Illinois With 90 Charter Members

Problems of Independent Differ Radically from Chain, Chicago Exhibitors Declare in Launching Separate State Ass'n

Chicago—Expressing conviction that problems of the independent exhibitor differ radically from that of circuit theatres, 90 independent Illinois exhibitors have formed the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners', Inc. Aaron Saperstein, who called the meeting, is president of the organization; Fred Gilford is vice president, Sam Harper, secretary, and S. H. Selig, treasurer.

and S. H. Selig, treasurer.

The meeting, held behind closed doors at the Stevens, was for the reported purpose of overcoming the Publix Balaban & Katz influence in connection with wage scales and other operating matters. The 90 exhibitors, mostly from Chicago, deposited checks for $25 toward the dues, which are yet to be decided upon. Membership of 150 Illinois theatres is declared assured for the new organization.

Judge Henry Eller, former municipal magistrate, attended the meeting at which the law firm of Eller, Herr & Callahan was chosen as advisor. The statement issued by Simon Herr, a member of the firm, stated:

"Our organization was conceived out of the knowledge that problems of the independent exhibitor differ radically from that of the circuit theatre. In view of this, we feel that there is real need for an independent organization to espouse strictly problems of independent theatre owners. In this connection, we propose to treat with various branches of the industry as an independent body. Among the immediate problems to be dealt with are: first, circuit houses; second, legislative matters, and third, labor conditions."

While no mention is made, it is recognized that the last has to do with wage scale of projectionists and other theatre employes.

Directors of the new association are: Jack Rose, R. Gumbiner, Ed Brunell, Sam Abrahams and Joseph Pastor.

Colleen Moore to Make Pictures for Paramount?

Hollywood—Whether Colleen Moore will be seen under the Paramount banner is a subject of speculation here following report that her husband, John McCormick, is to become an associate producer for the company. It is expected he will produce the Clara Bow vehicles, as well, in event the reported deal is consummated.

Columbia Lands Joe Cook and "Rain or Shine" Rights

Hollywood.—Columbia has definitely closed for the talker rights to "Rain or Shine," and will produce it, as outlined in Motion Picture News, with Joe Cook starred. Frank Capra will direct.

Leo Morrison, agent, closed the deal with Columbia for Joe Cook's services.

Cowan, M. C. in St. Louis

St. Louis—Will Cowan, not related to Lynn Cowan, his predecessor, is the new m.c. at Fox's.

Need Little Fellow, Van Praag Says

Columbus, O.—"This is not the time to talk about profits, because if we do not keep the small exhibitor in business there will not be any profit."

That is the highlight of the unfinished address of M. Van Praag, general sales manager of Universal, at the convention of the Ohio exhibitor unit here in November. The speech was not finished, Van Praag states in a letter to P. J. Wood, business manager of the Ohio unit, because of the abruptness with which the convention terminated. The unfinished portion of Van Praag's speech is being sent to members of the Ohio unit in a bulletin by Wood.

Van Praag says the Universal complete service plan on sound pictures was conceived for the small exhibitor, in an effort to aid the situation, prior to any other attempt to adjust the sound rental problem. The proposition, he points out, is open for any small exhibitor, pledging that "if it is humanly possible to keep the small theatres open by means of reasonable film rental, we stand ready to do it even at a loss of profit to ourselves." The complete service contract, he says, is available on a one, two, three or five-year basis, or as many years as the exhibitor wishes.

Carl Laemmle's efforts in behalf of the independent exhibitor are cited by Van Praag,(who says that "actual support," not resolutions, is called for. He also invites any exhibitor who cannot get together with the Universal manager "on a live and let live deal on sound pictures" to write Laemmle or him, promising "we will see that he gets the deal that he needs to keep him in business if the situation is at all possible."

R. & R.-Gulf Chain Opens New $500,000 House in Texas

Corpus Christie, Tex.—The Ritz, newest link in the R. & R.—Gulf circuit, has opened here. It cost $500,000.

Allied Making Bid?

Chicago—Whether the new Illinois Independent Theater Owners, new association formed here Thursday, will affiliate with Allied State Ass'n, is a matter of speculation. For some time Allied has left Illinois out of its plans on organization work, due probably to the strong position of affiliated theaters in exhibitor organization ranks.

The Chicago exhibitor unit is headed by Jack Miller, who is associated with Publix. However, with formation of the independent association, which aims to be state-wide in scope, it is considered likely that Allied will extend an invitation to the new unit to become affiliated.

New Clues Revive Taylor Murder Probe

San Francisco.—With naming of two mysterious key witnesses, renewed effort is being made to solve the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery. The two, referred to but not named in a statement by Former Governor Richardson are, according to the United Press: George Heffner, alias William Nelson, convicted on a narcotic charge, and Edward Sands, former valet to Taylor.

Heffner, who was free at the time Taylor was killed in 1922, was silent during the investigation, but after being imprisoned on a narcotic charge, told his story to the governor, which indicated that a woman did the actual slaying. Narcotic traffic is said to have furnished the background for the murder. Taylor, it is said, had been working with federal authorities to help break up a dope ring.

Mary Miles Minter, one of the witnesses questioned in 1922, is in a sanitarium, due to a nervous breakdown said to be due to a revival of the investigation.

"Spoilers" to be Made as George Bancroft Talker

Paramount has purchased talking picture rights to "The Spoilers," Rex Beach novel, which will be directed by Edwin Carewe with George Bancroft as star. Production begins in March. This will be the third time the story has been filmed, having been made in silent form by Selig, with William Farnum, Tom Santschi, Bessie Eyton and Wheeler Oakman, and later by Goldwyn, with Milton Sills starred.

Some time ago, it was announced that Carewe would make the picture in association with Joseph P. Kennedy. At the time it was stated that the picture would be the first of a series, and that Carewe might become production head at Pathe.

Off to South Seas

Hollywood—Fox is sending a company to the South Seas where "The Mad Singer" will be filmed. Hamilton MacFadden will direct.

Renewed Efforts Being Made to Solve Fox Tangle; Kennedy to Be Brought in?

Al Smith Also Rumored as Possible Operating Head—Firm Declared Solvent with $73,000,000 Net Assets Over Renewed efforts to unsnarl the Fox tangle, caused by inability of the company to meet some $91,000,000 in short term notes, continued this week, with many reports concerning the future of the company in circulation. The week was featured by a statement from William Fox declaring that the company has assets of more than $73,000,000, over and above liabilities, with the A and B stocks having an indicated book value of $73 a share, and that the comapny's 1929 earnings are estimated at $19,000,000, with earnings this year indicating a total of $17,000,000.

This statement was issued to offset threat of Class A holders to throw the company into receivership, a threat which a statement of the holders' committee indicates has been withdrawn. With difficulties with the banking interests being ironed out, it is considered unlikely that any receivership action will be resorted to by these interests.

Own report had it that Joseph P. Kennedy, who was called into Pathe when that firm was in difficulties, may be selected by banking interests to operate the Fox enterprises. His name was discussed at a meeting of banking creditors on Thursday, but in reply to a query by MOTION PICTURE NEWS he stated he is trying to get out of the film business rather than becoming more deeply involved. Kennedy admitted however, that for five days he had had daily conferences with William Fox.

A rumor which gained circulation Friday was one to the effect that Al Smith, former governor of New York and Democratic candidate for president in the 1928 elections would be invited to assume management of the Fox enterprises. In this connection, it is pointed out that Smith is a close friend of William Fox, as is M. J. Meehan, financier, who also is a close associate of Smith, as well as of John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman. Some months ago, it was reported that Meehan was dickering for control of Pathe, in an effort to gain a foothold in the industry. This deal, however fell through, it is stated.

Meeting Jan. 19

Affairs of Fox are expected to reach a climax Jan. 19, when annual meeting of stockholders is scheduled. Whether there will be an effort to obtain proxies to swing control, in view of the deadlock said to have been brought about by Fox's declared failure to obtain resignation of a majority of the board of directors so that directors representing the trustees could be named, has not been indicated.

British Seeking Purchase of Loew?

Purchase of 800,000 shares of Loew stock is declared sought by representatives of an English banking syndicate, now in New York. The idea is to get control of Loew's and M-G-M, particularly the Loew theatres, as an outlet for British pictures in America. William Fox is reported to have secured the stock with five New York bankers for $40,000,000. The latter group desires Fox to lift the stock, which he is declared declining to do. The British representatives are said to be ready to pay over immediately $20,000,000, to be followed soon with remaining $20,000,000. Effort is said to have been made to swing the deal directly with Fox, but this the English group declined to do. The same group is said to be dickering for Fox's interest in the Gaumont British chain.

Italian Exhibitors Waver Over Product

Rome—Patriotism may be a fine thing, but what is to be done about pictures? That well may be the query of Italian exhibitors following edict of Premier Mussolini in banning from Italian screens all talkers which have foreign dialogue or singing. Because enforcement of the decree will provoke an acute shortage of films, it is expected that the ban will be modified.

Geneva—Harold Smith, European representative of the Hays organization, is expected to go to Rome late this month to confer with Premier Mussolini in an effort to have the ban on American talkers modified or lifted.

Cincinnati Strike Settled

Cincinnati.—Strike of musicians and stagehands at three local legitimate houses has been settled. William Canavan, head of the operators and stagehands international union, came here to take part in the negotiations.

W. E. to Appeal Adverse German Patent Decision

Berlin—Appeal is to be taken by Western Electric from decision of the Berlin court ruling against the company on all counts in its patent infringement suit against the Klangfilm Tobis group. The action was brought in Sept. on 17 points of complaint, the company stating this was the one sure way to remove obstacles to development of sound films in all countries. Similar suits were filed at the time in Switzerland, Holland, Austria and Hungary. Klangfilm Tobis secured an injunction against use of Western Electric reproducers here last July.

At the office of Western Electric it was pointed out that the decision was an oral one and that no statement would be forthcoming until a written copy had been received. It was expected, however that an appeal would be taken.

Western Electric officials pointed out that this case in Germany is the only instance when an injunction against the company's patents has been sustained.

An infringement action against the Western Electric-equipped Forum theatre in Budapest, has been supsended by order of the Upper Court until the nullity action is decided. The nullity action was brought by Western Electric.

Sarnoff Heads RCA

Presaging increased activity on the part of the company and its subsidiary corporations in the film, sound equipment, theatre and broadcasting fields, David Sarnoff on Friday was elected president of RCA, with the retiring president, General J. G. Harbord named chairman of the board of directors. Sarnoff is president of RCA-Photophone, and chairman of the board of directors of Radio-Keith-Orpheum and RKO Prod. Prior to his election to the presidency, he was executive vice president of RCA. Sarnoff last year went to Europe with the Young reparations commission and is generally credited with drafting terms of the plan adopted by the commission and submitted to Germany and to the allied powers.

Receiver Threat Setback Offset by Fox Statement

Fox Film stock was subjected to heavy pounding during the week and on Friday reached a new low of 16¼, although it rallied quickly to close at 21. The drop was attributed to statement of the Class A holders that a receivership would be sought. This evoked a statement on company assets, and a second statement by the Class A holders stating the reassuring statement indicated the company would come through all right, and declaring its intention to seek five directors on the board at the forthcoming annual meeting. This, it was said, would remove "the principal barrier of closed control of the corporation."

RCA-Photophone to Extend Activities, Abel Declares

R.C.A.-Photophone not only has no plans of pulling out of the sound reproducer field, but on the contrary has plans for extension of its sales activities on a bigger scale than ever, states Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager of the company.

The success of the Type G equipment has enthused the company, he states, declaring that 50 installations already have been made and that new equipments are being received at the rate of ten a day.

Previously it had been reported that two factions were at loggerheads in the company, one seeking discontinuance of activity, on the ground that it was unprofitable, the other insisting upon remaining in the field as a matter of pride, confident of the company's ability to overcome the problem presented by Western Electric's earlier part in the field.

Garvin, District Mgr. for RCA

Washington.—George Garvin has been appointed local district manager of RCA Photophone.

Crone In; Griffith Out

Hollywood—George J. Crone has supplanted E. H. Griffith as director of Reginald Denny's first Sono-Art production, "The Dark Chapter." Florence Eldridge will play the lead opposite Denny.

Boles' Second Selected

Hollywood—The second John Boles vehicle promised by Universal for 1930 will be an original by Houston Branch temporarily titled "The Spanish Cabellero." John Robertson will direct.

Dressler-Moran Teamed

Hollywood—M. G. M.'s first co-starring Marie Dressler and Polly Moran will deal with the recent stock market debacle. Willard Mack is doing the story.

Fox Signs Walthall

Hollywood—Henry B. Wathall has been placed under long term contract by Fox, following his work in a featured spot in "Temple Tower."

Brent's First

Hollywood—Evelyn Brent's initial starring talker for Columbia will be titled "Soldiers and Women." Director has not yet been assigned.

F. N. to Do "Jailbreak"

Hollywood—First National is preparing to do "Jailbreak," a stage play with Mervyn LeRoy directing.

Laemmle Elected to R. S. A.

The Royal Society of Arts, London, has elected Carl Laemmle to a fellowship.

Lillian Roth in N. Y.

$15,000,000 1929 Net Estimated by Zukor

Net of around $15,000,000 for Paramount's 1929 is estimated by Adolph Zukor, who says earnings were far greater than the most optimistic predictions at the start of the year, according to the Wall Street News. Fourth quarter earnings are estimated at $5,500,000, or a gain of about 100 per cent over the corresponding period of 1928. Net for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was $4,600,000.

For the year 1928, net was $8,713,063. If the earnings for 1929 top $15,000,000, this will be equal to more than $5.65 a share on the 2,647,326 shares outstanding on Sept. 30, or $2.65 a share in excess of the current $3 annual dividend rate. Profits in 1928 were $4.22 a share on the 2,063,517 shares outstanding. The company has no bank loans outstanding.

Chicago Medical Man Sees Talkies as Boon to Schools

Chicago—"Not only will lecture rooms and medical colleges depend largely on talkies in the near future, but fraternity houses, as well, will be equipped with sound devices," in the opinion of Dr. Bowman Crowell, eminent Chicago medical authority, who predicts an extensive use of talking films in clinical rooms, where they will be screened for instructional purposes instead of actual operations.

Cleveland Schools to Boost Visual Education in 1930

Cleveland.—The city council will be asked to appropriate funds in the new budget for the purchase of projection machines for public schools, where visual education will become an important part of the curriculum in 1930.

Shlyen Buys Atlanta Sheet

Ben Shlyen's Associated Publications group has purchased and will publish the "Atlanta Film Review," Southeastern regional. Anna Aiken Patterson will continue as editor.

Niblo Heads Mayfair Club

Hollywood.—Fred Niblo is new president of the Mayfair Club. Conrad Nagel is the new vice-president, Irving Thalberg was reelected secretary, and M. C. Levee continues as treasurer.

Garfield on Leave

Charles G. Garfield has been granted an indefinite leave of absence as manager of Warner's new Beacon, New York, because of a partial breakdown in health.

The Reason

Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the Hays organization, has an interesting explanation of why Will H. Hays, president of the association, is always referred to as "czar" of the movies, according to "The Churchman."

"The majority of American newspapers," Milliken says in a letter, "have a principal headline type which allows just nine spaces to the line, including a space between two words. The word film has four letters and the word czar has four letters. I have often wondered whether that is the reason why the expression 'film czar' first came into being, and whether out of the simple mechanical necessity has arisen the misconception which I feel sure is partly responsible for some of the misunderstanding that has accrued in regard to the duties and responsibilities of Mr. Hays as president of this association."

Color, Topic Before S. M. P. E. Meetings

Los Angeles—Technical development of color in motion pictures will be the topic of discussion at three of the ten meetings to be held here by the Society of M. P. Engineers, Pacific Coast division. Wide film will be probed at two meetings, laboratory procedure at three and stereoscopic depth and television at the others.

Authorities on the respective subjects will address the engineers and two papers will be read on each topic. First of the series was held in California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, when Dr. W. T. Whitney, assistant astronomy professor at Pomona College, lectured on "Light and Color."

The Pacific Coast S. M. P. E. now has a membership of 75, principally studio engineers.

O'Brien Returns, Says Color Process Doesn't Affect Sound

Joseph O'Brien, Pathe Sound News film editor, has returned to New York from Paris where he instructed the staff of Pathe Cinema in new methods of recording sound news shots.

O'Brien studied the new color process at the Pathechrome plant in France. He states that the color application of this system can be confined to any part of the film and, therefore, it can be kept entirely off the sound track, thus avoiding impairment to the recording which color dyes are known to cause in the majority of processes.

The first series of Pathechrome sound units for Pathe's Audio Review will be shipped to the States on Jan. 6.

United Artists Will Build 3,500 Seat House in London

London.—United Artists will build a 3,500 seat theatre to cost $5,000,000 and to be known as the Empire, according to Joseph M. Schenck, who is here in connection with a plan to organize a chain of houses for his company in England. A West End site is under consideration. Schenck says many of his company's releases have been held up with no theatre to play them in.

"Sunkissed" Looks Good

Hollywood.—From start to finish, "Sunkissed" is loaded with entertainment and popular appeal. From start to finish, it is as clean as a hound's tooth.

In producing this from "They Knew What They Wanted," one of the stage plays banned by the Hays members as unfit for pictures, all offensive elements have been removed and in such a way as to actually enhance the story value. For which too much credit cannot be given Victor Seastrom and Sydney Howard. The former for direction, and the latter, for dialogue. They have kept the story moving and what is more important, they have installed an appeal which will register with every type of audience.

While Vilma Banky is beautiful as ever and is satisfactory in her part, the outstanding performance is given by Edward G. Robinson in the role created on the stage by Richard Bennett. Robinson dominates the picture.

In week run and regular picture houses "Sunkissed" should do excellent business. Vilma will draw them in; the picture will do the rest.

Cameramen's Union Tries To Block Tiffany Opening

The opening of "Party Girl" at the Gaiety, New York, at midnight, Dec. 31, at which time Tiffany took over the theatre under a year's lease, was almost blocked by the action of the cameramen's union. The union informed the company it would have to allow its organization take whatever pictures were made of the opening. Tiffany had already contracted for another photographer to do the job. This cameraman worked under the protection of the police.

The contention of the union is that no matter what the type of photographic work is as long as it is connected with motion pictures the work must be done through union channels.

Sennett Has Only 9 to Go on Current Educ'al Schedule

Hollywood—Another comedy on golf, for which he has signed Leo Diegel and Walter Hagen, tops Mack Sennett's current production activities for Educational shorts, to be followed by "Bulls and Bears" and "Sugar Plum Papa," the latter now in the cutting room. When this batch is released, Sennett will still have nine more to make for the current 1920-30 series of 32.

King to Produce Williams' Novel as Next for Inspiration

"They Still Fall in Love," Jesse Lynch William's novel, will be the next Henry King-Inspiration all-talker. Clarke Silvernail and N. Brewster Morse will write the dialogue and continuity. They will go to California with King as soon as he has completed editing of "Hell Harbor" in New York.

March Signed by Hughes

Hollywood—Joseph Moncure March has been signed by Howard Hughes to a three-year contract. March wrote the dialogue for the all-talking version of "Hell's Angels."

Derr and Sullivan Take Over Pathe Studio Reins

There will be 26 talking features on the new Pathe schedule, with the musicals to be released as specials, it is understood.

Hollywood.—E. B. Derr and Charles E. Sullivan this week assumed responsibilities as heads of Pathe studios, with William Sistrom and Ralph Block stepping out on completion of their contracts.

Sistrom has been general manager of Pathe since the De Mille regime, while Block has been associate producer with the organization for the past two years. Derr and Sullivan are representing Joseph P. Kennedy in the latter's plan for reorganizing the entire production set-up to make only pictures geared for extended runs.

Pathe, it is understood, will produce a total of 52 one and two reel comedies on the Coast during the coming year, eliminating the short reel production units formerly centered in the East.

No unit producers have been engaged so far by Pathe to assume charge of productions under Kennedy's latest policy, but preparations are being made for starting "In Bad in Bagdad" within the next month. A new story and dialogue are now being written by John W. Krafft, despite a former decision to shelve the story. Alan Hale will be featured, with direction likely assigned to Tay Garnett.

Jensen-Von Herberg In First Run Field

Seattle—The city's keen showmanship battle in the first run field now being waged between Fox and Publix, will find another combatant when Jensen & Von Herberg, for years the dominant power in the first run situation, re-enter the field after remodeling the Liberty, a 2,000 seater.

Leroy V. Johnson, general manager of J-V's present Roxy, Bagdad and Venetian suburban houses in Seattle, says a popular price policy below that of the Fox and Publix houses in this city will prevail at the Liberty, which will be under his general management.

'U' Shapes Up New 'Cohens' Story, with Sidney, Murray

Hollywood.—William James Craft will direct "The Cohens and Kellys in Scotland" for Universal. Albert De Mond is now writing the dialogue, with a cast including George Sidney, Charles Murray, Vera Gordon, Kate Price, E. J. Ratcliffe, Bill Colwin. Craft recently finished "Dames Ahoy," starring Glenn Tryon.

1st Division Handling N. Y. Zone on Sono-Art Films

First Division Pictures is to distribute Sono Art-World Wide product in Greater New York and northern New Jersey, under terms of a deal concluded between E. W. Hammons, George W. Weeks and Harry Thomas. The present First Division sales organization will be enlarged, it is stated.

Campbell Producing

Tampa—John E. Campbell, local producer, has returned from a tour of northern states and is shooting new Florida subjects.

Provincial Censors Remain in Canada

Ottawa—Racial, religious and bi-lingual difficulties throughout the Dominion stand in the way of a Federal censorship commission. Each province has jurisdiction over censoring films and the respective boards will continue to function independently, despite a strong effort on the part of distributors, and other interests, to centralize control.

K. C. Rejects Padlock Law For Immoral Presentation

Kansas City—Councilmen here have rejected the padlock law giving police the right to close theatres where an immoral show is presented, contending that the existing ordinance is sufficient. Clubwomen have been agitating the issue for weeks. Meanwhile, as if to demonstrate the proposed ordinance is unnecessary police secured conviction and $5 fine for several burlesque performers and managers.

Edwards Starts School

Hollywood—Gus Edwards, discoverer of stage and screen proteges, has launched his newest enterprise in the form of a training school for youthful talent combined with a managerial agency for handling various prospects. Edwards, under term contract to M-G-M as a writer, director, actor and song writer, will supervise his new venture, while Al Kingston will be general manager.

Tiffany Franchises Pass 2,000 Mark; Total Sales Computed at $30,000,000

Drive Being Renewed After Two-Week Vacation for Sales Force—Covers 26 Features First Year With More Later

With the 2,000 mark already passed, which, according to General Sales Manager Oscar Hanson represents estimated business of $30,000,000, Tiffany with the start of the new year is renewing its sales drive on the five-year franchise proposals. The Tiffany sales force has been enjoying a two weeks' holiday vacation, as a reward for the speed with which franchises have been sold.

Franchises the first year of operation cover a 26 feature schedule, in addition to shorts the company will release. Rentals are based on an exhibition value of $500,000 for the first year. Next year, 30 pictures will be called for, with an expected exhibition value of $600,000. Future schedules and exhibition values are to be determined by agreements to be drawn up between Tiffany and Allied when the time approaches.

The more than 2,000 Tiffany franchises are with exhibitors in all sections of the country, it is shown in a check-up of the situation. The next few months are to witness intense sales drives in sections where few franchises have been sold.

Originally, committees in each zone were named to rate each franchise house, but this policy has been changed to individual deals on rating, directly with the exhibitor. Should any dispute on these deals arise, they are to be referred to a review committee, from which appeal can be taken to a national appeal board composed of Abram F. Myers, Allied president, a Tiffany officer, and a third member to be named by the two.

Allied's Film

Tiffany is to make a feature production for Allied States Ass'n, profit from which is to be used to finance organization work. Production is in accordance with the arrangement entered into when the franchise agreement was signed.

Allied units will sell the film to members, with Tiffany handling physical distribution. Production cost will be repaid to Tiffany with first money received from rentals. No charge will be made by Tiffany for physical handling.

Tiffany Buys Three

Hollywood—Tiffany has purchased rights to the novel "Mareea-Maria," by Sophie Kerr; "Left Over Ladies," by Ursula Parrott, and will start production immediately on "The Adventure," an original by A. P. Younger, head of the story department.

St. Louis Musicians Now Gunning for Amateurs

St. Louis—Following its hot battle against canned music and competition of the radio, Musician's Local No. 3, will direct its efforts against amateur orchestras and bands which take away business from union players.

Checking Hazards At N. Y. Studios

Inspectors of the N. Y. Fire Dept., fire prevention bureau, are continuing their rigid check-up of studios, labs and projection rooms in the New York area to eliminate hazards. The Pathe studio fire is directly responsible for a tightening of the lid at plants where film is stored.

Violations slapped on studios and laboratories, the majority of them minor, will not interfere with their operation, if they are immediately eliminated.

Pitkin Signed By Equitable Pictures

Prof. Walter B. Pitkin, reputed authority on short story writing, author and journalist, will buy story material to be used by Equitable Pictures for its exhibitor franchise associate, M. P. Congress.

Prof. Pitkin continues as professor of journalism at Columbia University. He was with Universal early in 1929 as story advisor. Among his recent books are "Psychology of Happiness," on the new Simon & Schuster list; "Twilight of the American Mind," "New Realism," "Art of Rapid Reading," "How to Write Stories," "Art and Business of the Short Story," and others. He was associate American editor of the new Encyclopedia Britannica and is one of the Pulitzer Literary prize judges.

It is understood Equitable will use several Pitkin stories for production.

Back to Warner Lot

Hollywood—Joseph Jackson, Harvey Thew, J. Grubb Alexander and Gordon Rigby, all Warner writers loaned to First National during the Warner shutdown, have returned to the latter studio. Their return marks preparation for the new 1930 schedule.

Seventh Day Adventists Acquitted in Five Cases

Des Moines—Further victories were won by the Seventh Day Adventist brothers, Luther and Richard Day, in their fight to operate on Sunday at Centerville, where authorities arrested both for Sabbath operation of their victory, when five cases were dismissed following defendants' plea that their religion entitled them to Sunday openings.

Coast Stunned By Air Tragedy

Hollywood.—Film circles here today are still shocked by the air tragedy in which Kenneth Hawks, director, and nine members of his staff filming "Such Men Are Dangerous" for Fox, lost their lives, when the two airplanes in which they were shooting air sequences crashed head on over the Pacific, off Point Vincente. The dead are, in addition to Hawks:

Max Gold, assistant director.
Conrad Wells, cameraman.
George Eastman, cameraman.
Otto Jordan, assistant cameraman.
Ben Frankel, assistant cameraman.
Tom Harris, property boy.
Johannes, property boy.
Paul Rous, pilot.
Ross Cook, pilot.

Hawks, who is the husband of Mary Astor, was born at Goshen, Ind., Aug. 12, 1898. He was an aviation enthusiast, serving with the American air force during the war. His first connection in the industry was financing independent production. In 1924, he became assistant to Jack Conway, Universal director, later going to Paramount.

Probe of Scotland Fire Disaster Is Scheduled

Paisley, Scotland.—Parliamentary investigation of the panic at the Glen here, in which 70 children lost their lives following a slight fire New Year's Eve, is being awaited. Meanwhile, Charles Dorward, manager of the house, has been arrested on a charge of culpable homicide. The town council has raised a relief fund of $5,000 and Universal has offered a like amount.

Fox Preparing

Hollywood—George Manker Watters is writing the adaptation and dialogue for "A Very Practical Joke" which Fox will produce, from novel by Ben Ames Williams.

Some Great Shots

Pathe's shots of the British Zep R-100, new air monster, returning to its mooring mast at Cardington, England, leave the usual run-of-the-day newsreel camera stories high and dry, insofar as beauty and thrills are concerned.

The shots, incorporated in the current Sound News, No. 3, show a close-up of the new giant dirigible being moored to its mast and several scenes silhouetting the silver ship against a dark skyline.

Most Extensive Building Activity of New Year Anticipated in Far West

Fox, Publix, Warners and R-K-O Carrying Out Expansion Programs in Pacific Seaboard States as 1930 Highlight

Los Angeles.—This section is expected to witness the most extensive building activity in its history during 1930, as the result of expansion plans being developed by Fox, Publix, Warners and Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

The former, strongly entrenched throughout Pacifiic Coast states, has plans for a $15,000,000 building program embracing 21 cities in seven western states. There may, of course, be some let-up, due to the financial situation of the company, but so far indications are that the program is being carried out.

Publix, meanwhile, has its scouts out along the Pacific Seaboard, and will buy or build in many sections to fortify the position it occupies here, at San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. Warners recently announced a building program involving several new theatres in California cities. R-K-O's program has not been disclosed, but a house at Long Beach is declared planned as the forerunner of others in this region.

Fox's program, announced some time ago by Harold B. Franklin, head of the western division, calls for local theatres at Wilshire Blvd. and Hamilton Way, Florence and Compton Blvds., and Beverly and Fairfax Blvds, and one on Hollywood Blvd At Westwood, a house is slated to be completed by September, and a $300,000 Berkeley house, the Fox, is scheduled to open March 15. Sacramento is slated to get a house costing $850,000, with a theatre at Bakersfield to open in July. Magnolia Park is to have a $500,000 house seating 2,000 and Pomona a $250,000 project seating 2,000. San Pedro is to have a third Fox house, to be built at a cost of $450,000, according to the plan. Burbank, San Jose, Oakland, Whittier and Huntington Park are other cities where theatres are planned. Theatres also are slated to be built in a number of Arizona cities, including Prescott and Bisbee. Pacific Northwest states and Montana also are to share in the expansion program, according to the schedule.

Fox on Jan. 6 is slated to take over operation of the Arkush Peninsula Circuit, which includes: the Varsity and New Stanford. Palo Alto; Sequia, Redwood City; Peninsula, Burlingame, and New San Mateo, San Mateo.

Development of the Warner theatre holdings in a number of California cities is under way, with sites being negotiated. Among cities slated to get new houses are: Oakland, Santa Ana, San Pedro, San Jose and Huntington Park.

At Long Beach, R-K-O is said to be dickering with the Bank of Italy for a site at Broadway and Pine.

Publix, R-K-O Plan Syracuse Expansion

Syracuse. — Expansion of both Publix and Radio-Keith-Orpheum in Syracuse, is forecast in current reports. Publix recently gained its first foothold here with opening of the Paramount, which, it is stated, is to be the first link in a local chain planned. RKO, which operates Keith's, has plans for a $300,000 neighborhood theater on James St., near Grant Blvd., and is said to be considering another downtown house.

Publix in Portland, Last Big Maine Town

Portland, Me.—With acquisition of the Strand here, Publix enters the last important Maine town in which it had no theatre representation. The deal becomes effective immediately.

Publix Michigan Theatres Formed; Operating Fifteen

Detroit. — Publix Michigan Theaters, a new Delaware corporation, has been formed, to operate Publix houses here. The latest additions to the group are the four suburban houses of former Charles W. Munz chain. These are: Grand Riviera, Riviera Annex, La Salle Garden and Tuxedo. The Grand Riviera now is playing a full week policy with Publix stage units. The other houses play pictures exclusively. The purchase gives Publix 15 local houses.

Publix Negotiating For Theater at Crawfordsville

Crawfordsville, Ind.—The Strand, operated by Vonderschmidt Amuse Co. is to be leased by Publix for 20 years.

The deal, now pending, is expected to become effective Jan. 1.

North Platte, Neb.—John Eberson, New York, is architect for the new Publix house to be built here at a cost of $100,000.

Exhibitor-Star

Los Angeles.—Ken Maynard, exhibitor, will be the new title of the veteran western star when a new theater project on which he is working is completed at Palm Springs. Ground was scheduled to have been broken this week for the new house to be known as the Maynard.

Real Charity

Hollywood. — Christmas this year was a happy one for Maisie Hause, assistant film cutter at the Paramount studios, who is recovering at a local hospital from an operation on her leg which eventually will enable her to walk without a limp.

The operation was made possible through the kindness of B. P. Schulberg and Hector Turnbull of Paramount, and Dr. John C. Wilson. The doctor is to receive no fee and the two film executives are defraying the estimated $10,000 her long stay in the hospital is expected to cost.

Newhall Plans Chain of Small Town N. E. Houses

Lynn, Mass.—With the New Orpheum at Danvers as nucleus, Allen B. Newhall, has formed American Theater Co., to develop a small town chain in New England. Newhall began operation of the Danvers house this week. He was New England representative for the Mark-Strand interests and resigned when United Strand Theaters, Warner subsidiary, took over complete control of local houses of the Mark Strand chain.

Willimantic, Conn.—Warners have opened the Capitol here.

Starting at Youngstown

Youngstown, O.—Work starts March 1 on the Warner theater to be built here seating 3,000. It is to cost between $800,000 and $1,000,000, and open about Jan. 1, 1931.

Publix in Hamilton

Hamilton, O.—John Eberson will design the theater to be built here for Publix.

New Publix Firm

Dover, Del.—Publix Salt Lake, Inc., has been incorporated here with 1,000 shares of common stock.

Lyman at the Chinese

Hollywood—Abe Lyman and his stage band will be a featured attraction at Grauman's Chinese. The theatre, which operates on a twice daily—long run policy, has been running an all-sound program for several months.

Now Dan Will Talk

Not to be outdone by Paramount's "Dangerous Nan McGrew," Helen Kane vehicle now in work, M-G-M will remake "Dangerous Dan McGrew" as a talker. Lew Cody appeared in the silent version.

Abramson Sues Hays Ass'n; Barred From Field, He Says

As a finishing flip to 1929, Ivan Abramson,, producer, brought suit against the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, naming 48 defendants and charging a conspiracy to keep his productions from the screen and thus prevent him from making a livelihood. He asks for $1,300,000 damages.

United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart, proponent of the block booking bill and author of a measure now pending to place the industry under control of what he terms a Federal Arts Commission, is named as of counsel by Abramson's attorneys, Blau, Perlman and Polakoff. The action is brought under the anti-trust laws and was filed in the United States Court for the Southern District of New York.

Charles C. Pettijohn, taking up the cudgels on behalf of the Hays organization, uses as the opening line of his defense statement:

"The defense will insist that this case be tried."

He further stated it was only via Brookhart's name that the story nabbed newspaper space, and continued:

> "The allegations in the complaint are so ludicrous that no notice of the filing of the action would be taken if it were not for the fact that Senator Smith W. Brookhart appears as trial counsel. In all of his agitations against the orderly conduct of the motion picture industry the Senator has professed that his interest was to encourage wholesome entertainment.
> "The issue is clean-cut—shall the exhibitors of the country be encouraged or required to show pictures of the kind Mr. Abramson produced or shall they not? This Association and the exhibitors' associations an all the responsible factors of the industry are against it. We welcome the show down."

Another representative of the Hays organization in interviewing newspapermen stated that the business has passed beyond the stage where reputable theatres operated in chains by members of the association would play pictures with suggestive titles such as "Forbidden Fruit," "A Fool's Paradise," "Sex Lure," "Enlighten Thy Daughter," and others. When he was checked and his attention called to one of the member-chains now playing "Her Unborn Child," he was unable to continue his stand in defense.

In his complaint Abramson charges, that the Hays association was formed:

> "To monopolize unlawfully the production and distribution of motion pictures, to destroy competition by independent producers and to drive from the industry the independent exchanges, the defendants unlawfully conspired with each other and engaged the services of Will Hayes, then a cabinet officer of the Government, agreeing to pay him the enormous salary of $150,000 a year or more and $150,000 a year or more for the expenses of the Hays organization."

The betting was eight to five along Film Row that Abramson would never collect a cent on his suit. It was two to one that he might be given a job for a short time as a director for one of the companies in the Hays organization, and even money that his suit would never come to trial.

You May Have To Be

Hollywood—"Broadminded" is to be the third of the Raoul Walsh series for Fox. It is a sequel to "The Cock-Eyed World," which in turn was a sequel to "What Price Glory." Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen will again be starred.

5 Distribution Deals for "Unborn Child" Closed

Closing of five deals for territorial distribution of "Her Unborn Child," talker produced by Henry Ginsberg and the Weiss Brothers has been completed. These are with Dave Dubin, formerly of Publix, for Illinois and Indiana; Mark Ross, formerly with Universal, for Wisconsin, upper Michigan, Minnesota, North and South Dakota; R. M. Savini for Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama, North and South Carolina; Edward Golden for New England, and James Abrose for Iowa and Nebraska. The picture had its first showing Christmas Day at Fay's Carlton, Providence.

Woodlaw Bomb Probe On; Holdings Being Expanded

Portland.—Inquiry into sending of the tear bomb received at his home as a Christmas package by Col. D. T. Woodlaw in his Circle theatre, is said to have disclosed that it was wrapped in a department store where a former Woodlaw employee is clerk. No action has been taken in the matter, however. Meanwhile, case of Woodlaw against the operators' union is slated to come to trial Jan. 6. Woodlaw recently started an expansion program, acquiring the Columbia from Universal, and the Irvington. The firm also operates the Capitol.

Mrs. Lydia Titus Dies

Hollywood—Funeral services were held here Thursday for Mrs. Lydia Yeamans Titus, screen and stage player, who died of paralysis. During the last weeks of her life Mrs. Titus was cared for by the Motion Picture Actors Relief Ass'n, to which she had donated $5,000 when she retired from the stage. She was a vaudeville headliner 30 years ago in the United States, and once won a gift from King Edward VII for her singing. Films in which she appeared include: "While the City Sleeps," "The Limited Mail," "Up the Ladder" and "Shanghai Lady."

Joe Fisher in Hospital

Joe Fisher, Capitol Theatres, Ltd., Singapore, is at Park West Hospital, N. Y., suffering from pleurisy. Fisher is in New York in connection with the purchase of equipment for a new house in Singapore, scheduled to open the latter part of next month, and had planned to leave yesterday on the Berengaria.

Green on Paramount Program

Harry Green will highlight the Paramount-Publix radio hour Saturday night, over the Columbia network at 10 P. M., Eastern Standard Time.

"Hot" Titles

While the Abramson suit against the M.P.P.D.A. and 48 defendants charging conspiracy brought to light a statement from a Hays spokesman that reputable theatres no longer play pictures with titles smacking of sex suggestiveness, a quick glance over the current and future release charts of various major companies divulges information to the contrary.

Many of the titles are at least warm, if not hot. With no attempt to analyze their story value, here are a handful:

"Broadway Babies," "Fast Life," "Hot Stuff," "Lilies of the Field" and "A Most Immoral Lady," from the First National line-up.

"Joy Street," "Hot for Paris" and "Broad-minded" in the Fox list.

"His Glorious Night," "Imperfect Ladies," "The Single Standard" and "Unholy Night," M-G-M's contribution.

"Dangerous Curves," "Divorce Made Easy," "Flesh of Eve," "Love Doctor" and "Woman Trap" from Paramount.

"Hot and Bothered," "Her Private Affair," "Negligee" and "Play Boy" from Pathe.

"Half Marriage," "Street Girl," "Damaged," "Ladies of the Past," "Love Captive" from RKO.

"The Bad One" and "Three Passions" from United Artists.

"The Love Trap," "Modern Love," "One Hysterical Night," "Moonlight Madness," "Scandal," "Shanghai Lady," "Song of Passion" from Universal.

"Glad Rag Doll," "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Honky Tonk," "Second Choice," "She Couldn't Say No" and "Woman's Game" from Warners.

Even Canadian Government Can't Give Sunday Show

Ottawa.—What was to have been premiere of the government's five-reel feature, "The Arctic Patrol," under Federal auspices at the Avalon, was cancelled last Sunday, while 1,000 people were waiting for the doors to open. To pacify the crowd, a notice was posted to the effect that the government's theatre department at Toronto had not granted a permit for the Sunday performance and a cancellation of the theatre's license and oeprators' license was threatened if arrangements were carried out. The matter, therefore, became an issue between the Federal and Provincial Governments.

Four Talkie Shorts in Work for Darmour-RKO

Hollywood-Darmour Prod. has started production on four talking comedies. The group includes "Dear Slayer," a Witwer story; "Mickey the Warrior," a Mickey McGuire comedy; "Cash and Marry," with Alberta Vaughan, Al Cooke and Lewis Sargent; "Land of the Sky Blue Daughters," a filmusical.

"U" Shifts Messiter

Washington.—H. M. Messiter, formerly associated with the Whitehurst interests, Baltimore, and more recently manager of "U's" Rialto, has been succeeded by Andy Sharrick. Messiter has returned to New York and will work out of the home office.

"Shrew" Proves a Surprise in L. A.

Los Angeles.—Excellent business prevailed all over the city this week, but the big noise was caused by Mary and Doug in "The Taming of the Shrew" which rolled up a gross of $34,000 on their first week at the United Artists and gave them the unusual rating of 252%.

This was not the peak load in point of dollars and cents. The State with "Romance of the Rio Grande" captured that honor nabbing $37,200, or a rating of 138 per cent. The next surprise was the Orpheum, formerly a vaudeville house, but not devoted to pictures. The opener was "Hit the Deck" which caused considerable talk with a $32,000 gross, giving that house a percentage of 180 for its first week under the new policy.

Ronald Colman did $18,300 at the Chinese in the fourth week of "Condemned." That gives the picture a rating of 114 per cent. "General Crack" continued to do very good business in its second week at Warners' Hollywood, where the returns were $20,200 on the week, or a rating of 144 per cent. At the Carthay Circle, "Rio Rita," playing its sixth week, finished at $14,100, or a 113 per cent rating. "So This Is College" at Grauman's Egyptian, played to $13,900 and "Sweetie" at the Paramount to $28,000, or 112 per cent. This was the picture's second week.

At the Fox Palace, "Sunny Side Up" in its second week did $8,300, eight per cent under normal box-office. The Bordoni film, "Paris," closed at $16,400, which entitled it to a rating of 109 per cent. "Flight" at the R-K-O grossed heavily at $22,500, or 141 in percentages.

Baltimore Embassy Switches from Burlesque to Pictures

Baltimore—The Embassy, which has had an up and down career since it was called the Victoria and abandoned a number of years ago by the Pierce and Scheck interests and again used as a Jewish house, is to be reopened soon by Hon Nickels, proprietor of the Gayety, burlesque house situated near it, with talking pictures.

Another from Seitz

Hollywood—George B. Seitz has been signed by Harry Cohn to direct "Private Property" for Columbia. Seitz recently finished "Murder On The Roof" for the same company.

Joe Miller in New Act

Oklahoma City—Joe Miller of 101 Ranch Wild West fame, has organized a new act called Joe Miller and his Oklahoma Cowboy orchestra, which he plans to present soon over eastern circuits.

All Fed Up

Apparently "The Waiter" was not sufficiently descriptive of the new Amkino-Sovkino feature taken from the story by I. Schmev. It opens today at the Cameo, New York, with its new title: "The Man from the Restaurant."

Holiday Week Fails to Boost B'way's Box Office Grosses

There is no Santa Claus is what they're saying on Broadway. Christmas week didn't mean a thing to box office grosses. But they have no one except themselves to blame. The day has passed when you can stick a weak sister in just because it's a holiday week and expect big business. The Roxy shows that. The week brought $111,812.75 to the house with "Christina" and a strong stage show which has become a Christmas institution annually. "Christina" held the box office figure down. The house might have done $30,000 more on the week with a stronger picture. But the show held over just because the investment in the production of the stage performance was so great that they had to keep it for an extra week to break even.

Not So Good Elsewhere

The same was true at the Capitol, where they played "Mysterious Island to $71,776 on the week; the Paramount, which, with 'The Kibitzer" got $76,100 and "The Girl from Woolworth's" at the Strand, where $28,669 told the story.

Saddest of all was the tale at the Colony with "The Shannons of Broadway," with the box office showing $7,911, while both "The Virginian" at the Rialto and "The Mighty" at the Rivoli each flopped on their opening six days, the former getting $22,500 and the latter $26,600. The Cameo with "The Lost Patrol," held over and did $5,381.

"Rio Rita" at the Globe for its initial New York showing at popular prices at a grind got $26,984, which was the street's only bright spot.

In the extended runs there were three bright box-office reports. They came from the Criterion with "The Love Parade" at $18,500; Warner's with "General Crack" at $23,940, and the Winter Garden with "Sally" at $20,417 for five days.

"Disraeli" Does Fine Business

"Disraeli" at the Central in its 13th week on Broadway came through with $16,387 at the Central, which was great for both house and picture. "Devil-May-Care," which came into the Astor for the holiday did not fare so well with $23,888, while "Seven Keys to Baldpate," which came into the Carroll on Christmas afternoon failed to get $4,000 in four days. "Hunting Tigers in India" finished out three weeks at the Cohan with just over $4,700 on the week, while "The Sky Hawk" at the Gaiety ended Fox tenancy of the house with a third and final week of $5,673. Tiffany took over the house New Year's Eve at midnight and presented "The Party Girl" for a short run, to be followed by "Mamba."

42 Hrs. at a Clip

Publix raised the all-night ante at the Rialto, New York, when it ran "The Virginian" bill for 42 hours straight, a new record for continuous shows. The house started the run at 9 A.M. on New Year's Eve morning and continued to 3 A.M. Thursday.

Six Cartoon Units Licensed by Bray Hurd Process Co.

Bray Pictures, Aesop Fables, Max Fleischer, Winkler Pictures, Winsor McKay and Paul Terry are now licensed to produce animated cartoons under patents of Bray Hurd Process Co., the company states, declaring that infringement suits brought to date have been settled.

Suits against other alleged infringers are contemplated, Bray Hurd declares.

Freddie Burke with RKO

Hollywood—Freddie Burke Frederick, the boy who scored heavily in "Evidence" has been cast by RKO for "Second Wife" which is being made from the stage play, "All the King's Horses." Lila Lee, Mary Carr, Conrad Nagel and Hugh Huntley round out the cast.

"U" Talker Serial Ready

Hollywood.—Universal has completed production of "Terry of the Times," a ten episode serial in dialogue with Reed Howes starred and cast including Lotus Thompson, Sheldon Lewis, John Oscar, Will Hayes, Mary Grant, Norman Thom and Kingsley Benedict. Henry McRae directed.

All-Kiddie Short

Hollywood—Gus Edwards is directing a colortone short subject for M. G. M. in which he is using a complete cast of children ranging from three to twelve years of age. "Baby Follies," which is the title, will have a special musical score written by Edwards.

M-G-M Renews Two Options

Hollywood—Kay Johnson and Robert Montgomery, former stage players, have had options renewed on term contracts by M-G-M.

Nancy Now "Honey"

Hollywood—"Honey" has been selected as the definite title for "Come Out of the Kitchen." Nancy Carroll is being starred.

Morton Gets Another

Winnipeg.—Henry A. Morton has acquired the Garrick on a five year lease.

Lindlar Heads New Tiffany Exploitation Department

Walter Lindlar, formerly head of the First National exploitation department and prior to that on the Paramount staff, has been placed in charge of an exploitation department being developed by Tiffany, under direction of A. L. Selig, director of advertising and publicity. Tiffany is planning to send out six road show productions during the next few months. The exploitation department will work on these and all other releases.

Market Crash Reduces Valuation of Amusement Stocks by Many Millions

New Low Reached During Hectic Fall Days, with Recovery Only Gradual Since—Fox "A" Drops from 105 to 22

Reflecting the hammering through which the market passed in the fall ays of the year, amusement and equipment stocks closed 1929 many millions under their quoted values on the last day of 1928. Fox "A," Loew's, Inc., and Warners, new, dropped $38,511,377 in November and December, height of the crash period. Fox topped the list with stock losses of $28,620,518 in value of the 'A" alone. Paramount depreciated $2,685,049, and R.K.O. "A", $5,542,653 in the two-month slump.

Net change of Fox "A" in November and December was 34⅞ points off, Loew's was low 3⅛ points, and Warners, 2⅛. The former hit a close of 56⅞ on November 30, while its last December price was 22. A new low was established, however, on Thursday, when reports of the "A" committee threatening a receiver's suit were credited with having brought the stock down to 17⅛.

Paramount was the most active during the crash period, selling 2,685,049 shares, with Warner, new, a close runner-up, trading 2,647291 shares.

Not a single straight film issue closed higher than the 1928 close on the last 1929 trading day. An electric equipment, General Electric, was the only issue in the list with a plus sign for the year's net change. Twenty-one of the film and equipment issues on the big board closed under 1928 and seven hit an even keel. Bond issues on the exchange fared as badly, with every one of the nine bonds showing a net loss at the 1929 close. On the curb market, three finished at a higher price, eight closed off and six even.

Just as Warners occupied the spotlight in the financial show in 1928 with its sensational rise, Fox Film "A" was the spectacular performer in 1929, only the trend was downward. This issue hit a high of 105⅝ on September 24, 1929. Its low closing price was 19⅛. The 1928 low was 72, and the high, 119⅝.

While the amusements stood the shock of the battered market better, perhaps, than any other group traded in on the floor of New York exchanges, the recovery was slower in December. Five important film issues showed a net loss of 7¼ points in December, the highest average loss of any other industrial or utility group on the boards.

The sensational drop in Fox "A," with its 72-point net loss for the year, and 29½ for Fox Theatres on the curb, was caused by the general market decline, coupled with speculation over the future in view of $91,000,000 in unmet short-term notes which led to the formation of the tri-cornered trusteeship board composed of William Fox, John E. Otterson and Henry Stuart, the

Record '29 Profits Reflect Market Widening and Economy Stabilization

Europe in Dubious Spot for Income

Paris—Great Britain, which can depend largely on its English-speaking colonies, is the only country in Europe which is in a position to estimate approximately the revenue of a first-class talking feature.

In any event, the rapid development of talkies will probably lead soon to the international exchange of product of both hemispheres, according to one leader in European film circles, who predicts this development will also amicably settle the eagerly awaited interchangeability question on the Continent, ending patent suits now pending against American sound manufacturers.

The present trend towards talking films in Continental markets, occasioned by the spectacular success of two or three outstanding American sound films in Paris, Berlin and London, will be heightened by rapidly increasing sound productions, he says. The biggest factors in Europe, he contends, will shortly strike agreements for reciprocal production and distribution of sound product in their respective countries.

Rossheim in Banking

Irving D. Rossheim, former president of First National and of the Stanley Co., has been appointed a general partner in the banking and stock exchange firm of Newburger, Henderson & Loeb, of New York and Philadelphia.

Wall St. Acknowledges Greatest Year in Industry's Existence And Holds Optimistic Outlook On the Future in 1930

Long before final 1929 balance sheets and consolidated statements of profit and loss become available, leaders in Wall Street recognize the industry has given a remarkable financial performance during the year. It credits the industry with hard work in effecting economies, a realization of which is reflected in excellent profits for the year.

Leaders in film circles and financial moguls view the future with optimism and are confident that the current year will show even greater increases in earning records. The financial editor of "The Wall Street News," in reviewing the 1929 activities of film leaders, states the industry "in 1929 experienced the greatest year in its existence. During the period just closed, financial returns were the highest ever attained." 1929 was the first full calendar year in which the larger percentage of producers were making and releasing talking pictures and the result has been characterized by substantially augmented earning power, he points out.

"It is significant that the introduction of sound has brought the screen, which some authorities had considered a waning enterprise, to the most profitable of all amusements," he continues. "Earnings unheard of in theatrical realms were registered by leading companies, last year, due primarily to the new life injected into the industry through sound. The motion picture in 1929 made further inroads on the legitimate stage, attracting an increasing proportion of its patrons, which has made for steadily rising attendance in film theatres.

"Greater use of colored photography was also evident. Short subjects, which had declined in popularity considerably before the advent of sound, have come back even stronger in the public's favor since being made with talk and song, and newsreels, which in their silent form had never attained anything like the highly profitable plane on which the present newsreel has been placed through sound, became increasingly popular in 1929.

Next Revolutionary Step

"Two companies demonstrated with considerable success during the past year what will probably be the next step of revolutionary proportions in the industry—the wide film and screen, which gives the effect of third dimension. Just how soon the wide films will be adopted by the industry has not been determined. The process will probably be gradual since it will involve a considerable expense in that a new type of camera and projecting machine will be necessary.

"Such leading units in the trade as Paramount Famous Lasky, Warner Bros. (and its subsidiary First National) Loew's, Inc. (and its subsidiary Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer), and Fox enjoyed during 1929 by far the largest earnings in any 12 months' period in their history. Radio-Keith-Orpheum has shown a steady increase in earnings since its reorganization late in 1928 and Pathe has turned the corner from deficit operations to black figures. Columbia, one of the largest of the independents, also experienced in 1929 the best profits it has ever registered. Universal is the one exception of the large companies, sustaining a decrease in earning power last year from the previous one.

View Future With Optimism

"Film executives view the future with optimism and are confident that the current year will show even greater increases in earnings records. The industry is ordinarily little affected by recessions in general business or by periods of depression. The slackening in certain industries in recent months has had no appreciable effect on picture theatre attendance. In fact, most of the leading companies in the December quarter will establish not only new high marks for any corresponding period on record

Weekly Attendance Tops Population of Nation

Weekly picture theatre attendance closely parallels the population of continental United States, for the film houses draw an estimated 120,000,000 weekly, while the population, as of July 1, 1929, totals 119,306,000. This is an increase of 14,299,000 during the last decade, according to estimate of the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Record Profits Reflect Economy

but also for any quarter in the history of their organizations.

"Because of advance bookings indications are that there will be a good increase in the first 1930 quarter's earnings over the corresponding period in 1929, which in most instances has been the best three months of any similar quarter in previous years.

"Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and Loew's, Inc., both of whose statements for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, last, have been made public, showed the most notable earnings in any fiscal period in their histories. Paramount and Fox Films, whose annual periods end Dec. 31, reported for the nine months ended Sept. 30 the largest profits for any corresponding period in previous years. The nine months' earnings were also materially higher than those enjoyed in any preceding full year period.

Warner Bros. Record Net

"Warner Bros. in the fiscal year ended Aug. 31 reported largest earnings any amusement organization has ever experienced in any 12 months' period. The net of $17,271,805 after all charges, depreciation, amortization, taxes, etc., was equivalnet after preferred dividends to $6.28 a share on the 2,627,405 shares of common stock. This compared with $2,044,841, equal to $3.72 a share on the combined 550,000 shares of class 'A' (since retired) and common shares outstanding in the preceding year. Current profits are running substantially ahead of the same time a year ago.

"Net income of Paramount for the year ended Dec. 31 is expected to aggregate in excess of $15,000,000, which would be equal to over $5.65 a share on the 2,647,326 shares of common stock outstanding on Sept. 30. Paramount's net income in the nine months to Sept. 30 was $9,725,000, or $4.11 a share on the 2,366,180 average common shares outstanding in the period and $3.67 a share on the stock outstanding on that date. This compared with $5,975,000, or $2.90 a share on 2,063,417 average amount of common stock outstanding in the same time a year ago. The nine months' earnings were over $1,000,000, more than the $8,713,063 record full year's profits of 1928, which was equal to $4.22 a share on the 2,063,517 shares outstanding on Dec. 31. It is predicted that the earnings in the first six months of 1930 are likely to show a good increase over the same time in 1929.

Loew's Shows Good Gain

"Loew's, Inc., reported net earnings for the 12 months ended Aug. 31 of $11,756,956 after all charges, Federal taxes and reductions for Metro-Goldwyn preferred dividends, compared with the previous record high annual profits of $8,568,162 in the 12 months ended Aug. 31, 1928, and with $6,737,205 in the same time in 1927. The earnings in 1929 were equal after preferred dividends to $7.91 a share on 1,363,993 shares of common compared with $5.90 a share on 1,334,725 common shares in the preceding year. David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer of Loew's, Inc., in November estimated that, based on operations of the company and subsidiaries, net earnings for the fiscal year to end Aug. 31, 1930, will be in excess of $15,000,000, which would be equal after preferred dividends to between $10 and $11 a share on present common stock outstanding.

"Fox Film Corp., which has been recently undergoing financial difficulties because of over-expansion, is in no sense due to any inherent weakness in the Fox properties from the stadpoint of earning power, reported net income after all charges, taxes, etc., for the nine months ended Sept. 30, of $8,845,000 equal to $9.61 a share on the combined class 'A' and 'B' shares, compared with $4,016,461, or $4.36 a share in the same period of 1928. These earnings were $2,887,000 in excess of the full 12 months' earnings of 1928, which had been the best previous year in the history of the company. In November Jack Leo, vice-president of Fox Film Corp., estimated that earnings in the fourth quarter before Federal income taxes will exceed $4,000,000. This would be the largest profit for any quarter in the histor yof the ,company and approximately 90% greater than the same quarter of last year. According to Mr. Leo's calculations, the earnings for the full year of 1929 will exceed $13,000,000, so that the per share earnings on the 920,660 shares of class 'A' and 'B' common stock outstanding will be larger than $13.

"Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. reported for the quarter ended Sept. 30 the best earnings since the organization of the present company. Net income for the nine months to Sept. 30 aggregated $1,637,900 in comparison with losses from operations sustained by predecessor companies in the similar period a year ago.

"Pathe has shown good improvements in earning power during the first nine months, with net income of $554,231 after all charges, and charging certain excess production costs to surplus, comparing with a huge deficit sustained in the corresponding time in 1928.

"Columbia Pictures Corp. made rapid growth in earnings last year and indications are that for the 12 months to Dec. 31, last, net income after charges, taxes and deduction of preferred dividends will exceed $8 a share on the common. The company's fiscal year ends on June 30 and the report for the 12 months to June 29, 1929, showed earnings of $551,822, equal to $4.77 a share on the common. For the nine months to Sept. 30 net was $649,315, equal to $5.93 a share.

"Universal Pictures, the only company which failed to show improvement in its earnings over the preceding period, reported net income for the nine months ended Aug. 3 of $119,961, after all charges and Federal taxes, against $1,286,516 in the similar period of 1928.

"Those companies which are paying common dividends during the past year earned substantially in excess of these requirements. Paramount continued to pay $3 annually, which rate was ordered in November, 1928, after the three for one split-up in the stock and had represented an increase over the rate prevailing at that time. President Zukor recently announced his intention of suggesting an increase in the rate to $4 a share at the next meeting for common dividends of Paramount in February.

"Loew's, Inc., directors increased the regular annual common dividend rate during the past year from $2 to $3 a share and declared an extra distribution of 75c. a share. Warner Bros. inaugurated dividend payments on the common stock in July through placing the stock on $3 annual basis, with declaration of a 75c. quarterly dividend. At the same time an extra dividend of 12½c. was also voted. In October the regular rate was increased from $3 to $4 annually. Fox has continued its $4 annual dividend rate on the common during the year, on which basis the stock has been since October, 1925."

Films Near Top of Leaders in Earnings

An average group of film corporations picked by the New York "Evening Post" financial editor runs third in a list of leaders in industry which have earned higher net income for the first nine months of 1929 than in the same three-quarter period of 1928. Arranged from highest to lowest percentage gains, and the comparison with 1928 nets, they follow:

latter two representing the largest note holders. Its decline was rapid. A total of 4,052,180 shares were traded in during the year, while 2,598,900 shares of the theatre company were sold on the curb.

Fox, however, had plenty of company. Paramount, for instance, reached a high of 75½ on October 15, following its split earlier in the year, at which time the new stock reached the market at an opener of 48. On October 29, when the Wall Street frenzy was at its peak, this issue gathered a dubious distinction for itself by dropping to 35, the lowest quoted figure in the history of the Paramount organization. Recovery since the end of October, however, has been steady if slow. The last trading day of the year closed with the stock at 51.

Right down the line the effects of a bottomless market asserted themselves. On October 8, Eastman Kodak common was selling at 264¾; five weeks later, or on November 13, the price had tumbled to 150, a depreciation of 114¾ points, while the year closed with a partial recovery to 177½, or 87¼ points under the peak figure.

The internal Fox situation left its mark on the Loew stock as well. Here are the high and low to prove it: On February 27, the stock was current at 84½; by October 30, purchases could have been made at 32. Between that date and December 31, a gain of 11 points had been made, enabling this issue to close the year at 43. The turnover was heavy, sales totaling 2,502,500 shares.

Pathe, never high during 1929, nosedived from 14⅞ on January 9 to 2½ on December 19, then closing the year at 3. Sales reached 2,079,700.

One of the leaders, in point of activity, was R-K-O. Exactly 6,343,100 shares passed through the hands of brokers, or roughly 21,000 shares each trading day. But the high and low record told another story. This issue touched its 1929 high on January 4 with 46⅞. On October 29, the current quotation was 12 and by December 31 a gain of eight points had been made.

With a net loss of 59⅞ points for the year, Universal first preferred dropped from 93 on January 2 to 28 on December 4, closing at 33⅞ on December 31. The stock apparently tightly held, however, showed a meagre turnover of 8,550, shares to be exact.

In the bond market, the losses were also significant. Keith 6s closed at 75½ from a 1929 high of 97; Loew's 6s at 108⅛ from a high of 124; Pathe 7s at 38 from a high of 84 and Shubert Theatres at 47⅛ from a high of 91½.

On the curb exchange, Fox Theatres was the leader among amusement stocks. This issue reflected the down trend in Fox Film, closing the year at 5½ as against a 1929 high of 37⅞. In this issue alone, the turnover was 2,598,900. Universal slid from 29, its high, to 9½ as the year ended. Others in this listing reacted in identical manner.

The charts appearing on this and prexious pages in connection with this resume tell the story in detail of the history-making year in amusement and film stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, on the Curb market, and on over-the-counter transactions.

Theory That Weight Is Cure-All for All Reproduction Defects Exploded in Tests

Higher Speed of Recording Is Tendency, with Trouble with Jumping Needles to Be Increased by New Developments

Proper weighing and alignment of the tone arm, guarding against over and under weight, use of the proper needles at proper angles to keep needles in the groove of discs are among features emphasized in conclusions drawn from work of M-G-M's sound technicians. This staff of experts, an organization unique in the field, was established by the company to help raise standards of sound reproduction, and to supply data for the benefit of the theater, distributing company and the studios.

The following article, the fourth in the series being published exclusively by Motion Picture News, deals in detail with and suggests remedies for the problem of rebellious needles.

A Handy Guide

Betterment of sound reproduction in the theatre is the purpose of a sound technical department established by M-G-M. With many new problems presenting themselves hourly in wired houses of the nation, M-G-M technicians are encountering and helping to remedy a number of defects.

The accompanying article is the fourth of this exclusive series, which exhibitors will find will prove a handy aid in solving their sound problems.

File these articles for future reference.

A heavy automobile sometimes holds an uneven road at high speed where a lighter car probably would bounce badly. Our common experience, in fact, seems to suggest pressure as a means of maintaining contact between any two bodies which are disposed to fly apart. Perhaps this accounts for the widely accepted theory that the simplest way to keep a rebellious needle in the groove of a sound record is by putting weight on the reproducer arm.

Many strange evidences of supreme confidence in this simple method are reported by M-G M's staff of technicians.

The use of weights of one sort or another—some of them actually tied to reproducer arms with cord—is a popular method of trying to cure all sorts of reproduction troubles. Indeed, the evidence would indicate that this treatment is a sort of sound malady cure-all.

Levelling Important

A report of one case concerns trouble resulting solely from lack of proper levelling. This gave the needle a tendency to drift to the outer edge of the sound track and disc. The arm, when placed straight above the disc starting mark and then released, would invariably swing over until the end was beyond the outer edge of the disc.

This test to determine whether or not the machine and arm were level had not been made prior to the visit of technician. The trouble had merely been charged against sound records in general. Weighting down the tone arm was figured to be the proper corrective measure. And apparently the weight had been increased every time the needle jumped so that a total of several ounces was finally accumulated.

This load was fastened to an arm which had been very carefully balanced in manufacture and which in consequence now had no balance whatever. The best it could do was to send the needle plowing like a gouge through the sound channels. Quality reproduction of sound was out of the question.

It took some time, according to the report, to sell the idea that the first requirement for correction of sound defects was to remove these weights. Consent to demonstrate this was given with the frankly expressed belief that it would result in a waste of time and wrecking of records. That anything could be accomplished by a means so simple as removing weights and substituting half-tone for full tone needles seemed unreasonable.

Repeated tests, however, showed that it could be done and that nothing other than this was necessary. The half-tone needles, moreover, were required only when running records containing exceptionally high and low frequencies.

The foregoing situation occasioned explanations by the technician which seemed to be news to this theatre's personnel. These ran somewhat along the following line:

First and as a basic proposition: Physical imperfections do not often occur in the manufacture of records which will cause needles to jump. Records are pressed from a master record, somewhat as this page is printed from a form of type. All records of the same pressing, therefore, will be similar. One individual copy does not show imperfections which are not common to all other copies.

Should imperfections of manufacture actually develop, they would be caught before release. This is insured by inspections and tests which had been perfected by years of experience long before theatres began using records. If not caught before leaving the manufacturer's hands, they would still be detected before release when played during the distributor's test runs. Could imperfect records survive this experience, the exchanges would catch them at exhibitor previews.

The foregoing applies to the physical conditions of the manufactured product. The needle, however, sometimes will jump from a perfect record. The higher—and sometimes the lower—the frequencies, the greater is this chance. The causes of this may be various, but the remedies will be found elsewhere than in the disc.

Higher Speed Is Tendency

Moreover, in the future, this trouble will tend to increase rather than to decrease—that is, it will if proper progress is made in recording—if producers manifest the right interest in increasing the tonal range of their output.

Last season, for instance, M-G-M was doing its recording within a range of approximately 6,000 cycles. This season it has worked steadily up to a range of 9,000 cycles. The tendency will be to go both higher and lower than at present, thus increasing the range. The limit which today's experience imposes is no more permanently fixed than yesterday's limit was.

These changes make for improved quality. They substitute variety for monotony of sound effects. They strengthen the illusion of naturalness, which is the great problem today in motion picture sound recording and reproducing.

Good recording is not all of it. That is one reason why M-G-M has a staff of sound technicians in the field. Exceptional values can be put into a record, whether on disc or film, without the public ever getting the benefit. In fact, the very best records can be made to sound worse than those which are of greatly inferior quality. M-G-M has recently clearly proven this in a special demonstration reel, showing sound imperfections which result from various forms of faulty reproduction.

Equipment is one factor. Operation is another. And either takes equal rank with production as a contributor to satisfactory or unsatisfactory results.

Weight Test Cited

Not by any means is weighting down the tone arm the panacea for reproduction ills. If there is any doubt about weight, a pair of scales will settle the question. The accepted weight, including pick-up mechanism, is four and one-half ounces. But experienced persons usually test weight by resting the needle—in the holder—on a finger. If they are not too thick-skinned, the fact that the needle point does not prick the finger is accepted as evidence that the arm is not over-weight.

As a matter of fact, too little weight may be quite as annoying a source of trouble as too much weight. This, too, the expert determines by the sense of touch.

How They View 1930 Outlook

Pictures Better Than Ever

By Jesse L. Lasky

First Vice President, in charge of production of Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation

NEVER in the history of the industry have producers faced better prospects than those which appear on the horizon for 1930. Talking pictures have hit their stride and their popularity has been proven beyond any doubt at the box-office. Our studios have come through the transition from silent to sound in a manner most gratifying to those of us primarily interested in production.

Increased resources and facilities already are available for the production of greater talking pictures during the coming year. Pictures of epic quality, more natural color productions, better production efficiency, and perfection in recording and reproduction will be some of the major accomplishments during 1930.

No Misgivings Over 1930

By J. E. Otterson

President, Electrical Research Products, Inc.

NINETEEN hundred twenty-nine has been the most prosperous year in the history of the motion picture business, but 1930 should be even greater.

The advent of sound has widened the scope of pictures and broadened the opportunity for producers and exhibitors alike. At the end of 1929 no one any longer questions the necessity of high quality reproduction of talking pictures. The public has been quick to discriminate between indifferent and high-grade reproduction in theatres and the exhibitors who cater to this demand for the best in sound values as well as in other essentials will find their success assured

Technical Perfection Here

By Nicholas M. Schenck

President, Loew's, Inc.

EVERYONE connected with the industry may face the new year with the greatest degree of optimism. It is safe to say that more progress has been made in the technical side of picture-making during the past twelve months than ever before. Early experiments in sound pictures have crystallized to the point where technical perfection is at hand.

Progress and More Progress

By Louis B. Mayer

Vice-President, in Charge of Production
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ABOUT a year ago motion pictures had reached a crisis, with pessimists predicting that sound films would bring chaos and disintegration. Every company has gone through this period of transition and emerged triumphant. Pictures are now being made in ways that were never dreamed of five years ago. Tremendous progress has been accomplished without any of the drawbacks which often go with such a rapid advance. The long-faced prophets have been silenced, and the entire profession stands on a new pinnacle of achievement.

Less Rush, Better Product

By Charles H. Christie

OW that all of the producers making talking pictures hav had a full year to try out different form of entertainment, 1930 should see production and exhibition settling down without the necessary mad rush which characterized the past year. More time can be spent in analyzing values of stars and material. More time will be spent in trying for excellence of recording and in presenting sound. The public will, of course, realize fully when they are getting good or bad recording and the pictures will have to be so well recorded that audiences can sit back and not be conscious of the mechanics which produce their entertainment.

On Dawn of New Era

By Irving G. Thalberg

Associate Producer, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

I DO not recall having been so well fortified for the future in any December of past years. The stimulus of talking pictures has not only been a great incentive to producers and technicians, but has greatly expanded the draw of motion picture theatres. There is no doubt but that we are now at the beginning of an era of unrivalled prosperity and development. More talented people, representing a wider range of accomplishment than ever before, are under contract and from a business standpoint studios and showmen were never so well situated.

New Levels In Quality

By Fred Niblo

IT IS impossible to predict just how far the talking picture will progress in 1930 for the progress of the past year has exceeded all dreams. It is certain that, in every branch of film amusement, a new and higher quality will be seen; in fact, never before in history has the public been given such amusement as it will see during the coming year. The year 1930 will, I believe, mark the greatest year of advancement in the history of the industry.

Foreign Markets Seen Lost

By P. A. Powers

President of the Powers Cinephone Equipment Corp.

NINETEEN hundred and thirty will undoubtedly be memorable as the period of readjustment in which American producers adapted themselves to the changed conditions and loss of the foreign market, through the hasty introduction of dialogue into the motion picture.

Making productions with the dialogue rendered in different languages will, I believe, prove not only expensive, but impracticable. The wide differences in colloquialisms makes it practically impossible for the American producer to construct pictures embodying foreign languages, of sufficient oral worth, to be acceptable in the countries for which they are intended.

Under these conditions, it would seem that American producers can depend only upon the United States as a market for future product. This means that production costs must be decidedly reduced, or film rentals materially increased—and increased rentals will endanger the small independent theatre owner, and threaten the destruction of that field of revenue.

The foreign market has been lost and the American producer must now depend upon home consumption. or make silent versions of their pictures with sound accompaniment which, in point of entertainment value, will excel the dialogue productions that foreign countries will make for their own theatres.

Confident Over Foreign Sales

By Arthur M. Loew

Vice-President in Charge Foreign Sales
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

PROGRESS in foreign circles parallels that which has occurred in the United States. Sound has been a dynamic force abroad, just as here, and has revitalized the entire industry.

Everyone to whom I have spoken about the coming season feels that it will mark the biggest international advance yet recorded by the movies.

More Expansion on Wing

By E. B. Derr

Executive Vice-President Pathe

WE have seen during the past year the magnificent success of that revolutionary and exciting experiment, the talking picture; 1930 will be a year of still greater expansion and progress not only in respect to its financial, but its artistic development, and those same vital forces which almost overnight overcame the tremendous handicaps imposed upon the industry when the screen almost miraculously found its voice will devote the brains, the manpower, the tremendous energy and the vast financial resources of this powerful medium towards its logical and healthy growth.

Nineteen hundred and thirty will find the solution of the American-made talking picture in foreign countries. The obstacles presented by difference in language will be wiped away.

"Third Technique" On Way

By Phil Goldstone

Producing Head, Tiffany Prod.

HE year 1930 will see not only an improvement in talking picture mechanics and technique, but a definite crystallization of public taste. While talking pictures have been a school for producers, they likewise have been a school for the public. No one knows what the public wants, but during 1930 everybody will find out. The public's taste will have been fully developed.

Many 1929 "specials" will be obsolete in style by the middle of 1930, because a distinct "third technique" will be developed—unlike that of either stage or previous silent pictures.

A "7th Heaven" In Sound

By Frank R. Capra

GOOD talking pictures are yet to be made. We are just starting to know what it is all about. I hope that next year we can recapture some of the idealistic love moods we could do so well in silent pictures. So far, some of our attempts in that direction have looked silly, but I look for someone to come along and give us a 'Seventh Heaven" talking picture.

Many Changes Impend

By Joe Brandt

President, Columbia Pictures Corp.

IN ALL probability 1930 will be fraught with many changes. It will be given over to weeding out the superficial qualities and the settling down to a stabilized product of a much higher standard than ever before. While gorgeous spectacles in color will continue to be made, they will decrease in popularity and give way to real dramatic values in the dialogue feature. A screen art equal in every respect to the highest expression of the stage will be developed and revolve around better story material than has hitherto been presented in screen productions.

The new year will witness many innovations in the technical field and the perfection of sound recording. It will also see new methods of presentation and distribution. The increased quality of each production will necessitate longer runs to satisfy public demands and thereby materially decrease the number of feature length productions brought to the screen.

In short, I look for one of the greatest years in the history of the industry, a cycle of marked development and real showmanship. It will see the dawn of an era of greater prosperity for every producer who gives the public real values in stories, direction, casts and presentation.

Small Theatres as Factors

By Phil Reisman

General Sales Manager Pathe

MANY of the smaller theatres which have been taken over by chains, will be turned back to independent operators.

There will be a very strong demand for action features.

There will be a greater demand than ever for good short subjects, such as two-reel comedies with real ideas behind them, novelty reels and the news weekly. I believe that many theatres will build their shows around the short subjects, reversing the usual process of building the show around the features.

Good musical comedies will be in demand.

Now that the novelty of dialogue in pictures is over, I believe that in the best pictures the dialogue will properly become subordinate to what, after all, are the chief elements of a good picture—action and story.

Vast Fields Opening Up

By Lionel Barrymore

THE advent of the talking picture has opened up to us vast fields in the drama hitherto impossible. The year 1930 will see, as a result, some of the greatest work of the greatest dramatists, and already we have enlisted the greatest stars of the stage. Motion pictures in 1930 will stand on a new plane of art; they will disclose a quality heretofore undreamed of, and, in many cases, far exceed anything possible on the narrow confines of the stage. Never before has such lavish fare been offered the public as it will see in the coming year.

"Bigger And Better"

By J. J. Gain

Executive Manager, Universal Studios

MOTION pictures will be bigger and better than ever during the coming year. The public has reached a point where it sets a high standard which the producing companies must meet. This is a situation which is good for everyone.

Large Screen Predicted

By Hector Turnbull

Associate Producer, Paramount

A SUDDEN wave of progress will carry talking pictures to limitless heights during 1930, I believe. For a year, we have been learning a new art. Now it is mastered and the industry is ready to develop the things it now knows to be practical. More all-color, all-talking pictures shown on enlarged screens will be one of the steps.

1930 A Banner Year

By Hunt Stromberg

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Producer

THE talking pictures of the past year, showing steady improvement in the handling of the new art and the plans for the coming year, all point to 1930 as one of the greatest years in the history of the industry. Great dramatists, stars and musical composers are at work, a huge army of the best brains in the amusement world. The product they will create during the coming year will put the industry on a new basis of prosperity.

THIS business is becoming a series of tie-ups. Yep, Warner-Witmark, Warner-Harms, M-G-M-Robbins, and here's a brand new one. This one is just temporary but a real natural while it lasts. In a deal with the National Gas Utilities Co., M. Witmark & Sons have sent four foot posters to national distributors of gas appliances for window displays. The posters contain a clever cartoon of a bathroom scene and, of course, the submerged figure is "Singin' in the Bathtub." Scientific investigation to date has failed in its quest to discover the forces urging man to exercise his vocal cords during the bath, a national institution.

The reproducer arm, though properly weighed, may be too long or too short. This is determined by ascertaining whether the needle point, resting on an idle record, extends beyond or falls short of, the center of the record at any point. Of course, a needle in an arm which is not of the right length, will have difficulty in tracking properly.

Trouble also may be due to unevenness in the position of the arm. An easy way to ascertain this is as follows: Turn the record over, face down, making it lie flat. Take out the needle. Rest the metal face of the needle holder on the reversed record. If the face does not lie absolutely flat over its whole surface, and at all points between the center and edge of the disc, there is something the matter with the adjustments of the arm or one of its parts. This, of course, assumes that the disc is not warped and that the disc mechanism and the turn-table are set level.

Other Difficulties Outlined

In several instances where tone arms had been overweighted to make needles track better, the trouble had been diagnosed very incorrectly Among these difficulties were the following:

Tone arms out of line.

Gravity drift to outer edge of the disc. This can be tested by setting pick-up mechanism, minus the needle, over the center of a disc and observing whether it stays there, as it should, or tends to swing outward.

Loose diaphragm in pick-up mechanism.

Needle being inserted in the pick-up mechanism without being pushed in far enough to set on its base.

Needle being put in upside down—that is, with the blunt end out. Strange as it may seem, cases are reported in which it was the belief that this was the correct way to use a needle.

Tone arm too stiff—so stiff that it sticks rigidly in one place, preventing the needle from following the groove. A test for this is by moving, or trying to move, the arm from side to side. It needs free play.

Use of wrong needles, or of poor quality needles. Uninspected needles are often blunt, shouldered or badly shaped. They are apt to jump grooves at high frequencies and may tear down disc walls.

Angle of the needle on the disc may be wrong. This may result in a variety of difficulties, some of which could easily be erroneously attributed to improperly weighted tone arms or to presumed imperfections of the record.

There is evidence in the reports of M-G-M technicians that weighting down the tone arm has been used as a cure for all of these and many other troubles. "If the needle jumps, nail it down," seems to be as common a misunderstanding as that there is a Santa Claus.

Mal St. Clair Coming East for Next Kane Vehicle

Los Angeles—Mal St. Clair left on Thursday for New York where he will direct Helen Kane in "Dangerous Nan McGrew" for Paramount. Illness of Al Green caused the switch.

Tuning In On The Melody Makers

GRANT CLARK and HARRY AKST'S newest Witmark song, "My Strongest Weakness Is You," will be heard in two forthcoming Warner pictures. "So Long, Letty" and "Wide Open."

NEW Vallee songs for "Vagabond Lover": "A Little Kiss Each Morning," by Harry Woods; "If You Were the Only Girl," by Clifford Grey and Nat D. Ayer; "I'll Be Reminded of You," by Ed Hayman and Ken Smith; and "I Love You, Believe Me I Love You," by Rudey Cowan, Phillip Bartholomae and Phil Boutelje.

Phila. Musicians Elect

Philadelphia.—At its annual election, Musicians' union Local 77, named the following officers: John Colaprete, re-elected president; vice-president, Anthony Luizzi; secretary, Albert J. Callahan; treasurer, I. Kercher; assistant secretary, Charles Saxton; trial board, Charles M. Fry, William M. Klaiss, America A. Tomei, Fred C. Kade, Robert McCracken, Alfred Vitelli, John K. Witzeman and Harry H. Swardlow.

Suit Against Fox Settled

Des Moines—Fox has paid the State of Iowa a premium for its failure to file copies of articles of incorporation and the suit started by the state several months ago has been dropped without prejudice. The state law requires all foreign corporations to obtain a license and pay stipulated fees in order to do business there.

Sign Two for Varieties

Hollywood—Buddy Wattles and Vera Marsh have been assigned leads in Warner musical comedy Vitaphone Variety, "Only the Girl," being filmed in Technicolor. Roy Mack is directing.

K. C. Uptown Robbed Again

Kansas City—A stickup at the Uptown which netted gunman $3,500 marked the fourth visit of bandits at this suburban house within a year.

Charmichael Buy

Barberton, O.—R. L. Carmichael has taken over the Goffinet at Rittman, from A. Goffinet, change it to the Pastime.

Rialto, Indianapolis, Switches

Sound, Color, No Buckling Claimed for U. K. Projector

London—Photo-Vision, Ltd., declares its new continuous projector has solved three important major problems of present-day projection. The company, at a demonstration here claims the device enables the sound track to be placed on the margin of the frame to which it refers, instead of 19 frames away; eliminates the problem of buckling in wide film, and makes possible a new and perfect color system. In addition, Photo-Vision asserts the continuous projection on the screen, allows for economy of light; that the eye is saved from the dangers of flicker, and that the machine escapes the excessive strain now imposed on intermittent projectors by sound films, which must be projected at 24 frames a second.

This projector is said to be the outcome of several years' work under the wing of Sir Abe Bailey, of South Africa. Bailey Southwell is chairman of Photo-Vision, and the invention is the work of Roberts and Campbell, optically, and of W. E. John, the company's consulting engineer, mechanically.

The salient detail is a series of lenses arranged in a channel formed like the letter "D." These lenses are kept equidistant by the construction of their mounts and are driven 'round in their groove, keeping pace with the film. The film runs parallel to the straight portion of the "D" shaped groove, and each frame in the film is opposite to one of the lenses. By this action of the mechanism, each lens keeps with its particular picture until it passes out of commission at one end of the straight channel, to return by the curved part of the "D" to the other.

By adjusting the size of the gate, one, two or three frames may be projected simultaneously. The images of each of the lenses are received on a large master lens, which combines them into one single image. This master lens, which is stationary, fixes the optical centre, and causes the two or three moving frames to be superimposed on the screen in one stationary and flickerless picture.

The first optical advantage is a sense of visual ease, due partly to the fact that movement is seen as transitional from one position to another, instead of jumping from one point to the next, and partly to the absence of alternating period of light and darkness, which is claimed a fundamental disadvantage of the intermittent system.

This projector permits the sound track to be printed where it belongs, and not at the usual place of 19 frames away. The principle embodied in a projector is shortly to be incorporated in a camera, when sight and sound may be photographed side by side, so that one master negative can be made of the two together and printed without intermediate complications. Also since sound is opposite its corresponding frame, only one printing operation will be necessary, thus doubling the capacity of printing machinery.

Jumping over, for a moment, the question of wide film, to deal with color, one is immediately struck with the possibility of a revolutionary color method—or rather with a practical form of a promising system that was defeated in the past by the intermittent projector. It has been explained that any number of frames may be superimposed simultaneously on the screen. Suppose, then, the gate were lengthened to allow three to be shown together; it would be possible to project each through a different colored filter, and thus to get three primary-colors present simultaneously on the screen.

Something similar has already been tried in the past with intermittent projectors, where one picture was shown through one colored filter and the next through a second filter of different hue. This required the color image of the first to persist in the eye throughout the whole time of projecting a frame of different color. It was not surprising, therefore, that the eye refused to co-operate and rejected as objectionable the color pulsations involved. But it will be at once seen that when the three frames are projected simultaneously the need for persistence of vision does not arise. To carry this idea into effect, a film will be taken through a rotating drum of color screens, either two or three colors being used as desired, and subsequently projected through a color filter drum of corresponding arrangement.

One of the greatest troubles in projecting wide film by the ordinary method is the difficulty of keeping the film flat in the gate. Numerous expedients have been tried for this, but the results are not always satisfactory. The fatal effect of buckling will give wide films an even shorter life than those of standard gauge, while the added strain also introduces a new wear problem.

Two New British Sound Devices Ready for Market

London—Corophone and the Thomston-Houston sound machines have been placed on the market to compete in England with Western Electric, British De Forest, and two other disc and film sound devices.

Corophone sells for $2,850, with a deluxe outfit listed at $3,875. The set is made entirely in London.

Thomston-Houston will install the first 20 next month, manufacturing their machine at a plant in Rugby. Price is $6,000.

Germany Far Ahead in Sound Production, Myers Reports

"Germany is greatly in advance of all other countries in Europe in producing talking pictures," states Ray Myers, Vitaphone European chief, who is in New York for a conference with home office officials.

American sound machines are well represented throughout England and the Continent, according to Myers, who believes good American-made product, with dialogue changed for each important country, will continue to occupy top place.

Pacent Installs 1,000 Machines in 10½ Months

Installation of a reproducer at the Broadway Temple Church, New York, brings the total number of Pacent wirings to 1,000 in the last ten months.

Tone-O-Graph Wires 11

Cleveland.—Tone-O-Graph has been sold to the following in northern Ohio for immediate installation: Savoy, Jewel, Southern, Capitol, Dennison Square and Park View, all in Cleveland; Tivoli, Toledo; Victoria, North Baltimore; American, Leetonia; Rex, Toronto; and Uptown, Youngstown.

Pittaluga Buys Pacents

Pacent reproducers are now on the high seas en route to ten towns in Italy, for installation in houses operated by the Pittaluga circuit.

Old Ford House Wires

Baltimore.—Ford's, Baltimore's oldest legit house, now controlled by Erlanger interests and managed by Harry A. Henkel, has been wired.

Gusdanovic Wiring Four

12 Wired in Vienna

Washington—Trade Commissioner Canty reports completion of sound installations in twelve Vienna theaters.

Strong Evidence

Oakland, Cal.—There will be plenty of witnesses available to testify that stench bombs allegedly placed in the Piedmont by Robert Roberts are all that is claimed for them, when Roberts comes to trial Jan. 9 on the charge.

A bottle containing the fluid, held as evidence, exploded in the property room of the city hall, causing a near riot. Roberts, a milk wagon driver, is alleged to have been seen placing the first of three bombs found in the theater, under his seat, when he started to walk out.

Metropolitan Plans More Films in '30

Hollyyood—With three sound channels now operating for interior recording, in addition to the portable equipments, making it possible for five companies to be working simultaneously at the studio or on location, Metropolitan Sound Studios has plans completed for increasing this year the number of pictures to be filmed.

In 1929, the first year of operation with Western Electric recording, 18 talking features and 66 sound shorts were produced. Pictures now in work are James Cruze's "Society Sinners," for Sono-Art World Wide, and Edward Small's "Playing the Market" for Columbia. During last year, producers at the plant included Christie, Harold Lloyd, Halper Bros., Sono-Art and James Cruze.

Handy, Composer Of "Blues", Writes Book On Jazz Music

W. C. Handy, who composed "St. Louis Blues," "Beale St. Blues," and who is advanced as the originator of the "blues" type of song, has completed a book called "Anthology of the Blues." To better demonstrate the influence of such songs on American Music, he obtained special permission from several music publishers to include scores from copyright songs. Strangely enough, he could not include "Memphis Blues," of which he is also the composer. His "St. Louis Blues" was recently adopted and made into a short for R K O by Dudley Murphy.

Ind. "Blue" Case Up Jan. 15

Indianapolis.—The case at Princeton, Ind., in which James Green and Edward Thies, owners, are charged with violation of "blue" laws, has been set for Jan. 15 in the circuit court. The charge was preferred by three preachers of Princeton.

German Receipts 35% Lower

Berlin—Exhibitors of Hessen and Hessen-Nassau report a slump in box-office intake reaching 35% under last year.

French Studio Closes

Paris—Delac and Vandal closed their Films d'Art studio at Neuilly on New Year's Eve. It will remain dark indefinitely.

Silverstein Buys Deiser

Plymouth, O.—S. L. Silverstein has purchased the Deiser from Sam Barck.

Stop Us If We're Wrong

EMANUEL COHEN'S greetings to his Paramount Sound News gang this New Year's was animated by the sterling work done by Camerman Lou Hutt, who wrote a real saga of newsreel work when he flew 1,000 pounds of recording equipment some 1,500 miles to get pictures of the Haitian riots.

* * *

SPEAKING of newsreel work, there have been epochal developments in this field during the year just closed. What a story of resourcefulness and daring could be written around the deeds and exploits of the staffs of the various reels, sound and silent!

* * *

ROGER KAHN, now learning talker technique at the Paramount, L. I. studio, with a view to making recordings with his orchestra later on, is the subject of a gag song that Fannie Brice does in "Be Yourself."

* * *

LILLIAN GISH came to New York for the holidays after completing "The Swan," her first talker for United Artists.

* * *

AND here's a hand of congratulations to Abraham (Burney) Bernstein, veteran trade paper and theatreman, now with Publix, whose engagement to Miss Lillian Jaon Straus, has just been announced.

* * *

'TIS the luck 'o the Irish, all right, for while everyone is trying to dope the market and why, Pat (National Screen Service) Garyn with the missus is basking in the sunlight at Havana.

* * *

HOWARD HUGHES, we have it from the always reliable Warren Nolan of United Artists, does not like to be photographed and does not seek or wish personal publicity, yet is one of the most widely discussed men in Hollywood because of his expenditure of $3,000,000 to make "Hell's Angels." The 24-year old producer-director has turned out some money-makers, and hopes to repeat the process with the aviation picture. If tenacity has its reward, young Hughes should succeed in reaching his goal.

* * *

THE glories of the old time minstrel show are being brought back by talkers, a fine example of which is said to be Vitaphone's short, "Minstrel Days."

Jack Cohn of Columbia Pictures is back in New York from a European jaunt, Burberry coat, stick and spats.

Kopman In Equipment Field

Minneapolis.—George Kopman, who has been associated with Sam Levinsohn in the Western Theatre Equipment Exchange, has purchased the latter's interests. Levinsohn is now the Wisconsin representative of the American Seating Co.

"Cats and Dogs"

Henry J. Leake, auctioneer, sold a block of 700 shares of United Artists Theater Circuit stock for $3 per share at the closing 1929 session in the chambers of H. Muller & Son, New York, stock auctioneers. The issue, an over-the-counter seller, is now traded at from $1.50 to $3. Its peak was $15, the offering price.

New Simplex Reduces Heat And Eliminates Buckling

Heat at the aperture plate of the new "Super Simplex" with the Vignette type rear shutter is reduced between 50 and 75 per cent, although illumination is increased from 35 to 48 per cent, according to International Projector Corp., which claims elimination of buckling by interposing the new shutter between the arc lamp and the film.

By placing the shutter between lamp and film, instead of in front of the lens, the blades function so that the shutter acts as a fan or cooling device. A blast of air is produced so that the temperature at the gate and surrounding mechanism is only slightly higher than the atmosphere, it is claimed. The width of the rear shutter blade no longer depends on the size of the lens, so that with the new design, a 90 effective blade can be used with a half size lens, while with the old type shutter, a minimum of 102 was necessary.

International states it has developed improvements in the lens mount, film trap, controls, covers, focus lamps, mechanism base, center frame, eye shield, threading and framing lamp, oiling system and other parts of the Simplex machine.

Four Theatre Companies Organized In Virginia

Employee Foils Robbers

Three bandits waiting in the Sunnyside at Woodside, L. I., for arrival of the manager to open the safe, narrowly escaped capture when Peter Managault, one of two employes bound by the gunmen, loosened his bonds and escaped to telephone police. The unopened safe contained $3,000.

Intelligence Tests for "U" Managers and Head Bookers

Future promotion of Universal branch managers and head bookers will depend hereafter to a great extent upon civil service tests, written and oral, to be conducted directly from the home office, the company states.

S. D. Chain Expands

Omaha.—Black Hills Amusement Co. has added the Iris in Belle Fourche, S. D., to its chain of houses in Deadwood, Rapid City and Hot Springs. James O'Neill, former owner of the theatre, will continue to operate the Princess in Spearfish, S. D.

Plan Warner Confabs

Starting in several days, Warner will hold a series of regional sales conventions in a number of keys, states Sam E. Morris, vice president. C. C. Ezell, general sales manager, and Paul Swift, head of Vitaphone sales, will preside at the gatherings.

Mrs. Pidgeon Dead

Mrs. Charlotte E. Pigdeon is dead in Fort Lee, N. J., at the age of 82. She was the mother of Edward Everett Pidgeon, director of publicity of Fox Theatres.

A Lightning Opening

Al Selig is still out of wind. Here is why:

Fox terminated its lease on the Gaiety. New York, at 10:45 Tuesday night. One hour and fifteen minutes later, "The Party Girl" had opened. The lobby for the Tiffany picture had to be dressed and various other details attended to, but Selig made the grade with nary a hitch. Now he's resting.

Opinions On Pictures

Men Without Women

(Fox—All Dialogue)

Strong Melodrama

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

EXCEPT for the few girls used in an opening sequence in Shanghai, this is a womanless cast. The dramatic action takes place in the interior of a crippled submarine at the bottom of the China Sea.

The sub, hit by a freighter, appears beyond rescue. You get the reactions of the crew. One acquires religion, goes mad and has to be shot. The others take it like men. The rescue is, of course, effected. Into this major theme is built the story of Kitchener, English war lord, who went down in a British cruiser en route from England to Russia during the war. Kenneth McKenna plays the British navy officer in charge of that boat. One of the rescuing crew is a British commander who had recognized him earlier. McKenna, supposedly dead, remains behind to release the last American through the torpedo tube and thus protect the woman he loves and who would have been involved if the Kitchener matter had been reopened.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Story by James K. McGuinness and John Ford. Scenario and dialogue by Dudley Nichols. Photographed by Joe August. Length and running time, undetermined. Release date, Feb. 9, 1930.

"Undertow"

(Universal—All Dialogue)

Not Very Strong

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

EXCEPT for the soft drawl in Johnny Mack Brown's Alabama voice, "Undertow" is raw melodrama. Mary Nolan is cast as the heroine who overcomes her own desires with virtue. Robert Ellis is the menace—and meaner villain never trod the boards of the old ten-twent-thirt shows.

This picture will get by in spite of the fact that there isn't a whole lot to it except ocean—with waves dashing on rocks and the microphone producing a splashy sound—and in spite of the fact that Miss Nolan's attempts to register outrage at the villain's proposals somehow do not ring true. Brown will be the best box-office bet in this. His athletic physique is displayed to advantage in the earlier sequences as a life guard. Later as the lighthouse keeper who goes blind he wins sympathy and at the finish when he stages a rough-and-tumble fight with the heavy, falling down lighthouse steps, etc., he wins a few cheers.

This will need a good supporting program of "draw" shorts.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Story by Wilbur Daniel Steele. Adaptation by Winifred Reeve. Scenario by Edward T. Lowe, Jr. Directed by Harry Pollard. Dialogue by Winifred Reeve and Edward T. Lowe, Jr. Photographed by Jerry Ash.. Length, undetermined. Release date, February 16, 1930.

Leadership

In reviewing as in other departments of trade paper publishing Motion Picture News occupies a position of leadership. Its critical opinions everywhere accepted by exhibitors as a true showman's analysis of picture, values, Motion Picture News combines this quality of accuracy with a timeliness that greatly increases the value of its reviews.

All the pictures which play on Broadway are reviewed, of course. Most of them are covered by this publication PRIOR to their Broadway openings.

Some of them are reviewed months before they arrive on New York's Rialto, giving Motion Picture News readers a big edge over those who must wait until after a picture has its New York showing before receiving any insight into its box-office and entertainment value.

For example, "Dynamite," playing last week at the Capitol, was reviewed July 27 last; others playing along the street were reviewed months or weeks ago, leaving only two of the current week's pictures to be reviewed in this issue.

Seven Keys To Baldpate

(RKO—All Dialogue)

Good, But Not at $2

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

"SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE" presented by RKO on Broadway at $2 top doesn't click. It is essentially a picture for picture houses. Richard Dix is a picture house star and the feature would have fared better had it been placed in one of the de luxe first runs on the street. That holds true for every Main Street in the country. As presented on the screen the film is just a first-class stock company performance of the play. Dix plays the lead in his best stock company manner.

The plot is familiar to most exhibitors who have seen the silent version twice made by Paramount. It is just the same now as then. Dix manages to get some laughs and Miriam Seegar—an actress, not a smoke—gives a fairly capable performance as the heroine.

A jazz band short; the "Haunted House," a Mickey Mouse cartoon, and slapstick comedy are recommended.

Produced by Radio Pictures. Distributed by RKO. Story by Earl Derr Biggers from play by George M. Cohan. Adaptation and continuity by Jane Murfin. Directed by Reginald Barker. Photographed by Edward Cronjager. Length 6,742 feet. Running time 1 hr. 12 mins. Release date Jan. 12, 1930.

Girl of the Port

(R.K.O.—All Dialogue)

Fair Programmer

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

ANOTHER South Seas melodrama—with the saving grace of a marked absence of pidgin English dialects. Melodrama there is aplenty. The story of a man with an overcoming fear of fire—his mental and physical downfall—his rejuvenation through a girl—the conquering of his fear. All preceded by a prologue in the trenches by way of explaining the boy's fire complex.

Sally O'Neil is a bit too raucous even for the guttersnipe she is asked to depict. Reginald Sharland, a newcomer, as the boy, is convincing but will probably go much further in dress clothes. Mitchell Lewis as the half-caste who would be white, is excellent. Bert Glennon, with a difficult story, directed with an eye for effective contrast.

This is one to steer the children away from. The dialogue is ribald and much attention is paid to the tawdriness of the waterfront. To adults it will hold forth a fair amount of entertainment—some of the racy dialogue, particularly, will evoke more than a few chuckles.

Use frothy stuff—musical and cartoon shorts—anything light.

Produced and distributed by Radio Pictures. From the story, "The Firewalker,' by John Russell. Adaptation by Beulah Marie Dix. Directed by Bert Glennon. Dialogue Director Frank Reicher. Photographed by Leo Tover. Running time—one hour and 12 minutes. Release date, February 2, 1930.

Wasted Love

(Allied—Silent)

Goes Flippity Flop Flop

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

THIS is a prize flop. Not only is it "Wasted Love," but it is wasted footage and a wasted hour and a quarter if you sit through it. Poor Anna May Wong! She went abroad, they made her a star and then they started to kill her off with material of this sort. Possibly the censors are to blame, for Karl Volmueller, author of "The Miracle," should not be accused of writing this story as shown on the screen. At any rate Anna May might do a whole lot better if she were to come home and take a hand at the "talkies."

The story is that of a girl working a London waterfront dive, taking in a down-and-out vaudeville knife-thrower and trying to bring about his rehabilitation. He is in love with a ballet dancer and cannot forget her, but in the end seemingly comes to the realization that the little half-breed Oriental is the girl for him after all.

This is all set forth in a very haphazard and disconnected manner with the average audience more apt to laugh at the picture than to take it seriously.

If you must play this one be sure that you get the best in shorts.

Produced by Richard Eichenberg. Released by Allied. Story by Karl Voelmueller. Directed by Richard Eichenberg. Length, 8,300 feet. Running time, 1 hour 14 minutes. Release date, December 28, 1929.

The Other Tomorrow

(1st Nat'l—All Dialogue)

Hits the Vast Inbetween

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

LIKE the Southern drawl which its characters should have acquired but didn't—so "The Other Tomorrow" dawdles along until the required footage is reached and the happy ending struck.

Southern honor is at stake here. Which means that somewhere along the line there will be gun play. There is in the last few minutes after Kenneth Thompson as Billie Dove's husband, enraged by the circumstantial evidence which appears to make his wife unfaithful, attemps to shoot Grant Withers. But Grant is faster on the draw and Kenneth bites the dust. That makes it possible for Billie and Grant to resume their childhood love 'midst the flowers and running brooks. Story slim; action slow motion; acting pretty much like the rest of the ingredients. Neither distinguished for its merit, nor its faults. Just one of those pictures that hit the vast inbetween.

Miss Dove gives a satisfactory performance in a part that calls for nothing else. Grant Withers, who looks like what a flapper's delight would be, acquits himself creditably, if not notably. Frank Sheridan does a nice bit of work as Dave Weaver.

Use comedies and sound acts, but get good ones. They're required.

Produced and distributed by First National. Story by Octavus Roy Cohen. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Dialogue by James A. Starr.

THE CAST

Edith Larrison	Billie Dove
Nort Larrison	Kenneth Thompson
Jim Carter	Grant Withers
Dave Weaver	Frank Sheridan

Mexicali Rose

(Columbia—All Dialogue)

Average Programmer

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

About ten minutes before the final shot, the bad woman who has been ruining the lives of all and sundry is bumped off and everybody finds happiness.

It takes a long time for that to happen and the route by which it occurs is far from exciting. It seems that Barbara Stanwyck was the sort of gal whose affections covered all of Mexico and points north. Sam Hardy, her husband, discovers it, throws her out and next meets her when Barbara is married to his young brother. Barbara, of course, did so to get even with Hardy. She continues her hectic course despite ex-husband's warnings. What to do but get rid of her? So one morning Rose is found on the river bank no longer of this world. That clears the decks for the brother's first romance —with a good girl. Miss Stanwyck and Sam Hardy do nice work in artificial parts.

One of the chief difficulties revolves around the tempo, or what might be more properly described as the lack of it. The tenor of the proceedings never varies and, as a result, things just happen and happen—to the spectator.

Fast comedies or vaude acts in sound are necessary.

Produced and distributed by Columbia. Story by Gladys Lehman. Continuity by Norman Houston. Dialogue by Gladys Lehman, Norman Houston. Directed by Erle C. Kenton. Edited by Leon Barsha. Photographed by Ted Tetzlaff. Length, 5735 ft. Running time, 1 hour, two minutes. Release date, Dec. 26, 1929.

Shorts for the Week Show a Wide Range in Entertainment

"Scotch"

(Educational-Sound—2 Reels)

A Roaring Sennett

A FAST-MOVING talkie two-reeler. Top-notch entertainment.

Ernie Wood and Addie McPhail have just been married, and after a long and exciting chase, escape to the suburbs. They settle down in their peaceful little flat—until Addie's brother, Billy Bevan, shortly followed by Ernie's uncle, Andy Clyde, and his wife, drop in. Their stay develops into a three-months free-loading party during which Billy brushes up on a flock of practical jokes, at the expense of Andy. Andy and Billy, a little tipsy from whoopee-water, take it on the run when a parrot, placed inside the New Year's turkey by Ernie, yells for help just as uncle is about to go to work with the big carving knife.

The audience roared at this one. Play it with a heavy feature in need of good comedy relief.

"The Trumpeteer"

(Van Beuren Song Sketches-Sound—1 Reel)

Effective Singing

WORLD WAR battle shots depict the story told in the war song, "The Trumpeteer," sung by a doughboy of the A. E. F. while on the front-line field in France. James Stanley has a beautiful voice, and makes the offering worthwhile, but the pictorial treatment is indifferent.

Heavy material. Use light comedy shorts with this one.

"Canned Music"

(Columbia-Sound—1 Reel)

Very Diverting

ANOTHER instance where sound gives a cartoonist opportunity to turn out a highly entertaining reel. The gag used in this funfest hinges around pop Krazy Kat's hard battle to sing his two youngsters to sleep. He finally succeeds—and then the fun begins. An Old German band picks out his house for a street serenade and Krazy Kat flattens all of them after they refuse to disperse. One of the band sounds an s. o. s. It is heard by fellow musical instruments in a nearby piano store. The instruments get legs and rush to the rescue, bombarding Krazy Kat's house with bombs in the form of notes.

Strong number for any program.

"Haunted House"

(Disney-Sound—1 Reel)

Good Cartoon Subject

AS the title indicates, a haunted house furnishes the background for this subject of the popular Mickey Mouse series. It has plenty of weird stuff capped by a burlesque of Al Jolson's Mammy line, that is a darb, and should bring down any house.

Will fit well on any bill.

"Screen Snapshots—No. 11"

(Columbia-Talker—1 Reel)

Up to Usual Standard

IN a few spots the recording is not too hot. The reel however, is okay, with more comedy than usual. Eddie Lambert is the guide on this camera expedition. His makeup will get a laugh, what with a poilu hat, formal morning coat and shoes which measure at least two feet, topping his Hebraic accent. The first stop is to catch Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and Joan Crawford, his bride, alight from a New York train following their honeymoon trip. Carl Laemmle, Jr., is at the station with a party and band welcoming Paul Whiteman. Next we visit Edward Everett Horton, where we meet his menagerie, followed by some shots with Eddie Quillan and his sax.

Sure-fire audience stuff. Play it up.

"Her Hired Husband"

(Pathe-Talker—2 Reels)

Has Some Good Comedy Slants

NOEL FRANCIS—that big blond Ziegfeld mama—is a ritzy artist who finds herself in a predicament when uncle, who has given her an annuity on hearing of her "marriage," decides to visit. She employs her maid's man as her hired husband, but he mixes things up generally. However, uncle has brought with him the sweetheart, supposedly lost in the war, and the girl explains that she had been waiting for him all the time. Harry Delmar produced and directed. The story is old, but Delmar injected some good gags.

"The Alpine Love Call"

(Columbia Photocolor—1 Reel)

Color Saves This

The fact that this production has color salvages it. The basis is an old-fashioned musical comedy formula in tabloid form. An Alpine inn keeper's daughter is given her choice of three suitors. They press their suits in song. In the end she selects the poor, but youthful mountain guide, rather than the wealthy farmer or the lawyer. Yes, there is a chorus too. But what a chorus! And whoever staged the numbers must have directed when the Aborns were running stock musical comedies twenty years ago.

Weak. Bolster it up if you run it at all.

(Tiffany-Sound—1 Reel)

Real Audience Material

This is the third in the new "behind the scenes" series produced by Tiffany and is made for audience consumption. Reginald Denny serves as master of ceremonies at Station S-T-A-R and introduces well known personalities like Bobby Vernon, Anita Page, Julia Fay and others. The tie-up for exhibitors is this:

Denny, talking directly to the audience, asks the fan to send his questions to the station care of the theatre in which he sees the reel. A splendid means of arousing interest with the public.

Unusual appeal to public. Get behind it and tell 'em it's coming.

"The Harmony Club"

(Columbia-Songs—2 Reels)

Novel and Entertaining

GEOFFREY O'BRIEN was signed by Columbia for this principally because he has built a reputation as an instructor of music and song leader at public gatherings, rotary clubs, etc. The results are gratifying and offer splendid material for neighborhood houses. O'Hara is seen on a platform in a community hall, where, surrounded by a male chorus, he leads in several old time numbers, urging the audience to join in each.

This offers your patrons the opportunity to join in community singing, always a good-will builder.

Weekly Box Office Check-Up And Showmen's Ad. Tips

In Figuring Percentage Rating On Pictures, The Normal Or Average Business Of The Theatre Is Taken As 100%

Argyle Case, The (W.B.)

OTTAWA.—Imperial, (1,200), 15-50c, 6 days. Other attractions, "Sweethearts," Hearst Metrotone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Paris," "His Glorious Night," "The Mighty," "Flight," "The Drake Case." Rating, 60%.

Ad Tips—A strong fact in connection with this feature is the cast which includes Thomas Meighan, H. B. Warner and Lila Lee. It has to do with a murder, of course, and so we called it "A Hair-Raising Man Hunt" and referred to it as Meighan's first all-talkie. Murder mysteries are hardly as popular as they were six or eight months ago, however. The male portion of population is partial to "The Argyle Case."—Ray Tubman, Mgr., Imperial, Ottawa.

Broadway Hoofer (Col.)

BALTIMORE.—Hippodrome, (2,500), 6 days, 20c-60c. Other attractions, Bert Smith Players in "Time, Place and the Girl," with acts, chorus, orchestra, organ, Pathe Sound News, "His Birthday Suit" (Pathe all talking comedy). Weather, heavy snow Monday, then clear cold to warm. Opposition, (Screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Navy Blues," "Rio Rita," "Little Match Girl," "Mystic Mirror," "Is Everybody Happy?", "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Glorifying American Girl," "Girl From Woolworths," "The Kiss." (Stage), "Whoopee" with Eddie Cantor, "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Exploit this as a 100% talking, singing, dancing production that is better than "Broadway Scandals." Name the stars, Marie Saxon, Jack Egan and Louise Fazenda. You can use "Broadway Hoofer" contest to advantage by having it conducted at your theatre with audience selecting winners. Plenty of opportunity for music dealer, radio and phonograph and record hook-ups. Audience appeal is particularly strong for, although stars are not well known, story is excellent and different from usual one of this kind. Audiences here thought it great.—Nat Keene, Mgr., Hippodrome, Baltimore.

Broadway Scandals (Col.)

DALLAS.—Capitol, (1,440), 7 days, 15c-25c-35c. Alberta Vaughn comedy, Oswald song novelty, Universal News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Romance of the Rio Grande," "Tiger Rose," "Pointed Heels," "Careless Age." Rating, 115%.

Ad Tips—Exploit title big, and state that it is an all-talking, singing, dancing revue that is different. Mention Sally O'Neil, Jack Egan and Carmel Myers and an ensemble of beautiful dancing girls. Chorus girls panels with a letter above each one spelling the title of the picture in the lobby is a good stunt. Audience appeal, general.—Ray J. Stinnett, Mgr., Capitol, Dallas.

Careless Age (F.N.)

DALLAS.—Old Mill, (1,044), 7 days, 20c-25c-35c. All talking novelty, "Fancy That," 8 Victor Artists in song cyclone, Pathe News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Romance of Rio Grande," "Tiger Rose," "Pointed Heels," "Broadway Scandals." Rating, 105%.

Ad Tips—Exploit the title big and give plenty mention to the cast—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Loretta Young and Carmel Myers, mentioning the fact that Carmel Myers sings two theme songs and dances. Tell the public this is an all-talking drama of flaming youth with plenty dance and song. Audience appeal, general, especially the younger set.—Old Mill, Dallas.

Condemned (U. A.)

CLEVELAND.—Stillman, (1,900), 7 days, 40c-75c. Other attractions: "Marching To Georgia" (Paramount), "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet" (Paramount song), Hearst Metrotone News. Weather, very cold and stormy. Opposition, "The Vagabond Lover," "Paris," "Marriage Playground," "This Thing Called Love," "Evidence." Rating 70%.

HOLLYWOOD.—Grauman's Chinese (2023), 4th week, 7 days, twice daily, 75 cents to $1.50. Other attractions, Fox Movietone and Metrotone News, Laurel and Hardy Comedy "Night Owls" and Symphony Orchestra. Weather fine. Rating, 114%

Ad Tips—We advertised this as even bigger and better than "Bulldog Drummond" which local playgoers liked. Appeal is for all types of audience, as it supplies thrills, excitement, fact and romance.—George Gilliam, Mgr., Stillman, Cleveland.

Disraeli (W.B.)

DES MOINES.—Des Moines, (1,600), 7 days, 25c-35c-50c-65c. Other attractions, Paramount News, 2 Vitaphone acts. Opposition, "Marriage Playground," "Hard to Get," "Love Live and Laugh." Weather, cold. Rating, 11%.

Ad Tips—George Arliss has a good following and appeals to an audience outside the general run. The picture is for the audiences that like a finished production and a strong theme. —George Watson, Mgr., The Des Moines, Des Moines.

Drake Case (Univ.)

OTTAWA.—Avalon, (990), 25c-35c, 3 days. Other attractions, "Trusting Wives," "Falling Stars," Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Paris," "The Mighty," "His Glorious Night," "The Hottentot," "The Argyle Case." Rating, 65%.

Ad Tips—The title explains itself as a mystery thriller. Patrons were not disappointed in the matter of thrills and chills. This was billed as a special Christmas Week attraction, but shopping activities during the two days before the holiday cut the attendance appreciably. Use of the magnascope for special sequences heightened the effect: The feature appeals to lovers of detective fiction and melodrama.—P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Evidence (W. B.)

CLEVELAND.—Keith's East 105th St., (2,200), 7 days, 25-50c. Weather, cold, heavy snow. Other attractions, Pathe News (sound and silent), Pathe Review, Sportlight (Pathe), vaudeville. Opposition, "Vagabond Lover," "Condemned," "Paris," "Marriage Playground," "This Thing Called Love." Rating, 60%.

Flight (Columbia)

LOS ANGELES.—R.K.O., (2,700), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other Attractions, RKO vaudeville revue, Pathe Sound News. Opposition, "Hot For Paris," "Sweetie," "Romance of Rio Grande," "Paris," "Taming of the Shrew," "Hit The Deck." Weather, fine. Rating, 141%

Flight (Col.)

OTTAWA.—Avalon, (990), 25c-35c, 3 days. Other attractions, Collegians and Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Paris," "The Mighty," "His Glorious Night," "The Argyle Case," "The Hottentot." Rating, 98%.

Ad Tips—We called this one "The greatest aviation picture yet"—and one to sweep you to the heights of imagination." Ralph Graves ranks high in this feature in a heroic role, while Jack Holt and Lila Lee are the ones to catch the eye at the theatre entrance. Action in Nicaragua lends itself to a tie-up with the current news regarding the sending of U. S. Marines to the Central American republic. The story is not far-fetched and the feature is a great one for the family trade, although the old will like it as well as the juveniles.—P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Footlights and Fools (FN)

OMAHA.—World, (2,500), 25-50c., 7 days. Other attractions, "Faro Nell" (Par.), "Smiles" (Par.), Pathe News. Weather, clear and mild. Opposition, "Romance of the Rio Grande," "Salute," "Wise Girls," "Tanned Legs." Rating 85%.

Ad Tips—Plugged this one with trailers and outside display, advertising star as "A new Colleen Moore, singing and dancing." Audience appeal, general.—Lionel Wasson, Mgr., World, Omaha.

General Crack (W. B.)

HOLLYWOOD.—Warner's Hollywood, (3,000), 2nd week, 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Vitaphone Varieties, "Niagara Falls," Paramount Sound News. Weather, fine. Rating, 144% (2nd week).

Girl from Woolworths (F.N.)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Valencia, (1,500), 6 days, 25c-35c. Other attractions, Metrotone News, "Studio Stunts" (Hodge Podge), "Toot Sweet" (All talking Educ'l comedy with Lloyd Hamilton.). Weather, heavy snow Monday, then clear and cold, to warm. Opposition, (Screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Navy Blues," "Broadway Hoofer," "Rio Rita," "Little Match Girl," "Mystic Mirror," "Is Everybody Happy?", "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Glorifying American Girl," "The Kiss." (Stage), "Whoopee," with Eddie Cantor, "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—If Alice White has a big following in your town as she has in Baltimore, play up her name strong and use all advertising of her in abbreviated costume. Call her "The Princess of Pep." And don't fail to take advantage of tie-ups suggested by the picture with radio, phonograph, record, bathing suit for window displays and co-operative advertising. Use fashion show idea for individual store or on stage for a number of stores for Alice White articles. Audience appeal strong for all who enjoy this peppy actress in a good story.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l Mgr., Loew's Valencia, Baltimore.

Girl in the Show (M-G-M)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Leland, (1,400), 25-35c., 6 days. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News, all talking comedy "The New Half Back." Fuzzy Knight, acrobatic singer. Weather, variable. Opposition, "It's a Great Life," "No, No, Nannette," "Tiger Rose," "Tanned Legs." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—Played up Bessie Love in all newspaper advertising believing this is the best bet in connection with running this rather weak picture. Also carried a line or two to the effect that the picture has all the humor, tragedy and love centering around an Uncle Tom show. Audience appeal, general.—John Garry, Mgr., Leland, Albany.

Glorifying American Girl (Par.)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Stanley, (3,654), 6 days, 25c-60c. Other attractions, Metrotone News, Organlogue, "The Doll Shop," (all-talking Technicolor Christmas novelty). Weather, heavy snow Monday, then clear and cold, to warm. Opposition, (Screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Navy Blues," "Broadway Hoofer," "Rio Rita," "Little Match Girl," "Mystic Mirror," "Is Everybody Happy?" "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Girl From Woolworths?", "The Kiss." (Stage), "Whoopee," with Eddie Cantor, "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 85%.

MILWAUKEE.—Strand, (1,406), 25-60c. Weather, very mild and cloudy. Other attractions, comedy, newsreel. Opposition, "Vagabond Lover," South Sea Rose," "Show of Shows," "The Kiss," "Hallelujah," "The Shannons of Broadway." Rating, 110%.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Criterion, (2,000), 7 days, 25 to 50c. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News, "Marching to Georgia" with Buster West. Weather, splendid. Opposition, "Tonight at Twelve," "The Vagabond Lover," "Navy Blues," "The Time, the Place and the Girl," "A Song of Kentucky." Rating, 125%.

Ad Tips—Exploit this as Ziegfeld's personally supervised production and use name of Mary Eaton, Eddie Cantor, Helen Morgan and Rudy Vallee as the big shots. Use semi-nude beauty figures in all advertising if possible. Emphasize lavishness of picture and spectacular effects in Technicolor. Censors would not permit use of colored 24-sheet with nude girl here. Here is a great possibility for an advertising tie-up with your local modiste shops and plenty of chances for window displays. Song and music in this also suggest many tie-ups with radio, phonograph and music dealers. Run a beauty contest for prettiest girl. Florists, gloves, jewelry, pharmacy, beauty shops and boot shops should welcome opportunity to share in ads. Audience appeal is great for all who like spectacle revue picture without much story.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l Mgr., Loew's Stanley, Baltimore.

Ad Tips—Used this as keynote: "At last Ziegfeld reveals the secrets of the 'Glorified Girl'—how she rises to stardom. How she

Hallelujah (M-G-M)

MILWAUKEE.—Merrill, (1,298), 25-60c. Weather, very mild and cloudy. Other attractions, comedy, newsreel. Opposition, "Show of Shows," "The Kiss," "South Sea Rose," "Glorifying the American Girl," "Vagabond Lover," "Shannons of Broadway." Rating 100%.

Hard to Get (F.N.)

DES MOINES.—Strand, (2,000), 3 days, 20c-30c. Other attractions, Universal comedy, "Sweethearts." Opposition, "Disraeli," "The Marriage Playground," "Love, Live and Laugh," Kinograms. Weather, cold. Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Oakie as the stars put it across nicely with holiday crowds well satisfied with this story which has comedy, a few thrills, music to meet with general appeal.—L. A. Carter, Mgr., Strand, Des Moines.

Hearts in Exile (W. B.)

KANSAS CITY.—Royal, (900), 25-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, Paramount News, "His Wife's Birthday," "Pony Boy." Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "The Untamed," "A Most Immoral Lady," "The Love Racket," "The Marriage Playground." Rating, 90%.

His Glorious Night (M-G-M)

OTTAWA.—Regent, (1,225), 6 days, 25c-60c. Other attractions, orchestra overture, "Boxing Gloves," Fox Movietone News, Screen Snapshots. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "The Mighty," "Paris," "Flight," "The Argyle Case," "The Drake Case," "The Hottentot." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—Stressed the fact that this was John Gilbert's first talking picture and that you should see him in the glove-like uniform of a Hungarian captain. Emphasize the Viennese flavor and that picture was based on the Molnar tale "Olympia" which serves to draw attention to the high society atmosphere of gay Europe. There was some discussion regarding Gilbert's voice. Some don't like him; others do. This picture's appeal is largely to women because of the Gilbertian something.—T. R. Tubman, Mgr., Regent, Ottawa.

Hit the Deck (RKO)

LOS ANGELES.—Orpheum, (2,750), 7 days, 35 to 75 cents. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News and Edward Everett Horton comedy, "Good Medicine." Opposition, "Taming of the Shrew," "Hot For Paris," "Romance of Rio Grande," "Paris," "Sweetie," "Flight," "Sunny Side Up." Weather, fine. Rating 180%.

Hot for Paris (Fox)

LOS ANGELES.—Fox Criterion, (1,652), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News and Novelty. Opposition "Sweetie," "Romance of Rio Grande," "Flight," "Paris," "Taming of the Shrew," "Hit the Deck." Weather, fine. Rating, 158%.

PORTLAND.—Fox Broadway, (1,912), 25-60c., 7 days. Other attractions, Fanchon & Marco's "Idea in Green" featuring Moran & Weston, Way Watts and Arminda and 16 in Chorus. Sam Jack Kaufman at Piano and stage band, Fox Movietone News, Roy Devaney at Wurlitzer. Weather, clear and cold. Opposition, "The Love Parade," "Show of Shows," "Tiger Rose," "The Kibitzer," "Sailor's Holiday," "Sunnyside Up," 140%.

Ad Tips—Two kings and queen of laughter—McLaghlen, Fifo Dorsay and El Brendel, stars of "Cock-Eyed World." Held wide appeal. Clever exploitation including steam jets on marque.—Floyd Maxwell, Mgr., Fox Broadway, Portland, Ore.

In the Headlines (W.B.)

DENVER.—America, (1,586), 20c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News and Vitaphone Act, "Apartment Hunting." Weather, fine. Opposition, "The Girl from Havana," "Is Everybody Happy?" "Pointed Heels," "Night Parade," "Untamed" and "Wise Girls." Rating, 100%.

Is Everybody Happy? (W.B.)

BALTIMORE.—Metropolitan, (1,500), 6 days, beginning Saturday, 15c-50c. Other attractions, "Christmas Cheer," (Universal all-talking comedy), Kinograms, Organ. Weather, heavy snow Monday, then clear cold to warm. Opposition, (Screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Navy Blues," "Broadway Hoofer," "Rio Rita," "Little Match Girl," "Mystic Mirror," "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Glorifying American Girl," "Girl From Woolworths," "The Kiss." (Stage), "Whoopee" with Eddie Cantor; "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 90%.

DENVER.—Aladdin, (1,400), 35c-75c, 7 days. Other attractions, Vitaphone act "Bigger and Better," Grantland-Rice Sportlight, "Body Building," Fox Movietone News. Weather, Fine. Opposition, "Girl from Havana," "In the Headlines," "Pointed Heels," "Night Parade," "Untamed," and "Wise Girls." Rating, 100%.

DES MOINES.—Strand, (2,000), 4 days, 20c-30c. Other attractions, Pathe News, M-G-M comedy, "Sky Boy." Opposition, "Disraeli," "The Marriage Playground," "Married in Hollywood." Weather, cold. Rating, 100%.

VANCOUVER.—New Orpheum, (2,821), 25c-$1.00, 6 days. Other attractions, 5 vaudeville acts, Paramount News, Calvin Winter and his orchestra, Ivy Evans at the Wurlitzer. Weather, fine. Opposition, Sir John Martin Harvey in "Rosemary," "Love, Live and Laugh," "Three Live Ghosts," "Saturday Night Kid," British Guild Players. Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—Exploit Ted Lewis and Ann Pennington in all advertising especially for newspapers, lobby and billboards. And let them know it is all talking and all musical. Tell your local newspaper editor you can get serial story of this for him free of charge. Take advantage of tie-up's offered in this picture for window displays and co-operative advertising. Audience appeal is very strong as Lewis and Pennington are great favorites with the public. They were liked as a team here.—C. S. Langue, Mgr., Metropolitan, Baltimore.

Ad Tips—Ted Lewis, as the leader of jazz music, was used in exploitation as well as Ann Pennington. This theme has been pretty well gone over of late, but the audience seemed to find something new in this one. Entertaining for general audience.—L. A. Carter, Mgr., Strand, Des Moines.

It's a Great Life (M-G-M)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Harmanus-Bleecker Hall, (1,800), 35-50c., 6 days. Other attractions, Our Gang comedy, Fox Movietone News, Craig Campbell, tenor. Weather, variable. Opposition, "Tiger Rose," "Tanned Legs," "No, No, Nanette," "The Girl in the Show." Rating, 89%.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Fox, 50c-65c-90c, 7 days. Other attractions, O'Neill Sisters on the stage, Fox Movietone News, Walt Roesner, conducting Fox Grand Concert Orchestra. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "Love Parade" 4th week, "Hollywood Revue," end week, "Paris" 2nd week, "Love, Live & Laugh," "Disraeli." Rating 120%.

Ad Tips—It's enough to say "The Duncan Sisters" to arouse enthusiasm. Catchy music

Ad Tips—Play up the Duncan sisters as they are known the world over as a song and dance team. Audience appeal, general.—Charles Goulding, Mgr., Harmanus Bleecker Hall, Albany.

Kibitzer (Par.)

PORTLAND, ORE.—Rialto, (Publix), (1,498), 25-60c, 7 days. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News, Santa Claus Trip, "The Crazy Nut." Weather, clear and cold. Opposition, "Love Parade," "Hot for Paris," "Show of Shows," "Tiger Rose," "Sunny Side Up," "Sailor's Holiday." Rating, 98%.

Ad Tips—Long advance advertising, clever trailers. Hook-up with Portland News, Advertised as the "Man Who Knows it All" with Harry Green.—Jack Galt, Mgr., Rialto, Portland.

Kiss, The (M-G-M)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Parkway, (1,092), 6 days, 15c-35c. Other attractions, Metrotone News, Pathe Audio review, "Here and There" (Pathe Sportlight), "Ladies Choice," Paramount all-talking comedy). Weather, heavy snow Monday, then clear cold to warm. Opposition, (Screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Navy Blues," "Broadway Hoofer," "Rio Rita," "Little Match Girl," "Mystic Mirror," "Is Everybody Happy?" "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Glorifying American Girl," "Girl From Woolworths," (Stage), "Whoopee," with Eddie Cantor, "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 85%. (After one week at Loew's Stanley).

MILWAUKEE.—Majestic, (1,990), 25c-60c. Weather, very mild and cloudy. Other attractions, comedy, newsreel. Opposition, "South Sea Rose," "Show of Shows," "Hallelujah," "Glorifying the American Girl," "Vagabond Lover," "Shannons of Broadway." Rating 95%.

TROY, N. Y.—Troy, (2,000), 25c-50c, 4 days. Other attractions, two Vitaphone selections, Paramount Sound News. Weather, stormy. Opposition, "Wedding Rings." Rating, 92%.

Ad Tips—Along with showing this picture, we gave away a radio one night and also suggested to Christmas shoppers that they drop in at the picture and rest and enjoy themselves. Of course we featured Greta Garbo in the newspaper ads. Audience appeal, mature.—Benjamin Stern, Mgr., Troy, Troy, N. Y.

Little Match Girl (French Made)

BALTIMORE.—Little, (267), 6 days, 35c-50c. Other attractions, none. Accompanied by piano and Orchestraphone. Double feature bill. Weather, heavy snow Monday, then clear and cold to warm. Opposition, (screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Navy Blues," "The Broadway Hoofer," "Rio Rita," "Is Everybody Happy?" "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Glorifying American Girl," "Girl From Woolworths," "The Kiss." (Stage) "Whoopee" with Eddie Cantor; "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 70%.

Ad Tips—The Little Match Girl lends itself beautifully to a holiday bill and fits especially for children. If you book this far enough in advance notify schools that this is an impressionistic rendition in pictures of the Hans Christian legend.

As to "The Mystic Mirror," this is an unusually well handled mystery drama which ends tragically for the heavy. It is finely done and should appeal to all comers especially those Germans in your city. Audience appeal strong for all classes.—Herman G. Weinberg, Mgr., Little, Baltimore.

Love, Live and Laugh (Fox)

DES MOINES.—Orpheum, (1,200), 3 days, 25c-50c. Other attractions R-K-O. vaudeville. Opposition, "Hard to Get," "Marriage Playground," "Disraeli." Weather, warm. Rating, 100%.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Casino, 25c-40c, 7 days. Other attractions, "Hotsy Totsy," stage revue, Fox Movietone News and short talking subjects. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "Paris" 2nd week, "Love Parade" 4th week, "It's a Great Life," "Disraeli." Rating, 120%.

VANCOUVER.—Dominion, (800), 25c-50c, 6 days. Other attractions, Laurel and Hardy in "Hoosegow," Book Lovers' Novelty Number, Fox News. Weather, fine. Opposition, Sir John Martin Harvey in "Rosemary," "Three Live Ghosts," "Is Everybody Happy," "Saturday Night Kid," British Guild Players. Rating, 105%.

Ad Tips—Stars both strong drawing cards. George Jessel's new songs featured. Lila Lee exploited as appearing in picture exactly suited to her talents.—H. Pincus, Mgr., Casino, San Francisco.

Ad Tips—Play up name of George Jessel in this intensely human interest story, with Lila Lee. Mention excellent song numbers. Audience appeal, general.—I. F. W. Ackery, Mgr., Dominion, Vancouer, B. C.

Love Parade (Para)

PORTLAND, ORE.—Portland (Publix), 3,068, 25-60c, 7 days. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News—Paramount Song Cartoon Staneligh Malotte in "New Year's Resolutions," organ novelty number. Weather, clear and cold. Opposition, "Hot for Paris," "Show

KANSAS CITY.—Newman, (2,000), 25-60c, 7 days. Other attractions, Buster West in "Marching to Georgia," Paramount Sound News, atmospheric Christmas presentation, "Christmas the World Over," fantasy in natural color, "In Dutch." Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "The Untamed," "Hearts in Exile," "The Love Racket," "A Most Immoral Lady." Rating, 85%.

PROVIDENCE.—Strand, (2,200), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, "Fire Proof," "Faro Nell," Paramount Sound News. Weather, fair, cold. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "The Mysterious Island," "Her Unborn Child," "Wall Street." Rating, 90%.

SALT LAKE CITY.—Capitol, (2,000), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, sound acts and news. Weather, unsettled. Opposition, "Untamed," 'Wall Street," and Pleasure Crazed." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Edith Wharton's story, Mary Brian as the heroine and an interesting cast can be used as exploitation of this best seller with its unusual story. The stage show was a big draw with special numbers getting a big hand.—Jack Roth, Mgr., Paramount, Des Moines.

Ad Tips—Special parking service was begun this week and advertised along with the picture. Patrons may park their cars in one of the downtown indoors garages, present parking tickets at the cashier's window, and receive reduced rates. Three hours parking is given for 15 cents.—George Baker, Mgr., Newman, Kansas City.

Ad Tip—Presence of Mary Brian and Frederic March in cast must be mentioned in ads and publicity as these two youngsters have large followings. Tie-ups with newspapers aided business. Appeal is general for high school students and adults.—Ed Reed, Mgr., Strand, Providence.

Ad Tips—Exploit as taken from the famed story by Edith Wharton, titled "The Children." Also angle of marriage and divorce of today. Appeal to both children and adults as a rule.—Ray Hendry, Mgr., Salt Lake City.

Married in Hollywood (Fox)

DES MOINES.—Orpheum, (2,000), 4 days, 25c-50c. Other attractions, R. K. O. vaudeville. Opposition, "Is Everybody Happy?", "Disraeli," "Marriage Playground." Weather, warm. Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—The title was played up as the drawing card in this feature which was very pleasing to general audiences. Norma Terris and Earl Murray, the stars, went over nicely. Story entertaining to general audience.—C. D. Gerraty, Mgr., Orpheum, Des Moines.

Mighty, The (Para.)

OTTAWA.—B. F. Keith's, (2,596), 6 days, 15c-60c. Other attractions, Five RKO acts, orchestra overture, Pathe (silent) news, "Hollywood Star." Weather, fair and mild. Opposition: "Flight," "Paris," "The Argyle Case," "The Drake Case," "The Hottentot," "His Glorious Night." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—After the Christmas season, it was a treat to have a fine feature, a well-balanced program and big crowds. "The Mighty" proved a popular attraction. We used: "If you want love, action, excitement, and a human story, see George Bancroft in "The Mighty." Compared "The Mighty" with "All Quiet on the Western Front" as showing war as it really is but emphasized that the picture was not all war, as it deals with the appointment of an ex-crook and war hero as a protector of public morals and safety. Liked by all classes and all ages.—J. M. Franklin, Mgr., B. F. Keith's, Ottawa.

Mississippi Gambler (Univ.)

SEATTLE.—Blue Mouse, (950), 50c-75c, 10 days. Added attractions, Vitaphone acts, Fox Movietone News, Mack Sennett comedy. Weather, clear. Opposition, "Sunny Side Up." "Mister Antonio," "Pointed Heels," "Three Live Ghosts," "This Thing Called Love." Rating, 80%.

Mister Antonio (Tiffany)

SEATTLE.—Music Box, (950), 50c-75c, 7 days. Added attractions, Vitaphone acts, Fox Movietone News. Weather, clear. Opposition, "Sunny Side Up," "Three Live Ghosts," "Pointed Heels," "Mississippi Gambler," "This Thing Called Love." Rating, 85%.

Most Immoral Lady (F. N.)

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Pantages, (2,166), 25-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, Five acts of vaudeville, including Harry Brosius revue, Russell and Fields, and the Herbert Bolt Trio. Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Untamed," "The Marriage Playground," "The Love Racket," "Hearts in Exile." Rating, 90%.

Mysterious Island (M-G-M)

PROVIDENCE.—Loew's State, (3,800), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, "Bouncing Babies," an Our Gang comedy, "Climbing Golden Stairs," Hearst's Metrotone News and Joe Stoves in organlogue. Weather, fair, cold. Opposition, "Her Unborn Child," "Marriage Playground," "Wall Street," "Pointed Heels." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tip—Most of this film was shot undersea and this must be mentioned for tone in ads. Mystery angles should be played up and nature of attraction suggests weird art billing which can be capitalized. General appeal for all over 17.—J. P. McCarthy, Mgr., Loew's State, Providence.

Navy Blues (M-G-M)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Century, (3,221), 6 days, 25c-60c. Other attractions, Metrotone and M-G-M News, "Faro Nell" (all talking Paramount Christie comedy), organlogue, orchestra, Loew-Publix unit "Dresden China," headed by Ken Whitmer. Heavy snow Monday, then clear cold to warm. Opposition, (Screen), "This Thing Called Love," "Broadway Hoofer," "Rio Rita," "Little Match Girl," "Mystic Mirror," "Is Everybody Happy?" "South Sea Rose," "So Long Letty," "Glorifying American Girl," "Girl from Woolworths?", "The Kiss." (Stage), "Whoopee," with Eddie Cantor, "The Little Accident," Fred Binder and his "Speed Girls." Rating, 120%.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Capitol, (1,200), 7 days, 25 to 50c. Other attractions, "The Doll Shop," Gus Edward's Technicolor revue. Weather, excellent. Opposition, "Tonight at Twelve," "The Vagabond Lover," "Glorifying American Girl," "The Time, the Place and the Girl," "A Song of Kentucky." Rating 125%.

Ad Tips—Play up William Haines big in all advertising telling them that this is his first all-talking picture. Let them know Karl Dane and Anita Page are with him. Don't miss your opportunity to tie-up with navy recruiting offices, with music, radio and phonograph dealers for window displays and tie-ups for song "Navy Blues." Audience appeal is very strong for all Haines' fans and this is a particularly good vehicle for him and packs plenty of laughs for all type of patrons.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l. Mgr., Loew's Century, Baltimore.

Night Parade (R-K-O)

Box Office Check-Up And Ad. Tips

No, No, Nanette (F. N.)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Mark Strand, (2,000), 35c-50c, 6 days. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News. Weather, variable. Opposition, "The Girl in the Show," "It's a Great Life," "Tiger Rose," "Tanned Legs." Rating, 135%.

Ad Tips—Give this picture extra newspaper space for it's worth it although it doesn't measure up in the way of entertainment to "The Gold Diggers." Featured this as Broadway's biggest musical comedy smash and that a half million New Yorkers couldn't go wrong in having paid $5.50 for seat for the stage version. Audience appeal, general.—Robert Rosenthal, Mgr., Mark Strand, Albany, N. Y.

Painted Angel (F. N.)

TROY, N. Y.—Lincoln, (1,000), 25c-35c, 3 days. Other attractions, an all talking comedy sound news, one Vitaphone act. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Second Choice." Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—Believe that the best bet for this picture is to feature Billie Dove and that the picture is made even more attractive by the magic of her voice. Also played up her beauty and her dramatic power. Audience appeal, general.—Harold Janecke, Mgr., Lincoln, Troy, N. Y.

Paris (F. N.)

CLEVELAND.—Allen, (3,300), 7 days, 30c, 60c. Other attractions, "Farm Relief," (Columbia, Krazy Kat cartoon), "Rings on Her Fingers," (Paramount Song), Hearst Metrotone News. Weather, very cold, heavy snow. Opposition, "Vagabond Lover," "Condemned," "Marriage Playground," "This Thing Called Love," "Evidence." Rating, 68%.

HOUSTON.—Kirby, (1,654), 7 days, 25c-50c. Other attractions, Edward Everett Horton comedy, Paramount Sound News. Weather, cold and snow. Opposition, "Song of Old Kentucky," "Song of Love," and "Tiger Rose." Rating, 110%

LOS ANGELES.—Warner, Downtown, (2,400), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Meglin Kiddies, Paramount Sound News, Vitaphone Varieties. Opposition, "Hot For Paris," "Romance of Rio Grande," "Sweetie," "Flight," "Taming of the Shrew," "Hit the deck." Weather, fine. Rating, 109%.

OTTAWA.—Centre, (1,200), 15c-50c, nine days. Added attractions, "Jungle Drums," "Screen Snapshots," Fox News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "The Mighty," "Flight," "Drake Case," "Argyle Case," "His Glorious Night," "The Hottentot." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Advertised this picture weeks in advance as Irene Bordoni appeared here in the play of the same name several weeks before picture was shown. Keeps the newspapers talking about it all during the interim between engagement of the play and the picture. Appeal is for all who enjoy good plays.—Isadore Lidman, Mgr., Allen, Cleveland.

Ad Tips—Advertise Bordoni as vivacious new screen star who is "different," and the picture as a racy and daring French revue in natural color with girls, gowns, music, dancing, comedy, and five new song hits. Stress the comedy and spicy angle in this one. Appeal is to young people and adults.—Holden Swager, Mgr., Kirby, Houston.

Ad Tips—The big flare in the advertising for "Paris" was "See and Hear Irene Bordoni, Great French Musical Revue Actress." References to her singing in both French and English added much attractiveness to the feature because of the local French population. She was called "The Female Chevalier" and, as a magnetic entertainer, she lived the part. Also drew attention to the scenes in color and care was taken to indicate that a plot ran through the whole picture. Attracted all classes. —Don Stapleton, Mgr., Centre, Ottawa.

Ad Tips—Exploit Helen Kane and William Powell big, and mention Fay Wray and Richard (Skeets) Gallagher. Let the public know that Kane sings in this all-talking, all-singing all-dancing picture. Copy used—"All the boys love Helen Kane and Helen's crazy about the boys, too. She sings them boop-boopa-doop songs, runs after them. Leads them a wild, merry-mad chase. It's grand and glorious entertainment of a new kind." Audience appeal—general, especially the younger set.—Melba, Dallas.

Ad Tip—Star names in cast good material for ballyhoo. Be sure to mention fact that William Powell, Helen Kane and "Skeets" Gallagher are prominently identified. Good story of stage life that should have appeal for all classes of adults.—Matt Reilly, Mgr., Victory, Providence.

Ad Tips—Feature picture as a vehicle for combined talents of William Powell, Helen Kane, Fay Wray, Skeets Gallagher. Theme of society girl on stage of interest to wide audience.—Hal Horne, Mgr., Granada, San Francisco.

Ad Tips—Feature William Powell in first starring role; emphasize songs by Helen Kane; plug teaser line about "story of silken legs and scarlet lips;" list as picture "as big as its cast." Appeal to all audiences.—Robert Blair, Mgr., The Seattle, Seattle.

Ad Tips—Play this picture up as being bigger than "Old Arizona" and don't forget to feature Lupe Velez, as well as H. B. Warner and Monte Blue. Audience appeal, general.—Byron Farley, Mgr., Mark Ritz, Albany.

Ad Tips—Exploit the title, as a vivid picturization of Belasco's stage hit. Tell the public it is all out-door, all-talking, an all-powerful feature with Lupe Velez, Monte Blue, Grant Withers, H. B. Warner and Tully Marshall. Let the public know that Lupe Velez sings. Audience appeal, general.—Holden Swiger, Mgr., Greater Palace, Dallas.

Ad Tips—Bill Belasco's great drama of the northwest as a sensational outdoor talking picture, and Lupe Velez as "fiery, loving with impetuous abandon." Also the singing of Velez. Stress advantage of screen over stage in matter of authentic and marvelously beautiful backgrounds. Appeal is to youth and adults.—E. E. Collins, Mgr., Metropolitan, Houston.

Ad Tips—Consisted of a lot of newspaper publicity about Rudy Vallee, all playing him up as the big hit of the year with the girls. Appeal is for those who are worshippers of popular heroes of the day, and not too particular about what they appear in.—William Watson, Mgr., Hippodrome, Cleveland.

Ad Tips—Brilliant musician and singer, now a screen luminary, in his first feature photoplay. Rudy Vallee and his celebrated Connecticut Yankees in "The Vagabond Lover." Song and instrumental hits sparkle throughout this all-talking musical story of a young bandmaster who leaped into local renown and much trouble and romance through a case of mistaken identity—romantic, delightful—a real treat, and a picture that will highly delight and please all seeing it, both old and young.—Empress, Oklahoma City.

Wall Street (Col.)

PROVIDENCE.—Majestic, (2,400), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, "Midnight Daddies," "Crinoline Classics" "Sixty Minutes from Broadway." Weather fair cold. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "Mysterious Island," "Her Unborn Child," "Marriage Playground." Rating, 90%.

SALT LAKE CITY.—R-K-O Orpheum, 2,500, 15-75c, 7 days. Other attractions, vaudeville and sound news events. Weather, unsettled. Opposition, "Untamed," "Marriage Playground," "Pleasure Crazed." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tip—Recent stock slump will suggest timely topic of stocks and crashes. Also a story of romance. Appeal chiefly to adult classes.—Grant Pemberton, Mgr., R-K-O Orpehum, Salt Lake City.

Ad Tips—Recent stock slump will suggest novel billing. Should be exploited as picture of high finance. Names, with exception of Ralph Inc, can be omitted if space prohibits. Appeal to those who like their drama strong.—Sol Braunig, Mgr., Majestic, Providence.

Wedding Rings (F. N.)

TROY, N. Y.—Lincoln, (1,000), 25c-35c, 4 days. Other attractions, one Vitaphone act, Pathe Sound News. Weather, stormy. Opposition, "The Kiss." Rating, 88%.

Ad Tips—Featured Lois Wilson and H. B. Warner fairly heavy in newspaper ads and characterized the story as being a startling one of daring love. Audience appeal, mature.—Harold Janecke, Mgr., Lincoln, Troy, N. Y.

Wise Girls (M-G-M)

DENVER.—Orpheum, (1,650), 15c-50c. 7 days. Other attractions, R-K-O vaudeville, Pathe Sound News and Pathe Review. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Is Everybody Happy?", "Girl from Havana," "Night Parade," "Untamed," "Pointed Heels," and "In the Headlines." Rating, 100%.

OMAHA.—State, (1,200), 25c-40c, 3 days. Other attractions, "Busy Fingers," (Col.), Universal News. Weather, clear and mild. Opposition, "Romance of Rio Grande," "Tanned Legs," "Footlights and Fools." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Merchandise gift week in tie-up with local stores helped meet Xmas slump. Plugged father and son, Elliott and J. C. Nugent and also Norma Lee, a new name here. Title some help. Audience appeal, general.—Irving Cohen, Mgr., State, Omaha.

Writ Bans Unfair Tactics by Neon Against Rainbow

Rainbow Light, Inc., has been granted an injunction against Claude Neon Lights, restraining unfair business tactics. The two firms are in litigation over patents connected with manufacture of luminous tube signs.

"The affidavits submitted by Rainbow Light convincingly show that the defendant, Claude Neon Lights, Inc., has breached all rules of fair dealing," said Justice Glennon in Supreme Court. "Claude Neon Lights, he said, "is entitled to have all its rights under its patents determined but is not privileged pending the actions to adopt tactics calculated to drive its competitors and alleged infringers out of business."

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

CONDUCTED BY AN EXHIBITOR FOR EXHIBITORS

"A New Era"

BEYOND all shadow of doubt the theatre business has undergone some mighty unusual changes in the past few years. Just like the pictures and other surrounding factors of the industry, the lot of the average house-manager is changing.

True, there are certain ones who will say it is for the worse.

But we are more optimistic than others and so we say, it is for the best.

You don't have to overtax your memory to recall the days of the great big powerful circuit, spread from coast to coast, and composed, in most cases, of a lot of swelled-headed managers, who thought the sun rose and set in their own private offices.

Gosh. We can recall several of those birds and how they set themselves on so high a pedestal that when they did finally fall, you could hear the thump for miles and miles away.

Men who developed the most unusual complex. They really thought they were God's chosen flock. That the "common pepul" were only meant to buy tickets and be good patrons.

If you had the nerve or the courage (or both) to actually ask to speak to one of them the "act" went something like this:

You first approach the doorman, he then calls an usher who in turn drags you to a special officer up on the balcony, who likewise takes you into the assistant manager. If by any chance you finally got into the "sanctum" where his gracious highness the manager smoked and played cards in private, said manager would immediately impress upon you the fact that he has condescended (and not another word would fit the situation) to spare a few moments to listen to what you had to say. Invariably, you got no satisfaction or answer for your trouble and then you would leave with the impression that said manager was a "pain in the neck."

But the time really arrived when managers, regardless of what circuit they worked for, had to deliver the goods or pass out of the picture.

Did those "high and mighty" make the grade?

Like Hell they did.

For the majority found themselves out and a little later they changed viewpoints or else stayed out.

Showmanship became a paramount factor and only those men capable of getting behind the wagon and pushing were able to survive. Alibis and swell offices count for nothing if the "gelt" is not rolling into the old b.o.

"Good riddance to bad rubbish," says we, and the business is better off without them.

Mickey Gross Leads The Field For RKO Out In Sioux City

As usual, Mickey Gross, manager of the RKO Orpheum Theatre, in Sioux City, Ia., continues his marvelous brand of showmanship in exploiting and advertising his attractions at this theatre.

Among his recent contributions for use on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages was a newspaper tieup on classified advertising which you will surely agree with us brought the attraction and the theatre a whale of a lot of good free space and publicity in the paper. Look this one over, boys, because it may present one or two angles that you can divert to your own use.

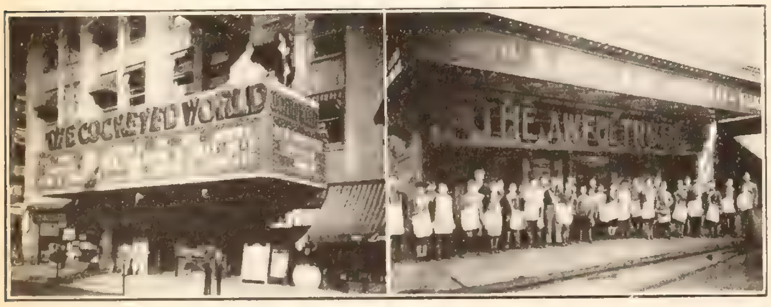
In connection with the same picture, you will notice the fine attractive way that he has arranged a display in front of his theatre, and our purpose in showing this particular display was because while it was done at a minimum of cost, it was nevertheless eye-arresting and attractive.

You will also notice the tieup with the weekly magazine delivery boys and we can only leave to your own imagination the effectiveness of these youngsters and such advertising when several dozen of them were flocking all over the city delivering their magazines.

Thanks a lot, Mickey, for your continued activities on the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and see if you can't keep up the fine work you are doing now.



Claude Davis Says:

". . . . The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB is going to develop into one of the greatest CLUBS in the country . . . . I am very pleased that I have joined it, and I am sure I will derive a great benefit from it."

Manager, Bohemia Theatre,

Round Table Material Gives Larry's Bulletin Good Copy

Ever since Larry Jacobs tied up with the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB, it seems that we have been constantly alert to read about his activities as contained in the interesting letters he sends us. In the latest he sends us, he says that he liked our recent editorial chat "Don't Give Up The Ship" so well, that he had copies made, and sent them to all the managers in his division.

We are glad that this little chat struck the proper chord in Larry's estimation and I am sure that all the boys who receive the reprint will agree with the advice that we handed out at that time. We do not try to take the attitude of preaching, but rather that we are trying to guide the boys along the proper channels and keep them out of trouble.

"Ace" Berry's division of theatres is not the only outfit to spread Round Table Club propaganda over their circuit. Many others find the idea so good that they select many of our "chats" from time to time and make them the subject of circuit bulletins or "talks" at their regular get-together meetings. Which is not a bad idea because they can tell their many house managers and staffs what is going on in other parts of the country and of course broaden their viewpoints.

We have a hunch that Larrys' many letters to the house managers contain many important topics and we are wondering whether we will ever get the opportunity of laying our hands on some of them so that we can let other managers and executives know how this "crack" theatre outfit manages to keep their boys all pepped up.

George P. Hundling Uses Wide Variety Of Front Displays

Here is a good angle that will pep up the ordinary cut-out figures of dancing girls on any film musical that you may run at your theatre.

In this instance Manager George P. Hundling of the Capitol Theatre in Newton, Ia., used real cloth sashes made of colored bunting around the waists of the dancing girl cutouts, which were cut from the exchange 24 sheet posters on "Broadway Babies."

This added both color and flash to what might otherwise have been an ordinary marquee decoration, and if for no other reason, George is entitled to a lot of credit for using his showman dome when it was needed.

In doping out all these elaborate marquee displays that have become so popular, in the past few months, due to the big-flash singing and talking pictures, try and dope out angles of this kind, because it lends an animated and colorful appearance to plain looking displays. The same stunt as described here, under lighting at night, must have made a mighty attractive appearance on the marquee of the Capitol Theatre.

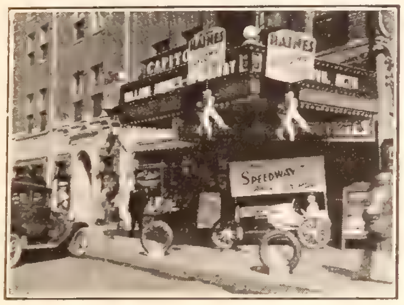
Another one of George's activities was on the picture "Speedway," on which we are anxious to show you what the front of his theatre looked like on this particular attraction. Do not fail to note the racing car which he secured through local cooperation as well as the tire tieup and the cutouts hanging from the marquee itself. This is all typical of livewire showmanship, and is the type of stuff that we are beginning to expect from managers like George Hundling.



Let's hear some more about you, and see if you can't become one of the active contributors to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, will you, Hundling?

Lloyd Sinclair Gives "Silents" a Special Ad Boost

According to CLUB records, the name of Lloyd E. Sinclair has appeared many, many times on the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB in connection with the description of his showmanship tactics in the exploitation and operation of his theatre, the New Southern in Minneapolis, Minn.

However, it has been a long time in arriving, but we finally secured a snapshot of him, so that we can show you what this aggressive young showman really looks like.

You know, Lloyd, it was not so very long ago that someone was discussing one of your articles that appeared on the CLUB pages about yourself, and mentioned the suggestion that you were a man of about fifty. How the devil the party got such an impression he failed to state, but it bears out our old argument that every member should see that his photograph is on file at CLUB headquarters so that we have it for ready reference besides publishing it in connection with a proper introduction for the benefit of our other readers.

However, we didn't start this story to go into a long discourse, but we will say that we were delighted to hear from you, and we won't pan you because you have not been furnishing us with any alibis. At any rate, we know you are still an interested member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and just because you don't find time to communicate with us, is no reason why you are not just as interested as the man who does.

NEW Southern THEATRE

Let's get away from all this chatter about Lloyd, pictures and other things and take enough of your time to show you the lower part of a fine doorhanger which Sinclair turns out every week, and which you will notice carries the line "AN ALL SILENT PROGRAM."

To any theatre which occasionally presents such silent programs as a diversion from the sound programs it might be well to play up that line so that the patrons will not feel that they have been deceived or fooled by what they are to see.

Thank you, Lloyd, and try to be a little more prompt in letting us know what you are doing out there in the New Southern Theatre in Minneapolis.

Geo. P. Shute Is on the Road to Early Promotion

We suppose we could label this little article "A Showman in the Making," but we will let this young man's future activities speak for themselves rather than have us pat him on the back before we know whether he is really entitled to any unusual praise.

But don't let the above detract from the fact that we want you to meet George P. Shute who was assistant to Bill Levey at the Beacon Theatre in Pt. Washington, L. I.

Also, don't take George's photo too seriously, as it was a rather poor snapshot, but we decided to use it anyway with the hopes that by the time he becomes a house manager in his own right, he will have a better photograph to use on these pages.

We want you to know that Shute has been in the show business for quite a while and has been publicity director for the N. Y. Little Theatres Group. Has also handled exploitation and publicity for the New Era Films, and is now getting set to learn all of the inside dope on running a theatre.

Inasmuch as he was fortunate enough to get himself set with Bill Levey, makes us all the more certain that his promotion to a full fledged managerial position is only around the corner. We are therefore going to sit back and see what happens out there at the Beacon Theater, as we are certain that Levey will credit George with anythng that he is deserving of credit for. So long for the present, and let's hope we meet very soon.

"A Modern Movie Fable"

> The following "fable" is so typical of several actual incidents (not very far from the Great White Way) that we thought there was a couple of good laughs, with perhaps a giggle, for those who might like to read it.
> Never mind who wrote it. We know him and we know that he knows what he's talking about. "Chick"

To understand this fable properly, you must first know that in this world of ours there are two types of humans, including theatre owners and exhibitors. These we will call "Ooffies" and "Gooffies."

The "Ooffies" are those who love to deliver good, hard socks to the chin, midriff or other vulnerable points; and the "Gooffies," hard as it may seem to believe, love to take these same wallops just like a baby enjoys licking a lemon stick.

For the nonce we are not concerned with the former, merely the latter.

A certain pair of chaps made a killing many moons ago in the since decadent stock market. Movies were a novelty and these two boys opened a shifting photograph shop. There was no opposition and they became successful . . . enormously so. They built more houses; all successful, and money poured into their coffers in a tinkling, soothing stream.

Then came another party . . . not so wealthy but infinitely smarter. He organized capital and started what is now known as a chain. It prospered. And the two first mentioned boys noticed a slight lull in the stream of profits. Slight at first, but steadily growing deeper. The other party and his associates decided they didn't want opposition, so they made the two boys a proposition. It sounded good . . . and besides . . . "we can always start another string."

So they sold.

The second outfit cornered the picture market, but the two boys didn't bother about that. They started to build . . . for the future. They built theatres in Jolopi and other points, where, with good luck and the aid of real estate booms, people might settle in another twenty years. The houses opened,—on rubber soles. Successful buttonhole makers were promoted to managerial jobs and business was conspicuous by its complete absence.

The boys were taking it on the chin bravely . . . and it left them a bit dazed—but still building. House after house left welts of angry red in the books and on the chins, but still they kept on.

They engaged experienced managers and refused to allow them to manage their own houses. Hadn't they been a success before? The experienced managers tried to tell them things for their own good, but they were told to keep the houses clean in case the customers should come.

And they still took it on the chin.

Now* comes the "GOOFFIE."

A certain house manager, with a big front and a good line, sold them a bill of goods. HE was the greatest in the business. He had done so and so and this and thus in Wenatchee, and HE could put the houses over and HOW. So they disregarded all the loyal managers who had stuck and slaved through the tough years and put the big front in complete charge.

Immediately* the houses showed an increase . . . in running expenses. Managers changed like the weather . . . new ideas and systems were installed . . . but businss was still *b. k.

Another sock on the well known chin. The boys continued to smile . . . a bit weakly . . . but they still smiled. They loved it. HOW they could take it! They were the talk of the industry! And while they smiled, a bit wistfully, the industry laughed . . . out loud. And not WITH them. The Big Front's contract ran a year. The good old chins were getting a bit mushy from repeated wallops and finally one gave way! At the end of the year. The Big Front, sensing what was coming, stuffed his sheckels in his pin leather grips and breezed. He was smiling. And not wistfully, either. He enjoyed his engagement. Why shouldn't he? And where could he find two more such suckers? You tell 'im.

They were "Ooffies." They hired another big front and he did the same thing all over again. Why not? They were getting used to being taken on the chin and would have been lonesome without it.

The Moral? Write your own . . . I'm buying a new front.

Herb Grove Gave Town Something to Laugh About

Here is a police department cooperation that we can go on record as saying is one of the finest of its kind ever called to our attention.

In addition to tying in with the picture, it lends an official and dignified air to the entire stunt by the police department utilizing the greater portion of the tag for their own use.

This fine piece of work was executed by Manager Herb Grove of Fort Theatre, Rock Island, Ill.

Practicably every automobile that parked on the downtown streets of the city was tagged with this fine plug for "Welcome Danger," and the drivers found them tied to the steering wheels or handles of the car. There is no question in our minds or anyone's mind, that the car owners sat up and took notice when they saw Police name on the tag and unquestionably they read the entire thing through, which left the name of the picture and the theatre well set in their minds.

Once again we say that if the ROUND TABLE CLUB were giving prizes for the best stunt of the month, we believe that this one would be deserving of a prize. However, in lieu of a prize we wish to congratulate and publicly commend Herb for his fine showmanship and exploitation in the past, as well as for this particular tieup. Let's hear some more from you, George, we are anxious to hear your future activities.

Howard Waugh Is Busy Boosting the B. O. in Meriden

Here is a peach of a card used for mailing purposes by Howard Waugh of the Fox-Poli Palace Theatre in Meriden, Conn.

While this cut only shows up the actual wording and layout, we want you to know that the card itself measured 7 x 9 inches, was printed on light pink stock in two colors, dark blue and red, and it was mightly attractive too.

Finding it difficult to crash through a neighboring opposition town, Howard used his keen sense of showmanship by mailing it to practically all of the residents of that opposition town and undoubtedly cut into the business that was otherwise getting away from him.

Big Double Feature at Palace - Meriden Every Sunday

We don't know what the Palace has been doing out there lately, but we do know that it is going to respond to some careful handling under Waugh's direction.

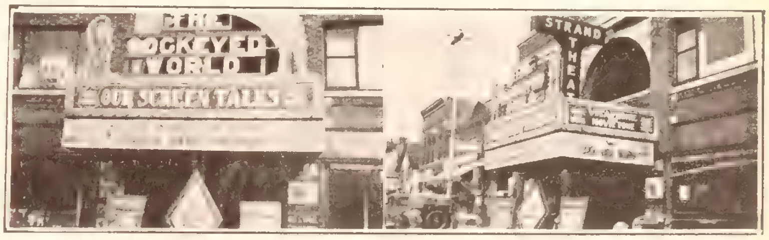
Thanks for keeping us posted, Howard, and lots of luck to you in what you are doing. Regards to the Mrs., and you can expect me to walk in on you most any time between now and the end of January. In the meantime let's hear some more from you.

Cohen's Marquee Carries Many Attractive Layouts

Here is a view of the marquee and front of the Strand Theatre, at Massena, N. Y., which were designed and executed through the sole efforts of Abe Cohen, manager of the theatre, and his house staff.

We certainly must give Abe credit for the fine looking front he has done on this attraction, and we would particularly call your attention to the row of lights around the cutout as well as the wording above the marquee that has been made into an electric sign advertising the title of the attraction.

This seems to be just typical of Cohen's livewire showmanship, and we would not be at all surprised that business is clicking in proportion to the effort he is putting into the theatre.



Let's hear some more from you, Cohen, and try to make writing to us a regular habit. We rather like to read your letters and your contributions, and we are certain that many other managers are finding your ideas practical for their use. So long for the present, Abe, and let's hope we meet personally before long.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Do You Know Cliff Gill?

Perhaps if Horatio Alger, Jr., were alive today, and was seeking personalities as the basis for some more of his marvelous interesting stories for the younger generation, he would find good material in the person of Cliff Gill, now engaged in handling publicity for the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses in New Jersey Division.

What more can we say about Cliff than that he has proven very successful at this unusually difficult task, and no one knows better than his own superiors how difficult the task was when he set out to make this job a success.

Cliff incidentally has a most interesting history up to this date in the show business. He was formerly with Finkelstein & Rubin in Minneapolis when he left that outfit to become director of exploitations under the Fox Midwesco banner. Here again he was quite successful and he was sent on to New York to assist Dave Flam in organizing the efficient Fox Metropolitan staff, but of course, Cliff is one of those go-getting chaps that hates to stand still, and before long he became director of publicity staff for the New Jersey houses.

It didn't take Cliff very long to get going and soon rumbles of exploitation and publicity activities began to be heard across the Hudson River, and under his capable direction, all of the small houses put on a big town front.

Another example of his fine exploitation work, was the engineering of a Thanksgiving holiday party to hundreds of orphaned kiddies at the various Fox Theatres in Jersey City. Incidentally, this stunt received marvelous notices in all the papers and unquestionably reacted most favorably at the box offices of the various theatres.

In telling this little story about Cliff Gill, it would really be unfair to pass up any comment about Juls Fields, who is Cliff's assistant and a doggone fine right hand to any man.

We would certainly like to hear from this combination of live-wire publicity and exploitation men and are certain that every little stunt or campaign that they are putting across will hold tremendous value for the army of readers of the Club pages in MOTION PICTURE NEWS each week.

In closing this story, we want to make mention of one great qualification that Cliff possesses, and that is the ability to hold the admiration and personal friendship of every one of the managers on the circuit, working under his direction in this particular field. We will look forward to publishing a whole lot more about this man and his activities.

A. C. Raleigh says:

"I am very much interested in your MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE, and it looks as though there was a lot of stuff to be found in its columns. . . ."

Bob Soffer Is An Active Manager for N. Y. Circuit

In introducing you personally via his photograph to Robert Soffer, manager of the Hollywood Theatre in east side section of New York for the Manhattan Playhouse Circuit, we have been able to unearth some interesting details of his experience in the theatrical business.

You may be interested to learn that he was formerly a musical director and organist in a chain of theatres in the city with the reputation of having been one of the best organists in the city. He has studied under such men as Hugo Reisenfeld, but did not loose the opportunity of studying the methods of the different managers under whom he worked. Among these men were George Rotzky of Montreal, Jules Aarenson of the Stanley Circuit and many others too numerous to mention. At any rate, the important point of this story is to tell you that he finally gave up the musical end of the profession and accepted the offer of Ben Sherman to take his present position.

Mr. Soffer promises a most interesting story for the CLUB pages in reference to advertising music in showmanship, which I am sure his many years of experience well qualifies him to write about.

Thank you kindly, Bob, and please remember that we are going to look forward to your promised story with much interest. Don't forget to keep up your activities and I am sure that you find the doings of your brother members of keen interest in reading the CLUB pages of the NEWS every week.

Allen & McKenna Worked Out This One Between Them

In order to start off their anniversary celebration in the proper way, and to give the customers a whole lot to talk about, J. McKenna, manager of the Tampa Theatre in Tampa, Fla., in association with Wallace Allen the State supervisor of exploitation and publicity, worked a gag whereby Bessie Love pressed a button at the Postal Telegraph offices in Hollywood, Cal., which rang a bell in the Tampa Theatre to officially start the celebration.

We leave to your imagination the many angles upon which this stunt was capitalized by both Allen and McKenna and unquestionably Tampa knew doggone well that there was an anniversary celebration in progress.

There must be some other interesting angles of this celebration that would make good reading for the CLUB pages, and we will depend upon McKenna or Allen to see that we get the details of it.

Best regards, boys, and remember us to the rest of the members down there in Florida.

C. W. Davis Gave New House a Great Opening Send-Off

In spite of its limited size they succeeded in turning out a marvelous edition of the paper which carried a supplement dealing with the theatre, the construction, the acoutics and the fine sound equipment with which it is going to project the latest hits from Broadway.

When we look over an ad from a manager in the larger cities and towns and express surprise and delight at a nice piece of copy, we must naturally consider the effort of manager Davis, as being a doggone fine piece of work because he has succeeded in adding a real Broadway touch to this announcement as well as the rest of the material contained in the newspaper for the opening of this new beautiful theatre.

Here's a New Kind of "Nut" Circular to Liven Interest

Bill Levey, livewire manager of the Beacon Theatre in Pt. Washington, L. I., turned out an original throwaway circular which measured 6 x 9 inches and on which we are showing both sides as worked out by Levey.

Bill believes that in passing this on to his brother members and readers of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages that it holds value, both as a good enclosure for your mailing list or to be used as an ordinary throw away.

At any rate, it is the type of advertising that is bound to make the cash customers read it through and give them a laugh or two. Co-operation With School Was Great Tie-Up for Burt's

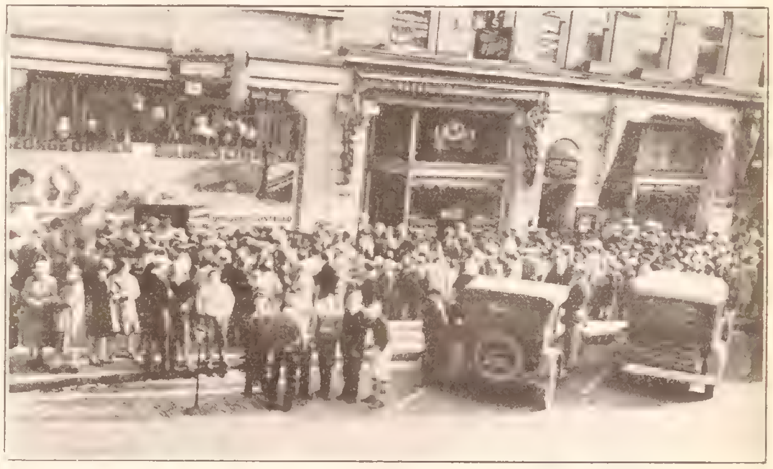
This is what the front of Burt's Theatre, Mannington, West Virginia, looks like when over 700 school children, dismissed especially early, to attend the showing of "Noah's Ark" congregated in front of the theatre to gain admittance.

This is just typical of the showmanship being employed at that aggressive little theatre, and although the place was packed with youngsters for this special showing, through the school tieup, they were nevertheless carefully handled, and properly looked after under the direction of the local police department, school board and the manager of the theatre.



This is a wonderful ad for the theatre itself, as practically every passerby must have taken notice of this large turnout of youngsters and besides that crowd of kids must have done a whole lot of word of mouth advertising after they saw the picture itself.

Let's hear some more from you boys down there, and keep on sending us the photographs as we like to use them in describing the story.

Jack Hess' Original Newspaper Ads—B.O. Magnets

Are you looking for the unusual in advertising?

Then we unhesitatingly offer three ads on "The Great Gabbo," shown with this story as our idea of unusual newspaper advertising.

These ads are the brain-children of Jack Hess, Director of Publicity and Advertising for the RKO Chicago Division.

There are several points that we would bring out in illustrating these three ads. First, that those of you who believe that there is too much reading matter, should keep in mind that Chicago is the only city in the United States where the theatre-going public has actually been educated to read all parts of the ads. That is chiefly why Chicago theatrical advertising contains so much more copy than is generally found in other cities throughout the country.

Another point which we would bring out in discussing this advertising is the fact that it was not taken from any press book or any set policy for advertising an attraction. It is merely Jack Hess' own idea for treating this particular attraction in a particular way. You will notice when you look through these three ads, that the dummy is played up above everything else, and that, in our opinion, is damn fine showmanship in any man's country.

We take a distinct pleasure in passing these three ads on for perusal of any interested publicity or theatre manager, and we know that if you will give it close inspection you will find many angles of great interest to you when you have to make up your own newspaper ads.

Thank you, Jack, and we sure wish you would find time to send us tear sheets on some more of the advertising you are turning out. Best regards to the rest of the boys on the Loop, and all good wishes for a mighty prosperous and Happy New Year.

Tommy Kane's Varied Activities Keeping Him Busy

Tommy Kane, manager of the Sequoia Theatre in Redwood City, Cal., has once more come to life with news of his timely activities.

This time they arranged to run a Christmas Kiddie Party on the 20th of Dec. in conjunction with the Redwood City Exchange Club. Through this tieup they have donated the theatre and employees' services and the show, while the Club, on their part, furnished the gifts for the kiddies and the gentleman to play Santa Claus.

As usual, Tom arose to the occasion and has secured a Rin-Tin-Tin talking picture, an all-talking Our Gang Comedy and a Mickey Mouse sound cartoon. This, tied in with the community singing (which he will personally lead) should certainly give the kids one grand time.

We are certain that the Sequoia Theatre will secure much valuable publicity and good will feeling from the entire community by reason of their fine gesture in working with Exchange Club, and we know on our part that Tommy Kane was instrumental in putting this through so successfully.

We wish that the mimeographed program for this children's Christmas party was clear enough to permit reproduction on these pages, as it is a masterpiece of fun for the kids, but, unfortunately, we will just have to let it go at that, and tell you that the program was typical of the event itself, carefully thought out, and a great booster for the event and the town itself.

Thanks for your kind wishes, Tom, and keep up the good work. We are certain that the gang out there are all familiar with the high-powered showmanship that you are constantly using and that you will be properly rewarded when the right time comes along. Here's wishing you all the luck in the world, and best wishes for a prosperous New Year.

"We Wonder What's Become of"— Geo. C. Steele?

Here is a picture of one of our very first Charter Members. His entrance into the Club dates back almost 18 months, but we are certain that his keen interest in the Club is still the same.

George C. Steele of the Trianon Theatre in Birmingham, Ala., has had his name and activities printed in many trade papers of the industry, but, like everything else in the show game, a little silence and you're soon gone and forgotten.

BUT not in the Round Table Club.

You have to die or leave the business entirely before we ever stop thinking about you.

And the same with George. Just what he has been doing lately is a little vague to us here, but as long as he remains a member we shall continue to keep him on the active list.

We know that Steele will eventually see this little story and we shall look forward to his renewing activities in the Club once more. How about it, George? Let's know that you are still alive and kicking. Oak?

J. M. Woods Says:

"I hope that in the future I will be of as much service, and can give you as much information about what we are doing here, as I have received from the club pages of MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Fox-Terminal Is Well Represented by Jack Fink

The trip to Chicago was not without compensation in the way of meeting old friends and lots of new ones, but one of the most pleasant recollections was that of greeting our old friend, Jack Fink, who formerly worked with us in Connecticut, and is now manager of the Fox Terminal Theatre in Chicago.

Jack is only a "pint size," but he is capable of handling a house and putting things over in real big style. The Terminal, by the way, is a 5,300-seat all-sound theatre, and we can say without fear of contradiction that it is one of the best sound houses in Chicago, so far as acoustics and clearness of reproduction is concerned.

In introducing you to Jack via his photograph, we would also call your attention to the extremely fine-looking group of men who compose the theatre staff and are directly under Jack's supervision, and he in turn has been assisted by Frank Riley, who is shown on Fink's right, and who has now been named assistant manager at the Sheridan Theatre.

We are certain that Jack Fink's future activities in Chicago will become interesting reading on these pages, and we are only hoping that he makes it a point to keep us posted at all times.

So long for the present, Jack, and here's wishing you a mighty prosperous and happy New eYar.

"Chick" Sez:

There is one portion of your theatre where regular and frequent inspections should be the order of your routine . . . that is the projection room and its important equipment . . . these inspections should be made in conjunction with your operators so that you can all discuss the various questions that are bound to pop up during these regular inspections. . . . Be sure to make it a point that they run the mechanisms of your projector and that they keep you acquainted with the condition of those machines, as they may be letting important repairs or overhauling go too far in an effort to spare the house, what they think is, unnecessary expense . . . which is rather poor economy because the booth equipment should be in the "pink" of condition at all times . . . unless you want to flirt with breakdowns . . . peeved patrons . . . refunds of admissions . . . etc. . . . together with the other headaches from the various bosses and home offices . . . it's all up to you . . . and while we have dwelt particularly on the projection room . . . don't get the wrong impression that we have reference only to that part of your theatre . . . inspections should be made as often as possible and together with those employees whose departments are covered by same . . . let them make a duplicate of the list of things you find . . . then check that list up with the next inspection . . . that's the way to find out if they are on their toes . . . and keeping things in proper shape at all times. . . . I used to make such inspections an important part of my routine of running theatres and never kept anyone on the payroll who was lax with the property placed under my responsibility . . . it's a good rule to start and keep in operation all the time . . . but don't let him alibi non-attention to proper equipment from inspection to inspection . . . you'll be the goat in the long run . . . and why should you . . . ?

Torgan & Hitchcock Pull Best Gag of the Month

From Seattle, Wash., to Springfield, Mass., is quite a jump even by aeroplane, but that is exactly what it amounts to when we say anything about Eddie Hitchcock and his activities in the show world.

It was quite a long time since we heard from or about Hitchcock, but when we did, it dealt with a corking good exploitation campaign out in the extreme northwest. Now we hear about his activities in connection with Manager Sam Torgan of the Fox Poli Theatre in Springfield, and it was one of the greatest gags pulled in recent years in this part of the country.

The picture "Sunnyside Up" was doing such a terrific business at the theatre that hundreds of people were forced to stand in line for several hours. And Springfield can experience cold weather, when cold weather is being served. They happened to have quite a dose of it that night, and so the customers were far from being comfortable. Torgan and Hitchcock put their heads together, and between them they doped out a stunt whereby they served coffee and doughnuts to the waiting patrons.

The story immediately crashed for a three-column picture and head in the Springfield Daily Republican, together with an impressive photograph of the entire stunt which we are showing with this story.

This was a fine piece of work, and if you want something for your newspaper or town to talk about, try it the next time you have a lot of customers waiting to get in for the show.

Thanks, Torgan, and also to you, Eddie Hitchcock, and here's hoping we hear from you frequently now that we know where you are located.

Earl Arnold Is Promoted to Lincoln in Arlington

Earl Arnold, who before coming to New York was identified with the Liberty Theatre at Watertown in upper New York State and more recently at the Ritz Theatre in Lyndhurst, N. J., for Bratter & Pollack, has been promoted by General Manager Crull to take over Dick Kirschbaum's duties as managing director of the Lincoln Theatre in Arlington, N. J.

This is one of B. & P.'s ace houses and will give Mr. Arnold a far greater opportunity of showing his ability than while at the Ritz, which is limited in the opportunities that it presents to the men running it.

How about renewing your old-time CLUB activity, Earl? We would certainly like to hear from you again, and know what is going on in the line of theatre work and exploitation.

Here's wishing you all kinds of good luck and a happy and prosperous New Year.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"CO-OPERATION"

Relationship Between Theater Manager and Employee

By MILTON W. KORACH

Manager, Elmwood Theatre, Buffalo, N. Y.

The following story contributed by Mr. Korach contains many valuable pointers in direct connection with the subject that he is writing about. We suggest that you spend the few moments necessary to read it through and perhaps you will find that you either agree or disagree with his point of view. At any rate, it is an open discussion and you can express yourself accordingly.

We all know that there is no such thing as a one-man organization—he may have all the brains and essentials toward making an A-1 executive but he would be as helpless alone as an aviator 5,000 feet in the air with his motor gone dead.

Our employees are the great motors of our institutions. Each part must function perfectly if we are to attain success. We, as executives, can only steer and direct.

As theatre managers we ask ourselves what is our first task toward efficiency among employees? My answer to that is "PERFECT HARMONY," by that I mean every employee satisfied with his or her position. If we have a single employee dissatisfied or bored or discontented we must weed same out from the rest immediately, otherwise the result will be like the bad apple in the barrel of good ones. In my experience I have had occasion to ask every employee if he or she were satisfied after a readjustment of employees—those that were not I dismissed in order to keep strict harmony.

Every manager should feel very kindly toward his employees, without getting too familiar—the day's greetings to the humblest employee brings results. Create a friendly spirit in your organization so that every employee will like you, take an interest in their personal affairs, their home life. Give them a lift if they are deserving—not meaning always money, but advice and moral support. Just be human—Don't ritz them or make them feel afraid of you. If you create a feeling of right the employee will grow to dislike you.

Anything that I loath in a theatre is for an employee to say—"here comes the boss," and then straighten up to his duties. I haven't got room for such an employee. I lose faith immediately because 9 times out of 10 they are not on the job when your back is turned.

However, such conditions should not arise, if you will only lend yourself to the common touch of your help, so that they will have a kindly understanding toward you, they will do everything in their power to help you and more so when you are not within the theatre, and that is one of the most important essentials that your theatre functions properly just the same as if you were there, or even better.

I am going to bring the usher staff into this article, because I feel they are really one of the very most important departments of theatre operation. They are in closer contact with our patrons than any one in the organization.

It isn't always possible to give our patrons 100 per cent shows, but we CAN give them 100 per cent service at all times, and this service sometimes. more than off-sets our poor shows. Keep in close contact with this department, you will learn many things regarding the likes and dislikes of your patrons. But, above all, the courtesy, comfort and service that this department extends to the patrons dominates your entire organization and reflects on you as the man directing the destiny of your theatre.

With all these things taken into consideration, and working hard toward that end, you will find "co-operation." Your employees will be like one family, with you as the head, each one an advertising unit boosting their theatre and show. You will have a friendly spirit in your organization that will be far-reaching—that even your patrons will learn about and talk about. This relationship between Theatre Manager and Employee must start with you and you must carry it from the highest paid employee to the most humble—your business will prosper more.

Art C. Taylor Says:

"Hail to the ROUND TABLE CLUB! It is a great organization and I certainly want to be a member.

Many times I have used ideas taken from the CLUB section, to exploit and sell pictures to our patrons."

Manager, Rialto & Mission Theatres
Beeville, Texas.

John McManus Transfers His Stunts to St. Louis

Now you can step right up and take a look at the latest contribution from John McManus, whom you may recall on these pages in the days when he was at Loew's Theatre in Dayton, Ohio. Now he is the managing director of Loew's State Theatre in St. Louis, Mo., and still carrying on with the same brand of showmanship that has made him outstanding in not only his own organization but throughout the Middle West.

On the picture "Marianne" he used a corking good street ballyhoo which attracted a tremendous amount of attention wherever it paraded. As this illustration shows, the chap on stilts was certainly an eye-arrester for any theatre or attraction. And McManus deserves a lot of credit for introducing this type of street ballyhoo to St. Louis.

We have shown song sheet window tie-ups without number on these pages, but there seems to be something about this particular window that prompted us to break our resolution against showing sheet music window displays any more. What is there that appeals to you fellows looking at it? Suppose you give it a little attention, and find the "IT" that makes this outstanding and a doggone good plug, for not only the picture and the theatre but the store itself.

Mr. McManus' activities have the knack of reaching plenty of free space in the local papers, and that combined with his novel methods of exploitation and ballyhooing his attractions, have been pushing the Loew's State Theatre to the fore continuously.

Thanks, Mac, and let's hear from you again as soon as you get a chance.

Thank You, Frank

There isn't the slightest sense in the world for us to go ahead and write a story about this picture, because Frank A. Gordon's letter is so self-explanatory, but go ahead and read it for yourself.

> "Well here I am. with my nose stuck in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS and that is where my nose is whenever I happen to have a spare moment as I find this the most interesting of any newspaper or magazine.
>
> I have had a small stand made for my Certificate of Membership and you can bet that no one misses it upon entering the office as it seems to stare them in the face and announces a member that is proud he is a member."
>
> Sincerely,
>
> FRANK A. GORDON, Mgr.
> Loew's Music Hall Theatre,
> Pawtucket, Rhode Island.

We will close this story by merely telling Frank that we more than appreciate his thoughtfulness and mighty fine letter. We certainly hope that he continues to keep up this marvelous CLUB spirit at all times. Best regards to the rest of the E. M. Loew boys, Gordon, and here's hoping we see you on our prospective trip up in your part of the country during January.

A GOOD "BRIDGE" GAG!

If your community consists of a lot of ardent bridge fans, then the following layout ought to be a good one and can be incorporated into some form of a house advertising plug and distributed throughout the community, either by house to house distributing or by passing them out in the theatre.

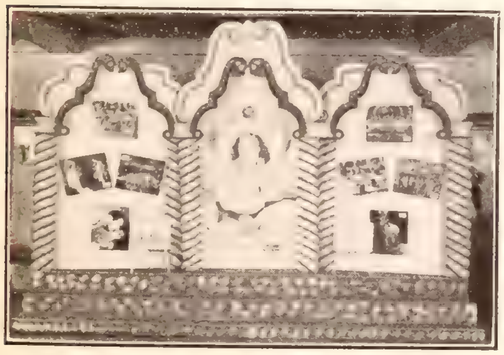
If you appreciate bridge, you will appreciate the sixteen little paragraphs pertaining to this great game. If you can use it, O.K. Don't forget how much fun we had with the "18 day diet," and how many theatres (large and small) all over the country found it good material to work into a piece of advertising matter to plug the house, or a particular attraction.

1. Pick up your cards as they are dealt. You will be ready to bid ahead of the others.
2. If your cards are exceptionally poor, expose an honor and demand a new deal.
3. If your hand is just poor, mention it. It will guide your partner in his bid and play.
4. If your partner bids first don't hesitate to raise. He has to play it, not you.
5. Never hurry. Try several cards on a trick until you are sure which one you prefer.
6. Occasionally ask what is trump. It will show you that you are interested in the game.
7. Always trump your partner's trick. Never take a chance.
8. Do not show lack of interest when you are dummy. Help your partner out with suggestions.
9. Walk around the table when you are dummy and look at the other hands. Tell them what cards are good and how many tricks they can take if they play correctly.
10. Talk about other subjects during the game. It makes for good fellowship.
11. Feel free to criticize your partner. He will not make the same mistake again.
12. Don't try to memorize the rule. It is too confusing.
13. Disagree with established conventions. People will then know that you are a person of independent mind.
14. Always explain your plays, especially when set. It shows your card sense.
15. Eat some taffy or some other adhesive candy while playing; it will keep the cards from skidding.
16. If you play for money be sure you stop when you are ahead. It will leave a lasting impression and you will not for forgotten.

Frudenfeld Uses Good Displays, Newspaper Ads

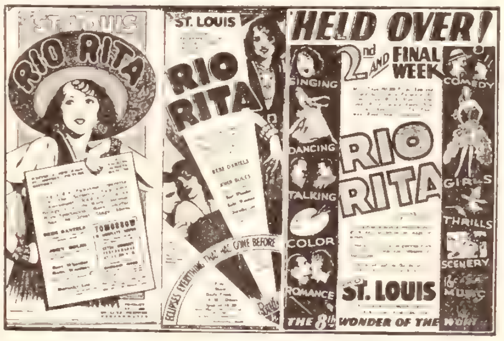
Combining beauty with showmanship is a mighty appropriate caption to use in connection with this fine-looking lobby display which was created and worked out under the personal direction of Arthur Frudenfeld, manager of the RKO Orpheum Theatre in St. Louis, Mo.

This display was 15 feet high by 20 feet long and was lighted by special prop lights from the opposite side of the lobby.



The above, however, did not constitute the entire campaign put over by Mr. Frudenfeld, as this was but a small feature of one of the most complete campaigns ever called to our attention.

Showmen, regardless of the size of the town or city they are located in or the class of theatre they are running, would do well to carefully follow the various activities of this marvelous showman, and they are certain to find many pointers that they can utilize for their own good.



Now, fellows, take a look at several of the fine newspaper ads which were created by this wide-awake showman, and unquestionably every one of them were outstanding and attractive in the papers of that city.

There was one feature about Mr. Frudenfeld's campaign that appealed to us, because many other theatres are not taking full advantage of that particular angle, and that was the screen trailer campaign which he started fully four weeks in advance of the showing through a series of special trailers. These he changed every week so as the interest would not be dulled by the repetition of the same trailer too often, and special mention was made of the fact that because of the length and magnitude of this marvelous attraction no vaudeville would be shown during the engagement. Naturally this angle impressed the public with the quality of the production, and did away with any possible kicks at the box office on this.

We are grateful to Mr. Frudenfeld for this marvelous campaign and we will have more to say about it in later issues.

Ray Averill Will Soon Be Located in Mid-West City

Ray S. Averill, whom you may recall from his activities up-state, around Buffalo and Rochester, has been doing quite a lot of traveling, and since we last heard from him he has covered a lot of territory, including some special exploitation work around the suburbs of New Orleans.

At this date we find him tucked away in the wilds of St. Louis, Mo., and with the prospect of a most interesting position right on the border of being connected to his showmanship ability.

Wherever you may be, or wherever you are, when you read this, Ray, we want you to know that we extend to you the Season's best greetings and hope that you have as happy and prosperous a New Year as you so well deserve.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

The Smallest?

What is the smallest wired theater in the United States?

Motion Picture News would like to know. A number of exhibitors have laid claim to the distinction, the latest being A. G. Miller, who on Jan. 18 opens his sound policy at the Lyric, Atkinson, Neb., which has 248 seats. After disastrous results with "home-made" talkers last summer, Miller reverted to silents, until he could install Western Electric equipment. Prices remain at 10 and 50 cents.

Mac Regner Will Manage Community Chains Latest

Once more the progressive Community Theatres, Inc., one of the leading chain organizations of Milwaukee, Wis., opens another link in their fast growing chain. This time it is the West Bend Theatre in West Bend, Wis., and like all the other houses on this chain it is the last word in modern construction and equipment.

Mr. C. W. Nebel, the Vice President and General Manager of this fine organization, has always been an interested CLUB member and is responsible for the wonderful growth of this fast moving circuit.

The house manager is going to be Mac Regner who is very popular in West Bend, and will undoubtedly be instrumental in putting the house over as successfully as many of the other houses on that Circuit are today.

Here's hoping that he becomes a steady contributor to the CLUB pages, and that we are able to follow the destinies of the theatre in the next year or so through the activities of its staff and its manager. Here's wishing them the luck they so well deserve, and also hoping that they continue to keep opening these fine houses.

Ed. Hiehle Is One of Club's Finest Boosters

Ed Hiehle, dynamic showman of Newark, Ohio, again shows his fine showmanship by combining a beautiful Christmas colored cover for his program and as nice a Christmas message as you would ever find anywhere in any theatre throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Ed is destined to become a fixture on the CLUB pages by reason of his fine CLUB spirit and continuous contributions through which he always lets us know what he is doing out there in Ohio that might possibly be of interest or profit to his other brother members and managers.

Many thanks, Ed, for your very thoughtful Seasons Greetings, and I can only re-echo them with an added word or two that the New Year bring you plenty of health and wealth. What more can I offer at these prices?

MEMBERS TAKE NOTICE!

Your attention is directed to two special Club bulletins which will be mailed from Club headquarters shortly after this issue goes out.

Your prompt consideration, as in the past, will be more than appreciated.

We Thank You!

Jack Albertson Says:

"I have found that the pages of the CLUB in MOTION PICTURE NEWS are of great benefit to any one that is concerned with bringing in more business."

Steve Bennis Used Clever Gag to Plug This Picture

Steve Bennis, the wide-awake managing director of the Lincoln Theatre in Lincoln, Ill., did not let any grass grow under his feet, when he set out to publicize "Marianne" for his house.

Through the editorial department of the local paper, a clever Marion Davies song contest was arranged which ran for a period of three days. The contest was tied in with song hits and the idea was to encourage the writing of another chorus. He succeeded in getting quite a bit of free publicity on both the contest and picture, and the resulting big business was largely due to this clever piece of showmanship.

Although this constituted but a small portion of his campaign for this attraction, it was one of the most outstanding, and, therefore, we want to call the attention of our other members and readers to this type of tieup. Keep it in mind, fellows, because it can be worked out on many other types of pictures.

Many Members Use Club Title on Letterheads

Here is an example worth following because it takes another step towards identifying you as a live-wire showman and a man who is going to make a mark in the theatrical business.

Henry G. Santos, our ever active member, who operates the Tip Top Theatre, Lihue, Kauai, Hawaii, has his stationery printed as shown on the accompanying cut with this story.

HENRY G. SANTOS
MEMBER
MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB
MOTION PICTURE NEWS

This makes about the fifteenth member that we know of who follows this idea and unquestionably they find it a good angle to capitalize on.

We suggest that you identify your membership with the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS in every conceivable way so that there could be no question in anyone's mind but that you belong to this wide-awake and original idea exchange organization.

Thank you, Mr. Santos, for this fine suggestion and we are sure that many of our members will take advantage of it and follow in your steps.

Johnny Scanlon Is Promoted by W-B Chain

As far as we are concerned, we would be tickled to death to devote two-thirds of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages in MOTION PICTURE NEWS each week to broadcasting announcements of promotion and advancement to our host of members and readers.

Which leads us up to the gratifying announcement that John J. Scanlon, formerly manager of the Palace Theatre in Torrington, Conn., has been promoted to managing director of two of the Warner Bros.' theatres in Lynn, Mass.

The Strand and the Waldorf Theatres are now going to become the object of Scanlon's personal attention, and knowing quite a lot about his ability to put over a theatre and to win his way into the goodwill of a community, we are certain that he will have many interesting items to pass on to his brother members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, the same as in the past.

Here's a wish for your success and a prosperous and happy New Year, Johnny, and don't forget we want to hear from you as often as we have in the past.

THE CLUB SLOGAN:

"All for One and One for All"

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"YOU'RE IN, HAL!"

With but one dissenting vote up to this writing, we are glad to announce that Hal Young has been elected as Associate Member of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB, as set forth in a special box on these pages about four weeks ago.

This is your official notification, Hal, and we shall certainly expect you to display your membership certificate in a prominent place in your private office as well as to spread the gospel of the ROUND TABLE CLUB to the hundreds of theatre managers who are guests of your office in Chicago every week.

For the benefit of those who may not have seen the original announcement, Hal Young is the Chicago representative of the National Screen Service with offices at 810 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., and was a particularly fine host to your Chairman on his recent visit to the midwest metropolis.

Tell you more about your job as a member very shortly, Hal. In the meantime, here's wishing you the best kind of a New Year.

From Mgr. to Operator—Read This and Giggle

We have passed along a little bit of most everything in the line of theatre operation, exploitation, advertising and what not, but since most anything in the line of news, or of interest to our tremendous number of members and readers, is apt to appear on these pages, it goes without saying that even a humorous and unusual item should find its way to the attention of those who weekly follow our activities.

Here's one that you can laugh off if you want to. We wrote a letter to a gentleman who was the manager of a theatre and in answer he says the following:

> Thanks very much for your kindness, but thank God, I am no longer a manager. Am back, after several years, in the projection room, where I do my work and get my pay, where I don't have to worry that I might receive a TWO DAY notice. If business is bum, I am not the goat; and if we have a good week, I need not expect, "Well, look at the pictures we sent you, why didn't you do more?" I do not want a house again, with all its worries such as it is now-a-days. The exhibitor's game is a tough one, and when a projectionist draws more than the manager and does not have to take his pob home with him, why not be one?

We won't tell you the man's name or the theatre he is running, but here is certainly a funny slant that gave us a laugh at headquarters and will no doubt give you other boys a chuckle or two as well. This man is now projectionist in the theatre he formerly managed, is earning more money, has less to worry about, and if they do want to fire him, they have to give him at least two weeks' notice, which is more than they did for him as a manager.

Pechner Capitalized on City Election to Boost B.O.

Manager Pechner of the new Fox Theatre in San Francisco, Cal., makes a suggestion to other house managers concerning advertising campaigns that break during any sort of a local election period.

In his case, it happened that he was running John Gilbert in "His Glorious Night" and so he prepared many special advertising leads, which brought the name of the attraction and the theatre with a line "Elect him on his record and experience."

On the night previous to the election itself, Pechner equipped several auto trucks with canvass banners all carrying wording with a bearing on the local election as well as the attraction, and with the aid of a lot of burning red fire in each truck, the same as the local candidates used in electioneering for themselves, he succeeded in attracting plenty of attention and in taking advantage of the election gaiety and spirit that prevailed in the city.

Fine work, Pechner, and we bet you are right on the job with every holiday or event whereby you can publicize the theatre you are running. How about keeping us posted some more on what you are doing?

Dick Brown Earns a Real Promotion from Ace Berry

We can think of no one at the moment that would give us greater pleasure to talk about when it comes to a REAL promotion than Dick Brown, now manager of the big Enright Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dick is one of the famous "Brown Family" of showmen, and was formerly manager of the Liberty Theatre for Warner's out in Pittsburgh. Just recently, "Ace" Berry, chief of that division, gave him the promotion to this big de luxe house and there isn't the slightest doubt in our minds that he will more than come up to "Ace's" expectations.

Good boy, Dick; we certainly want to congratulate you and wish you all the success you so well deserve in your new post. Just keep in mind that you are one of the gang and let us know how you are doing in that big de luxe house, so we can keep an eye on your progress in the show business.

Best regards to "Ace," Larry and the rest of the Stanley boys out that way.

Harry G. Rush Is Responsible for Snappy Program

Here is a neat theatre program used by Harry H. Rush, manager of the Roxy Theatre in Nesquehoning, Pa.

We rather like the way Harry slips in a few "wise cracks" on the inside and top of his back page; and the general layout of his program lends itself to an attractive house organ.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Popularity Contest Helped Sell Picture for Fred Patterson

Take a look at the front of the Publix Queen Theatre, in Austin, Texas, as it was attractively dressed for the showing of "Hollywood Revue" in that theatre. Particular emphasis should be placed on the marvelous shadow box arrangement standing right in the center and carrying a group of the stars who appear in this picture.

This entire display was distinctly a credit to Fred Patterson, the manager, and we are certain that the business was commensurate with the efforts he put into the idea.

Incidentally he put through a fine popularity contest, and the second photograph shows Fred and the young lady who won the contest posing in front of the shadow box.

How about some more dope on your activities, Fred? We can't permit a good showman like you to remain hidden for so long a time. Better get busy, or we'll have to get after you.

EXCHANGE

F. L. ALIG, JR., is another manager of whom you have already read on the CLUB pages through his manifold activities. However, we want to introduce him the proper way and have only just reached his application for use on these pages. He is manager of the Capitol Theatre, in Plant City, Fla., and we would appreciate hearing from him at every opportunity that presents itself, especially along the lines of theatre operation and exploitation.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

JACK SHIELDS is the manager of the Capitol Theatre in Ansonia, Conn., and it seems like hearing from home to hear from that part of the State. We are not certain if we have ever met Jack personally, but if we didn't we will look forward to doing so at the first available moment that presents itself.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

ROY E. CHURCHILL is the manager of the Fox Egyptian Theatre, in Delta, Colorado, for the Fox West Coast Organization. We are always glad to welcome another manager from this Circuit into the CLUB, and Roy is no exception, our only hope is that he becomes as interested and active a member as his brother managers in the same Circuit are today. Let's hear from you by return mail, Churchill, and tell us a little about your past history and enclose one of your own photographs so that we can give you the proper introduction on the CLUB pages.

J. W. REYNOLDS, JR., is assistant manager of the new Heilig Theatre, in Eugene, Oregon. We are more than certain that Reynold's activities consist of helping on the exploitation and publicity end of that theatre's activities, and for this reason we feel that his future contributions should be interesting reading on these pages. How about some more dope about yourself, "J. W."? And please make it as soon as you can get around to writing us a short letter.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

W. H. "BILLY" GREENE is Asst. Mgr. of the Orpheum Theatre, in Tulsa, Okla., and we would certainly welcome the opportunity of telling our host of members and readers just what "Billy" is doing to make a name for himself in the show business. Let's have some dope from this new member and then we will follow his future activities with interest.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

DICK GASTON is the managing director for the Publix Casino Theatre, in Marshalltown, Ohio, and with the resources of that wonderful organization behind him, he should be instrumental in putting over many unusual and novel exploitation and publicity stunts. We would welcome the opportunity of telling you more about this latest member if he will favor us with one of his recent photos and a few remarks dealing with his past experiences in the show business. How about it, Dick?

WILLIAM HAMBORSKY is the assistant manager at the Harlem Grand Theatre on 125th Street, in N. Y. C., and we do not know at this particular writing just what his activities in that house consist of, but we have hopes of his keeping us posted and we in turn will pass along the information.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

G. HESSELDENZ manages the Uptown Theatre, in Indianapolis, Ind., and from all indications that have reached CLUB headquarters about this new member he should become mighty active on these pages. How about a few details of your past experiences, as well as your own photo, so that we can start you off toward becoming a popular active member of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

HARRY BODIE manages the Lyric Theatre, in Honesdale, Pa., for the Comerford Amusement Co. We have often visited that thriving little county seat while we spent some happy days in a camp not far removed from that town. However, we never had the pleasure of meeting Harry, but will reserve that for the coming summer. In the meantime we would like to hear what he is doing up that way to boost business, and, if possible, to get one of his photographs so that we can carry a more intimate introduction on these pages.

LOW-COST TINTS

SOUND PICTURES

THE widest range of tints ever offered the industry is embraced by Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films. They can be used to match every mood in the story, or to reproduce the one lighting or tone that predominates throughout the picture.... In either case Sonochrome gives beautiful color. It gives faithfully reproduced sound. And it costs no more than regular black-and-white positive.

PICTURES — NOT PROMISES

Pictures like

HELL'S HEROES

Prove the claim. Read what the critics say:

"Gripping and real. Unusually well cast and directed. Any class house can book it and not only make money but satisfy fans with something convincingly out of the ordinary." —Variety. "Plenty of audience value in this for all types of audiences. Should do substantial business." —Motion Picture News. "One of the best pictures of the month ... don't miss it." —Rose Pelswick, N. Y. Eve. Journal. "Most impressive picture to be played at the Colony since this house turned talkie ... Colony should house it for several weeks." —Irene Thirer, N. Y. Daily News. "Interesting and realistic" —N. Y. Times. "Commendably acted and directed." —N. Y. Telegram. "A dandy drama." —Bland Johaneson, N. Y. Daily Mirror. "The hardest-hitting melodrama which has come this way since the talking films have been with us." —Quinn Martin, N. Y. World. "Thrilling Talkie." —Regina Crewe, N. Y. American. "This is one to see." —Marguerite Tazelaar, N. Y. Herald-Tribune.

1930 IS TIFFANY YEAR

CROWDS AT GAIETY THEATRE OPENING N.Y.

IT'S SENSATIONAL!!

'Party Girl' Is Daringly Different Motion Picture

By REGINA CREWE,
Motion Picture Editor N. Y. American.

IN "Party Girl" a picture that is rather daringly different has come to the screen of the Gaiety Theatre.

And it promises highly for subsequent productions from the group that sponsors it—Tiffany.

Toned down for screen purposes the story is about "call" or "party" girls, who earn their purple and fine lingerie by entaining tired business men. They are listed in the files of an industrious lady who objects to being called "Madam," and who arranges parties for business organizations entertaining buyers. It is the work of the girls to see that orders come the way of the host. For this they are well paid and in addition are enabled to do quite a lot with a side line

Excitement Aplenty

Against this background is discovered a triangle consisting of young Douglas Fairbanks as the wild son of a manufacturer who disdains to do business through party girls, the father's secretary, Jeanette Loff, to whom the son is engaged, and Judith Barrie, one of the party racketeers. The boy is tricked into marrying Judith, who, it is explained, is rather badly in need of a husband just at the time. There is plenty of excitement and lots of "it" in the picture.

Miss Loff, one of the screen's most beautiful blondes, contributes the best work she has thus far offered, and in addition surprises even her friends with the tonal qualities of a most cimpatica voice. Doubt 'Party Girl,' Jazz Story of Modern Business, on View at the Gaiety.

Tiffany has taken the jazz atmosphere of movie college stories and transferred it, theme songs and all, to a tale of modern business. "Party Girl," now at the Gaiety, preaches a little sermon on the business methods of this country. If, as it would seem, the wheels of industry are turned only by gin, the Wall Street crash came none too soon.

"THE LOST ZEPPELIN"

"The Lost Zeppelin" at the Park depicts graphically the dangers encountered at the south pole. Unlike a certain film dealing with Antarctic perils which was here a few months ago, this new Tiffany production is scattered with vistas of realistic treacherous ice wastes that coincide perfectly with one's impression of conditions at that extreme poin

Powerful drama!

A MIGHTY, SPECTACULAR EPIC OF MINSTREL LIFE

Get set for

The Grand

Marvelous acting!

SAYS PETE HARRISON

"One of the most powerful dramas produced for a long time. There are times when it is hard for the spectator to suppress his emotions. * * * * The scenes where the heroine upbraids her husband and tells him that she would rather kill her child than allow it to come into this world is one of the most powerful seen in pictures since moving pictures have come into being. There are other powerfully dramatic situations all the way through. Helen Twelvetrees, as the heroine, does marvelous acting. I doubt if there is another screen actress that would have made the part more realistic. Fred Scott, too, does good work; he has a good voice and in his part as a minstrel he does good singing. Everyone in the cast, in fact, does good work. The story is by Edmund Goulding; it was directed skillfully by Fred Newmeyer. The tone quality is excellent, the lines all being clear."

HARRISON'S REPORTS

"The Grand Parade in this case is going to be a parade of customers to the box offices for this picture is a natural, made-to-order-hit."

Western Electric Sound System is manufactured — not merely assembled

Loud speakers, transformers, tubes — all the parts through which the speech current flows — are designed by Bell Telephone Laboratories and manufactured by Western Electric.

Every part is perfectly balanced electrically to work in harmony and at highest efficiency with every other part. Each is designed and manufactured to fit mechanically and electrically into its place in the complete system. The result is electrical teamwork—and quality reproduction—such as no assembled system can hope to equal.

Many of the parts which go into the Western Electric Sound System are similar to those used in the nation's telephone system. They are the results of more than fifty years of research and experience in the manufacture of voice transmission apparatus.

The Western Electric Sound System is built to produce the highest standard of quality reproduction demanded by a quality conscious public—and to render that service dependably over a long period. It does not sacrifice quality for price.

Western Electric's undivided responsibility — covering the manufacture, installation and servicing of its Sound System—is your assurance of high quality, trouble-free performance.

THOSE OVERSEAS MARKETS—HOW CAN THEY BE SAVED?

By William A. Johnston

HOLLYWOOD — If you ask the average producing executive in Hollywood what he plans to do about foreign versions of talking pictures he will probably reply:

"I've got all I can do to turn out domestic versions."

Which is true enough. Hollywood studios are working on the tightest schedules in all their history. It is not a matter of volume production. Less pictures are being made. But much more pretentious ones. And, with their necessary periods of careful preparation, the talkers demand the very limit of painstaking concentration. A producing man's life is no idle dream, these days!

Accomplishment—But Not Enough

When you consider the tremendous and successful effort made here, in the conversion of huge production machinery from silence to sound, it is obvious that carping criticism is out of place.

Yet the fact is, and it is plain enough, that about the biggest commercial problem before the American producer today is the successful production of talking pictures for foreign ears. And whatever the all-around pressure of the present moment, the issue simply cannot be ducked.

Moreover, to be met it must be successfully met. And this will demand a lot of care and intelligence.

The first quick effort, and it had to be quick, was the use of subtitles to explain to the foreign audience the meaning of the English-spoken words.

Then followed an attempt to match the lips of the speakers with translations of the English lines. Here an opportunity has been afforded to do a fine piece of technical work, and in this respect some triumphs have been scored. But the question is one of entertainment, pure and simple.

The Danger of the Ludicrous

Foreign audiences know our performers as Americans. Realism will be considerably shattered when they speak glibly in other tongues. Still more pertinent questions are these: the dramatic quality of the voices used, and as they are used, and their suitableness to the various parts.

If bald mistakes are made, and the way is wide open, the results will be ludicrous to the full point of burlesque.

Imagine, for instance, an American gangster talking to Spanish audiences in pure and well modulated Castillian,—which is exactly what would happen if a translator were secured from a university chair of modern languages; or the heavy villain growling forth a threat to kill in a flat, though grammatical, monotone; or any of a thousand misfits that cannot but arise. There is no such thing, apparently, as dramatic translation.

Dialects, a Source of Trouble

Difficulties are also presented because of the different lingoes of countries where a common basic language prevails. This is particularly true of Spanish-speaking nations: Spain, Mexico, Cuba, and the countries of Central and South America, where they have considerably different tongues; moreover, each has a strong national pride in this respect.

There is no broad way out of the dilemma, it would seem, except to employ capable and suitable foreign actors in separate versions. This means foreign dialogue writers as well, and even direction in a foreign tongue or else capable interpretation of the American director. If this is the best course, we can foresee a large and important foreign colony of player folks in Hollywood.

Production Abroad the Answer?

An alternative is the making of the picture abroad, taking there the American troupe, and getting the foreign talent on the spot, together with foreign color if the picture calls for it. But that means a separation from all the studio resources here that have figured so heavily in the quality of American pictures. With either alternative there is the matter of cost.

Troubles enough, it would seem, to make any overworked American producer put his head in the sand and avoid the big shadow on the horizon. But the shadow is there.

An Insider's Outlook

ANOTHER week and not much change along the Fox front. Those all-important resignations which Messrs. Otterson and Stuart are insisting upon have not been forthcoming—that is they weren't up to late last night. O. and S. want to control the directorates of Fox Film and Fox Theatres with their own men Fox agreed. But W. F., it appears, has changed his mind. Or what is more like it, simply determined to put it off while he moves the heaven you read about it and a couple of others in efforts to secure enough money to meet the $91,000,000 in obligations which impend.

A merry game. And yet, Fox is top of the heap, trusteeship committees and note-holders notwithstanding. The whole situation is one of the most complex this business has perhaps ever seen. Where it will end is anybody's guess.

Smiles

Through it all, the Irish musketeers maintain cheery front. Winnie Sheehan looks great. And when he tells you he feels the same way, there is no reason to doubt it. Jimmy Grainger is buried under sales reports and is denying himself to practically all callers—he's that busy. The Fox companies are doing one whale of a business. Here's a little of the inside to prove it:

The last five weeks were the biggest—by far—in the history of the company. If you happen to be one of the few who has had opportunity to hurl eager optics over previous figures, you will appreciate to the full exactly what this means.

Congratulations

Phil Reisman has completed a reorganization of his sales force, advancing a number of men from the ranks to positions of real responsibility. In the new alignment, three branch managers who distinguished themselves in their posts, have been elevated to division heads, and a number of field and office men have been advanced to branch managerships. The eastern and southern division heads, respectively, E. L. McEvoy and W. E. Callaway, retain their posts, and managers elevated to division posts are: Harry Lorch, Chicago veteran, who has made an enviable record in the Windy City; J. H. MacIntyre, popular and efficient head of the Minneapolis branch, and H. D. Graham, who has done outstanding work as Indianapolis manager. Up from the ranks. A fine idea.

THE writer has laryngitis and is thankful he is not a giraffe.

THE doubtful hero of this purposely vague story is a clever operator. His record in motion pictures proves it—especially where money-making proclivities for himself are concerned.

One secret of his undeniable success may be said to revolve around the fact that he steps in at the exact psychological moment. The fact that he doesn't belong as often as he himself thinks seemingly makes little difference.

Only a few days ago this chap caused to be distributed inklings that he had been invited in to do thus and so in a direction where considerable, it so happens, has to be done. Some fell—it sounded plausible. But others looked into the matter a bit and discovered as pretty a maneuver in sharp business practice as has come to light in some time.

This narrative could ramble on and on. Only it won't except to conclude by shooting this squarely at the subject of this little expose:

He should know that several are wise to him, and that he isn't as infernally clever as his reputation makes him out to be.

His name? Well, just sit tight for the time being. Some day you'll know.

Happy Days

Out First National way, nothing but smiles. First "Paris." Now "Sally" and "No, No Nanette" in quick order. All in the do-re-mi class with plenty to spare. There's the explanation.

Herman Starr sits back, says nothing, but basks in the satisfaction that is properly his. He's Harry Warner's business doctor, you know. Straightened out Warner distribution in England. Then took over First National operations. Got 'em both set, and now it's the music end of the Warner enterprises he's nursing along.

After that, what? There's the secret.

A Great Job

"Variety" sure goaled 'em this week with its RKO anniversary number. The issue is a wow. Sime Silverman's gang of sleuths is entitled to a world of praise or the rip-roaring results of their efforts. Fewer Pictures by 25 Per Cent Next Year Forecast by Sound Development

Extended Runs in All Type Sound Houses, Cutting of Double-Featuring and Dark Houses Seen as Contributing Factors

Fewer pictures next year as a result of the sound development loom as a certainty, with the amount of product turned out expected to be around 25 per cent less than the current year's output.

With companies now making preliminary drafts of their 1930-31 season schedules, there is understood to be a strong tendency to cut down on the number of pictures planned for next year. Of course, these plans are but tentative, depending chiefly on the record this year, as shown by the booking sheets and grosses, but there is little chance that the causes for fewer pictures will be removed. On the contrary, they are expected to be intensified during forthcoming months.

The big factor seen as leading to trimming of schedules is extended runs of talkers in all type houses. Many theatres which formerly played but week stands, and an occasional second week, now are holding attractions for several weeks with frequent recurrences. Houses which have been on a split-week basis, now are rounding out a full week policy, and the three, four, five, six and seven day change houses are extending their runs in proportion.

All of this means a cutting down on the number of pictures consumed. Added to this is the general dropping of the double-feature racket of silent picture days. Sound films have been able to get the crowds in most instances without forcing exhibitors to resort to double-featuring. Another factor is the number of dark theatres, some of them unable to afford sound equipment, others forced to close due to a high nut which made profit out of the question.

Proposal Hit

Los Angeles.—Passage of the proposed ordinance giving the police commission unlimited power over every line spoken on the stage or in a picture here would make the city "the laughing stock of the nation," states Harold B. Franklin, head of the western division of Fox Theatres.

"It is one of the most stupid things I ever heard of in show business," he declares, "for I believe that Los Angeles theatres, generally speaking, are conducted on a high plane."

Sunday Closing Looming in L. A.

Los Angeles—Theatre men here have started organized resistance to a resolution passed by the police commission asking the city council to pass an ordinance placing all theatres under complete control of the commission, in what is interpreted as a move toward Sunday closing.

The proposed ordinance would give the police commission drastic and arbitrary power to close theatres at will. It is said to be aimed at Main St. honky-tonks declared evading present laws, also salacious plays which might attempt local appearances. The commissioners deny any attempt to impose censorship of pictures or to demand Sunday closing, but City Attorney Werner declares that the legislation, if passed, will be drastic and far-reaching to the extent to empower commissioners to do both if they wished.

It also would empower them to padlock any theatre without hearing, the commissioners being sole judges by majority vote. Credence is given the Sunday closing angle of the resolution on account of the reported backing of the mayor in the recent election by Bob Shuler, fiery reform preacher.

Federal Council's Film Relations Being Studied

Study of charges made by "The Churchman," Episcopal weekly, regarding relations between the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and the Hays association is being made by Bishop Francis J. Judge Brackett Dies

Boston—Judge J. Albert Brackett, 62, general counsel for Massachusetts and other New England exhibitors is dead. He had been in poor health since the summer but had presided over district sessions at Roxbury until the fall.

Gathering Data on Contract Changes

Distributors now are gathering data and suggestions from sales forces to serve as a guide in drafting proposals which will be submitted to the conferences of committees representing the Hays organization, Allied States Ass'n., and the M. P. T. O. A. These proposals are to be drafted at a general meeting of distributors scheduled around Feb. 1.

Following this meeting, chairmen of the three committees will determine upon date and place of the next joint meeting, which, as pointed out exclusively by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, is slated to be held outside New York. Branch managers throughout the country are being asked to submit suggestions on proposed contract changes and arbitration.

Half of U. S. Houses Seen Wired by '31

Rochester, N. Y.—Based on current indications, at least one half of all theatres in the United States will be equipped for sound by Jan. 1, 1921, Glenn E. Matthews, of the Eastman Kodak research laboratories, told a production managers' group at a Chamber of Commerce meeting here.

Use of wide film still is far from a settled question, Matthews said. Fox is using it and Paramount has had a private demonstration, while RCA-Photophone has evinced an interest, he said.

Schnitzer Makes New RKO Presidency Pact

Joseph I. Schnitzer has made a new agreement and understanding with RKO and Radio Pictures which continues him in the presidency of the companies he has headed since their formation one year ago. During that time, the company has made rapid forward strides, under his executive leadership.

There had been some reports that changes were impending following election of David Sarnoff to the presidency of RCA and that Schnitzer's contract might not be renewed.

Spring Denies He Has Quit Private Practice

Someone sprung a yarn about Samuel Spring, former treasurer of First National Pictures, Inc., which he wants unsprung.

When Spring resigned his custody of First National finances, he returned to his former profession as a lawyer, and set about establishing a private practice at 521 Fifth Avenue, New York. Recently he added RKO to his list of clients. Then the yarn was sprung that Spring had become special counsel for the Radio group, causing the impression that he was discontinuing his practice.

Spring states that he is continuing his private practice, and that his legal work for RKO is in the capacity of special counsel on various matters.

Allied National Buying Combine Plan Report Revived by New Co-op

Formation of Michigan Group, Following Similar Circuit in Iowa, Held Forerunner of Others in Allied Territories

Formation of the New Detroit exhibitor buying circuit, following organization of an exhibitor co-operative in Iowa, is seen as lending strength to reports current some months ago, that co-operatives were to be formed in territories where Allied States Ass'n units are operating, presumably with backing of the Allied organization.

E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa state unit, is reported as associated with A. W. Nichols, former Paramount district manager, in formation several months ago of the co-operative in the Des Moines territory. At the time, W. A. Steffes, head of the Northwest exhibitor unit, Minneapolis, was reported to have been approached to extend the co-op's activities into that territory, but took no action in the matter.

Abram F. Myers, Allied's president, declined comment on reported connection of his association with a proposed group of buying circuit's in Allied territory. Afterward, the drafting and adoption of the Tiffany and RKO franchise agreements, set at rest reports of the booking circuit, which now are being revived. This is due to Smith's reported connection with the Iowa co-operative, and the fact that the Michigan buying circuit intends to limit its service to members of the state association.

A. F. L. to Tackle Musician Problem

St. Petersburgh, Fla.—Unemployment among musicians, due to the sound picture development, will be tackled by the American Federation of Labor conference here. Joseph N. Meanwhile, the Music Defense League has been organized to campaign against elimination of musicians in theatres.

Actors' Equity Ass'n is not bringing up the Equity Shop in pictures subject at the St. Petersburgh meetings.

Instrument Reproducing Jazz Band Irks Players

Budapest—Appeal to M. The musicians fear that the invention ultimately will endanger employment of every jazz band player in the world. When a demonstration was given despite the appeal, a letter threatening bombing of his home was received by the inventor. The device is patented in all European countries and in the United States and a German firm is starting manufacture.

Reaction on Mich. Co-op Is Awaited

Detroit—Attitude of distributors is being awaited toward the new Co-operative Theatre Service Corp., formed here to buy and book product for exhibitors, its service to be restricted to members of the Michigan state unit. The new co-operative is headed by Allen Johnson of Grand Rapids and its board of directors includes: Frank Westman, C. W. Porter and Alex Shreiber of Detroit; P. C. Schram, Kalamazoo, C. R. Beechler, Charlotte; and H. T. Reynolds, Grand Rapids, Ray Moon, former Universal manager here, is general manager and Carl Buermele buyer.

Distributors in the past have frowned upon booking combines, in many instances refusing to sell product to them. Their attitude in the present instance is expected to be shown Jan. 15 when the new co-op starts operation.

Marshall Exhibitor Dies

Shelbina, Mo.—Funeral services were held here during the week for Ray Huggins, 40, manager of the Auditorium at Marshall.

Illinois Ass'n May Go Allied

Chicago—That the newly formed Illinois Independent Theatre Owners will come into the Allied States Ass'n. fold appears a foregone conclusion as a result of an invitation issued to Allied leaders by Aaron Saperstein, president of the new body, to meet with the Illinois theatre owners at an early date.

The meeting will take place as soon as the new association arrives at an agreement with projectionists on a new wage scale. The present agreement expires Saturday at midnight. In the meantime the Stevens hotel has been the scene of two separate meetings on the wage proposition—the operators meeting first with Jack Miller and his associates in one room while Saperstein and his associates in the new organization warmed chairs in another room waiting their turn with Tom Malloy, business representative of the union. There has been talks of a strike if operators' demands for higher wages are not met.

Six-Day Week with Seven Days' Pay Being Demanded

Chicago—Establishment of a six day week at the existing scale, plus extra pay for one half hour's preparation before the show are demands being made by Chicago operators now dickering with the Chicago exhibitor unit and Illinois Independent Theatre Owners, recently formed. The Chicago unit, headed by Jack Miller, has countered with request for a 15 per cent wage reduction, while the independents ask a 50 per cent cut with Tom Reynolds, president, and Tom Malloy, business agent, walking out on both meetings. Miller Friday was confident that a settlement would be reached, probably on the old basis, as meetings were resumed. What kind of deal the independents will make is problematical.

McNamee, "U's" Talking Reporter

Graham McNamee, famous radio announcer, made his bow as the talking reporter of the Universal Newsreel at special prerelease runs during the week at the Strand and Beacon, New York, and Strand, Brooklyn. He keeps up a running line of talk throughout the reel, commenting on and wisecracking about the events shown.

There is a wide variety of interesting subjects in this first release under the new plan. The use of titles, however, detracts from the reel, reminding the audience that it is, in effect, a silent newsreel with the talk added. McNamee explaining each event rather than titles, it seems to us, would be more effective. However, the reel looks as if it will click, bcause it takes on the flavor of a community get-together, with McNamee supplying some laughs and a good personal touch. HYNES.

Racine Independents Now Fighting High License Fee for Chain Houses

Exhibitors, Given Relief from Extended Protection, Turn Against Council's Plan to Increase Levy on Fox and "U"

Milwaukee.—Seven independent theatre owners who a few weeks ago charged Fox and Universal which operate two Racine houses with unfairness in insisting upon extended protection, have joined forces with their two competitors to discourage a plan which was originally introduced for their own protection.

The city council proposed to increase to $750 the present $150 license fee for theatres charging more than 35 cents admission. When the matter came up again for consideration before the council, it was opposed on all sides. Steve Bauer, Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin exhibitor unit, declared that no other city in Wisconsin exacted one-tenth of the proposed amount for a theatre license. He said that passage of the ordinance would have a harmful effect throughout the state.

The resumption of friendly relations between the independents and the chain theatres was the result of the producers' agreement to release second run pictures more quickly to subsequent run houses. The independents pledged themselves to close their theatres January 2 if a satisfactory agreement was not reached. Racine's mayor went to Washington to present case of the independents to the Federal Trade Commission, Abram F. Myers, Allied president and to Senator Blaine of Wisconsin.

Campaign Checked

Montreal.—Efforts to lower the age limit of 16 years in the Quebec law prohibiting children from attending picture theatres were checked by the Paisley, Scotland, fire disaster. Government officials declare the present law is justified. It was passed following the Laurier Palace fire here in January, 1927.

Clubwomen Hail Film Co-operation

Washington—Praise for efforts of the federation and the film industry to raise film standards, through establishment of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, former president, as associate director of studio relations in Hollywood, was expressed in annual report of the General Federation of Women's Clubs adopted here Thursday. Mrs. Winter was sent a telegram of congratulation and confidence and pledged the co-operation of the association.

"Merely to attack" films regarded as undesirable serves only to increase their box-office intake and is "definitely harmful to the cause of better pictures," the report declared. The preview system for clubwomen was praised, and Mrs. Winter's appointment termed the outstanding development of last year in pictures from the standpoint of American clubwomen. The report stated the federation now has film chairmen in every state except Oklahoma, and pointed out that at least five women attend previews to avoid any individual bias.

Search Continued for Plane Victims

Santa Monica, Cal.—Charles Smale, diver who extricated bodies of Kenneth Hawks, director, and a cameraman from wreckage of the plane in which they sank here after a collision in mid-air above the Pacific, Thursday, was continuing his efforts to find bodies of five victims still held by the ocean. Wreckage of one plane was raised, and examination showed there were no bodies in it. The raising was accomplished by three coast guard cutters and two tugs. The two planes sank after their collision, causing death of ten members of the company, filming scenes for a new Fox picture. Rough seas have hampered the salvage workers.

Flight Condemned

Los Angeles—Flights of the kind which claimed the lives of ten members of the Fox unit filming air scenes were condemned by a coroner's jury which included three aviators. The planes were flying in too close formation and turning within too short a radius, with sun glare an additional danger, it was stated.

Rudy's No

He always said "No," is the substance of Rudy Vallee's answer to a $200,000 breach of promise suit filed against him in New York. The crooning Radio Pictures star's answer is a series of denials of the allegations in the complaint.

Shake-Up Looms At World-Wide

A shake-up at Sono-Art World Wide is on the way. Joe Skirboll, brought into World-Wide as sales manager when J. D. Williams was operating the company, is slated for another post in the organization. His successor has not been determined upon, but it is quite likely that, for the time being at least, George W. Weeks, will exercise supervision over that department in addition to his other duties.

Al Aronson, as reported exclusively in Motion Picture News, shortly severs his connection as executive vice-president. A law suit over the unexpired portion of his agreement impends.

Newsreel Men Hit by Congressman

Washington — Newsreel men were under fire Thursday in the House of Representatives when Rep. Rankin (Dem., Miss.) charged that their conduct in the recent fire at the Capitol was "a desecration of the seat of government." The newsreel men, he said, sounded fire apparatus sirens and burned torches to secure a sensational effect and give the impression the Capitol was burning down. The reels, he declared, are a gross exaggeration.

Mary Nolan Renews

Universal City—Universal has renewed the contract of Mary Nolan, who now is at work on her third starring picture.

Contracts of Joan Marsh and Helen Wright also have been extended.

Cleveland Police Chief Assumes Censors' Post

Cleveland—Chief of Police Graul has assumed the post of city censor. He plans banning of all suggestive entertainment at local houses.

"Matter of Protection"

Los Angeles—New statements from witnesses about the interviews they are said to have given in the last few days regarding the Taylor murder mystery, are being taken by the district attorney's office, as a "matter of protection, rather than any idea they will throw any light on the seven-year-old mystery."

Keeping Pace

Exhibitors everywhere are bending their efforts to improve the quality of sound reproduction in the theatre, realizing that the public has become educated to sound and will not be satisfied with haphazard reproduction. That is one of the reasons which prompted M-G-M to establish a corps of technicians, whose duty is to survey sound systems in houses in all sections, offering suggestions as to how the quality of reproduction can be improved. These experts also serve as trouble shooters, helping to eliminate mechanical difficulties which arise.

Fox Financial Situation Not Halting Expansion Program Launched in West

23 New Theatres from Coast to Middle West Being Built in Expansion Program Embracing 21 Cities in 6 States

Los Angeles—Expansion program of the western division of Fox Theatres is not to be affected by the financial situation of the Fox companies in the East, it is emphasized by Harold B. Franklin, in outlining the 23 projects planned or under way in 21 cities of the West and Middle West.

The expansion, Franklin points out, was prompted by increased patronage and the imminence of three new talker developments: color, depth and wide films, "not singly but combined." When these features are introduced Franklin expects a boom like the one which followed introduction of talkers.

Plans call for three theatres here, one in Hollywood, and a house for the following California cities: San Pedro, Huntington Park, Pasadena, Westwood, Burbank, San Jose, Sacramento, Oakland, Santa Barbara, Whittier, Bakersfield, Berkely and Stockton. Others are at Phoenix, Ariz., Spokane, Wash.; La Grand, Ore.; Billings, Mont.; Denver and Kansas City.

Publix Girding for Invasion of Fox in Phoenix Stronghold

Phoenix-Publix-Rickards-Nace are girding for invasion of this city by Fox and have drafted plans for a new house to seat 3,000. In addition, the Rialto and Strand, two of the company's other downtown theatres, under present plans, are to be improved. Work on the projects starts in April. The company recently opened the Paramount at Casa Grand.

Last of Cooney Chain Houses Scheduled to Be Sold Jan. 15

Chicago—Sale of the Colony, last remaining house in the National Theatres (Cooney Bros.) circuit, is scheduled Jan. 15. Other houses were disposed of in a bankrupt sale to Bird Theatre Co., Milwaukee. Houses included are: Avalon, Capitol, Stratford, Chatham, Grove, Cosmo, Highland, West Englewood, Jeffery and Empress.

A Fertile Field

Picture business in the wine-making section of France surrounding Bordeaux is booming, due to the harvesting last year of the finest grape crop in a decade, states a special despatch to "The Wall Street Journal." The field is declared to be a fertile one, with American films in the vanguard, followed by French, Russian and German pictures. Sentiment there was regarded as against American films, due to prohibition in America, which dealt a severe blow to the wine industry.

Warners to Build New Houses in East

With the new Hollywood, Broadway and 51st Sts., to be opened some time this spring, Warners have scheduled three new theatre projects in the East said to involve $3,000,000. These include a 6,500-seat house on Broad St., Newark, near the city hall; a 2,000 seat house at Ridgewood, N. J., and a 5,000-seater at Columbus, O. The company now is building at Youngstown, O.

Big Program in West

San Diego—Warners will spend $1,000,000 on the 3,000-seat theatre to be built at 7th and B Sts. here, as part of an expansion program covering a number of Pacific Coast cities. A first run at Los Angeles is among the houses scheduled.

Starting at Milwaukee

Milwaukee—Work has begun on razing the Butterfly, Milwaukee's oldest theatre on which site a new, modern de luxe house will be erected by Wisconsin Enterprises, Inc. of which John R. Freuler, former Butterfly owner is a stockholder. It is said that the new theatre will be erected by Warners, but Freuler is reticent about admitting this. Freuler says that about $250,000 will be spent on furnishings for the new theatre and that it will be an "L" shaped building.

Roxy Preparing Answer to Suit for Running Sunday

Answer to a suit charging the theatre with violating the Sunday "blue" law prohibiting Sabbath presentation of anything beyond sacred or educational renditions, concerts, lectures and addresses is being prepared by legal department of the Roxy, New York. No indication of further actions against New York picture houses has been given. The suit is the first of its kind within a year, for seldom is attempt made to molest picture houses for Sunday operation. The corporation counsel's office is taking no initiative in the matter, nor is it planning any additioal suits. Such actions are brought upon complaint of any taxpayer.

Anderson Under Knife

R. V. Anderson, distribution head for Motion Picture Congress, New York, underwent an appendicitis operation Thursday at Murray Hill Sanatorium, New York.

This Looks Big

Hollywood.—The boy with the grand voice. That's the way they'll hail Lawrence Tibbett when "The Rogue's Song" gets into circulation. How his voice booms out in this all-color Russian bandit picture.

"The Rogue's Song" is the first film to introduce a grand opera star in a full-length picture. The music is thoroughly worthwhile and the basic plot is good. Lionel Barrymore directed in vigorous style and had a rugged hero, who knows how to act, as his star.

Laurel and Hardy do some comedy pinch-hitting that is superfluous at times, but aside from sliding off here and there, the story of the adventurous gypsy who loved a princess and was brutally betrayed by her is excellent.

The picture is a pretentious and elaborate affair and different. The name of Tibbett may not be known everywhere, but he will soon be heralded as the man who wasn't afraid of the microphone.

SCHALLERT.

Shifts Pending In W. B. Theatre Dept.

An attempt to further slash the operating overhead of the Warner theatre department will result in a wholesale shakeup by Spyros Skouras, it is understood. When the financial sheet of the company's theatre division appears in the near future it will show a much healthier condition than a year ago, and, it is said, contemplated changes will cut overhead considerably more. Many of the home office staff are slated for field jobs, while a few of the old standbys who considered their's solid berths will be let out.

Skouras yesterday told MOTION PICTURE NEWS that "there are no 'old standbys' in the organization" and it is intended "to continue the economy policy put into effect during the first week in December."

Lighter Records Claimed by Use of New Substance

"Durium," a "synthetic resin," has been developed by Prof. Hal T. Beans of Columbia University for the making of phonographic discs. Durium Products Corp., New York, is to market the new substance, which is claimed to make possible records as light as cardboard, flexible and more durable than existing types.

Mogler Insurance $110,000

St. Louis—Insurance policies totaling $110,000 carried on the life of the late Joseph Mogler, state senator and exhibitor, have been paid to his beneficiaries. Mogler was murdered by bandits at the Mogler. In addition to the insurance, Mogler had an estate valued at about $100,000 net.

Public Participation in Film Stocks Reported Hurt by Confusion Over Fox

Speculation Over Industry Financial Structure Laid at Lack of Information on Fox Settlement

Delay in ironing out the financial situation of Fox enterprises has built up in the mind of the investing public a resistance barrier against the entire list of amusement issues, in the opinion of a well-informed Wall Street operator.

Unfamiliarity with the structural set-up of the major companies in the industry, they report the public is fearful the Fox tangle may involve others as well. Not knowing whether this analysis is correct or not, the reported inclination is to hold off on the entire entertainment list until the atmosphere is clarified.

In the meantime, the Fox problem remains unsolved. The trustees have not received the five-out-of-eight resignations of the board of directors of Fox Film and Fox theatres as pledged by William Fox and are, therefore, at a halt in carrying out their plans. Receivership reports dwindled during the week, even Stanley Lazarus of the Class A stockholders committee apparently experiencing a change of heart. His original and announced intention of filing bankruptcy papers has been sidetracked by his own statement. Considerable speculation, incidentally, is rife over exactly what amount of stock Lazarus represents and on behalf of what group he is acting.

How will the present Fox financial situation be ironed out? Read developments in the situation in Motion Picture News, which FIRST announced the Fox trusteeship, and since has given the industry the most accurate outline of the situation FIRST.

Who's Next?

Another big money name was linked with the Fox financial situation, in this week's rumor market. Since the trusteeship was formed a few weeks ago, no less than seven important financing interests have been named as assuming current Fox obligations. George Eastman has now been added to the ever-growing list, which, to date, includes Henry Ford, Fisher Bros., William Randolph Hearst, RKO, Westinghouse and A. T. & T.

R-K-O-Loew Stock Report Denied

Denial of reports linking Radio-Keith-Orpheum with possible purchase of Loew's stock held by Fox was made this week by Hiram S. Brown, president, and B. B. Kahane, general counsel of R-K-O. Steady advance of the R-K-O stock had been attributed to reported purchase of the Loew's holdings. It was reported that stock held by the Chase National Bank as collateral, had been sold to Joseph P. Kennedy, acting for R-K-O.

Paramount After Gaumont British?

London (by Wireless)—Paramount has purchased the Fox interest in Gaumont British, according to persistent and widespread reports in circulation in the British trade.

Gaumont controls Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, Ltd., England's most important circuit. Paramount, on its own, has two houses in London, is building in Manchester with two other key cities in mind and is already operating in Dublin.

Ralph Kohn, speaking for Paramount, declares there is no truth to the report concerning Gaumont British.

An interesting development in the British situation took place during the week. The Midland Bank, holder of a note for $1,666,666.66 signed by Fox as part payment in the Gaumont British deal has forwarded it to New York with definite orders not to grant a time extension. A previous note, due last month, is understood to have been met by the Fox trusteeship committee.

"Looking Up"

Washington — Theatre business is "looking up," Ed. Wynn declared while here to take part in the parade held in connection with an appeal for tax relief. "By that I mean," he added, "it's flat on its back."

Fox Action on N.Y. Deals Awaited

Theatre and financial circles in New York watching the Fox situation are speculating over the future of deals made for houses in the Metropolitan expansion drive. John Otterson and Harry Stuart, of the trusteeship committee, are understood to favor a wholesale return of these theatres when the final payment date falls due late this year.

Although the majority acquired from New York independents are running in the black, the note-holding trustees are said to be of the opinion that the considerable cash needed to pay off these circuit owners in June and succeeding months will present a weighty problem. Fox is said to have the privilege of returning most of the purchases until the final payment is made, one year from the date of each deal. Of course, Fox Metropolitan Playhouses would stand the loss on initial payments.

From several quarters comes word that independent operators who last year sold out to Fox are contemplating new chains. Hyman Rachmil, who operated eight in Brooklyn with Rinzler, has pooled his Stillwell, a Bensonhurst house rejected by Fox, with Isaac Katz. They now have three as the nucleus if they decide upon a new Brooklyn chain.

Rosenzweig & Siegel, who built up a strong Brooklyn chain with the financial aid of Philips-Jones collar interests and then sold out to Fox, are reported as again in the market, the Van Heusen money said to be backing the second string. Siegel recently purchased a half-interest in the Colony, New York, from Universal. Other interests in Manhattan and Brooklyn are declared laying plans for new chains.

An official of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses yesterday told Motion Picture News that a few of the "red" houses purchased by Fox from independents would be turned back, but that no general wholesale return was contemplated.

Indiana To Enforce Ban On Smoking By Operators

Indianapolis.—Strict enforcement of the state law prohibiting smoking by operators in booths has begun under direction of the fire prevention bureau. Eleven fires in theatre booths this year have been attributed to the smoking by operators.

Pearson Joins F.N.

Hollywood.—Humphrey Pearson, writer, has been signed by First National, for 1930.

Censor Chief To Coast

Harrisburg, Pa.—Harry L. Knapp, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors will leave on January 1 for a six weeks' trip to the West Coast.

Five in Winnipeg Chain

Winnipeg—Allied Theatres Circuit has opened the Roxy in the Elmwood district, the fifth in its local chain. The house seats 1,200. A service feature is a free parking area for patrons which is provided with numerous electric outlets for the heating of automobiles in cold weather.

Buys Aviation Story

"Flight Commander," an original by John Monk Saunders and Howard Hawks, will appear on First National's 1930 program.

Even Santa Nicked

Minneapolis—Not even the spirit of Christmas could withstand the stock market slump. Take it from J. F. Cubberley, theatre broker, who formerly handled all houses outside of the Twin Cities for Northwest Theatre Circuit, now operated by Publix.

"Cub" placed an order for a number of shares of a security to be given to a friend as a Christmas present, but the declining market caused him a couple of yards of loss before he could pick up the stock for presentation on the Yaletide.

U.S. Suit Versus Warners Promises to Be Something of a Merry-Go-'Round

Warners and F. N. Not Competitors----Latter Not Doing Interstate Business, but Maybe It Was Two Other Films

Warners and First National, at the time of acquisition of the Stanley stock by Warners, never were in substantial competition with each other, because Warners was making sound pictures and First National only silents. Anyway, get this, First National is "not engaged in any trade or commerce of any kind whatsoever, and there is no competition between them." And if you can laugh that off remember that Warners doesn't own First National, which is owned by a Maryland corporation.

These are among contentions set forth in answer of Warners to the Dept. of Justice suit charging acquisition of control of First National by Warners is in violation of the Clayton Act. The answer was filed in Federal District Court, New York.

Further, the government is all "wet" on the 71,893 First National shares it claims Warners purchased, for the company never had that many shares, and has not now more than 1,500 shares of stock outstanding, the complaint says in effect.

The government is suing Warners and First National of Maryland, charging the Clayton Act was violated when Warners acquired control of First National. But, now the answer shows that Warners doesn't own First National, whose assets have been transferred to First National Pictures of Maryland.

Trial of the government's action promises to be an interesting one.

Fox has not yet filed its answer to the government's suit charging violation of the Clayton Act in connection with acquisition of control of Loew's.

New Warner Building

Warners will build a ten story building on W. 54th and W. 55th St., between 11th and 12th Aves., New York, to house its music publishing subsidiaries.

New St. Louis First Run?

St. Louis—Negotiations are under way by Chicago interests for a site for a combination theatre and office building on Sixth Street.

Competition

Wilmington, N. C.—All three theatres in Wilmington on Monday began operation as sound houses, RCA Photophone equipment having opened on this date at the Royal. For the opening, the Royal used John Gilbert's "His Glorious Night" because of the fact that Catherine Dale Owen, leading woman, is quite well known in Wilmington. As a counter attraction the Carolina used "Gold Diggers of Broadway," which was playing to capacity houses at 35 cents and 50 cents in spite of the fact that, at the Bijou, at 15 cents and 25 cents, "Rio Rita" was being shown for the first time in Wilmington.

Jolson's Bit

London.—Al Jolson is getting from United Artists more than double the amount he received from Warners, Joseph M. Schenck is quoted by "The Bioscope" as saying. "And with Warners," continues the article, "Jolson took $45 and a rake off of ten per cent of the profits on each picture." ("A sob in his voice, but a song in his heart," murmured a wag.)

U.A. to Build in London; Schenck, Goldwyn Returning

London (By Wireless)—Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn are aboard the Ile de France en route for New York. They are due Tuesday.

Before leaving London, they announced plans for a big first run in the West End of London. It will cost $7,500,000 and house U. A. product.

Czech Producers Tied-Up by Fire-Destruction of Studio

Prague—Kavalirka, one of the two studios in Czechoslovakia, is in ruins from fire. As a result, many producers are marking time, because the other plant, A. B. Studio, is tied up for the next year on leases.

Screen Classics Handling Sullivan Cartoons in N. Y.

A Pat Sullivan group of 12 "Felix the Cat" cartoons are being released in Greater New York and northern New Jersey by Screen Classics Exchange, New York, which has booked the first, "False Vases," in the Warner Beacon this week, and over the Fox Metropolitan circuit.

New Plaza to Open Jan. 19

The new Plaza, New York, will open the week of Jan. 19. The theatre was designed by Harry Creighton Ingalls in the Elizabethan style and will have 600 seats. It is equipped for sound and has a screen the width of the proscenium to permit the exhibition of wide films.

100 Wired in S. Africa

Washington—Opening of the Century Kinema, Benoni, with sound, raises to 100 the total of installations in South Africa, Trade Commissioner E. B. Lawson, Johannesburg, reports to the Department of Commerce.

RKO to Distribute British-Made Films

London (By Wireless)—RKO took an important step toward Anglo-American cooperation on talkers Thursday when it signed an agreement to distribute throughout the world pictures to be made by Associated Talking Pictures, Ltd.

U. S. Talkers Facing Serious Competition Abroad, Ryan Says

Serious competition to American pictures in Europe, unless they are made with foreign dialogue, is seen by J. P. Ryan, special representative of Fox, in event German and French talkers now under way are successful. Ryan is in New York for an indefinite stay following three years in Europe, reorganizing company branches in a number of countries. The best way to translate English dialogue into the language of a foreign country is to superimpose the titles on the film. In this manner the action is not interrupted as in the case of an inserted title, he says.

"Blaze of Glory" Shot in Two Tongues on Same Sets

Claimed to be the first talker employing two casts, two sets of directors, cameramen and technicians, yet only one story and one collection of sets, "Blaze O' Glory," Eddie Dowling's picture, is being released in both English and Spanish versions. The American players enacted the English version by day, a Spanish troupe by night.

Roach Bi-Lingual Shown

First showing of "Ladrones," (Robbers), Hal Roach comedy, starring Laurel and Hardy, said to be the first two-reeler to have a Spanish version, was given at Loew's 116th St., New York, on Tuesday and Wednesday. It is the first of a number of Spanish and French adaptations to be made of the balance of Roach's comedies this season. Plans call for production of German versions, also.

Pathe's 1st in Spanish Ready

Spanish version of Pathe's "Her Private Affair," starring Ann Harding, has been completed and is being shipped to Latin-America and Spain for immediate release. This is Pathe's first foreign talker. The dubbing was recorded under direction of Emile de Recat.

The Real Inside

Take it from Ted Cook, writing in "The N. Y. American," that "the reason they put bars in front of box office attendants is to keep them from biting customers."

Little Likelihood of Any Action on Bill to Meddle in Industry Affairs

Industrial Arts Commission Measure Was Introduced by Senator Brookhart "By Request," Ending His Obligation in Matter

Washington.—Introduced "by request," there is little probability that Senator Brookhart's bill for the creation of an Industrial Arts Commission will ever be the recipient of much attention, much less a determined effort for enactment.

Members of Congress, both in the Senate and House, are naturally deluged with pleas that they introduce this or that measure. Frequently, to meet the desire of someone with a bill which he is sure Congress will immediately adopt if only it is introduced, a member will put his name on a bill and put it in. Frequently it is noted on the bill itself that it has been introduced by request.

The introduction of a measure under such circumstances wipes out the member's obligation, and it is then up to the proponent of the legislation to prove to someone that it should be taken up.

Bill Expected to Die

This seems to be the case with the industrial arts bill. Inquiries at Brookhart's office as to whether he had any plans for the measure elicited the response that it had been introduced by request, an answer which may not seem to mean much but is perfectly intelligible to Washington newspapermen. It means that, unless great pressure is brought to bear, Brookhart will devote his activities to matters in which he is more interested and which are of more importance.

The industrial arts bill is an apparently innocuous measure loaded with a charge of dynamite. It provided for the creation of a commission of five, which would have authority to inquire into the progress of the different arts and keep itself informed as to the manner and method in which they are conducted. It would have authority to compel the presence of witnesses and the production of papers, contracts, agreements and documents. The act would apply to "the arts that have become a part of the industrial life of the nation, such as the production of motion pictures, talking pictures, and all forms of theatrical entertainment and amusement and their allied arts and industries."

Powers Were Broad

The "kicker" in the measure comes at the end of the first section, where it is explained that "the purpose, scope and plan of this commission is to promote the general good and welfare of the said arts and industries and to make such recommendations to Congress for action as from time to time shall be deemed most beneficial to and make for the protection of the general public and the said arts and industries."

Under this provision, the commission could exercise an iron-clad control of the picture industry. It could, for instance, regulate the provisions of exhibition contracts, and could also recommend the establishment of a censorship. In general, its powers were vaguely defined but exceedingly broad.

Laying Off

Washington. — Senator Brookhart, who introduced the Industrial Arts Commission bill as a request measure, so far this session has shown little inclination to harass the industry. He has, it is true, reintroduced his anti-block booking bill and has sponsored the industrial arts measure, but has not yet taken any steps to have film legislation taken up in committee. The tariff bill will occupy the attention of the Senate for some time to come, after which it will have to deal with the appropriation bills for the various departments, which are being passed rapidly by the House, so that it is not likely that the upper body will have much time for consideration of extraneous matters this session.

Germany Plans Strict Censorship of Films

Berlin—Penalties for permitting children to view objectionable pictures are provided in a measure calling for stricter methods for censoring in Germany. The bill is aimed particularly at talkers.

Rowdy, Raw, Dubious Fun Say Critics of "Hot for Paris"

Conceding generally that "Hot for Paris" is funny, New York critics at the same time take a number of cracks at the rowdiness and lack of good taste which they assert runs rampant in the picture. The picture is broad, and entirely lacking in subtlety, several reviewers point out. Others state it does not rank with "The Cock-Eyed World," although made in the same mould. Their ideas are these:

Daily News— . . . fairly entertaining. Some of its gags are highly appreciable—but others—well, stale, and risque. . . .

Evening World—It is a fast-moving, rollicking thing. . . . Roxy audiences ate it up.

Daily Mirror—A good comedy, rough, but funny.

Graphic— . . . audiences who are expecting a hilarious sequel to that swell and vulgar talkie ("The Cock-Eyed World") are due for a let-down. The dialogue . . . is so obvious. . . .

Herald-Tribune—For those with a taste for broad, loud slapstick, "Hot for Paris" will entertain. Its humor is neither subtle nor sharp, its antics always good-natured, its pace brisk and lively.

Post— . . . an extravagant and sometimes diverting farce. . . .

Sun— . . . sure to be popular. . . . It will please the admirers of "The Cock-Eyed World."

Telegram— . . . a rowdy, broad farce . . . contains more than one loud though unwholesome laugh. . . . If you liked . . . "The Cock-Eyed World" you will undoubtedly get many a laugh out of this.

Times—It is a rowdy, raw affair . . . with quite a number of humorous incidents.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS stated "Hot for Paris" looks like male divertissement; that it is rough and yet funny in its review, which appeared on December 7.

P.-F.-L. Rentals Up

Paramount's domestic film rentals for the first week of the new fiscal year ending Jan. 4 were 45 per cent ahead of last year, the company states.

Expect Langford Measure to Die

Washington—Little chance for passage of the new bill aimed at the industry, introduced by Congressman Lankford of Georgia is seen there. The Georgia congressman at this session is pursuing a new line of attack, his measure calling for creation of a department of general welfare, empowered to prepare films for the government and to provide films for schools, churches and other organizations.

Full control over radio in the United States also is provided, a feature which alone is regarded as sufficient to kill the measure.

Poli Loses Round in Suit for $1,000,000 on Sale

New Haven—Sylvester Z. Poli lost a point in his fight to retain all of the $26,000,000 he is claimed to have received from Fox for his theatre circuit, when a demurrer asking for dismissal of suit for $1,000,000 brought by the Hancock Co., New York, was overruled. Poli's attorneys sought dismissal, charging the plaintiff's action for commission on the sale was without merit. The Hancock firm claimed it was retained to sell the circuit, and that it obtained B. F. Keith's and the Stanley Co., as purchasers, but that meanwhile Poli conducted independent negotiations which resulted in sale of the chain to Fox.

"Strictly Dishonorable" Purchased for Chevalier

Hollywood—Paramount purchased screen rights to "Strictly Dishonorable," current New York stage play at a reported price of $75,000. Property was purchased as a starring vehicle for Maurice Chevalier.

M. C. Howard Now Southern Chief for Talking Epics

Atlanta—Talking Picture Epics will be distributed in Georgia, Florida, Carolinas and Alabama by M. C. Howard, formerly with Gotham.

Brenon Goes to RKO

Herbert Brenon, who formerly produced for United Artists on a picture-to-picture basis, has signed a year's contract with Radio Pictures, states Joseph I. Schnitzer, company president. Brenon has left New York for the Coast. He recently completed "The Case of Sergeant Grischa" for Radio.

"Colorama," New Principle in Lighting, May Precipitate New Theatre Standards

Developed by National Lamp Works, System Claims Effects Hitherto Unknown Now Become Available

A complete revolution in theatre lighting may result from "Colorama," a new development in color lighting developed by the National Lamp Works.

Thousands of color combinations and patterns on walls painted plain white and void of all ornamentation are claimed for the new lighting principle, a practical demonstration of which was given for the first time last night before 2,000 illuminating engineers, scientists and members of the electrical industry at the opening of the new ballroom of the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn.

These colors and patterns remain stationary or continuously merge, one into another by means of a remote control board. This control board is in effect, a mechanical console upon which the color organist plays a symphony of light. This so-called organ controls over 7,000 lamps of red, blue, green and clear glass, which are concealed in a series of coves and flutes in the walls and ceilings.

Limitless Variety is Claimed

Though only white, red, green and blue colors are used, the mixing of these colors give hundreds of different shades of gray, orange, black and white, yellow, purple and cerise, as well as many unique pastel shades, it is said.

The shade of color produced, it was explained to the audience, depends on the wattage employed for each primary color and also upon the location of the lamp, whether it is in front of the flute or behind it. The design effects produced depends, in turn, on the relative position of the coves and flutes to one another.

According to F. J. Cadenas, lighting engineer of National Lamp Works of General Electric and one of the developers of the new method of lighting, the success of this new system depends on the effects produced by the variations in the amount of the different colors and on the exclusion of all natural light. The color effects, which can be obtained are unlimited in number, he says. At the present time, he continues there have been produced over 1,200 combinations and color effects, and it is possible to automatically produce a new color scheme on all four walls and ceiling of a room every fifteen seconds. Running continuously this means that the color and patterns in a single room can be changed every fifteen seconds for approximately two and one-half hours.

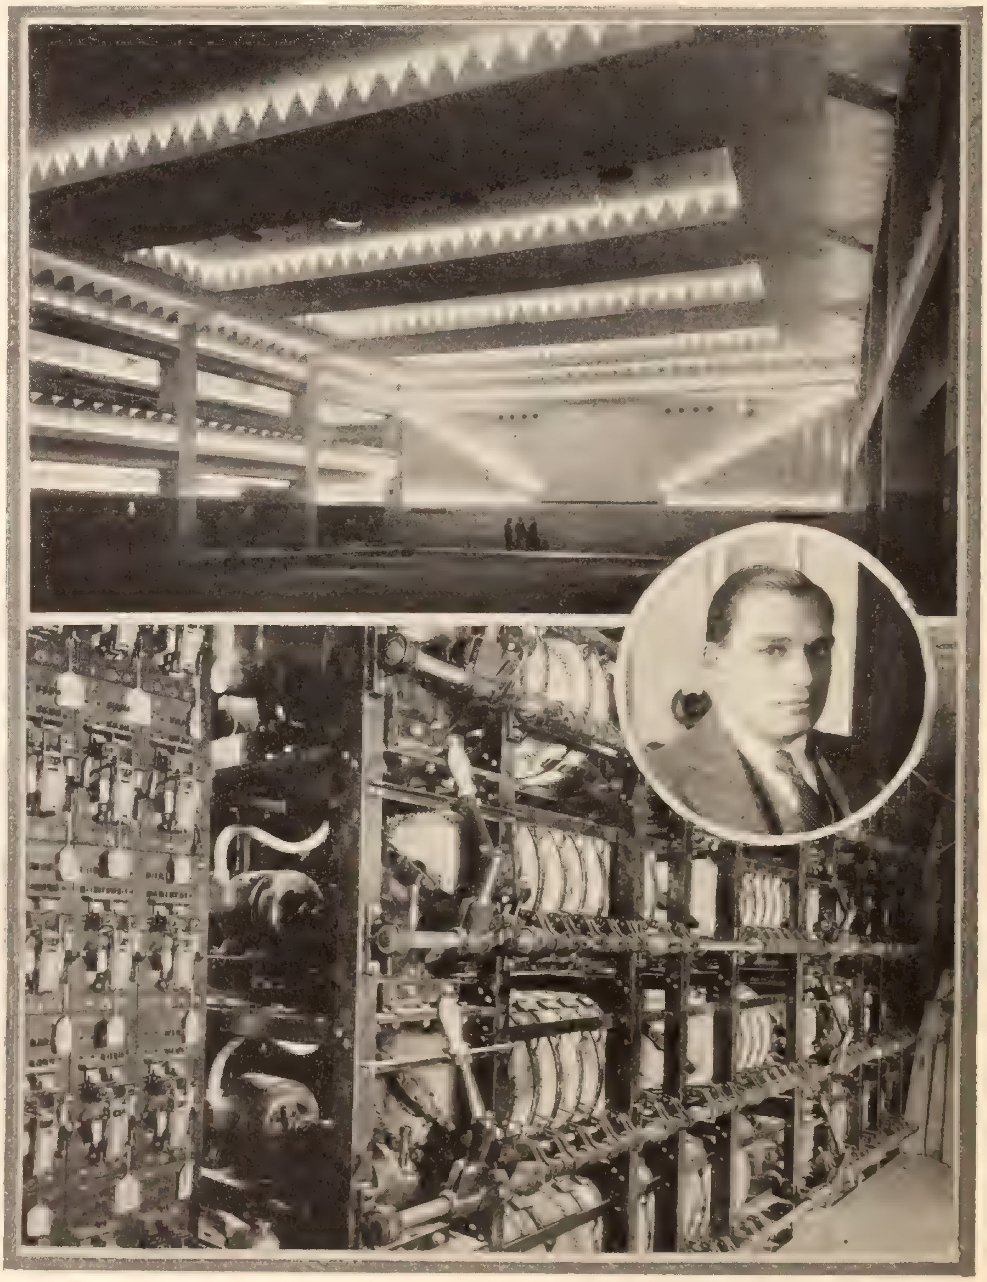
Says Cost Is Within Bounds

The first installation of "Colorama" uses a total of 532,246 watts, or more light than the entire city of New York possessed in the early days of incandescent lighting.

The installation viewed for the first time, took sixty electricians, working nine weeks to install and cost $150,000. It was pointed out, however, that this cost is low when re-decoration is considered.

In explaining the various adaptations of "Colorama," Cadenas pointed out that coloring and patterns need not necessarily be confined to conventionalized patterns.

The first installation of "Colorama" installed in the St. George lights one of the largest ballroms in the country, providing illumination as well as decorating for over 9,500 square feet of floor space to a height of nearly 30 feet.



Striking lighting effect obtained with "Colorama" and one view of complex mechanism which controls it. Inset: F. J. Cadenas, lighting engineer, who aided in development.

G. E. Head Sees Future for Talkies in Educational Field

John Winthrop Hammond, a General Electric official, predicts that talking pictures, like the printing press, will enable the thoughts of great scholars and scientists to live long after they pass. Hammond believes that the part which talkers will play in the educational world will be tremendous in a few short years.

Two New Theatres for London

London—Two theatres are to be built on the site of the ancestral mansion of the Duke of Norfolk, close to Piccadilly Circus. The mansion is reported to have been sold for $1,500,000.

Steady Decrease of Grosses on Silent Newsreel Causing Worry to Producers

Realignment May Become Necessary If Diminishing Returns Continue Downward Trend—Contracts to Be Fulfilled

Decreasing grosses on silent newsreels necessitating constant trimming of costs is a matter of concern to producers of sound and silent newsreels. Some of them see in the steady decline of rentals, which is becoming more rapid as additional theatres are wired, the necessity for a realignment all along the line.

The lower grosses on silent newsreels may reach the stage where it will force a slashing of production costs to a point which may impair the value of the subject, it is feared by some.

Others contend that the silent newsreel cannot be displaced entirely, for the reason that the success of the newsreel depends on coverage to a degree possible only by a combination of silent and sound newsreels. In this connection, they point out that many news events of world-wide interest pictorially occur at such inopportune times or places that they cannot possibly be covered by sound trucks. The latter's chief place, those inclining to this view believe, is in covering feature events which have been prearranged.

There will be no immediate change in the situation, however, as the various companies holding silent picture contracts, intend to carry out these agreements. In some instances the silent and sound newsreel versions are handled by separate companies, so that each must stand on its own merits, without relation to the other. Whether there will be a readjustment if silent newsreels go into the red has not been indicated.

Pathe, Paramount, M-G-M, Fox and Universal are companies distributing both silent and sound newsreels. Educational distributes only a silent newsreel, Kinograms. None of the companies has indicated any intention of making any change, but are studying the situation.

Continuing Silent

Pathe News (silent) will continue to serve exhibitors as it has in the past, Phil Reisman, general sales manager of Pathe, states in refuting a report that this pioneer newsreel company intends to confine its activities to Pathe Sound News.

No Brains Needed By Supervisors?

Production supervisors are "ignorant bout pictures," and need no knowledge of the screen, of story values or studio procedure to qualify for the title, according to the dialog of negro characters in a story by Octavus Roy Cohen, published in The Saturday Evening Post under the title "Five Thousand Feet Make One Smile."

Cohen has worked in the Hollywood studios as a writer, and seems to have taken a decided dislike to supervisors, if the utterances of characters in his current fiction story reflect anything of the author's personal opinions on the subject.

The yarn in question concerns a troupe of negro comedy producers supposedly making two-reelers in a studio in Birmingham, Ala. A New York stockholder in the company sends his son south to join the troupe. When the director-general of production questions the newcomer the latter frankly admits that he knows nothing whatever about picture production. The chief immediately nominates him a supervisor, declaring emphatically that his lack of screen experience and his complete ignorance of all production work is an asset. All he has to do is hold "conferences."

The novice becomes a supervisor, gives everybody his or her way, from the "grips" to the director, agrees to every suggestion and becomes exceedingly popular for his failure to question any idea. The production, the first feature venture of the company, is a howling success. Hence the title.

Throughout the story there is a definite criticism of all supervisors, with comments and opinions stated humorously in negro dialect, which, stripped of their fictional clothes, would undoubtedly cause any supervisor in Hollywood, from Harry Rapf, Irving Thalberg, Daryll Zanuck and Bobby North, down through the entire list to the most recent promotion, to turn red and require the services of a police force to stop the replies.

It is regarded in film circles as one of the severest attacks on established production positions yet written by any author who has invaded the Hollywood studios to create fiction on film and returned to his former profession of fiction on paper.

Publix, Fox, R-K-O, Schines Bid for Middletown, O., House

Middletown, O.—Publix, Fox, Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Schine Enterprises are reported bidding for the theatre to be housed in the $770,000 theatre and apartment building to be built on Broad St., by a Cincinnati real estate firm. The house will seat 1,800.

Twin City "Vet" Dies

Minneapolis—L. N. Scott, 70, veteran owner of the Metropolitan theatres here and in St. Paul, died recently, following several years' illness. While Scott's activities were chiefly in the legitimate field, his houses have at various times shown pictures, chiefly road shows.

Minneapolis Has Between 60,000 and 70,000 Seats

Minneapolis—Seating capacity of Minneapolis theatres, including the municipal auditorium, is between 60,000 and 70,000. The city's population is around 500,000. For the last year there has been talk of a Fox first-run house. The local first-run situation is dominated by Publix, with Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Pantages as opposition.

Milwaukee Has 110,000 Seats in 80 Theatres

Milwaukee—This city's 80 theatres, including the auditorium, have a capacity of 110,000, making the city one of the most overseated in the country. The population is around 600,000. The largest house is the Wisconsin, seating 3,275.

Bargman Back from Tour to Cincinnati for Lab. Ass'n

S. L. Bargman, secretary of the M. P. Laboratory Ass'n, has returned to New York following a trip to key points as far west as Cincinnati. This is the first step in the movement to nationalize the new organization.

Sound-on-Film Attachment Planned by Talkaphone

Des Moines—The Talkaphone Co. will make deliveries Feb. 1 on a sound-on-film attachment, according to Harry Frankel, president of the company which heretofore has made only disc reproducers. Installations of the latter have been completed at Newell, S. D., St. Joseph, Mo., and Redfield, Iowa.

Improved Sound Factors Seen As 1930 Aid to Exhibitors

Better production, reproducing equipment, recording and servicing are the principal factors which will make for the greater success of sound in theatres during 1930, according to C. J. Ross, executive vice president of RCA Photophone.

Silent and Sound News at Brooklyn Newsreel House

Kinogram Newsreel, silent, is being used to supplement sound newsreel programs at Harry Brandt's Brooklyn Newsreel Theatre. This followed a three days' trial. This is said to be the first time a strictly newsreel theatre has combined a sound and silent newsreel policy. The Brooklyn house is the second strictly newsreel theatre to be opened in the New York district.

151 Houses in Denver Zone Equipped with Sound Machines

Denver—Seventy-four of the 151 wired houses in this territory are equipped with disc and film attachments. Five have film attachments only. In Colorado, 80 houses are showing sound, with 26 in Wyoming, 17 in New Mexico, and the remainder in Western Nebraska and South Dakota. Western Electric has the most installations, a total of 56.

Keen Competition Shaves Gross at All Night Stands

Los Angeles—All night operation of three Main St. theatres is being continued, but the innovation isn't the money-maker it was when first launched, due to overcrowding of the field.

The experiment proved a big hit when launched at the Lark by Carl Drane, because it was the only place in town where people could go at all hours of the night. Passengers waiting for interurban buses, trolleys or outgoing trains, and sailors were among those with whom the gag worked its best draw. However, when the Banner and Art, nearby Main St. houses went into the all-night policy, grosses are declared to have suffered, with the margin of profit said to be very close. The best business is done by all three houses up to midnight, when attendance tapers off. Action pictures are the only kind declared to click at the Lark, while the Banner and Art are playing all types.

The Lark charges 10 cents all day and 15 cents at night. Pictures usually are about six months old, locally, and the all-night overhead is small, because rent, film rentals, advertising, posters and other charges are charged off for the day showings. None of the theatres is wired, but the Banner and Art may switch to sound soon. This may necessitate a change in policy, although this is to be figured out, as the hotels above both theatres may object to the noise of talkers all night. These two houses run 20 hours grind, closing between 5 A. M. and 9 A. M. for cleaning.

Younger Predicts Scenarist Will Devise Own Technique

Hollywood—The scenario writer of 1930 will devise his own technique, and that technique will be radically different from the standard old style of screen writing, in the opinion of A. P. Younger, scenario chief at Tiffany, who predicts greater originality in style as well as thought.

Frudenfeld Promoted

St. Louis—Arthur Frudenfeld, former manager of the St. Louis here, has been named assistant division manager in charge of publicity for the Radio-Keith-Orpheum houses in St. Louis, Kansas City, Memphis and New Orleans. Frank Burke, former publicity head for the district, now is in a similar capacity at Minneapolis. L. R. Pierce, former manager of the Orpheum, Memphis, succeeds Frudenfeld at St. Louis.

Hits British

Unfairness and dishonesty in discriminating against American films in favor of British pictures is charged to British film critics by Samuel Goldwyn, states a copyright London despatch to "The New York Morning World."

"I don't believe most of the British film critics are honest," he said. "A critic should be brutally frank. British critics allow their patriotism to get the better of their judgment. They get hysterical over a British film which doesn't deserve it and roast an American film which I know deserves better treatment, just because it's American."

Paramount Film Way Off in L. A.

Los Angeles—"Glorifying the American Girl" took a beautiful nosedive in Los Angeles this week, playing to $19,300 at the Paramount, or a rating of 77 per cent. Far from hot.

Norma Shearer, a favorite here, did a nice business at Loew's State, finishing the week with $34,700 entitling "Their Own Desire" to a rating of 129 per cent. Doug and Mary in "The Taming of the Shrew" which got away to a big start at the United Artists the first week of its run, did $24,000 the second week, or a rating of 178 per cent. Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger" gathered in most of the business in Hollywood, the picture grossing $15,000 on the week at Graumen's Egyptian.

"Condemned" at the Chinese and "Rio Rita" at the Carthay Circle are nearing the end of their run and business, therefore, was not so good. Colman did $12,100 or 70 per cent for its fifth week and "Rita," $11,900 for its sixth week which gave the picture a 95 per cent rating.

However, "Hit the Deck" at the Orpheum drew in $26,500 which represents 78 per cent over normal business. "Oh Yeah" at the RKO rolled up $18,500 to a tune of 116 per cent which put it safely over the mark. At the Criterion, "Hot for Paris" did nicely, totalling $12,800 which is 28 per cent over normal, average business.

"Paris," at Warners' Downtown, proved a disappointment in its second week, managing to gross $12,800, or a rating of 81 per cent. At Warners' Holywood, "The Aviator" with Edward Everett Horton, a local favorite, did $18,000 which gave the picture a rating of 129 per cent.

Bandits at It Again

San Francisco.—Two reels of film were stolen in the second holdup at the Parkside staged within a month. Oscar Anderson manages.

Another local house was the victim of a holdup, when three bandits bound Manager John O. Wade and made away with the day's receipts.

Loaned to Fox

Hollywood—Howard Estabrook has been loaned by Paramount to Fox to write the adaptation and dialogue for "Yonder Grow the Daisies." Estabrook was on the Fox writing staff before signing a term contract with Paramount last year.

Building in Norway Capital

Oslo, Norway—Embracing a picture house seating 1,000, a semi-official undertaking, the People's theatre is to be built here. The house, it is said, will rival the finest in Europe, and be low-priced, with all seats the same price and none reserved.

Simply Swell!

"When the glittering remembrance of Noskerova was left behind—so was a heart."

One of the few written titles in "Sally" and a gem if ever there was one.

Key Chain Plans Albany Invasion

Albany, N. Y.—Uly S. Hill is representing unnamed important chain interests in negotiating for an important site downtown on which will be erected a $1,000,000 theatre building.

Hill resigned as managing director of Warner Albany and Troy houses, effective Monday.

New Company Sponsors Theatre, Merchant Tie-Ups

Co-operation between the theatre and local merchants is the keynote of a service being offered exhibitors by Webuild Business, Inc., recently formed in New York. The company already has established representatives in a number of keys and is rapidly completing its organization.

Under the plan, a short trailer is run daily, announcing that at certain performances (the weak ones), tickets will be distributed to patrons which are redeemable at the stores of certain merchants named on both trailer and tickets, for 11x14 portraits of film stars. Tickets, trailer and lobby advertising are furnished free to the theatre.

From eight to 12 merchants in each theatre community pay a nominal fee which entitles them to participate in the campaign. These merchants benefit by the advertising offered through the medium of the trailer, and also through the introduction of many new, potential customers who come to their store for portraits. A supply of portraits is included in the service.

Call "Laughing Lady" An Intelligently Made Film

Capabilities of cast and direction do much to make "The Laughing Lady" what it is, in the opinion of ten New York critics. Generally, they like the picture, but their collective criticisms, among other comment, point out the picture suffers from artificial plot and unevenness in treatment. Their opinions, highlighted, include:

Daily Mirror—A pretty good movie of the drawing-room type.

Daily News— . . . an exceptionally well-turned out program talkie. . . .

Evening World— . . . superbly handled by a company headed by Ruth Chatterton and Olive Brook.

Graphic— . . . smoothly constructed, excellently enacted and with a real plot.

Herald-Tribune— . . . despite all . . . handicaps, as well as the additional defect of an obviously artificial plot . . . is an agreeable motion picture.

Morning Telegraph—Adult, believable drama, interpreted by understanding artists, tugging at the heartstrings of the audience and tapping emotional reserves seldom touched by a motion picture.

Post— . . . the play has lost considerable vitality. Eventually, however, the story gathers momentum and works up to an effective climax. . . .

Telegram— . . . becomes involved, repetitious and uneven after a fine beginning.

Times— . . . it is acted for the most part so naturally that one does not wish to turn one's eyes from the screen. It is . . . well done. . . .

World— . . . faithfully, if conventionally, told. . . .

"A society drama with a gripping story capably acted," is what this publication thought of "The Laughing Lady." Review was published on November 16.

Exhibitors Eager to Improve Sound, But Lack of Knowledge Hampers Them

Defects, in the Main, Are Simple, But the Showman Must Be Educated—NEWS Series a Help in This Direction

"What can I do to improve the quality of sound reproduction in my theatre?"

This question is constantly being asked of M-G-M sound technicians. "No special trouble," the exhibitor would explain, "but you may notice something which we have overlooked."

Such is the typical attitude—a desire to give the very best sort of reproduction—to keep pace with progress—to hear the ideas and suggestions of those who have specialized in sound work.

A survey of the M-G-M technicians' reports shows clearly that many minor and varied causes of defects in reproduction have escaped theatre owners' notice. Of course, these have been brought to the attention of the individual exhibitors in whose theatres they were found. But such circulation of information is limited. Hence this series of articles.

The purpose is not so much to report what technicians have discovered as to suggest to other exhibitors the possible sources of trouble which they may be experiencing. And so this article will deal generally and broadly with methods of improving sound reproduction in cases where there had been no special or direct complaint. In each instance it is to be understood that the exhibitor had merely sought an inspection of his plant and a hearing of his reproduction with a view to learning defects or weaknesses.

Faults and Remedies

Found: Horn in a corner of the stage, pointing in the direction of the opposite side wall; quarter-inch of dust in the speaker; amplifier tubes heavily dust laden and amplifier, which was not grounded, causing a bad hum. Suggested: Moving horn and pointing it toward back of house; cleaning the apparatus; grounding the amplifier. Manager, after making these improvements, reported a 75 per cent. betterment in the quality of the theatre's sound reproduction.

Found: Horns badly boxed; bare concrete floor. Suggested: Baffling horns in approved manner and covering floor of aisles.

Found: Sound aperture so widely adjusted that a sprocket hole hum was picked up. Suggested: Turning adjuster of idler to left to reduce the aperture. (Two complete turns were necessary!)

Found: Uncovered concrete floor, uncovered stage floor and bare plaster wall eight inches back of horns. Suggested: Carpeting of aisles over burlap; covering of stage floor; six square feet of covering on wall behind horns.

Found: Lack of quality, due to overloading. Suggested: Trouble was arising from fact that the amplifier was capable of delivering fifteen watts whereas the horn unit could carry a maximum of only nine watts. Reduction of horn volume was accomplished without loss of house volume by changing the type of needles which were being used.

Better Sound

Ways and means to better sound reproduction in the theater are suggested in this week's article reporting activities of the M-G-M sound technical department. A number of faulty features of installations and remedies for them are outlined in the article, the fifth in the series being published exclusively by Motion Picture News.

Found: Horns placed two each at the sides of the screen and directed so they were crossing far to the front of the house. Suggested: Pointing horns straight out and slightly up, which was done with such decided improvement that many patrons commented on it.

Found: Serious back-stage reverberation and loss of volume. Suggested: Boxing in the horn unit to get the sound into the house and overcome the reverberation. This recommended here as being cheaper and quicker than treating the house back of the screens. Work was actually done in about thirty minutes, with decided improvement in results.

Case of Rattling Projector

Found: Machines not bolted to the floor; pilasters undraped, open orchestra pit and a beam extending across the low ceiling under the balcony. Suggested: Fastening machines down, covering the orchestra pit, treating the pilasters and draping the beam with a streamer extending along and several inches below it.

Found: Sound very poor; much vibration; machines not running over 86 feet a minute and the two varying feet a minute; "trick" needle being used. Suggested: Replacing tone arms with others capable of handling a decent frequency range; setting machines on concrete.

Found: Tone arms too heavy; horns flared too much to sides of house, open orchestra pit and all-metal construction of roof and walls. Suggested: Adjustment of tone arms, re-flaring of horns, use of three streamers on ceiling, extension of stage covering over footlights and treating of walls and covering of pit.

Found: Machine noise and vibration showing up in the horns; considerable loss of volume at the sides of the screen (which were open) and some echo from back of the screen. Suggested: Discontinuance of present method of using non-synchronous machine as an amplifier and substitution of direct amplification; boxing of the screen; providing two outer horns with same type baffleboard and side flares as center horn.

Found: Tone waver and trouble from sound waves striking the hard seats at the front of the balcony. Suggested: Levelling of disc plates and treating the edge of the balcony up to the edge of a protecting iron railing.

Found: Bad echo. Suggested: Treating back of house, front of booth, edge of balcony and footlights.

Echoes Cause Trouble

Found: Very decided echo coming from backstage; bad pit condition; sound lacking definition from up front. Suggested: Draping back stage and covering pit.

Found: A suddenly developed trouble for which emergency aid was given. The head of one machine had been sent away for repairs and an emergency head was being used. This machine had locked and as the show was just about to start, it looked as if only one machine would be available. The technician loosened one of the gears, which gave temporary relief until the new head was received.

Found: Pretty good reproduction, but loss of volume back of the screen and an annoying house echo. Suggested: Draping of columns at sides of auditorium; treating of back of house where stairs lead to projection booth; boxing in screen to prevent sound from getting back stage.

Found: Vibration and noise alongside and under the projection booth. Suggestion: Concreting and sound-proofing the booth.

Found: Unsatisfactory quality and tendency of sound to drag, due to tube U. X. 226 being missing and to a worn-out coupling between the projector and sound machine gears. Suggested: Replacements of both.

Found: Echo, located as originating in a fire exit which opens in front of the stage and leads to the basement; also unevenness of tone, which was traced to loose horn connections. Suggested: Treating of exit and tightening of connections.

Found: Loss of frequencies above 4,000 to 4,500 cycles. Suggested: Replacing tone arm with one of greater capacity.

Found: Reverberation and echo from unbroken, hard surfaces and a bad, slanting ceiling in the rear from which the sound seemed literally to pour down on the heads of the audience. Suggested: Treating of sidewalls, pilasters and rear ceiling.

An Exclusive Motion Picture News Feature

Reorganization of Pathe Sales Force Completed by Reisman

Reorganization of the Pathe sales force into five divisions, Eastern, Central, Southern, Midwestern and Western, and a number of new appointments have been completed by Phil Reisman, general sales manager.

Three branch managers have been elevated to division chiefs. They are: J. H. MacIntyre, Minneapolis, who has been placed in charge of the Western division with supervision over the Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Salt Lake City branches; Harry Lorch, Chicago, Midwestern division head with jurisdiction over the Chicago, Des Moines, Omaha, Minneapolis, Detroit, Kansas City and Milwaukee exchanges, and Harry D. Graham, Indianapolis, Central division, who heads the Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, St. Louis and Indianapolis branches, continuing as branch manager of the last named. W. E. Callaway continues as Southern and E. L. McEvoy as Eastern division heads.

List of New Managers

New appointees to branch managerships are: W. E. Branson, formerly Des Moines manager, to manager at St. Louis; R. N. Nolan, former Chicago salesman, to manager at Kansas City; Lou Elman, former salesman at Des Moines, to manager at Des Moines and M. E. Montgomery, who has served as assistant manager at Minneapolis, to manager.

The personnel of the sales department of Pathe, now is as follows: Phil Reisman, general sales manager; J. F. McAloon, assistant general sales manager; E. W. Ballentine, manager of exchange operations; W E. Raynor, manager of short subject sales; J. T. Richards, manager print department and Earl Arnold, purchasing agent

Eastern division: E. L. McEvoy, manager, New York, supervising; C. W. Stombaugh, Albany; R. C. Cropper, Boston; H. Gibbs, New Haven; R. S. Wolff, New York; R. Mochrie, Philadelphia; A. Goldsmith, Pittsburgh; R. C. Robin, Washington.

In the Mid-West

Central division: H. D. Graham, manager, Indianapolis, supervising; J. B. Reilly, Buffalo; S. Jacques, Cincinnati; O. J. Ruby, Cleveland; H. D. Graham, Indianapolis; W. E. Branson, St. Louis.

Southern division: W. E. Callaway, manager, Dallas, supervising; W. W. Anderson, Atlanta; R. C. Price, Charlotte; W. E. Callaway, Dallas; H. R. Kistler, Memphis; G. C. Brown, New Orleans; C. W. Allen, Oklahoma City.

Mid-western division: H. S. Lorch, manager, Chicago, supervising; J. J. Clarke, Chicago; Lou Elman, Des Moines; H. P. Zapp, Detroit; Ray Nolan, Kansas City; T. Greenwood, Milwaukee; M. E. Montgomery, Minneapolis; R. S. Ballantyne, Omaha.

Western division: J. H. MacIntyre, manager, Los Angeles, supervising; F. H. Butler, Denver; J. S. Stout, Los Angeles; H. L. Percy, Portland; A. J. O'Keefe, Salt Lake City; M. E. Cory, San Francisco; C. L. Theuerkauf, Seattle.

Canada: T. W. Brady, Regal Films, Toronto, Canada.

Net of $600,000 Is Forecast for Pathe

Net of around $600,000 after charges and depreciation and deduction from costs of sales amounts transferred from special reserve and from surplus to absorb excess costs of sales over normal costs as estimated by the management is predicted for Pathe by "The Wall St. Journal."

This will compare with $187,435 for 1928, figuring on a like basis the newspaper stated. "However, the company's report for 1928 showed that after costs, rentals, expenses, interest, depreciation, also deductions from cost of sales transferred from surplus, and charging $3,000,000 provision for special reserve against advances to outside producers, inventories and contingencies, a deficit of $2,812,565 was incurred. A deficit of $2,151,882, after special reserve of $1,150,000 was shown in 1927.

"The statement for the 12 weeks ending Oct. 5, 1929, recently made public, indicated a net profit of $29,894 after all charges, depreciation, etc., and charging $129,397 off costs to absorb excess cost of sales over normal costs. This compared with $68,102 in the same 12 weeks of 1928. Figures for the 40 weeks ended Oct. 5 last give further indication that Pathe's operations have improved materially over the same time a year ago and that it has definitely turned the corner and is now established on a more satisfactory earning plane. Profits for the 40 weeks to that date (which represents the company's first nine months) amounted to $554,231 after all charges, depreciation, etc."

Pathe Closes Number of Deals for Distribution in Orient

Distribution deals have been closed for Pathe sound and silent product in India, China, Japan, Philippine Islands and South Africa, states T. S. Delahanty of Pathe International Corp. In India, the product will be handled by Alexander Hague, Bombay; in China, by Peacock, M. P. Corp.; in Japan, by U. Ono; in the Philippines by Lyric Film Exchange, and in South Africa by International Variety and Theatrical Agency, which controls a major part of the theatres in that territory.

Sistrom Joins Le Baron on Radio Production Staff

Hollywood—William Sistrom, who resigned as Pathe production head when E. B. Derr and Charles E. Sullivan took over the reins, has joined Radio Pictures, as assistant to William Le Baron.

Grrr!

Walter Winchell relates "a quip that Robert C. Benchley spread around the Fulton Theatre foyer the other first-night. It concerns the two Hollywood movie magnates who graduated to the Gold Coast from the Garment Centre. They were in conference trying to save a picture that lacked, what critics usually call, "a wallop."

"If we could only get someone to fix it up," said one.

'Why don't you get Jim Tully," suggested an executive.

"Jim Tully is too caustic!"

"Oh," thundered one of the magnates, "the devil with the cost, get him."

Hearing Dates Set on Pathe Officials' Fire Case Charges

January 27 is date set for hearing of the film storage violation charge and February 5 for the manslaughter charge against John C. Flinn and Henry F. Lalley of Pathe, an aftermath of the recent fire at Sound Studios, New York. Adjournment was taken due to the death of Lalley's father at St. Petersburg, Fla. The defendants are in bail of $5,000 each on the storage violation charge and $15,000 each on the manslaughter charge.

Mary and Doug Slated to Make Television Picture

Broadcast of a television picture made by Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks is scheduled at San Francisco some time this month, states the Kemper Radio Corp., Ltd., licensee under patents of Television Laboratories.

The Farnsworth system will be used. Albert B. Mann, managing director of Television Laboratories, claims the apparatus has been brought to a point of practical commercial application. The Kemper firm is the first licensee.

The home office of United Artists has not yet been advised of the scheduled broadcast from San Francisco of the Pickford-Fairbanks picture.

Stampede to Color Seen in 1930 by Technicolor Head

The new year will witness a stampede to color, just as the industry in 1928 and 1929 "went pell mell for sound," in the opinion of Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president of Technicolor, who recently returned from a trip to Europe. He says Europe favors color, and predicts that within two years black and white films will be obsolete. The wide film development makes color even more desirable. its proper use giving the effect of third dimension, Kalmus says.

Further Cut of Ticket Tax Anticipated in Ontario

Toronto—Further reduction in the amusement tax, as promised months ago by Premier Ferguson is being anticipated by Ontario exhibitors when the legislature opens its session Feb. 5. A big surplus was announced by the government for 1929. The tax on low priced tickets was abolished two years ago.

High and Low Along Music Row

CONGRATULATIONS is in order. Yep, grammatically that's incorrect, but figuratively, . . . well, just take a peep at the way "Congratulations" is keeping the Green & Stept stock clerks on the jump. This tune was written by Buddy Green, Sammy Stept and Maceo Pinkard, and you can congratulate Al Friedman band and orchestra manager for getting some great congratulatory plugs for "Congratulations." In other words, all congratulations . . . say . . . what is this a game?

* * *

D'JA notice the novel means Sammy Lerner, publicity manager for DeSylva, Brown & Henderson, adopted to introduce the members of his firm to the Warner Club? That boy's a poet.

* * *

WE wouldn't take a bet on it, but the Fox production, "A Song of Kentucky," reminds us of a certain well-known Tin-Pan-Alley composer. His name is——. Oh, well, see the picture and judge for yourself.

* * *

"DANCING BUTTERFLY," the first chromatic fox-trot published by E. B. Marks, was written by Ernie Golden, writer of "Toymaker's Dream," which is the best current seller on the Marks roster. A fine dance arrangement by Joseph Nussbaum should help put over this tune.

* * *

"I ALWAYS KNEW," theme song for the Big Four production, "Take the Heir," was composed by Cliff Hess and R. Coopersmith. This number, which looks like a winner, is published by Remick, Inc.

* * *

DONALDSON, Douglas & Gumble have acquired the picture-song habit. They've added to their catalogue "Sweet Nothings of Love," "Duke of Ka-Ki-Ak," and "If You Want to See Paree." These tunes were written by Walter Donaldson and Edgar Leslie for the Fox picture "Hot for Paris." "Uncle Mose" Gumble says, "Tain't No Sin" is so hot that it's even affecting the weather.

* * *

THE scores for "You Don't Say," the new musical comedy which recently went into rehearsal, were written by Jean Herbert, lyricist for DeSylva, Brown & Henderson, Ray Doll and Irving Actman.

IDA WARSHAUER, manager (ess) of the Sherman-Clay New York office, writes to let us know that "I'm In Love With You" from the James Cruze production "The Great Gabbo," is stepping out fast. Lynn Cowan and Paul Titsworth are authors of the song.

* * *

HARMS, Inc., have a couple of real sellers in "A Little Kiss Each Morning, A Little Kiss Each Night" from the RKO production "The Vagabond Lover," starring Rudy Vallee, and "My Sweeter Than Sweet" from the Paramount flicker, "Sweetie," featuring Nancy Carroll and Jack Oakie.

Gets Tiffany Role

Paul Hurst has been added to cast of Tiffany's "Cyclone Hickey," which James Flood is directing. Featured cast includes Johnnie Walker, Marion Shilling, James Gleason and Daisy Belmore.

THIS music chronicler sure is glad to hear that the Harms professional department will move to the Strand Building. Yeh. So much nearer and naturally less walking to do. See you all next week.

PINCUS

Decision Reserved in Western Electric-Stanley Patents Suit

Wilmington, Del.—Decision is being reserved in Federal court here in the first of the suits brought to trial by Western Electric against exhibitors for alleged violation of patents in connection with installation of sound equipment in theatres throughout the country.

The initial action, scheduled as a test case, was filed here against Stanley Co. of America, Warner Bros. Pictures and Vitaphone Co. Former U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper represented the defendants, while J. Owen Roberts acted for the plaintiff, which claimed the chain infringed Western Electric patents when it operated with Pacent machines at Stanley houses. Pacent was likewise claimed an infringer when it installed the reproducer.

Piantadosi Firm Merged with Remick, Inc., by Warners

Merging of George & Arthur Piantadosi Inc. with Remick Inc. has been completed by Warners, parent company of the two firms. The entire catalogue of the Piantadosi firm goes to Remick. Included in the list of songs affected by this deal are, tunes from "Hearts in Exile," a Warner production; "Forward Pass," First National and the First National picture, "The Painted Angel." George Piantadosi becomes professional manager at Remick and Arthur Piantadosi goes to Vitaphone as casting director.

Will Rockwell, professional manager of Harms, Inc., another Warner subsidiary, announces that his department has been enlarged and will occupy the space vacated by the Piantadosi Brothers.

Music Exploitation

Harms, Inc., are circulating streamers exploiting two of the songs featured in the First National production, "Sally." The two numbers featured are, "If I'm Dreaming" and "Sally," and in block type at one end of the streamer appears the sentence, "Play these hits on Brunswick Record No. 4657." Similar streamers will be prepared for other recording companies handling "Sally" music.

Add to Music Catalogue

DeSylva, Brown & Henderson will augment their catalogue with five new tunes. Two, "Sitting By the Window" and "A Night of Happiness," are from the Fox picture "A Song of Kentucky," and the other three, "Mona," "I'm On A Diet Of Love" and "Crazy Feet," from the forthcoming Fox special, "Happy Days."

Song Writers Switch

Jesse Greer and Ray Klages, formerly on the songwriting staff of M-G-M, have signed with Fox. Edward Pola and Eddie Brandt, another pair of tunesters, were signed by Pat Flaherty, general manager of Fox Red Star Music Co., and have left for the Coast.

Sound Shorts and Vaude

Sound shorts, newsreels and vaudeville is the new policy of the RKO Riverside, Broadway and 96th St., New York. The house operates twice daily at 25 and 35 cents top for matinees and 50 cents at night. Sunday shows are continuous.

Equity to Aid Drive

Support to producing managers who are seeking to curb organized ticket speculation at Broadway theatres has been pledged by Actors' Equity Ass'n.

Decision on Organ Suit Now Pending

Wilmington, Del.—Stanley Co. denies infringement of patents in the suit brought by Mrs. Mary Greenewalt, patent holder of a color organ, and decision has been reserved. Mrs. Greenewalt's organ device consists of keys marked in colors, which, when played, throws the designated colors upon the screen. Stanley's denial alleges there is no infringement, claiming the relation of color to music had been recognized for centuries.

Melford to Make Talker in Labrador for Paramount

George Melford is to make a talker in Labrador for the Labrador Film Co., it is stated. The home office of Paramount is without any advice as to whether the picture will be released by the company.

"U" Pays Off $2,500,000 in Notes; No Financing Needed

Universal on Jan. 1 paid at maturity the outstanding 6 per cent. notes issued two and one-half years ago. The original amount was $2,500,000 and the notes were met without any further public financing.

$100 Reward in 'Fire' Scare

Ottawa—Joseph Paquin, manager, has posted reward of $100 for arrest and conviction of the culprit, who caused a near-panic by shouting "Fire" at the Francais, during a matinee. Employees prevented panic, and the audience of 1,500 returned to their seats.

Gets New Assignment

Minneapolis—Frank Burke, who has been division publicity director for Radio-Keith-Orpheum at St. Louis, has returned here in charge of publicity for the four R.-K.-O. houses in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Cecil Miller has been brought here from Tacoma to manage the Seventh St.

In Jam Over Razing

Philadelphia—City authorities halted contractors razing the Globe, a Stanley house. The wreckers were charged with carelessness after two workmen and several pedestrians had been injured by falling debris.

Nathanson Plans Seen Dropped Or Awaiting Fox Financing

Montreal—While no indication has been given as to whether the Famous Players Canadian-N. L. Nathanson row has been settled, with Nathanson slated to drop plans for a rival Canadian circuit as a result, it is believed here that nothing will be done pending adjustment of the Fox financial situation.

Lending support to this belief is the fact that tenants have been granted a further year's lease on the downtown site, where Nathanson's first theatre is slated to be built. Possession of the site has been contested in court by Famous. If the reported settlement of the controversy is a fact, of course, plans for the circuit will be dropped. Nathanson is said to have Fox backing in the project.

Killam Not Resigning

Montreal—I. W. Killam of Montreal, prominent banker, has not resigned as a director of Famous Players Canadian Corp., despite a New York report. Killam did sell a large block of his stock to Fischer Bros. of Detroit, which probably caused the report.

Columbia Swings To Big Features

Important novels and stage plays built into de luxe pictures and aimed directly at first run engagements will mark Columbia's production policy for 1930-1931.

"Rain or Shine" with Joe Cook is indicative of the new order. Deals are under way for several stage plays currently successful in New York as part of the material for next year's program. The plan calls for increased negative costs commensurate with the type of material annexed.

Matarazzo Again Secures Columbia Group for Brazil

Industries Reunitas F. Matarazzo of Rio de Janeiro, has again purchased Columbia's feature and shorts lineup for distribution in Brazil.

A New Idea

Opening up a wide field for talker use is a short RCA-Photophone speech by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University addressed to the alumni of the university in California. In it, the noted educator hails the talker development, and says talkers offer a great means of knitting together the old grads of national and international seats of learning. This interesting subject was sponsored by J. Boyce Smith, president of Inspiration Pictures, and although not for theatrical presentation, is an interesting step in the advance of talkers.

Fox Schedules 17 On 1930-31 List

All Fox 1930-31 product will be made on both standard-size and Grandeur film, according to present plans.

Seventeen talking pictures for the 1930-31 season have been scheduled by Fox in a program calling for expenditure of an estimated $20,000,000 in the production year from August, 1930, to August, 1931. Announcement of the plans is made by Winfield Sheehan.

Heading the list is a John McCormack vehicle already completed at a cost said to be in excess of $1,000,000. Raoul Walsh will make "The Oregon Trail" for the new schedule.

Other pictures planned include: "Common Clay," which Victor Fleming will direct from Cleve Kincaid's Harvard prize play; Janet Gaynor in Molnar's "Liliom," directed by Frank Borzage; Jack London's "The Sea Wolf," which John Ford will direct; Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," to be directed by David Butler.

Talking picture rights have been acquired for the following novels, of which Movietone productions will be made: "Basquerie," by Eleanor Mercein; "The Mad Song," by Mabel Wagnalls; "The Last of the Duanes," by Zane Grey; "The County Chairman," by George Ade; "The Painted Lady," by Larry Evans; "The Country Beyond," by James Oliver Curwood.

Stage plays which will be made as talking pictures include:

"The Man Who Came Back," by Jules Eckert Goodman; "The Fatal Wedding," by Theodore Kramer; "The Yellow Ticket," by Michael Morton; "The Dancers," by Gerald du Maurier.

During his recent stay in Europe, Sheehan acquired the rights to several dramatic and musical compositions of which the first to go into production will be Beatrice Lillie and a cast of English artists in "The London Revue," staged by Hazzard Short, with music by Richard Fall, Vienna composer, who is due to arrive in America Feb. 1.

Owen Davis and George Middleton head a list of 30 dramatists and dialogue authors now working at Fox Movietone City. To these will be added, beginning Feb. 1, S. N. Behrman, author of "The Meteor" and "Serena Blandish," who last week signed a contract with Sheehan.

Non-Union Houses Hit

Hamilton, Ont.—Operators here are running a series of newspaper advertisements calling upon the public to compare presentation at the 14 union theatres, as contrasted with projection at the five non-union houses, the New Princess, Red Mill, Queen, Delta and Empire.

The New Showman

The other noon I attended a meeting . . . just a get-together of the old timers now located in Southern California . . . men whose aggregate ages would equal the hills . . . men whose past is golden with the romance and sentiment that was their racket . . . men whose experience is ripe with the history of the stage and the theatre. Every one of these men has given his life to the road . . . to show business—each of them is proud to be called . . . a "showman" . . .

But—as we chatted of those days gone by . . . of men who have packed their last bill trunk . . . friends who had been given a one-way ticket to a stranger land . . . the thought came to me . . . where is the sentiment—the romance—the fellowship . . . of that old-time show business . . . where do these men fit into the scheme of things theatrical . . . today!

Today it isn't the man who can book or "wild cat" a road show into profitable territory . . . today no one has need for the advance agent who can "scale a theatre," make a railroad itinerary, fix a baggage contract, lay out a country route for the billposters; the manager who can keep harmony within a company of players, get his show into the next town on time for the performance, and juggle the day's receipts so that the show keeps going on . . .

That part of show business is gone . . . and the sentiment, the romance, the color . . . is gone with it.

Today it is youth . . . the up-and-coming youngster reared in the atmosphere of the motion picture theatre . . . the young high school or college graduate—the boy without sentiment, romance . . . and background. Sentiment? There isn't any . . . its place is taken by . . . "results." All the hard work you may do . . . won't wipe red ink off the ledger unless that hard work is directed by intelligence and deep thought. Today you are a student of the theatre . . . of public reaction, of correct sound reproduction . . . of theatre conduct and management. Today you are a working part of a great organization . . . you must function perfectly with the machinery of its operation—when you slip . . . when you fail to give that perfect co-ordination . . . then the result of careful planning becomes naught . . . and you are the fault.

I'm not trying to frighten you. . . . I'm not belittling your work, your knowledge, or your experience . . . on the contrary—I'm trying to warn and advise you.

Sentiment* . . . and the slip-shod methods that went with it—has vanished, but—intelligence, hard work, and creative ability will always be with us . . . they are the attributes that focus the spotlight of attention on the individual in the crowd.

So set your day that your work will bear fruit . . . so set your own life that you may become a factor in your community—so set your knowledge of the theatre and its problems that it will lift you from the rut, and into a position of importance.

You can do it . . . through the force of your own personality, through the intelligence of your effort . . .through the originality of your ideas . . . through persistence to your ideals . . . sincere honesty, and . . . able management.

—Frank Whitbeck in "Now," house organ of Fox Theatres, western division.

The Loew Factor

Loew operates and has an interest in four of the 26 Schwartz houses on Long Island and in Brooklyn. Just what disposition would be made of these theaters in the deal understood to be under way between RKO and Schwartz is problematical and is still to be worked out.

New Lubricant For Processing

Wax is entirely eliminated in film processing by Stewart Process Co., New York, which has developed a system which uses an invisible lubricant entirely covering the film. This is said to make the film immune from chemical action of moisture, water and oil, and the affection of heat.

Stewart's new process, it is said, toughens film to the extent that instead of leaving particles on the aperture gate, it polishes and allows unrestricted passage through the projector. The treatment is by a chemical dry process which is claimed to season the new green emulsion on film, allowing an extension of life and reduction of the liability of scratching on sound prints, the latter factor eliminating cloud and rain effects.

New Developments Expected in Situation at Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y.—This city is expecting interesting developments in the keen competitive situation here, which is declared to make Syracuse unique among cities of its size in the United States, with Fox, Warners, Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Publix in the line-up and the last two named planning additional houses. R-K-O's intial expansion is planned in the local suburban field. Fox operates Schines' Eckel and, indirectly, Loew's State; Warners the Strand, Publix the Paramount and R-K-O the Keith's. Salina Theatre Corp. operates the Syracuse and Brighton.

Walker Probe Planned

Inquiry into the building inspection service in New York is to be made soon by an attorney to be named by Mayor Walker to conduct hearings as an aftermath of the Pathe studio fire.

Phila. Houses Switch

Philadelphia—Program changes will be made at the Mastbaum, Fox and Earle on Friday instead of Monday.

A Big Hand

Houston.—Leo, the M-G-M lion, received a bigger hand upon his recent arrival than most of the delegates to the now-famous Democratic convention in 1928. The whole town turned out to watch Mayor Monteith, City Manager Pruter, and Chief of Police McPhail turn over the key to the city's official zoo, on the steps of city hall. The political moguls then proceeded up the main stem to Loew's State where Capt. Volney Phifer put Leo through his paces.

RKO Dickering for Schwartz Circuit of 26 N. Y. Theatres

In an attempt to keep pace with expansion activities of other chains in the Metropolitan area, RKO is understood to have entered a bid for acquisition of the Century Circuit of 26 houses. If sufficient cash is laid on the line, A. H. Schwartz will sell, it is stated.

Schwartz's string is practically the sole survivor in the independent theatre lineup around New York. His houses are reported running in the black and RKO, which has been doing all film buying for Century since last spring, is said to be eager to buy. A deal would strengthen RKO's position in many Brooklyn and Long Island situations. At present, it operates only one house on Long Island, Keith's in Flushing.

When RKO closed the buying deal with Schwartz last spring, it was insisted that the terms also provided for control of the properties. There was, however, a rider inserted in the papers which allowed RKO first choice if Schwartz decided to sell at any time during the life of the contract.

Schwartz has built up a strong unit. He is primarily a theatre builder and is understood to have turned down many offers, including one from Fox, because he insisted upon cash, turning the cold shoulder on offers of stock, or split deals. When RKO first made its offer, the cash angle seemed troublesome, but, it is understood, details to meet that situation are now being worked out.

Schwartz is said to have plans all set for at least a dozen more houses in Brooklyn and Long Island. He started construction of a new house this week in Thompson Hills, between Greenpoint and Long Island City.

B. B. Kahane, general counsel of RKO, yesterday admitted to Motion Picture News that negotiations for the purchase of the Schwartz circuit have been in progress for some time.

Sound a Boon to Providence Exhibs

Providence — The Majestic, 2,400-seat house of the Fay chain, and the first to bring talkies to Providence, this week introduced the Magnifiscope wide screen to the city for the first run of "Show of Shows."

Providence exhibitors assert that 1929 was a banner year and that talkies have materially aided business. "Legit" attractions have been side-tracked and the venerable Opera House has not booked a road show in weeks. Two vaudeville houses, RKO-Albee and Fays, offer the only outside opposition and these, too, rely largely upon feature pictures to bring business.

N. Y. Critics Take Wallops At "Dynamite"; Praise Cast

Reviewing a De Mille picture is usually an occasion for New York critics to go the limit in entering knocks. Reviews of "Dynamite," C. B.'s latest, again demonstrated this. What they said about the story was plenty, although there was general praise for the work of Charles Bickford and Kay Johnson. Several critics hailed the picture as sure-fire entertainment for the mob. A consensus of their reviews follows:

American— . . . dependable entertainment, sure-fire tried and true, which is occasionally scintillating. The plot could not well be more hackneyed.

Daily Mirror—Kay Johnson . . . is a real find . . . has that bizarre, night-marish De Mille quality. . . . But it is lively, beautifully produced and generally entertaining.

Daily News—It's platinum and diamonds to the box-office. Charles Bickford is a grand trouper. . . . Kay Johnson does a fine piece of work. . . .

Evening World— . . . a hodge-podge which is so utterly confusing that it tires you out long before it comes to an interminable end. . . . Kay Johnson . . . superb . . . Bickford . . . excellent. . . .

Graphic— . . . box-office for those who will take their movie entertainment with plenty of excitement. . . .

Herald-Tribune— . . . a pretty silly picture filled with excesses of plot, settings, dialogue and acting. . . .

Morning Telegraph— . . . will awe and thrill the general run of movie audiences but will make small impression on intelligent cinema-goers.

Post— . . . includes spectacles for at least three ordinary motion pictures. . . . It is thoroughly improbable, and so far as logic is concerned, most of it is thoroughly unnecessary.

Sun— . . . spectacular, gaudy, shot through with religious fervor and crossed with cheapness on a big scale. It is really incredible. But it is something that everybody should see. There are vitality and splurge in it. . . .

Times— . . . an astonishing mixture, with artificiality vying with realism and comedy hanging on the heels of grim melodrama.

Telegram— . . . for the most part a slow moving, lengthy, heavy-handed production that has as its only claim to distinction an explosion in a coal mine and some mighty fine acting by Charles Bickford and Kay Johnson. . . .

World— . . . a rather slow-witted and heavy-handed piece of work.

"Dynamite" was caught and reviewed by Motion Picture News on July 27. Highlight of the reviewer's opinion was this:

"It is big box-office stuff."

Brazil Up in Arms Over English Films

Close upon the heels of Mussolini's ban against English talkies in Italy, follows action of the city council in Sao Paolo, Brazil, to squash all showings of pictures with English dialogue, violations bringing a fine of $60 for each exhibition. The city authorities in this Brazilian city have become alarmed over the increasing use of English, influenced solely by introduction of sound films, it is claimed.

Fay Marbe for Talkers

Fay Marble, international star, who left New York last week for the Coast, is to enter talking pictures following completion of the run of "Fay Marbe's Continental Nights" at the Music Box, Los Angeles. The play opens Jan. 15. This is the star's first visit to Los Angeles.

"Lady Letty" Remake

Hollywood—Tiffany has purchased dialogue and film rights to "Moran of the Lady Letty," a Frank Norris story. The production will be made as a special with Technicolor sequences. A silent version of the story was produced by Paramount in 1922.

Tone-O-Graph Opens Branch

Cleveland—Newest Tone-O-Graph branch of North American Sound and Equipment has been opened at 213 Film Bldg., Rube Traube managing.

A Record

Weekly records for the installation of Western Electric sound systems were shattered when 146 installations were completed the week ending Dec. 28, according to C. W. Bunn, general sales manager of Electrical Research Products. Of this number, 91 are domestic and 56 in the foreign field.

The new record establishes an average of one installation every 69 minutes. It tops the previous record of 114 installations during the week of Sept. 21, 1929, an average of one installation every 87 minutes.

42 Houses Wiring for Type G Photophone

Although distribution started but two weeks ago, 42 theatres in various sections are being wired for Type G RCA-Photophone equipment, states Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager.

Among the first to open with the new model were the New Star at Amityville, Long Island; Pilot, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and Stratford, Stratford, Conn. Other theatres in which the Type G model is being installed are:

Concord, Springdale, Ark.; Rialto, Ft. Smith, Ark.; Kinema Escondido, Calif.; Isis, Lamar, Calif.; Palace, Atlanta, Ga.; DeKalb, Decater, Ga.; Orpheum, Eldorado, Ill.; Grant, Cicero, Ill.; Luna, Battle Creek, Ia.; Dickerson, Macon, Mo.; Dickerson, Odessa, Mo.; Mary Lou, Marshall, Mo.; Melvin, St. Louis, Mo.; Roosevelt, St. Louis, Mo.; Red Wing, St. Louis, Mo.; Veterans Memorial St. Louis, Mo.; Hall, Stratford, Neb.; Grandview, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Majestic and Paradise, Brooklyn; Harlem King, New York, N. Y.; Cameo, Schenectady, N. Y.; Capitol, Schenectady, N. Y.; Strand Watertown, N. Y.; Little Carnegie, New York; Luxor, Brooklyn; Palace, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; Palace, Roxboro, N. C.; Broadway, Palmyra, N. J.; Princess Sausalito, Cal.

300 Phonofilms Installed; Rate Is 4 Machines Weekly

With approximately 300 installations already made, De Forest Phonofilm reproducers are being installed at the rate of four a week, R. F. Woodhull, executive vice president, declared prior to his departure from New York on a sales trip to the Middle West. Woodhull is being joined in the Middle West by Col. E. P. Hawkins and Irving M. Lesser.

10 Tone-O-Graphs Installed

North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment has completed ten more Tone-O-Graph installations, including:

THE combination of Victor McLagley and El Brendel as featured players, Raoul Walsh as director and "Billy" K. Wells as dialogue writer is clicking strongly again. This time with "Hot for Paris," which is to play a second week at the Roxy. The quartette was responsible for "The Cock Eyed World."

Ritzy Chanins

The Chanin Tower Bldg., one of New York's newest skyscrapers, contains a miniature theater on which the Chanin brothers sunk a few hundred grand in an effort to make it the most ultra modern private picture house in town. Elaborateness in theatre construction is a pet hobby of the Roxy builders and they went the limit in drawing plans for their own house, on the 51st and 52nd floors.

The theatre is available for public screenings, but New York distributors have not stampeded the place as yet. The rate is $100 per showing, exclusive of operator and projectionist. It has RCA Photophone equipment.

LOTTI LODER, Viennese beauty, is the smallest star on the Warner lot. She is five feet tall and weighs just 90 pounds. P. A. supplies the statistics.

Study Needed to Improve Sound

Found: Great deal of house trouble, due to two balconies, open orchestra pit and hard, unbroken wall and ceiling surfaces. Suggested: Covering pit with some unused drapes and sound-treating walls and ceiling; also re-flaring of horns to reduce some of present reverberation.

Found: Theatre about ready to open with sound, but exhibitor complaining about a hum, which was found to be due to the transformer being picked up. Suggested: Installation of a booster, which was put in with satisfactory results.

Found: Flutter which the exhibitor thought was in one horn, but was found to be due to vibration of the projector speedometers being communicated to the pin jacks from the output cord of the reproducer, thereby making and breaking the contacts; also, the vibration set up a microphonic hum in the amplifier. Suggested: Placing large square of sponge rubber under the amplifier to act as cushion and also placing a piece of rubber between the speedometers and the wall to which they were fastened. This simple remedy was tried, stopped the vibration and materially improved the quality of the sound.

One of the most unusual cases reported by the M-G-M technicians resulted from a good-will visit to a theatre. Discussion of sound problems developed that the management was having occasional trouble with the needle jumping. There seemed, however, to be no difficulty at the moment and the technician was leaving the theatre when one of the employees called him back, saying that the needle had just jumped again. Further investigation showed the difficulty was due solely to the slamming of the projection-booth door. An air-cushion spring on the door solved this sound problem.

56 Features Censored in U.K. in Nov., and 33 in Germany

Washington—German censors in November approved 33 features, of which 16 were home-made and 12 from the States, according to reports received by the Department of Commerce. British censors passed 56 in the same month.

Abbott Resigns; Now in New Field

With this issue of "The Showman," P. M. Abbott concludes an uninterrupted period of six years of service with Motion Picture News by his retirement from the field to assume new and important duties with the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company as advertising representative of "The American Machinist" in the New England territory.

He joined the News in 1921 as technical editor, coming from the Edison Lamp Works with which he was associated as an engineer. His work there in connection with incandescent projection lamps brought him into contact with the motion picture field.

Mr. Abbott was the creator, and executed the entire plan, of "The Buyers' Guide," which was inaugurated in December 1925 and featured the architectural works of C. W. and Geo. L. Rapp. He later assumed the full duties and responsibilities of manager of equipment advertising, and introduced in March 1927 the regular monthly feature, "The Showman."

A year ago it was SOUND that brought big business to the box-office. Today it is COLOR. And Color means Technicolor.

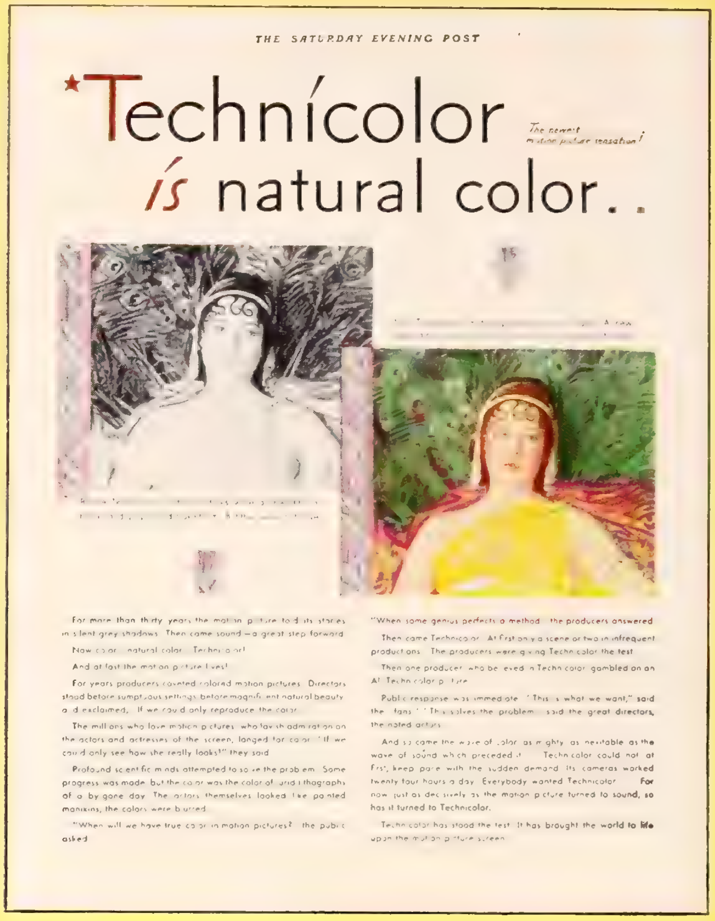
The whole world is unanimous as to Technicolor. The greatest producers are making pictures in Technicolor as fast as Technicolor's cameras and laboratories can turn out the prints.

Technicolor assures the same amazing reproduction of colors, whether the sound is on film or disk. All sound systems look alike to Technicolor.

Technicolor is the only process that gives perfect color values throughout the life of the film. Technicolor film is coated on only one side. It has no back to scratch. The emulsion is harder than that of black and white film and the fourth run theatre gives its patrons the same gorgeous color effects that bring unrestrained praise from the critics at the New York and Hollywood premières.

TECHNICOLOR Is A Box-Office Name. Advertise It!

TECHNICOLOR is a magic box-office name. Advertise it . . . The line, "It's in TECHNICOLOR," is today as important in your advertising as that other superlative box-office phrase, "All Talking" . . . You can guarantee any picture that is photographed in TECHNICOLOR. The great producers use it for the best. ▼ ▼ ▼ ▼



THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

For more than thirty years the motion picture told its stories in silent grey shadows. Then came sound—a great step forward.

Now color . . natural color . . Technicolor!

For years producers coveted colored motion pictures. Directors stood before sumptuous settings, before magnificent natural beauty and exclaimed, "If we could only reproduce the color."

The millions who love motion pictures, who lavish admiration on the actors and actresses of the screen, longed for color. "If we could only see how she really looks!" they said.

Profound scientific minds attempted to solve the problem. Some progress was made, but the color was the color of lurid lithographs of a bygone day. The actors themselves looked like painted manikins, the colors were blurred.

"When will we have true color in motion pictures?" the public asked.

"When some genius perfects a method," the producers answered.

Then came Technicolor. At first only a scene or two in infrequent productions. The producers were giving Technicolor the test.

Public response was immediate. "This is what we want," said the fans. "This solves the problem," said the great directors, the noted actors.

And so came the wave of color as mighty, as inevitable as the wave of sound which preceded it. . . Technicolor could not, at first, keep pace with the sudden demand. Its cameras worked twenty-four hours a day. Everybody wanted Technicolor. . . For now, just as decisively as the motion picture turned to sound, so has it turned to Technicolor.

Technicolor has stood the test. It has brought the world to life upon the motion picture screen.

THE most elaborate, the most effective magazine advertisement that the motion picture industry has ever produced opens Technicolor's amazing national advertising campaign.

Three pages in full color—at $11,500 per page—will startle and intrigue SATURDAY EVENING POST readers of the January 11th issue. On the news-stands Thursday, January 9th.

Fifteen million readers will be thinking and talking Technicolor.

Fifteen million persons will be looking for motion pictures in Technicolor.

Two weeks later—$34,500 more for space in the SATURDAY EVENING POST. The issue of January 25th will carry three more pages in full color.

STAGE LIGHTING

THE Paramount Theatre, the largest in Brooklyn, opened its doors to the public on November 24th, 1928. Originality and the wide use of color lighting effects are characteristic of the presentations offered each week by this Publix Theatre.

The choice of dimmers for the Brooklyn Paramount was naturally a matter that would determine the effectiveness, week in and week out, of the stage show. Effective, flexible lighting on the stage is as important to the modern theatre as the calibre of its pictures or the quality of its sound reproduction.

Ward Leonard Vitrohm (vitreous enamelled) Dimmers are used for stage lighting purposes in the Brooklyn Paramount. It is worthy of note that as new and greater theatres are constructed throughout the country, Ward Leonard Dimmers are almost invariably specified. The theatre owner and chief electrician both know that Ward Leonard's 38 years' experience mean a great deal in modern stage lighting.

Bulletin 75, describing Vitrohm Dimmers and their application to theatre lighting, will be sent free of charge upon request.

BECAUSE they were so highly pleased with Heywood-Wakefield seats at the new Warner in Atlantic City and the Circle at Philadelphia, Warner Brothers have awarded four successive contracts for theatres at Hoboken, Pittsburgh, Springfield (Mass.), and Norwich (Conn.)! Such repeat business as this clearly proves that Heywood-Wakefield seating, once installed, is a money-maker for any theatre. Many other leading showmen have also become convinced that Heywood-Wakefield theatre seating has the extra comfort, class, and box-office appeal needed in the show business today. Publix has ordered over 110,000 H-W chairs in less than two years; Pantages, Orpheum Circuit, Schine, and a host of others have installed thousands and thousands of these stylish and comfortable seats. . . . . Before seating a new house or reseating an old one, it will pay you to investigate the merits of Heywood-Wakefield theatre seating. A note to the nearest H-W sales office will bring you detailed information on the advantages of these popular theatre chairs.

DURFEE THEATRE

Fall River, Mass., marks a notable addition to the fine show places of this country. Its decoration has been developed from the Alhambra Palace, and its architecture is authentically Moorish. The Durfee is the latest unit in the group operated by Nathan Yamins. The architects who designed the structure are Mrs. Maude Parlin and George S. Darling. Interior decorations were designed by Novelty Scenic Studios, New York. Above is a view of the main lobby.

By A. I. Kessler

Novelty Scenic Studios

THEATRE interiors are designed frequently as replicas of familiar, historic places. In the execution of such reproductions, changes are often made that prevent the beauty of the original being realized in the new structure, with a result that is neither authentic nor creditable. During the last few years, however, there have appeared a number of significant theatres, in whose decoration are combined historic fidelity, authentic design, and inspired and skillful color interpretation of the original structure in terms of Theatre.

The new Durfee Theatre in Fall River, Mass., marks a notable addition to these truly fine show places of the country. Its furnishings, decoration, and equipment are second to no theatre in New England, and are said to be unrivaled east of Chicago. Developed from the famous Alhambra Palace in Spain, the architecture and the decorative scheme of the Durfee Theatre are typical and authentically Moorish, and much of the intricate stencil and plaster ornamentation adorning ceiling and wall are as faithful in recreating the original.

The grand foyer is a reproduction of a two story courtyard, paved with black, gold, and pink marble. Its ceiling, transcendently beautiful, represents heavy beams and mouldings, elaborately ornamented, and richly colored. Before a mural landscape on one wall is set a black and gold marble fountain. Wall penetrations reproduce teakwood tracery, and the foyer walls themselves have been given a decorative texture by the hand and palm method of olden times.

The Showman section, a special department devoted to the equipment, building and operation of the theatre plant, is published once a month as a regular feature of Motion Picture News, appearing in the first dated issue of each month. Motion Picture News Publication, Editorial and General Offices: 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City. Paul M. Abbott, Manager of Equipment Advertising. Chicago Office: Harry E. DURFEE THEATRE
FALL RIVER, MASS.

The mezzanine lounge, reached by a spacious marble stairway leading from the foyer, is richly panelled in wood. Its ceiling is of solid silver leaf blending into gold. At each end of the ceiling is a decorative Moorish study of flowers and birds, wrought into a lunette.

The proscenium arch is done in red, blue, gold and silver. Its huge frame, running from floor to ceiling has red negative and gold positive ornament with green and gold glaze on either side. Its alabastine columns are capped with solid gold. The predominating color, or "singing note" of the auditorium ceiling is red, supplemented by green, grey, gold, lacquered silver, and the mother of pearl effect given the light domes. Seven colors, light green, dark red, vermilion, blue, blue-green, violet-grey, and a neutral ground, are stenciled in the side wall decoration of the auditorium. Above the side walls is a frieze in red, gold, blue and grey, with ivory columns and alternating designs in stencil. The predominating note of the organ loft is a high-keyed yellow-green, supplemented by red and gold, and gold capped alabastine columns. The balcony face is a high-keyed red, with harmonizing green, grey, and brown, gold capped ivory columns and stencilled Moorish rose patterns.

Specially Designed Carpeting

A specially designed carpeting covers aisles, crossovers, mezzanine floor, and grand stairways. The grand valance is of heavily draped flame satin. The stage curtain and the draperies of the organ loft, exit doorways, side wall penetrations, mezzanine, and grand foyer are made of a fabric especially imported from France. This material, of gold and grey on a slightly suppressed red, resembles a brocade tapestry. The asbestos curtain is decorated with a ship on a silent sea, with fabulous castles showing through a background of clouds. The picture setting is elaborate, and consistent with the Moorish design of the whole theatre.

The Durfee Theatre is unsurpassed in comfort and technical equipment, as well as in beauty. Several hundred seats have been sacrificed in the generous spacing of the luxurious, newest type seats installed. The mezzanine contains a commodious lounge and perfectly appointed retiring rooms and lavatories.

The talking moving picture equipment is the most improved development of the Bell laboratories. Stage equipment is of the latest type and completely counter-weighted. The large three-manual organ and the orchestra pit are raised and lowered on elevators. Elaborate lighting equipment includes an unusual balcony front baby spot equipment, and a three color circuit house lighting system giving any desired color quality in the light domes of the auditorium ceilings, in the organ loft, and in the side wall penetrations.

Applies Symphonic Color Theory

The harmony of color achieved in the interior decoration of the Durfee Theatre is a successful application of the theory of symphonic color. Color is employed by the artist-designer just as the musician employs musical tones. The colors are arranged to correspond with the piano keyboard, and harmony of hue is obtained by "testing the colors by ear." With the vari-colored lighting system operating on the ceiling, in the organ loft, and in the side wall penetrations, the interior of the auditorium can be attuned to the mood of the program, musical and visual.

The Durfee Theatre is the latest unit in the group managed and operated by Nathan Yamins, popular New England showman and known the country over. Mr. Yamins spared no expense in giving the people of Fall River deluxe house of the very highest type.

The architects responsible for the structure were Mrs. Maude D. Parlin and George S. Darling. To Mrs. Parlin, especially, belongs the credit for much of the beauty achieved in this new palace of entertainment. The interior decorations, draperies, scenery, and rigging were designed and executed by the Novelty Scenic Studios of New York City.

Broadway and Seventy-fourth Street, New York City

BROADWAY'S NEW THEATRE OPENED BY WARNERS

Beacon is a distinguished newcomer to Manhattan's Midtown Section

WARNER BROTHERS dedicated a noteworthy addition to the growing circuit operated by that company with the formal opening, on Christmas Eve, of the new Beacon theatre on Broadway at 74th St., New York City. Thus, to the usual festive atmosphere which surrounds the opening of new de luxe playhouses there was in this case the added gala colorings which mark the holiday season.

The Beacon numbers among its many advantages a location that appears to have ideal features for the popular type of picture theatre. The immediate neighborhood is composed of many hotels, both of the residential and transient type, and many large apartment houses. These are sources of a great potential patronage for both the everyday and holiday trade. The building is a combination hotel and theatre project.

In many respects of its design and the atmosphere of its interior decoration, the Beacon is reminiscent of the Roxy. Indeed, the original plans called for this new playhouse to be a midtown representative of the limited string of select theatres which were to be affiliated with the Roxy and to feature presentations sent out from the big Cathedral of the Motion Picture at 50th St. and 7th Ave. The design—originated by the architects responsible for the Roxy, W. W. Ahlschlager, Inc.—intentionally was to be suggestive of the Roxy, therefore. It is suggestive rather than initative.

Exterior Beacon Theatre

The Beacon has a seating capacity of about 2,800 persons. Its construction is orchestra, mezzanine and balcony. The impressive sweeping horizontal curves characteristic of the Roxy auditorium have been most successfully adapted to this smaller playhouse. The entrance is from Broadway through an outer lobby, in which there is an island ticket booth. The introduction to the interior is at the entrance into the main lobby, a beautifully proportioned circular hall with a high dome reaching above the mezzanine level. Green marble wainscoting, a very colorful mural over the entrance, a high arch above the entrance to the orchestra foyer and opening onto the mezzanine level, are striking features of the lobby. To the right of the main entrance is a stairway leading to the mezzanine and balcony.

The orchestra foyer curves about the rear of the auditorium, enclosed from the foyer and entered through aisle doors. The foyer serves as a lounge. The main lounge is below the orchestra level. This is a richly decorated and furnished room, with ladies' room and men's smoking rooms opening off it.

The balcony projects well out into the auditorium, extending closer to the stage than the mezzanine, which is immediately under it and the curves of which follow the balcony.

The decorative style carried throughout the Beacon is a free adaptation of Romanesque, with old gold predominating as the color scheme. For its proportions as well as the decorative scheme, the auditorium of the Beacon is a noteworthy example of modern theatre design. There is a feeling of strength and dignity, but without sacrifice of those theatrical qualities of emotional appeal, which gives great distinction to this handsome, impressive auditorium.

The old gold coloring predominates in the auditorium, the focus of which is a very unusual proscenium treatment. From the upper balcony, the mezzanine, as well as from all points in the orchestra, the spectator's eye is drawn down to the stage, or screen, frame by converging lines which are given increasing emphasis as they near the proscenium. The stage opening is finely proportioned for stage and screen presentations. And the stage "flows through" into the auditorium through an arrangement of design and decoration that strikes your correspondent as exceptionally adroit in its handling.

Above the proscenium is a huge canopy, worked out in ornamental plaster and featuring notably fine detail, which is supported by tall spears, covered in deep red velvet and tilting outward from the floor at the stage line to the canopy which forms a graceful curve from the line at the square dome of the ceiling to the proscenium. This canopy serves as the organ loft. The arrangement appears to offer an excellent device for the location of public address horns required for the especially large theatre—particularly to distribute sound to the upper balconies.

The most striking decorative features of the auditorium are the murals located high on the side walls. These are executed in rich and strong colors nicely calculated to harmonize with the tonal values of the auditorium scheme. They are framed by majestic columns in deep recesses, with reflected light from above to give them added emphasis. The subjects are Oriental, featuring Arabian camel caravans from the East and Indian elephant troupes from the Orient bearing precious possessions to the galleys in the harbors. The underlying thought is an expression of the architect's idea of bringing richness and beauty to the stage, and the stage's drawing on distant lands in its effort to more gorgeously arrange its spectacles.

EGYPTIAN ATMOSPHERIC THEATRE IN NEW ENGLAND

Is Second in Chain of Open-Air Type Playhouses Built by Netoco; Stadium Plan Construction with 2,300 Seating Capacity

ONE of the most elaborate theatres built in New England opened recently. It is the Netoco Egyptian Theatre at 326 Washington St., Brighton, Mass.

The Egyptian Theatre is the second in a chain of atmospheric theatres being constructed for Netoco under the direction of the president, Samuel Pinanski, who helped draw up the plans and supervised the most intimate details of the Egyptian Theatre. He introduced the idea of the atmospheric theatres in New England, of which the Seville, in East Boston, was the first. An oriental theatre is to be the third in the chain.

The entire lobby and foyer is covered with a carpet of Egyptian design, woven especially for this theatre. A conventional Egyptian flower is the motif.

Indirect lighting effects, a large lounge filled with comfortable chairs, an illuminated fountain and an electric fireplace with a comfortable Egyptian fire-seat are among the things which attract the eye as one enters the theatre.

A vanity room for women on the left of the grand foyer is of especial interest. The room is treated as a huge tent, and the walls and ceiling are draped with gayly colored materials. Dainty tables for powdering and hair-combing are found in this vanity room.

Of similar design is the women's retiring room. Not only is this room draped as if it were an Egyptian tent on the sands of the Sahara, but there are comfortable chairs and three-legged tables of Egyptian design. A chaise longue with gilt lion's heads for the arms and gilt claws for the feet is the most striking piece of furniture in this room.

The men's room is decorated with mission furniture and has Egyptian pieces as well.

Perhaps the most elaborate part of the building is the theatre Auditorium itself. The huge theatre seats 2,300 persons, and is built on the stadium plan with no balcony. Every seat is a good seat from which all parts of the stage may be seen.

The seats are of black moleskin with backs upholstered in jacquard velour with an Egyptian design woven into the material.

Suggests Egyptian Temple

The walls of the theatre appear to be made of great blocks of stone, such as the pyramids were built of, and great columns support the heavy cornice, after the style of an Egyptian temple. Around the walls of the auditorium, as in the foyer, hang genuine Egyptian tapestry each different color in the design is a different piece of cloth, appliqued upon the linen background.

One of the novelties of the theatre is an orchestra pit, which rises or is lowered at the command of the orchestra leader. Urns with flowers and a real, colored fountain

The ceiling of the auditorium, when it is lighted, shows white clouds chasing each other over a blue background, while stars twinkle merrily.

Perhaps the most beautiful part of the stage are the various curtains. The asbestos curtain is painted to represent an Egyptian scene, and it seems to be a continuation of the theatre walls. One is looking at a temple, with its partially ruined columns, the River Nile in the distance and the Pyramids, half-seen.

Series of Stage Curtains

The asbestos curtain rises to disclose another Egyptian scene. This curtain represents a temple entrance, with an immense Egyptian figure on the terrace and the desert and ruins in the background.

Then the third curtain shows a scene on the River Nile, with a ship and a painted sail in the foreground and still another glimpse of the desert.

The fourth curtain is made of lace, said to be of Egyptian pattern, while the last and most beautiful curtain of all is made of gleaming gold satin which rolls back in graceful folds.

William Murphy is the new manager of the theatre. He was formerly with the Embassy Theatre in Waltham.

Frederick Laurans is assistant manager and Jacob Lourie, general manager of all the Netoco Theatres, is the managing director.

Assisting Mr. Pinanski in planning the Egyptian Theatre was Leroy O. Andrews, technical director of construction, projection and equipment for the Netoco chain, which comprises about 50 theatres in New England.

While many of the theatres in this group are ambitious examples of modern architecture and showmanship, this newest representative of Netoco is the most striking and impressive. It has captured the imagination and interest of that public for whom it is designed.

The Palatial Talkie Theatre Makes Its Bow in the Far East

Prosperous Future for Audible Films in Malaya's English Speaking Territories Foreseen by Sponsors of Capitol Theatre Project

An Interview With

Joe Fisher

Managing Director, Capitol Theatres, Ltd., Singapore

SOME time next month—about February 15th to be more exact—there will be opened to the large English speaking population of Singapore and Malaya, a picture theatre which, in every physical feature of its distinctly modern construction and appointment, will provide every worthwhile patron-comfort that is to be found in the most advanced picture palaces of the United States and Europe.

This outstanding example of the up-to-the-minute showmanship is the new Capitol theatre, now nearing completion at the junction of North Bridge and Stamford Roads—the very heart of Singapore, under the sponsorship of the Capitol Theatres, Ltd.

More than the ordinary interest which the Trade accords to an important theatre opening, attaches to this new ambassador of the motion picture in a corner of the World that is far distant from the source of motion picture productions and the many inventions and commodities which showmen have summoned to aid them in winning the public fancy and approval.

It is of more than ordinary interest to the motion picture producers, and the men and women of this country engaged in the creative work of screen production, as well as the engineers, designers and makers of essential studio and theatre equipment, that this most modern expression of the motion picture theatre in the East has been designed particularly for the type of picture entertainment made in America. And carries out in its design and equipment the ideals toward which the American showman has been directing his talents and energies for the past several years. Moreover, it is the finest product of Hollywood that will be the main feature of presentations at the Capitol in Singapore—and the finest of equipment made by American manufacturers that will be employed in presenting pictures and serving patrons at this de luxe motion picture theatre in the East.

The Capitol theatre in Singapore, scheduled to open next month, will bring to the East every new feature developed for the de luxe presentation of talking pictures and allied entertainments. The screen feature of the inaugural program will be Paramount's "Innocents of Paris."

The theatre has a seating capacity of 2,000, features a modern ventilating and cooling system, de luxe equipment throughout, and will present the newest screen features from the leading studios of Hollywood and Europe. The Capitol occupies a site in the heart of the city of Singapore and will be operated by Capitol Theatres, Ltd., of Singapore.

This entire enterprise, a most modern project, is scaled to the Western idea of commercial development. The Capitol theatre will be the heart of a huge structure covering an area of 76,000 square feet. The entire plant will be completed at a cost of a million and a quarter dollars. In addition to the theatre, which will seat about 2,000 persons, there will be 16 shops and 48 apartments. The structure is of steel and concrete, fireproof throughout. It is to occupy a downtown city cite which in Singapore corresponds to Times Square in New York, Trafalgar Square in London, Place de l'Opera in Paris—the very center of the city's activities.

The exterior of the theatre will be distinguished by a flood of illumination, with the front entrance 87 feet wide and 95 feet high. The exterior architecture is of modern design—the entire plan being executed by the architect firm of Keys and Dowdeswell, designers of the post office building in Singapore. There will be a complete cooling system, talking picture system, luxurious opera chairs, colorful decorations, 4-color lighting system—in brief every aid to modern showmanship included in this fine theatre.

First of its Scale in East

The bare details thus recounted to motion picture men in this country may seem a commonplace recital due to their frequent contact with the outstanding theatres which stud the cities of the United States. But the unusualness of this particular enterprise is more readily appreciated by recalling that the Capitol is the first theatre of its scale to appear in the East. Moreover, it is, perhaps, the most spectacular kind of evidence that "the twain" of East and West meets through a common bond of interest in the motion picture that speaks.

It has been said already, that the Capitol is modern in design and construction—which means modern in the Western sense. To the Western idea it must seem strange that in the excavation work and the building of this structure, female laborers did the heavy work, which is in accordance with the established custom of the land. The down town site on which the Capitol theatre has been erected is but seven miles from the golf course used by the English population of the City, the scene only recently of the killing of a man-eating tiger.

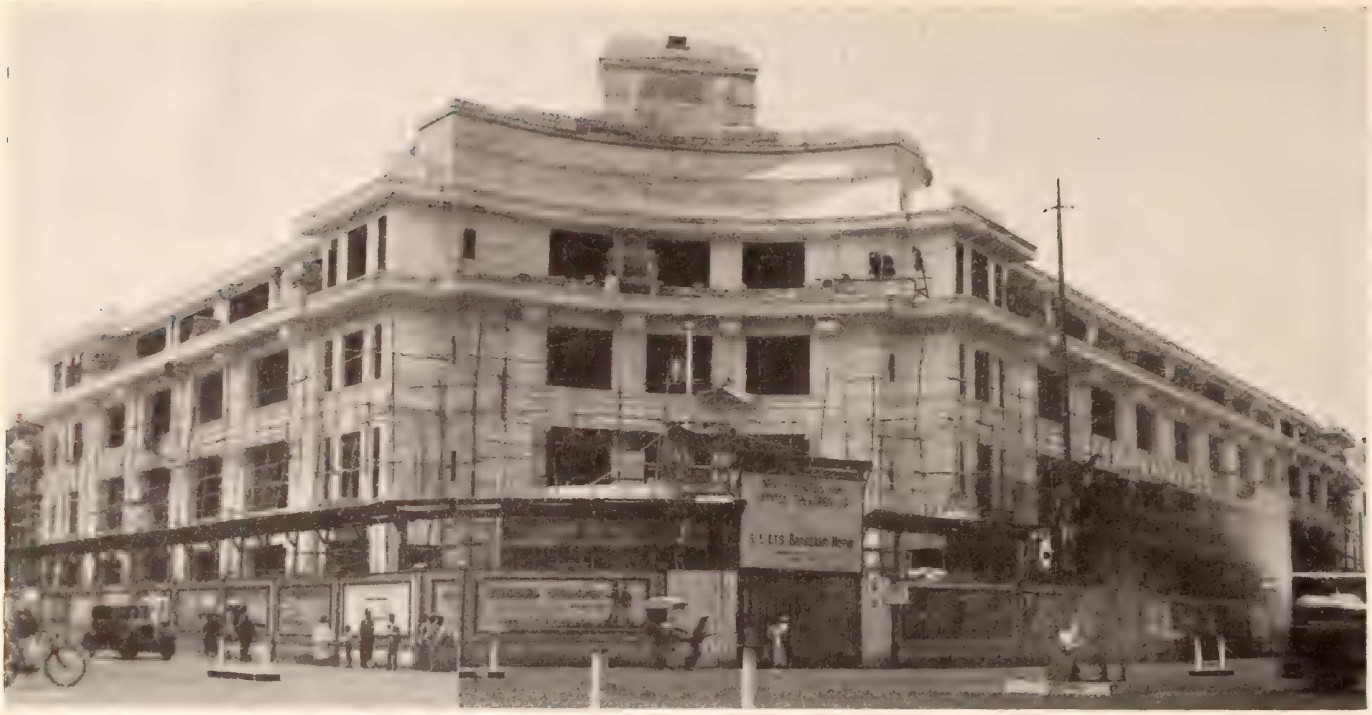
Seating Capacity 2,000

The Capitol theatre will have seating accommodations on the ground floor for about 1,400, with 600 seats in the grand circle, or mezzanine. The upper section of the theatre offers the choicest accommodations. Consequently the ventilation system, designed by a British engineering firm, provides for a downward flow of air from the main ceiling. The air is taken in at the basement, cleansed and filtered there, and forced up through ducts in the walls and fed into the auditorium from above. The exhaust ducts are located in the main floor. An-

American Equipment

The major equipment in the new Capitol theatre, Singapore, is of the highest standard manufactured in the United States and used in the leading motion picture theatres in this country—which served as the model after which sponsors of the palatial theatre in the East have planned their project.

The entire booth and technical equipment, as well as chairs, drapes and stage decorations were bought in this country by Joe Fisher, managing director of Capitol Theatres, Ltd., who recently came to America to purchase the selected equipments to be installed in the theatre.



Nearing Completion

This view of the Capitol Theatre taken last month shows the building nearing completion. The jinrickisha supplies a bit of typical contrast. The Capitol building covers an area of 76,000 square feet. Main entrance to the theatre is at the corner, set back to provide private carriage entrance.

other aid to cooling is provided by an arrangement which makes it possible to open the roof over the auditorium, leaving an aperture of 40 feet open to the sky. This sliding-roof can be opened and closed quickly.

The latest talking picture productions from Hollywood will be the main feature of entertainments at the Capitol, with stage presentations—divertissements featuring ballet and music—as accompanying features. The sound installation is a Western Electric system, now being installed by engineers of E. R. P. I. sent to Singapore with the apparatus.

The opera chairs are of the newest design made by an American manufacturer. These are Heywood-Wakefield chairs equipped with aisle lights, deep upholstery and rich coverings. Stage curtains and draperies were designed and executed by the Novelty Scenic Studios of New York; complete booth equipment is by National Theatre Supply Co.; curtain controls by the Vallen Electric Company, of Akron—and so on through the major equipment features of the Capitol are to be found the newest offerings of American manufacturers.

Hollywood's Product

Talking pictures will have a great popular appeal in the East—in those cities where there is a large English speaking population. However, there is grave doubt as to the success of these pictures in the interior, where the native tongue is spoken. For there tastes are so different that even the music—the songs and the orchestrations which accompany the talkie or sound production from Hollywood or London, Berlin or Paris—have no appeal to the native population.

But in the English speaking centers of the East, the talkie is as great a potential popular entertainment as it is in America.

Up to this point, this article has been concerned with reporting what Mr. Joe Fisher related concerning the new theatre in Singapore, during his recent visit to New York. It should be of equal interest to the trade here to consider some of the side-lights which reflect upon this outstanding motion project.

For example, the social and political features which are connected with theatre operation in the East. Of course, it is known that a strict censorship is in effect there. The Government does not allow for exhibition any screen offerings which come under the ban of a stringent regulation of theatrical performances. Even theatre advertising is censored.

De Luxe Showmanship

The most modern touches of showmanship will be a feature of the advertising and presentations in the Capitol. The dedication performance will feature a personal message from Joe Fisher, managing director, made from the audible screen by means of a special "trailer" produced at the Paramount studios in Long Island.

The entire facilities of the Long Island talkie plant were placed at the disposal of the directors who made this special talkie of Mr. Fisher giving his welcome address to the first-night patrons of the Capitol.

Novel advertising displays include a blimp made by the Goodyear Company, which will float above the theatre. This will be floodlighted, and also will serve as a "screen in the sky" on which scenes from coming attractions will be projected.

The type of picture ideally suited to the East, both with regard to its suitability to audience taste and the regulations of the censor, is "The Love Parade," Mr. Fisher said. The other extreme, the picture that would be cut or perhaps banned altogether and which would not be popular in that country, he said was represented by "Applause." Both of these pictures, singularly enough the product of the one producing company, were current attractions at the Criterion and the Paramount, on Broadway, when this interview was given by the man who is responsible for the entire undertaking which will culminate with the formal opening of the Capitol theatre in Singapore next month.

Strand Theatres Equipped with Magnascopic Screens

An enlarging screen, its maximum surface giving a "full stage" picture, has been installed in the New York and Brooklyn Strand theatres operated by Warner Brothers. The screen with its automatically controlled drapes, or masks, was installed by Peter Clark, who designed and built the first "magnascope" screen used in the premiere presentation of "Old Ironsides" at the Criterion in New York. The screen brings the action of the picture—especially where there are singing and dancing ensembles—thrillingly home to audiences. It affords a picture 22 by 28 feet.

THE Carrier System for Air Conditioning was the first to offer complete temperature and humidity control . . . the downward diffusion of air . . . safe, simple, compact Centrifugal Refrigeration. Now, continuing this leadership, there is added to all of these proven features the SOUND LIMIT GUARANTEE.

In the Sound Studios Carrier Systems are providing adequate ventilation and cooling without the slightest interference with recording.

The theatre equipped with the most modern Carrier System offers not only the maximum of physical comfort to the patrons, but is permitted to reduce amplification and distortion with a corresponding improvement in reproduction and audibility.

The Carrier System for Air Conditioning is the only system guaranteed on a scientific DB. basis as to SOUND LEVEL. Added to all the well-known Carrier perfected features of control is now the SOUND LEVEL GUARANTEE.

* A decibel (db.) is the unit of sound above the extreme lower limit of audibility.

Write Your Own Answers to These Questions, Mr. Service Man!

—and check-up with answers to appear in a later issue of The Showman

By John F. Rider

MUCH has been written about what the interested projectionist should know in order to satisfactorily operate sound equipment. What about the service man? He too must possess some qualifying knowledge. While it is true that the process of amplification as employed in a talkie system is very similar to that found in the radio field, there are numerous items found in public address systems which are foreign to radio.

Generally speaking, service work in the sound field encompasses numerous fields of study—acoustics, resonance, filter circuits, are a few of the important items supplemented by vacuum tube operation, impedance relation, etc. We have prepared a series of questions suitable for application in the quest to determine the qualifications of a service man. These questions have been found useful along such lines. Their application is general, since they cover items in general. The man who can reply in a satisfactory manner can very readily adapt himself to whatever special equipment may be involved in any one specific installation because he is in possession of the required background. The questions are divided into groups covering the respective phases of talkie service work.

SOUND.

1. What is the nature of sound?
2. How does sound travel from the point of generation?
3. Illustrate the action taking place when a sound wave strikes a surface of different elasticity than the original medium, air.
4. What is reverberation in a room?
5. What is meant by cavity resonance—in an alcove—in a space housing a single speaker or a number of speakers?
6. Do walls vibrate?
7. What is an echo?
8. How can one reduce the period of reverberation in a room?
9. What is the effect of incorrectly connecting speaker coils upon the sound heard in different parts of a theatre?
10. What is the effect of a very low period of reverberation upon music?
11. Does the sound heard in a balcony of theatre come directly from the source, the speaker? Explain at short length.
12. Does sound travel at constant speed through all media?
13. What is reflection of sound?
14. How can it be minimized?

PHONOGRAPH PICK-UPS.

1. Are all phonograph pick-ups suitable for use with any one amplifier installation?
2. What arrangement must be employed in order to adapt a phonograph pick-up to an amplifier?
3. What is the effect of excessive tension upon the tone arm?
4. Mention six reasons for a "dead" pick-up unit.
5. Mention six reasons for distortion due to the action of the pick-up unit.
6. Mention two reasons for unsteady reproduction.
7. State the general difference between a "low impedance" and a "high impedance" pick-up unit.
8. Is a steady D. C. voltage required to operate a phonograph pick-up?
9. What is the "impedance matching" transformer mentioned in connection with phonograph pick-ups?
10. Fill in the required words. "The voltage output of a phonograph pickup is a function of the.................."

1. What is the principle of operation governing the action of the photo-electric cell?
2. What is the function of the collector ring?
3. What is the action of the polarizing voltage?
4. Draw a wiring diagram of the connections to the conventional photo-electric cell.
5. What is the function of gas in such a cell when it is deliberately inserted?
6. What adjustment is necessary when a glow is noticed in a cell?
7. Mention a simple method of testing a cell when it is connected into the conventional amplifying circuit.
8. What is the effect of insufficient polarizing voltage?

FILTERS AND EQUALIZERS.

1. What is the difference between a series and a parallel resonant circuit?
2. What is the relation of impedances at resonance in a parallel and in a series circuit?
3. Which circuit is suitable for use with a phonograph pickup to remove the scratch?
4. Show an arrangement similar to that mentioned in question 3.
5. Which arrangement is suitable for use to remove a bump in the responsive curve of a speaker?
6. Suppose the current through a speaker winding at a resonant frequency is 1 ampere, and it is desired to reduce the current through the coil at this frequency to approximately .5 ampere. The speaker has an impedance of 18 ohms. What will be the impedance of the circuit which will reduce the current flow in the speaker coil and how is this circuit connected?
7. Arrange a series resonant circuit wherein it is possible to alter the resonant frequency by means of three fixed condensers.
8. Show the diagram of a series resonant circuit employing an inductance which has a D. C. resistance of .6 ohm, which arrangement at resonance must have an impedance of 230 ohms.

VACUUM TUBES.

1. What are the three important electrical constants of the vacuum tube?

2. What relation between these three constants signifies a good amplifying tube?

3. What is the difference between tubes known as voltage amplifiers and power amplifiers?

4. What is the function of the grid bias voltage?

5. What limitation with respect to location in the receiver does the amplification constant of a vacuum tube impose?

6. How does the output voltage of a voltage amplifier tube vary with the input voltage?

7. How does the output power of a power amplifier tube vary with the input voltage?

9. What is meant by an overloaded tube?

10. What is grid current? . . . Plate current?

11. What is the effect of insufficient grid bias? . . . Of excessive grid bias?

12. What is the effect of insufficient plate voltage? . . . Filament voltage?

13. What is the difference between the conventional filament type of A. C. tube and the cathode type of A. C. tube?

14. Show a stage of resistance coupling . . . impedance coupling . . . transformer coupling, using the filament type of tube for the transformer and the cathode type of tube for the other two systems.

15. What is the relation between tube plate impedance and load impedance for maximum power output . . . for maximum undistorted power output?

BATTERIES.

1. Show series and parallel connection of two 6 volt storage batteries.
2. Show connection of four 6 volt batteries in series-parallel.
3. What value of resistance is required to charge these batteries from a 120 volt D. C. line when 5 amperes is to flow

In Every Theatre built by Fox...you will find American Chairs

MORE than 25 years ago, the founder of the Fox Theatres chose "American" chairs for his first theatre. Today he continues to buy them for his great network of theatres the country over.

A significant record . . . a patronage founded on sterling performance—and consistent, unrelenting building of quality into "American" chairs. Beyond this, features of comfort, beauty and durability have always been factors in moulding the great exhibitor preference for theatre chairs built by this organization.

New and Improved Equipment

A Review of the Latest Developments in Theatre Engineering

New Features of Design in Tone-O-Graph Models

THE new Tone-O-Graph sound equipment, made and distributed by the North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment Corporation, New York, embodies many improved features recently introduced.

The amplifying system consists of a rack with two identical amplifiers, one being used as a regular and the other as an emergency. Each amplifier consists of three stages of transformer coupling, the first stage employing a 227 heater type tube, the second stage, also employing a 227 heater type tube, and the third stage employing two 250 type power tubes in push pull. Two type 281 tubes are employed as rectifiers and the amplifier is completely operated from the alternating current line.

The center panel consists of a switching panel allowing the operator to turn on and off each amplifier and to transfer from one to the other. The field circuit for the dynamic units located on the stage are also controlled from this panel. Each switch has its own indicating lamp. The volume of the Monitor is controlled by a variable resister on the panel.

Both amplifiers can be operated in parallel for greater current output. Each amplifier delivers a gain of 68 D. B. with a maximum undistorted output of 15 watts. The frequency range of this amplifier varies only 2 D. B. from 60 to 6000 cycles.

The horns are the exponential type using the dynamic type unit. Each unit requires a field voltage of 7 volts at one ampere. This is furnished by an exciter, employing a dry type rectifier and operated by 110 volts, alternating current controlled from the switching panel on the amplifier rack.

Vitadisc Turntable Unit

The fader impedence matches the output of the photo electric cell amplifier for film reproduction and reproducer for disc reproduction to the input of the power amplifier. This fader incorporates 15 taps, one tap containing its own resistance.

The reproducers manufactured by Tone-O-Graph are of two types. The small machine consists of a ¼ H. P. 1200 R. P. M. motor and the necessary gear units all mounted on a common base with the turn table gear unit mounted on a special insulated cushion which removes all vibration. The machine in turn drives the projector by means of a silent chain running on noiseless sprockets.

The large machine consists of two stands, one supports the turn table, the other, the motor and gear box. This machine also drives the projector by means of the above mentioned silent chain.

New Low-Cost Synchronous Disc Equipment

A NEW low-cost synchronous disc equipment has been brought to the market by the Vitadisc Co., Rochester, N. Y. The equipment is trade marked "Vitadisc," and is designed to supply the demand for synchronous reproducer systems for theatres restricted as to the investment that can be made to present talkies. The Vitadisc Co., is specializing in the production of turntables, with pick-up and fader included with each unit. Amplifier systems and speakers are purchased as additional equipment, and may be obtained through the company or bought directly from manufacturers.

The Vitadisc equipment sells for $200 for each unit, which includes pick-up and fader. The equipment features a turntable of new design, with ball bearings and built to connect directly to the main crank shaft of the projector, a spring suspended filter being used to eliminate vibrations through the mechanical drive.

Change-Over Detached from Projector is Introduced

A NEW change-over device, for which patent was recently received, has been brought on the market by the Acme Engineering Corp., Houston, Texas. Will Horowitz, head of the Horwitz-Texan Theatres, operating the Texan, Iris and Ritz theatres in Houston, is interested in the organization which is manufacturing and distributing the new change-over.

The device employs one celonoid with a double acting coil. The unit is mounted in the port opening entirely removed from the projection machine. Instantly the switch is thrown the electricity is cut off, a feature of protection eliminating possibility of burning the coil. In addition to its automatic operation, the change-over can be manually operated.

The unit is nickel plated throughout and delivered completely wired and hooked-up except for attaching to a terminal plug. Another feature is that the device may be operated from the 50 volt lamp circuit.

Theatre for Pearisburg

A three-story theatre, store and apartment building is to be erected in Pearisburg, Va., by Mrs. Frank B. Miller. Plans were drawn by Garry and Sheffey, Architects of Bluefield. The building will measure 46 by 80 feet and is to be constructed of concrete, steel with wood floors and a built up roof.

Your Theatre needs

THEATER patrons are amazed and delighted with the wonderful results produced by Arctic Nu-Air. It at once establishes your house as a place where one can enjoy a show in supreme COMFORT.

Arctic Nu-Air puts to rout all the drawbacks, annoyance and lost profits due to hot, stuffy air. It changes the most unpleasant feature of many a theater into a positive attraction.

A year-round profit earner. In winter it provides perfect ventilation and saves hundreds of dollars in fuel costs. In summer it floods your auditorium with a deluge of pure, fresh air in steady cooling currents to every part of the house. Regulated exactly to suit conditions by exclusive remote, hydraulic control.

NOISELESS operation. So quiet that the audience cannot even hear it above a whisper. It does away with all the roar, slapping noises and rumble of old-style equipment.

Analysis of Showman Building Reports Show—

¶ Comparison with two previous years reveals Southwest territory shatters records for new theatre construction. Other territorial divisions fall behind predictions for 1929 and volume of expenditures in 1928 and 1927. Suspension of projected plans traces to uncertainty regarding effect of Sound on theatre design, operating policies, etc. Record year in volume of sales of equipment indicate huge remodelling work done during past year. Theatre attendance continues to hold up to peak marks reached since talkies established popularity.

ANALYSIS of the monthly theatre building reports published during 1929 by The Showman for purposes of compiling totals of new projects announced during the twelve-month, with averages for cost per project, cost per seat, seating capacities, etc., bring a result that was indicated in the early portion of the year. Namely, that plans executed by builders were below the figure predicted at the outset of the year, and 1929, therefore passes into history as a year of curtailment in the cycle of heavy new building operations which began in 1925.

Comparison of the building in the various territorial divisions of the United States for 1929 and the two preceding years is shown in the following table:

Section	1929	1928	1927
New England......	$10,351,000	$21,920,000	$18,637,500
North Atlantic.....	37,332,150	43,114,000	54,747,500
South Eastern.....	3,223,000	4,167,000	6,995,000
South Western.....	18,293,150	3,777,000	11,012,500
Middle	46,863,100	71,620,000	93,367,500
Western	8,771,550	17,340,000	14,892,500
West Coast........	32,453,550	*	*

*West Coast group formerly included with Western Division.

Building operations in the South Western division, which reached the unprecedented total for that section of $18,293,150, supply the outstanding surprise in the 1929 upset of advance predictions for new theatre building in the United States.

The year's activities were marked by hesitancy, with the sentiment decidedly leaning more toward a temporary suspension of contemplated building operations than a definite program of curtailment. The reasons for this postponement unquestionably traced to the state flux into which the industry had been thrown by the sound development. Out of the rapidly changing conditions which followed in the wake of the new dispensation bringing audibility to the screen—a changed technic of picture production; a realignment of the character and type of that composite known as the movie-going public; new apparatus; changed conditions of operation; and not a little the seeming nearness of a changed standard of film and projection—all combined to put the builder into an uncertain frame of mind regarding the safest course to pursue with regard to projected enterprises—the capacity best suited to new conditions, the design most likely to harmonize with another attitude and atmosphere from that which had become standard and established in the days when pictures were silent shadows on the screen. The experience gained during the year past, however, already has laid the foundation for a tradition, a charted course for the builder and the designer to follow in the creation of new playhouses for the presentation of the now more popular than ever Motion Picture.

As indicated on the map on page 58 the territory in which building was heaviest is the Middle States; with the North Atlantic and West Coast groups next; the South Western and New England states next and the Western group lowest in the amount of new building announced during 1929.

The following figures represent the totals reported from month to month during the year. Total number of new projects, 539; total estimated cost of construction $157,287,500; average cost per project, $291,812.61; total number of new seats, 575,146; average seating capacity, 1,400; and average cost per seat, $207.74.

These figures do not account for the large amount of remodelling that was done during the year. The extent to which this work was carried on is indicated by the large volume of business done by equipment distributors. 1929 proved a banner year in the sale of new equipment, a great amount of it, of course, consisting of apparatus and theatre furnishings made necessary by the installation of sound systems. Nevertheless, the volume of equipment sales was greater than that which could be attributed solely to needs created by the addition of reproducing apparatus to existing theatres. Carpets, draperies, new furnishings, improved technical equipment for booth and stage, all were sold on a large scale and contributed importantly to the net result which found equipment concerns writing the greatest amount of business in their history.

The work of revamping theatres will be a large factor in the coming year, for the trend in this direction steadily increased as 1929 drew toward its closing days. The sound development has brought a "new deal" all around, and as equipment men have declared, the exhibiting branch of the industry has proved itself not only willing but capable of giving the talkies the kind of support they needed to attain their great popularity —that is the addition of new equipment, refurbishment of theatre plants, everything to sell the public the idea that with the talkies has come a new era not only in the form of the screen entertainment but as well in the manner of its presentation.

Building of new theatres in 1930 is expected to surpass by a good margin that done during the year past. A very large number of projected operations that awaited developments in the new order of things will go forward, now that there is a more stable foundation upon which to base policies with regard to design, capacities, provision for equipment, and operating plans. These added to the amount of new building for which a real need exists, gives promise that 1930 will see a substantial increase over 1929 in the matter of new theatre construction.

THE talkies have come through another severe test with colors flying. This is the period just prior to and at the beginning of the annual pre-holiday "slump," which this year followed in the wake of an unfavorable business condition created by the memorable stock market crash. Averages, despite the added handicap this year have held up to better marks than ever in the past, for the period on which we report.

The report covers the November 15 to December 15th period, the last week of the period, therefore, coming at a time when the effects of the usual pre-holiday let-down becomes manifest.

The Thanksgiving holiday proved a big factor in padding the grosses of the theatres for this period. However, the extra business done over this holiday was, so far as can be estimated from reports on key city attendence averages, about proportional in its advance over previous years with the general trend

The map of the United States shown here is divided into seven territories, with shading indicating the division of new theatre building reported by The Showman during 1929. This new construction is represented in valuation of dollars and cents rather than number of projects.

The shading is in four densities; dark, which represents the greatest value of proposed theatres; medium, which is second in valuation of new construction; light, which areas represent conservative building; and the very light areas, where the investment in new theatre projects was comparatively light. The information used in compiling the statistics visualized by the map was obtained through several reliable sources, and the map is to be considered as very nearly accurate in representing comparative theatre building activities in various sections of the country.

The circles shown on the map are located in key cities and illustrate averages of theatre attendance during the period from Nov. 15th to Dec. 15th, 1929. The diagrams indicate the relative attendance at the first-run theatres in these cities during the period covered. These are given by "averages," with symbols to indicate "Above Average" and "Under Average" box office returns. The term "average" as applied in this survey indicates satisfactory box office returns, basde upon theatre expectancies, which, in turn, are governed by past earnings under similar or nearly similar conditions.

These attendance statistics were compiled from an analysis of the Box Office Check-up, published weekly by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and other sources of information consulted by this publication.

for non-holiday business. In other words, the business is of a steady, substantial sort, showing reactions to seasonal influences, weather conditions, the character of attractions offered, etc., but improved all along the line over previous years.

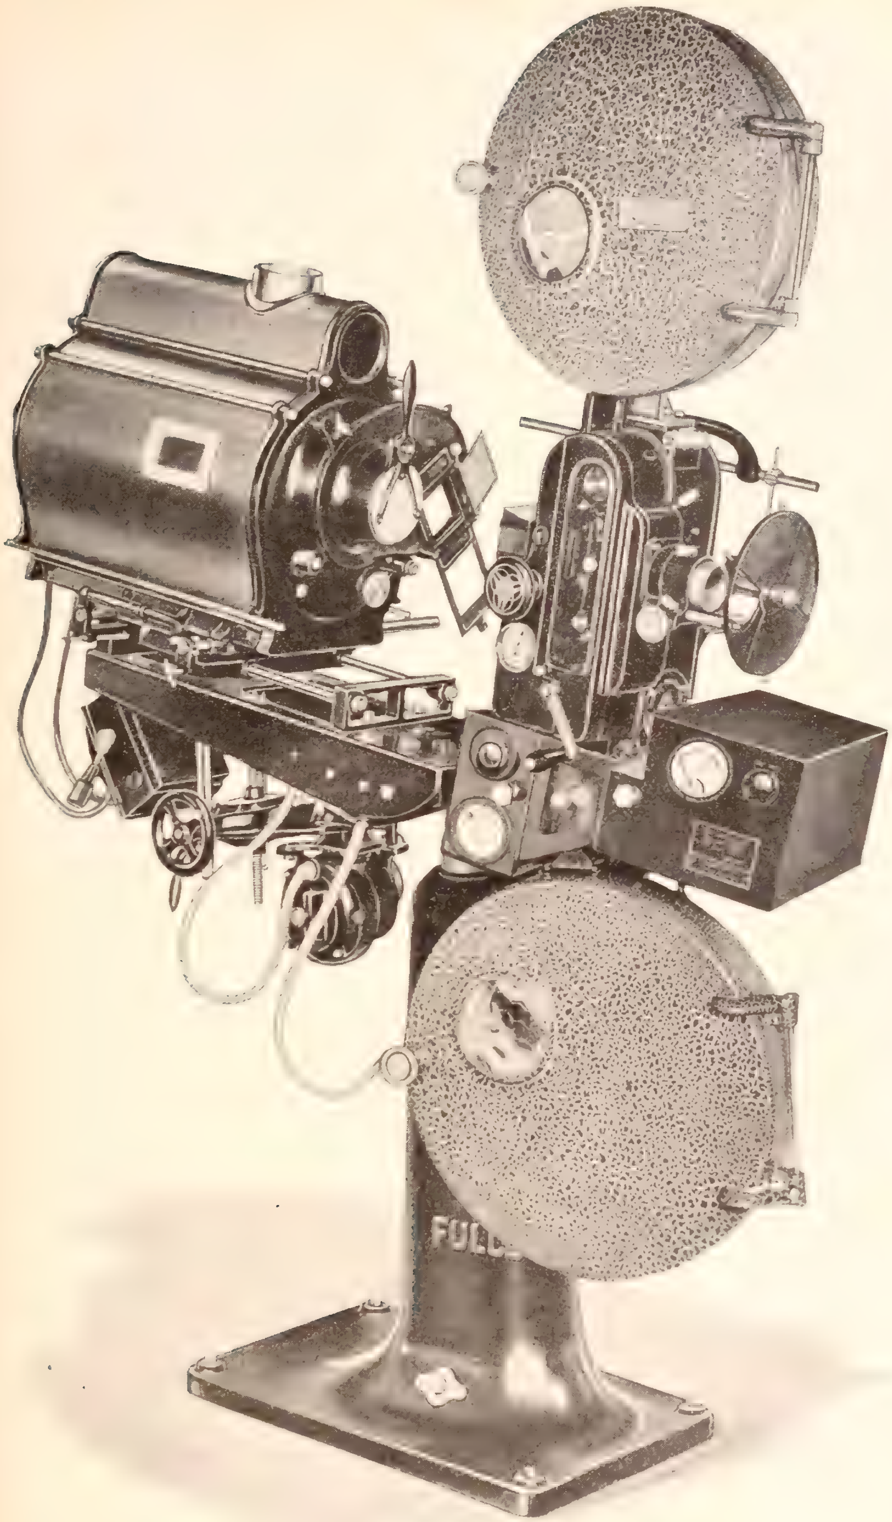
From the first of December on up to the holiday season, theatre men indicate that they are bowing to the inevitable by playing out dates on pictures of the weaker sort which have been contracted for and postponed because of their evident lack of box office strength. This policy has its justification in expediency, since it allows for the straightening out of booking engagements. Nevertheless, it must be considered as a factor in judging the pre-holiday business at the picture theatres. Exploitation also loses some of its drive during this season, another policy for which much can be said in favor on the grounds of expediency.

Many notable box office records were set up by several of the leading films current at the key city first run houses during the period of this report. For example:

"Welcome Danger," the Harold Lloyd comedy in which this favorite personality of screen fans made his talkie debut, played to the biggest business recorded at the Paramount in Los Angeles, since that house went wholly "sound." A most spectacular performer during the period was "Rio Rita." This picture was the screen's entry in the first "hand-to-hand" combat between stage and screen, insofar as it played in competition to the stage version of the same play in Portland. The screen "Rita" was in Portland, at the Orpheum, one week before the stage "Rita" arrived at the Auditorium, in that city. The Orpheum did a wonderful business the first week of the engagement, and a tremendous business the second week. So much business, as a matter of fact, that the stage production of "Rio Rita" at the Auditorium played a most unprofitable engagement. The picture also set a new record at Keith's in Syracuse; at the Mainstreet in Kansas City—with vaudeville eliminated during the showing—and at the Tabor in Denver.

The ten features which set up the best marks, according to their ratings at engagements at key city first runs during the period of this report are as follows:

1. "Rio Rita." 2. "Welcome Danger." 3. "Disraeli." 4. "The Kiss." 5. "The Taming of the Shrew." 6. "Flight." 7. "The Mighty." 8. "Gold Diggers of Broadway." 9. "The Trespasser." 10. "Shanghai Lady."



Looking Backward and Forward

The year just closed has been one of demonstration and tryout for the Fulco Projector.

During this probation period it has been put to the acid test of competitive service under varied conditions in widely separated communities, from coast to coast.

Some of these installations are subjected to daily service demands far beyond what any picture machine might reasonably be expected to sustain without rapid deterioration. Yet they continue to deliver the goods in all cases, day in and day out, without failure, interruption or fatigue.

Every claim which we have made for this superb machine has been fully justified, verified and confirmed by records of performance in the field.

We neither expected nor insisted upon acceptance of these claims until sustained by proof, but it is certain that abundant proof is now available.

Truthfully it can be said that the Fulco Projector meets every test to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Make a New Year resolution to look into the fine points of the Fulco Projector without delay. If you do, you'll discover a lot of reasons why you should have them in your theatre.

Super Simplex Head Mechanism

New Super Simplex a Product of Sound Era in Projection

A KEEN interest stimulated by much advance discussion concerning the new projector in development by the International Projector Corporation culminated with the introduction of the Super Simplex Projector during the closing days of 1929. Now that the trade has made its first acquaintance with the finished product, interest centers in weighing the values which engineering skill in design and execution has brought forth to increase the resources of projection in the present era of sound.

While many features incorporated in the new design are in harmony with the trend which set in previous to the time of the audible screen, nevertheless, the new Super Simplex is, and for some time will continue to be so considered, a product of the sound era.

It is true that even before the talkies the trend was toward the use of greater screen illumination, but the introduction of the sound-porous screen brought with it the inescapable necessity for increased projection light, with the attendant increase in heat playing on the film. Moreover, the growing popularity of enlarged screens, particularly the "Magnascope" effects, further emphasized the need for a means of controlling the heat to which film is subjected under these conditions of projection.

In consequence, there is found in the new Super Simplex a radical change over previous models in the matter of shutter design. Other factors closely related to sound are the provisions for a double sliding aperture, supplying proper aperture openings for either sound or silent film by means of lever control; transverse adjustment of the apertures to allow for centering of the projected image on the screen when change is made from one aperture to the other; fixed focus clamps on lenses which permit rapid change of lenses of different focal lenghts without readjustment of focus after the change is made; and increased rigidity of the base and frame.

Increases Illumination

Increased illumination with a decrease in heat incident on the film is accomplished by a rear shutter, mounted between the lamp and film, instead of in front of the lens. The Vignette Type Rear Shutter increases light delivered to the screen from 35 to 48 per cent, while the heat at the aperture plate is reduced from 50 to 75 per cent, according to operating conditions, it is claimed by the sponsors of the New Super Simplex. The blades are of saw-tooth design and produce a dissolving effect on the screen, giving a result similar to that effected by the front type shutter. The width of the blades, unlike the old type shutter, is not dependent upon the size of the lens, and a 90 degree effective blade can be used with a half-size lens, whereas with the old type shutter the minimum was 102 degrees. The blades in the Vignette Type Rear Shutter, also, function as a fan or cooling device which concentrates a strong blast of air on the gate and surrounding mechanism, and temperature in that portion of the projector is only a few degrees greater than the surrounding atmosphere. The use of heat plates or shields in proximity to the film, therefore, becomes unnecessary. The shutter bracket spans longitudinally, with the whole mechanism supporting the shutter shaft. There are 2 supporting points and the bearing surfaces are over 11 inches apart. The shutter bracket carries the shutter guard and also the frame.

The lens barrel is designed to support the lens at 2 points. A full series 11 or half-size lens is supported at 2 points of contact about 4 inches apart. Where quarter-size lenses are used an adaptor is furnished. The light path is entirely enclosed and the system is not adjustable with reference to the main frame. The construction is integral with the frame. A single screw conveniently placed provides for control and focussing. The lens system can be adjusted transversely with reference to the aperture so that the projected picture may be maintained central with the screen with either the sound aperture or full aperture in use. The change from one aperture to the other is made by throwing a single external lever. The lens can be locked in any position by means of a friction clamp.

Double Sliding Aperture

The trap is cast iron, with a double sliding aperture, with the film trap lever, retainer for oil tube and aperture plate of bronze die castings and shoes are hardened steel. Lateral guide rollers on the Super Simplex film trap are larger than on any previous model, giving increased contact surface and reduced velocity.

Where proportional size plates or effect masks are used, it is necessary to quickly change lenses from one focal length to another. This is taken care of on the Super Simplex by sharply focussing the lens, slipping the lens clamp over the front end of the lens barrel, bringing the clamp tightly against the front lens and locking on the lens barrel.

The oiling system is part of the main frame assembly. All oil tubes with the exception of one can be seen upon opening the mechanism door. Oiling can be done thoroughly and systematically and a few drops placed within the tubes each day will be more than sufficient to take care of proper lubrication.

The controls, which include Lens focussing, gate release and shutter adjustment, are placed on the operating side of the Mechanism and all are identified with proper markings. The lever of the Film Gate Control locks the gate when closed and the lock is automatically released by the reverse turning of the knob.

The eye shield protects the projectionist's eyes from the bright rays of the spot at the aperture. The shield is entirely enclosed and the colored glass may be readily removed for cleaning.

Cast iron is used for the center frame as well as the supporting base and the Super Simplex is much more rigid than any previous model. Strength and design add an efficiency of at least 300%, it is claimed.

Cooling Revolutionized by

Healthful Kooler-Aire

NATURE'S REFRIGERATION

An Outstanding Success in Its 1st Year

NEVER have the leading theaters of America recognized the merit of a new product more completely than Kooler-Aire. Only a year old, prominent theaters throughout America know the power of its Silent Controlled Pre-Cooling. While a good picture fills your house for a few days or a week, Kooler-Aire helps to fill it all summer.

By pre-cooling and thoroughly circulating pure air, Kooler-Aire brings into your theater the refreshing coolness of a Canadian mountain resort! The moment people enter they are greeted by its delightful contrast to the outside heat. You can regulate it to exactly suit weather conditions, and lower the temperature from one to 19 degrees.

Cools at a PROFIT

Initial Cost Only 1 6 the price of other systems of comparative cooling capacity. Operating cost only a quarter of the expense of other equipment that does not have its big advantages.

This revolutionary cooling system now brings sustained summer patronage to scores of leading theaters throughout America. In winter it is without an equal for efficient, SILENT ventilation. Get all the facts about pre-cooling with Kooler-Aire.

More Seats for the Old Opera House . . Modernizing 30-Year Old Theatre . . A Plan to Widen Lobby

Increasing Seating Capacity in Old Opera House

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

We have recently purchased an old Opera Hous and it now has a seating capacity of 700 seats downstairs and 350 seats upstairs in the balcony. There is a big stage, 40 feet deep. Since we do not play any road shows, and have recently installed talkies, we would welcome a suggestion as to how to increase our seating capacity downstairs and also get more standing room. As we have spent the greater part of our capital in the purchase of the theatre, we cannot afford to spend very much money on the alterations. Therefore, in making your suggestions for our improvements will you please be guided by the fact that they must be carried out as economically as possible?

M. D. T.

Answering M. D. T.:

You can always increase standing room by taking out the rear seats, but you must realize that today standing room is not as it used to be. It was all right to have standing room when you had silent pictures, because the people could stand and watch the picture with their eyes. Then the noise caused by the confusion of crowded people was somewhat adequately shut out by the glass screen through which they could look. But today the glass screen is obsolete because the sound will not go through the glass. Furthermore, you must sharply realize that Showmanship of today is different when you have Talking Pictures as a Product. Until inventors and manufacturers find a different method of broadcasting the sound to the remote seats, the main requisite today is that of silence by eliminating commotion. The bulk of the commotion is caused in the standing room space and when people getting up and down travel in the aisles. The quicker you eliminate the commotion, the more enjoyable will be the performance. To my estimation, standing room always seems to be a delivery of damaged goods and a haphazard method of merchandizing. Showmen today are in a business of selling seats and the person who buys a ticket is entitled to a seat and comfort. Do not forget that comfort and quietude in most any town, large or small, goes hand in hand with talking pictures, just the same as it went hand in hand with the spoken plays which have been superseded by Talkies.

Your stage seems to be very deep. You certainly do not need that depth. Now, in the future, cut the depth to 22½ feet. Take out your orchestra pit, and let there be some more seats placed down front. Redecorate and re-equip your house and you will have a fairly attractive and somewhat modern theatre—all at a comparatively economical cost.

Modernizing 30-Year-Old Theatre In Keeping With New Talkies

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

It is our intention to re-equip and redecorate our theatre which was built about 30 years ago and would like to have some outline of advice as to your suggestions to make it look somewhat different and more in keeping with today's talking pictures. On the sides, the proscenium arch has boxes, two layers of them, which project out. They, as well as the walls above them, are highly ornamented and the proscenium arch is like a picture frame with a great deal of ornament on it. We find that is somewhat antiquated, not only that, but this ornament projects so much that it is very difficult to keep clean and it costs considerable to keep the house looking neat.

J. P. T.

The most modern suggestion I could best sound equipment made, regardless of price, because all the redecorating and modernizing of the theatre itself will be negligible compared to the calamity of poor sound reproduction and equipment.

By all means take out the boxes. First, because you can not see from them and second, because they interfere with the sound waves due to their big projection into the auditorium. Keep in mind that sound waves must travel and slide along the surface and not have any obstructions. And when there are obstructions, they should be soft in texture so as to absorb any sound bumps. Take out the ornament, shave it off. Ornament in a theatre today is like the tufted sleeves and buttons on the dresses in the hectic eighties, and besides a Moving Picture Theatre is kept so dimly lighted that all this gorgeous ornament that so many architects insist on placing is hardly ever seen, to say nothing of the expense of ornament.

Ornament today in Picture theatres is only effective when indirectly lighted and through perforations or the like. Keep your theatre very simple in design, place draperies where they will count, place banners where they will be seen and where they will be decorative, treat your walls with sound absorbing paint or plaster. By all means, do not hang chandeliers, large in size, from the main ceiling. Soft indirect light, with some wall brackets, are preferable to ornate chandeliers and, incidently, cost less. Make your theatre comfortable and quiet because, if the surrounding architecture is noisy, it is liable to react upon the people. The people may become noisy. That is not saying you do not want period architecture that reflects moods, or vice versa, and the most important mood today inside a theatre is that of quiet and concentration.

Improving Too Narrow Lobby—Widening and Decorating

Dear Mr. Rigaumont:

When we constructed our 1,800 seat theatre here we could get only enough land to permit a lobby 15 feet wide, the ticket office being on the inside. However, since we acquired the adjacent property, we have come into possession of three store rooms and thought we might now widen the lobby. We would also like to have an entrance from the lobby to the store rooms because we conduct the candy store and soda shop, and believe it would be good business to catch the people as they are coming out. Can you give us any ideas as to how to decorate our lobby? Do you think it is very important to have an elaborate marquee?

C. L.

Answering C. L.:

A theatre of 1,800 seats is deserving of a wider entrance than 15 feet, and I am glad to hear that you have acquired adjacent property and are thinking seriously of widening this lobby.

The theatre lobby of today, regardless of what town or location it is in, is not much different from the theatre lobby of the past. By that, I mean that it is a show window. This show window is radically different, however, from the past. Like all show windows it must be attractive and it must speak for itself and tell the passers-by what you have on the inside of the theatre. Especially is this the case if you play sound pictures, which I presume, you have and which, no doubt, you will have if you have not already installed them.

Your newspaper advertising is of great assistance, but your lobby is the final magnet. So, let there be a great deal of life and music broadcast through loud speakers, animated posters, and such displays as will convey to the passers-by your productions of picture and sound. There is a device, recently placed on the market, which is a forerunner of lobby displays in keeping with audible screen attractions. It is called the LobbyTone. This device plays records and has painted posters, cut-outs, flashing lights and dancing figures which are animated. It is quite an attention getter and an idea in the correct direction.

Your marquee should be a blaze of light and letters, and your sign should be the outstanding mark on your thoroughfare.

Merchandising and the Theatre

By Charles E. Lewis

A NEW approach to the solution of a problem with which showmen and merchandising experts have struggled for years is about to be put into practice on a large scale basis in the Fox Metropolitan theatres in and about New York City.

This is a new application of an idea evolved to bring mutual benefits to the theatre and to the manufacturer of nationally distributed and advertised products. Advantages to the former lie in the free distribution to patrons of merchandise of value and prestige based on reputation built up through national advertising. The latter, the merchandiser, under this plan finds access to the American home for his product which, naturally, he knows or at least assumes is capable of winning approval when tried under these most favorable circumstances.

For as far back as I can remember, showmen have been trying to tie-in merchandising methods in their theatres. From just as far back, national manufacturers have been trying to tie theatres into their methods of merchandising their nationally advertised product. The happy medium never came completely to light.

Manufacturer's Problem

Manufacturers of nationally advertised product have always been faced with one giant task; namely, to successfully get their product into the average American home. To get their product where it actually will receive a fair trial.

True, they had spent vast sums of money trying to use the theatre's screen as a profitable advertising medium. But the better theatres, and in most cases, even those theatres not in that classification, frowned on screen advertising.

Many and varied were the ideas attempted, and which failed repeatedly. It appeared that about all lines of appeal had been drained dry and that they would have to go along in the good old-fashioned way—until a theatre man finally worked out a plan he long had in mind. A plan which has taken form in the organization of a company now known as Associated Syndicates, Inc.

For it did take a theatre man, a showman with a theatre background, to perfect what appears to be the one feasible idea that would combine the objectives of both the merchandiser and the theatre operator in a practical plan.

Idea Developed by Showman

Harold F. Eldridge came into the show business fresh (and we mean fresh) from attaining the distinction of being the youngest bank teller in a New York bank. He had started as messenger and mounted rapidly until he reached, what he once thought, a great position.

So we find him at the age of twenty-one handling the first well-organized and business-like booking office where theatres, large and small, could secure "talent" for the then highly popular and profitable "Opportunity Nites," "Amateur Nites," "Bathing Beauty Contests," "Popularity Contests" or what have you.

When "sound" wrote almost a complete "finis" to his booking office, silver nites etc., Eldridge started developing the idea to tie-in national manufacturers merchandising plans with theatres. But doing it in such a way that both would benefit by the connection and some day, perhaps, it would represent a most important cog in the national advertising and distributing plans of the manufacturers and theatres.

His next move was to affiliate his proposition with associates whose experience in the advertising and merchandising field would equip his plan with that type of background.

His associates in the new enterprise are two men, both of whom are specialists in their own fields. C. H. Cummings became vice-president and came to Associated Syndicates Inc., after many years in the sales field of nationally known merchandise. F. G. Montgomery, also a vice-president, had the necessary manufacturing and retail experience.

Now we will pass over all the hard work and headaches that come with making a success for new ideas and bring you to the point where they now find themselves—ready to start the machinery in operation and inaugurate their "National Manufacturer's Gift Book" idea to the country in general, although their start will be confined to the New York Metropolitan district for a beginning.

Associated Syndicates, have entered into a contract with the Fox Theatres, whereby the company will, on a stipulated night, furnish to each theatre, without cost, enough boxes to insure 100 percent distribution to every adult patron. This "Gift Package" will look just as you see in on the picture here. No advertising of any sort is printed, either on the box or the wrapper.

Test by Theatre Circuit

The contents consist of between five and seven nationally advertising articles in full size. No sample articles are used at any time. Each article is an exact duplicate of what is carried in the stores, and is worth the same price as sold for by the stores.

Do you get the angle now?

After, not before, the first "Gift Performance," the theatre runs a trailer asking the audience whether they were among the fortunate patrons on that particular evening and telling them that a package was given to each patron, containing full sized merchandise from such nationally known manufacturers as—and here, in rapid succession, follows a flash of the trade-mark of each of the manufacturers product tied into the merchandising plan.

Beautify Your Theater With These New Specialty Lamps

Below...Candle shaped type

INTRODUCTION of a series of seven new Edison MAZDA* Specialty Lamps gives the theater operator a wider selection of attractive and decorative lamps to blend with the surroundings and fixtures of his theaters.

The new decorative group comprises three definite shades, two of them in three color combinations. They are referred to as Gothic, modernistic flame and candle.

The Gothic and modernistic types of lamps are furnished in plain ivory, black on ivory and rose on gold. The list price of each is 50c. The candle shaped lamp is made in plain ivory and lists at 75c.

Each of the new decorative lamps is of the 25 watt medium screw base variety. They are packed in six lamp cartons, sixty lamps to a unit package.

For sheer beauty of appearance you can get no finer lamps. No matter what type of fixtures you may have, these lamps will blend with them and enhance their beauty.

Remember that these lamps are Edison MAZDA Lamps, and represent the latest achievements of MAZDA service, through which the benefits of world-wide research, experiment and development in the laboratories of General Electric Company are given exclusively to lamp manufacturers entitled to use the name MAZDA.

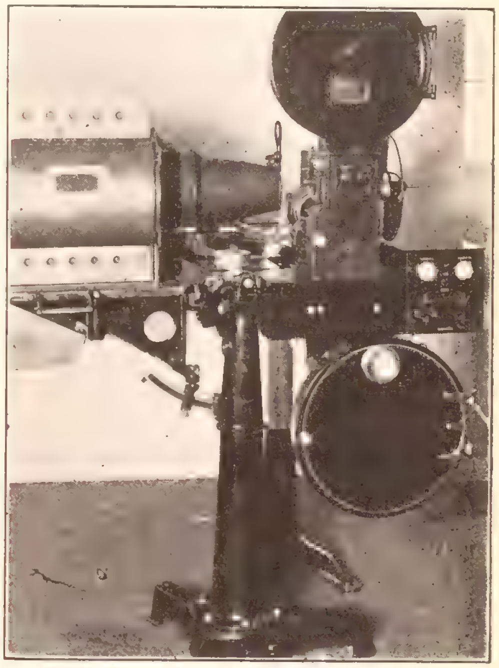
THE Carter Sound Equipment, a new and improved design of the unit originally introduced under the name of Dramaphone, is a dual system reproducer manufactured in the plant of the Carter Sound Equipment Co., in Chicago. Among the special features incorporated in the design is a mechanical dampener and a new development including a light gate to provide alignment and tension of film on the sound track to eliminate flutter and noise caused by warped film; an aperture system that is adjusted and fixed sealed with precision laboratory instruments; and a constant speed synchronous motor built in as an integral part of the film reproducer and supplying power for drive of both the sound head and the disc turntables. Another feature is photo-electric cell gain control, a device designed to meet conditions when tinted film-recorded prints are used.

The exciter lamp assembly is arranged for the use of two prefocused lamps. In case of failure of one lamp, a change can be made instantly to the other.

Pre-amplifier is attached to the forward part of sound on film reproducer, and contains an resistance coupled amplifier. The control panel mounted on the side of this unit, contains necessary meters, adjustments of exciter lamps, tube filaments, film to disc switch, and the photo-electric cell gain control. The photo-electric cells used, are specially designed for use with this unit.

Disc Mechanism

The fader is a large contact type, provided with calibrated gain scale. The disc mechanism is mounted through vibration cushions on adjustable pedestals, provided with tortional stabilizers and cushioned pickup rest, adaptable to any type projector. The disc pickup heads incorporate a new metal and special winding.



Carter Dual System Unit

The amplifier system is fundamentally three amplifier units, each one provided with controls and indicating instruments, shielded against dust and interference. Power units are so arranged that additions may be made to take care of any power output required.

Air column exponential dynamic units have A. C. rectifiers for field excitation. The monitor speaker is of the dynamic type with volume control on panel amplifier.

Capitol Theatre, Vancouver Is Reopened After Renovation Costing $100,000

AFTER a period of three weeks of darkness, during which redecorating, reseating and general renovation was done at a cost of $100,000, the popular Capitol theatre in Vancouver, B. C., under the management of J. Lloyd Dearth, was reopened Christmas day.

Many who have viewed the building declare the Capitol has been transformed into the most beautifully decorated and modern building of its kind in the Dominion. The work was done under the supervision of Emanuel Briffa, staff artist for the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, from his own designs.

Rose, gold and black comprise the principal color scheme throughout the building. The red velour cyclorama curtain which takes care of the back of the stage consists of 525 yards of silk velour.

The new stage drape is black with a centre of rose velour. Rhinestones are set in this curtain, with the edges finished with a 30 inch black and gold fringe.

Granite cloth is used as a stretched curtain inside the auditorium beside the glass partitions which enclose the house interior. Swag and tail drapes in rose velour finished with fringe cord, rosettes and tassels of black and gold make up this curtain. The same effect is carried out on the balcony curtains. Rose velour curtains drape the arches on the main floor where loge seats are located.

Gold gauze curtains, fastened in place with rods at top and bottom, tone down the light effects of the transom windows over the Granville street entrance. The ladies' rest room features gorgeously draped walls and ceiling.

The new central chandelier contains 123 lights, and is a massive piece of work which does every credit to the designers. A special feature in the theatre is the installation of spot lights which will shine down on the ushers standing in the aisles, both upstairs and on the main floor. This device is new to Vancouver theatres. Other new electrical fixtures have been installed in the lobby, vestibule, under the balcony in the foyer, and under the Granville street marquee.

The entire seating capacity has been changed from the ordinary theatre seats to plush chairs of a handsome and very comfortable nature.

Newly uniformed doormen in blue serge jackets decorated with red and gold lace, with trousers to match, were in keeping with the redecoration features. The sixteen ushers are dressed in neat blue and gold uniforms, with shoes of a combination of blue kid and suede decorated with a square gilded buckle.

Norman Code, general superintendent of construction for the western division of the Famous Players, was associated with Emanuel Briffa in the general supervision of the work.

Record Sale of Lamps in U. S. Last Year

Preliminary estimate of the number of incandescent lamps, of which motion picture theatres are large consumers, sold in the United States in 1929 indicate 340 million large and 292 million miniature lamps, according to John Liston's Annual Review of the Industry. The former is an increase of 18 million, or a little over 5½ per cent, and the latter an increase of 37 million, or 14½ per cent over the previous year. 1929 sales exceed all previous figures, being the largest in the history of the industry.

Last March the 50 and 60-watt standard lighting lamps of the 115-volt group were reduced in list price from 22 to 20 cents. The price trend for lamps has been downward for several years, and present prices are less than half the so-called pre-war figure, Mr. Liston points out.

Many a Valuable Hint comes to those who are Good Listeners!

The advertising man was looking for New Ideas. So he listened.

In fact, he questioned the magazine representative and this is one thing he learned.

Said the magazine representative:

> "You know one reason why the Hertner Transverter always is spoken well of? It's because Hertner could build it a lot cheaper than he does, but he makes it better than it needs to be."

And the fact is—Theatre owners and projectionists know this to be true.

Transverters everywhere perform better and longer than you ever expect them to. They are built up to an ideal—not down to price.

"If you show Pictures—you need the Transverter" more so today than ever before.

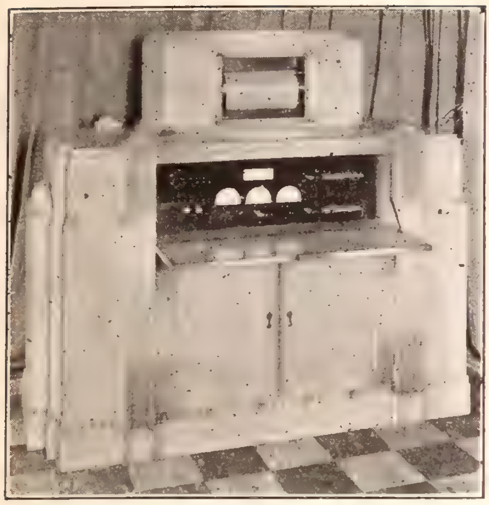
Data on Sound System is Issued in Handy Form

As a guide to anyone, whether technician or layman, in the planning, and installation of a power amplifying and sound distributing system, the Radio Receptor Co., New York, has issued a new catalog. The catalog opens with an analysis of audio amplification and sound distribution, how to plan an installation, and the engineering features essential to satisfactory results. There follows the listing of the Powerizer units which may be assembled in almost endless variety into steel racks and switchboards for meeting any requirements, with the same flexibility as that which made the sectional bookcase famous. The Powerizer Sound Systems include not only the centralized switchboard, with radio set, microphone panel and phonograph pick-up, but also the loud-speakers, faders, outlets, controls, and so on.



Lumitone lighting control console, showing automatic "player roll" which produces a series of vari-colored lighting effects by mechanical operation

Color Lighting Controlled By Stops on Console

Lumitone is the name given an unusual development in theatre lighting control devices. It enables the theatre owner to produce various combinations of color effects, from the various units installed, by merely touching a stop key on the console; or a series of color changes may be presented by touching the button which starts the operation of the automatic action of the device.

The Lumitone consists of a mechanically operated bank of dimmers, with mercuroid switches, and fuse magazine and may be installed in the electric room below stage, and a console which contains an electric-pneumatic action may be installed below the Prompter's Hood in the orchestra pit; in the first entrance off stage, or any other suitable place that will allow the operator to view his stage setting completely, as the light effects are operated.

The console key-board contains a separate stop-key for each unit of each color, and in addition a color master stop-key with a speed control. There is also a grand master control for both the stage and auditorium units.

The console is equipped with a series of pre-set scene masters, which can be arranged for any amount desired, however, twelve is recommended as being standard. When one of these stop-keys is touched, the scene as preset, immediately comes on through its dimmers to the desired position, and the scene that was previously in use, is dimmed out and switched off automatically.

A re-set stop for the dimmers is also included which pre-arranges the stop position of the dimmer control lever in advance of its being brought up or down for a scene.

The automatic control uses a perforated roll, similar to those used in electric pianos and organs. Any special arrangement of color changes may be made on one of these rolls, and for overtures, organ selections, etc.

Architect and Light Expert Advance Art Moderne Here

The modernistic movement in light and decoration an outstanding development in new public buildings during the past year, has brought the architect and lighting equipment artist into closer relation with a result that has accomplished great improvements in building design and decoration, according to John Liston in his 1929 review of the electrical industry.

"Whereas a few years back," the writer continues, "the artificial lighting arrangement was largely an afterthought, it is now being logically incorporated into the design of the building itself, resulting in illumination through luminous wall panels, through diffusing boxes, built around ceiling beams, and from fixtures.

"The architect and lighting equipment artist have now combined their efforts and, although this so-called art moderne movement originated abroad. American architects have recently contributed much to its development."

Truvision Screen Installed at the Roxy Theatre

A Truvision screen is now in use for all projection at the Roxy Theatre, New York. The Truvision screen employs a new principle for projection of sound pictures, using perforated glass beads of a special design for which a patent is pending.

The new screen was put to several tests in the Roxy before it was adopted as the standard equipment for the big Cathedral of the Motion Picture.

A Correction

The list price of the Audak Professional pick-up was erroneously quoted on page 68 of the Consolidated Catalogue section of Buyers Guide dated December 28, 1929, as $30.00. The correct quotation should read "List price, $100.00" for the Professional model pick-up made and distributed by the Audak Company, 565 Fifth Ave., New York City.

The SYNCRODISK ---Now FIRST In Production And Sales!

Syncrodisk is producing and selling more turn-tables than any other manufacturer today. That's fine, say you, but what of it?

The reason why it happened is the big story.

The price is high—higher than a good many and it is going to stay high. The discount doesn't bring it into the gift class either, nor will it ever. This is because a strict adherence to high manufacturing honor puts careful, particular workmanship into every piece of metal—and every piece of metal is shaped and fitted together to produce a turn-table based on sound engineering principles and held rigidly to specifications that never deviate from precision.

That may be a mouthful but Weber stands back of every word.

Many other turn-tables have been junked and replaced by Syncrodisk —because the exhibitor wanted a machine that would work when there was work to be done and the public demanded one that would make the Talkies something better than a "pain in the ears."

Every single Syncrodisk carries an absolute guarantee of perfect satisfaction or money back. AND —this offer has never been challenged by an owner of any one of the 700 odd Syncrodisk installations.

It's a glorious relief to have a turn-table up in the projection room that you know is always on the job and performing evenly and perfectly day after day so just

Colorama lighting layout for Hotel St. George Ballroom—National Lamp Works of G. E. Co. installation

"Colorama" Lighting Demonstrated; May Revolutionize Decorating

WITH the completion of the first installation and its demonstration in practical use, the newest achievement of lighting engineers, a system for "painting with light," or "Colorama," as the system now has been officially named, has been pronounced the most outstanding achievement in the field of interior lighting in the last 25 years, and lighting engineers and architects declare that the invention may revolutionize present methods of theatre decorating.

The new lighting discovery, described in The Showman of October 5—then called "third dimension" lighting—at the time of publication of the first complete details of the invention.

The first installation of this new method of decorative lighting is in the ballroom of the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, N. Y. The ballroom has no windows. There are no visible ceiling or wall fixtures. The entire room is painted in a flat white finish to provide the "canvas" upon which the artist will paint the room's decorating—solely with lights. A hundred thousand variations of colors and patterns are possible with this system.

The designs and colors may remain fixed, or move according to any predetermined plan. Thus the ballroom may be a cool, light green and blue for luncheon; white and amber for afternoon bridge; and patterns of deep, rich, formal reds and browns, for an evening banquet.

The almost limitless possibilities of "painting with light" are indicated by a suggestion of F. J. Cadenas, illuminating engineer of the St. George Hotel installation for the National Lamp Works of General Electric Co.

The Hotel St. George ballroom has a floor area of 9,500 square feet and a clear ceiling height above the floor of 29 feet, 6 inches. There are two tiers of balconies along the sides and black walls.

The lighting system for the walls consists of a series of four separate and parallel coves fitted with vertically-pleated flutes. In both the front and back of the flutes, are placed clear lamps, of various wattages, equipped with color caps.

The lighting system for the ceiling is a series of five inverted troughs, 10 feet wide and 60 feet long, placed symmetrically on 20-foot centers. The troughs have saw-tooth openings along the sides through which colored lights and shadows are projected onto the ceiling. In the bottom of the troughs are roundels through which may be projected red, blue, green and white light.

More than 6,000 lamps are installed in the flutes and coves and they range in size from 50 to 1,000 watts. A total of more than 630,000 watts is required to operate the various colors and lighting effects. This is more light than the entire city of New York had in the early days of electric illumination. Over fifty thousand miles of wire was used in the installation. The lighting is controlled by a small remote-control board containing more than 500 buttons.

A wintertime operating economy of "painting with light" is the reduction in the heating requirements. Owing to the heat generated by the multitude of lights, it was found, in the St. George installation, that over 3,000 square feet of steam heating radiation could be eliminated.

"Painting with light" will soon be adapted to many theatre uses, aside from its obvious possibilities on the stage. The system will enable a capable artist at the control board to extend the atmosphere demanded by the play to include the entire theatre—and including even the lobby.

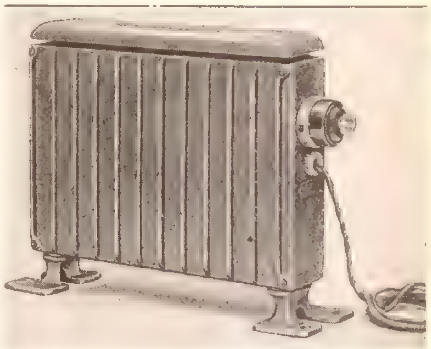
$75.00 SAVES $1000.00

IF not protected against the cold, it costs around $1,000.00 more to keep the average organ in tune for five years than when the temperature of the organ loft is maintained at about 68° F. Why waste that money when a $75.00 Prometheus Electric Heater would save it.

Another disadvantage of permitting the organ pipes to become cold is that it affects the tune—makes it impossible to bring out the exquisite tone quality and reflects on the skill of the organist.

PROMETHEUS

Organ Loft Heater



keeps your organ loft at the desired temperature by means of a thermostat which automatically shuts off when the desired temperature is reached. That saves current and prevents overheating.

This heater does not become red hot, therefore is not a fire hazard. Does not dry out the glue and open joints in the woodwork.

Made of cast iron with aluminum finish. Sets directly on floor and occupies but little space.

The WURDACK
STAGE SWITCHBOARD

We are not always the lowest bidder on a stage switchboard job—frequently we are the highest. Yet a majority of the switchboard jobs for theatres, schools and auditoriums we bid on are awarded to us—not because of price, obviously, but on account of the well-earned reputation for quality, stamina, generous capacity, scientific design, convenient arrangement and rugged construction of the Wurdack Stage switchboard.

If price alone was the consideration in buying an automobile there would be but one make of car on the streets—the cheapest. Except in rare instances, due to peculiar circumstances, a thousand dollar automobile cannot be bought for $500. You always get what you pay for—no more.

The same thing is true in stage switchboards. We strive to make the Wurdack Stage Switchboard the best one built. Naturally we cannot price it as low as a cheaper one. Nor do we have to compete with "price" equipment. We sell our switchboards on their merit and quality, and if this is what you are seeking, together with long, satisfactory service, specify just one make, the Wurdack Stage Switchboard.

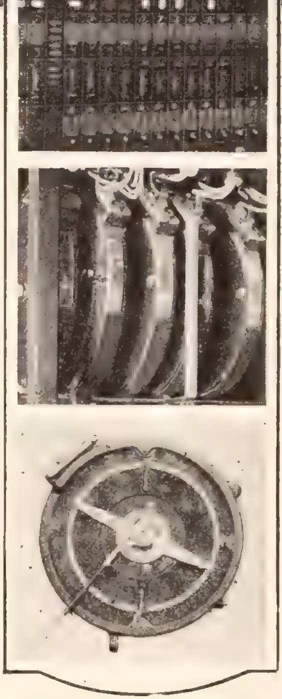
28 Years Spent behind a Switchboard

That your Public May be Pleased



C-H Simplicity Dimmer Plates are supplied by leading switchboard manufacturers with the board they install. Fig. 1 shows the front of a typical board, Fig. 2 the rear view showing C-H plates and Fig. 3 the complete plate. Dimmer plates are the heart of any lighting control board. Make sure the C-H trademark is on your plates for long life, smooth lighting control and low maintenance.

FOR twenty-eight years Cutler-Hammer has been working behind theater switchboards—building better theater dimmers that better shows may be produced.

Smooth, even changes of light play an important part in keeping every show well knit together. And no theater can have smooth lighting control unless the heart of the switchboard—the dimmer plate—is properly constructed. So for a quarter of a century, Cutler-Hammer has been building dimmer plates with this idea uppermost in mind—"flickerless" light control.

Better dimmer plate construction to lessen the danger of burnouts—direct rack and pinion drive to prevent play or backlash—110 steps to insure velvet smooth changes of light from full brilliance to blackout. These are a few of the features of C-H "Simplicity" Dimmer construction which make them the choice of leading showmen. These showmen look beyond the panel board for the C-H trade-mark on the dimmer plates.

Your theater—whatever its seating capacity or decorative scheme—can have smooth, even light control by installing C-H Dimmers. They are easily adapted to your future needs. Your architect or electrician knows about C-H Dimmers. Ask him and then write for the Cutler-Hammer booklet "Illumination Control for the Modern Theater".

Opinions On Pictures

The Vagabond King

(Paramount—All Dialogue)

Great Entertainment

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

THIS is Paramount's biggest offering for the first half of 1930. Without any question, it easily rates super-special, two-a-day classification—for substantial business in first runs, neighborhoods and the smallest wired towns.

The production has been excellently assembled. There is a capable acting and singing cast; all-color; Rudolph Friml music; beautiful—and sometimes elaborate—sets; excellent photography and good direction. All elements have been interwoven equally to produce a balanced piece of musical entertainment.

The story is a musical version of "If I Were King," and has both suspense and drama. Dennis King is fine in the title role, with Jeanette MacDonald excellent in the featured spot. O. P. Heggie is perfectly cast for most of the comedy and laughs.

It's excellent entertainment—not at all high brow; and carries mass appeal.

Newsreels and cartoons are only needed here to balance the program.

Produced and released by Paramount. Based on play "If I Were King" by Justin Huntly McCarthy, and stage operetta with book and lyrics by William Post and Brian Tooker and music by Rudolph Friml. Adaptation and dialogue by Herman Mankiewicz. Directed by Ludwig Berger. Photography by Henry Gerrard. Technicolor throughout. Length, not set. Release date, March 16, 1930.

Glorifying American Girl

(Paramount—All Dialogue)

Very Weak; Plug Names

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

TOO many cooks have succeeded in spoiling another film broth. The main title of this reads like a who's who. Still the net result of the combined efforts of all the "names" falls short of the mark.

The picture offers a Ziegfeld revue interwoven in another back-stage story. The latter is weak and the former is disappointing. The color used in the revue scenes is of no help—in fact, it is rather a detriment. One thing stands out—the now famous tailor shop skit of Eddie Cantor's being the one highlight of the film. Mary Eaton is attractive and has an ingratiating personality; the rest of the cast is just satisfactory.

You have one chance with this—make use of the names. Rudy Vallee, Helen Morgan and Eddie Cantor are in the revue. Mary Eaton is the heroine. Play these up and the name itself; it has had more than its share of publicity. Plugging the stars looks like the best bet to put this over. But plug plenty.

Strong comedy and cartoon shorts are needed.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Authors, J. P. McEvoy and Millard Webb. Music and lyrics by Walter Donaldson, Irving Berlin, Dave Stamper and Larry Spier. Directed by Millard Webb. Musical director, Frank Tours. Length, 7,727 feet. Running time, 1 hour, 25 mins. Released Dec. 7, 1929.

No, No, Nanette

(First National—All Dialogue)

Fine All-Around Show

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

THERE are some hearty laughs, sumptuous musical numbers, fine singing and color sequences in this talker version of the stage play. It's a picture that clicks—even though handicapped by the all-too general use of backstage themes.

It has a darb of a cast, with Lucien Littlefield, a laugh riot, aided by Louise Fazenda, Zazu Pitts, Lilyan Tashman and Bert Roach. The leads are Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray, a fine singing and acting team. The picture is effectively done, and some of the stage settings used in the musical comedy which Gray finally succeeds in having produced with the backing of the philanthropic millionaire, Littlefield, are striking. Littlefield has the unsophisticated notion that he can support pretty girls without getting into a jam with his out-of-date and stingy wife. After a series of messes everything turns out satisfactorily.

Use dramatic and musical subjects with this, as the feature has plenty of laughs.

Produced and distributed by First National. Adapted from the musical comedy by Frank Mandel, Otto Harbach, Vincent Youmans and Emil Nyitray. Directed by Clarence Badger. Adaptation by Howard Emmett Rogers. Dialogue by Beatrice Van. Photographed by Sol Polito. Length, 9,100 feet. Running time, 1 hour 51 mins. Release date, Feb. 16, 1930.

Second Choice

(Warners—All Dialogue)

Light, But Agreeable

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

THIS is good light entertainment which moves smoothly. However, there are some suggestive lines which may cause a kickback, and which mar the otherwise pleasing qualities of the picture. Of course, these get laughs, but whether or not they will fit into the scheme of things of the exhibitor catering to family trade is problematical.

Dolores Costello is fine, in fact the entire cast is very good, the work of Chester Morris and Jack Mulhall standing out. The stories about the wedding of a jilted girl and a jilted fellow, who marry to stop gossiping caused by the breaking off of their respective engagements. Chester Morris, who jilted Dolores, realizes his mistake and tries unsuccessfully to win her back.

There is a strong climax when he tries to force her to elope with him and then realizes the quest is a futile one. There's a good selling angle in the novel stunt of a party in a house, while it is being moved through the streets on rollers.

Dramatic and musical short or comedies should surround this feature on the bill.

Produced and distributed by Warners. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Story by Elizabeth Alexander. Adaptation and dialogue by Joseph Jackson. Photographed by John Stumar. Length, 6,150 feet. Running time, 1 hour 8 mins. Release date, Jan. 4, 1930.

The Aviator

(Warner Bros.—All Dialogue)

Fast-Moving Comedy

(Reviewed by Alvin Meyers)

"GOING UP" was a good silent in 1923—"The Aviator" is a good talker today. This is as neat and as fast moving a comedy as you will find on any program offered. In it, Edward Everett Horton as the author who hates airplanes, but who is forced to ride them, takes every opportunity available in the laugh-getting line. In sequence after sequence of the air stuff there are innumerable laughs.

Roy Del Ruth handled the direction with a deftness and appreciation for the possibilities that keeps the pace at a high keel. Patsy Ruth Miller, Lee Moran and Armand Kaliz, in the supporting cast, all do notable work. There is a spirit to the whole picture which will prove infectious to almost any audience. While the effort carries no particular weight and never impresses, its purpose, which is to entertain, is accomplished. You can make promises for this—to the kiddies particularly—and the picture will bear you out. The latter angle is important. If you overlook it, you overlook a bet.

Use musicals or novelties.

Produced and distributed by Warners. Story by James Montgomery. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Adaptation and dialogue by Robert Lord and Arthur Caesar. Edited by William Holmes. Photographed by Chick McGill. Length, 6,743 feet. Running time, 1 hour 11 mins. Release date, Dec. 14, 1929.

THE CAST

The Crimson Circle

(International Photoplays—Part Dialogue)

Never Starts Or Finishes

(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

OLD PARR—not the kind that comes in bottles—but Old Parr, the Scotland Yard inspector, and his daughter are the heroic pair of this tale, the writing of which Edgar Wallace is accused of. It is a part dialogue production, a lot having been added after the film was made, a device that is all too palpable. The picture holds nothing for the box-office except in the daily change double feature houses.

The story deals with a master mind criminal who sends his blackmailing threats under the sign of a crimson circle, wherefrom the picture gets its name. Parr is assigned to run down the band which has not only terrorized England but the continent as well. He is working in association with a supposed crime expert who in reality is the head of the Crimson Circle operations. Parr's daughter under a fictitious name and character, suggested by her father, finally gets into the good graces of the Circle's leader and in the end is responsible for tracking him down. It is a lot of serial hoke strung together into a feature. Just rambles on and on, starting many things and never finishing any of them.

Better play it on a double feature bill, so your short will have to be a news reel only.

Produced by British International. Released by International Photoplay Dist. Story by Edgar Wallace. Adaptation and dialogue by Howard Gaye. Directed by Friedrich Zelnik.

Derrick Yale	Stewart Rome
Thalia Drummond	Lya Mara

Looks Like Fair-to-Middling Week For Shorts; Cartoons Assume Lead

Uppercut O'Brien

(Educational-Sound—2 Reels)

Has Amusing Moments

Another in the Gribbon-Clyde combination and an averagely good comedy. Gribbon is the pugilist and Clyde, his manager. They split, Clyde grabbing a new boy for himself while Gribbon leaves town to return later as the head man in a side show. He matches his fighter with Clyde's and there you have the story. All a bit goofy, but interspersed with laughs at that.

Will fit in, but won't cause any excitement.

"Hot—and How"

(Educational-Sound—2 Reels)

Light Entertainment

JACK WHITE'S newest is slapstick in the 1930 style, old hokum with a new dress. Harold Goodwin has been secretly married to Dorothy Coburn and both are guests at a week-end party at the Winstons. Phyllis Winston has a strong crush on Harold, who cannot discourage her forced attentions because he promised Dorothy he would keep the marriage off the record. White pads this strongly with a chase through bedrooms. The only "hot" factor is the title. An average slam-bang slapstick with good-looking sets and some music.

Play this one with a strong dramatic short, or musical number.

"Badge of Bravery"

(Universal-Silent—2 Reels)

A Poor Western

TED CARSON has appeared in better Western material than this. John Malcolm, and his daughter, Jean, having discovered gold, are on their way out of the mining sector when attacked by bad-man Beau Dunbar and his gang of thieving miners. Bruce Boyd, of the Northwest Mounted Police, rides to the rescue but is too late, for old John has been killed and Jean wounded. Dunbar later makes a second attack to secure the gold dust. And again, our hero frustrates the attempt. Stock situation No. 314,267 follows, with Jean and Bruce starting life all over again. The "mob" with a yen for Westerns will probably go for it.

A good comedy and a good musical as support might get this by.

"Wild Waves"

(Disney-Sound—1 Reel)

Funny and Entertaining

MICKEY MOUSE plays the role of life-guard in this clever Walt Disney sound cartoon. There are plenty of laughs when he sets out to save the fair maiden, being tossed about plenty by the wild waves. Then, to take her mind off the narrow escape he struts his musical stuff to great advantage.

Good for light spot on any program.

"Live Ghosts"

(Universal-Sound—2 Reels)

Good Stuff

DIRECTOR BEN HOLMES concocts a pleasing mixture of mirth and burlesqued mystery, with a straight juvenile cast. The story centers around a haunted house in the woods, with Judy and a party of her young friends on a midnight exploration trip. Judy's boy friend, Bert, arrives just as an escaped lunatic is about to attack her—and it's all over with the usual clinch ending. "U" gave some attention to the production of this short and the results are gratifying.

Sufficient comedy material for your bill. Book a heavier short as contrast.

"Jungle Rhythm"

(Disney-Sound—1 Reel)

A Laugh-Getter

MARK this down as a real laugh-getter. Mickey Mouse in the jungle getting the whole animal gang going by virtue of his musical ramblings on a wide variety of instruments. There are a number of clever gags which assure it many real laughs.

This rates real billing.

"On the Levee"

(Columbia-Songs—2 Reels)

Bledsoe Fine

BASIL SMITH directed Jules Bledsoe in this reel of Southern melodies, sung on the cotton wharf of a small town on the Mississippi, with a group of cotton handlers supporting. The recording in this is very good. Bledsoe, a baritone, works hard to put it over. And he succeeds.

Musical-song novelty makes satisfactory number for any program.

"Always Faithful"

(Vitaphone, No. 3334—1 Reel)

Fair Entertainment

A FAIRLY entertaining subject raised considerably by the fine work of Blanche Sweet and George B. Middleton. Miss Sweet is the wife of a hardboiled mine owner, who is preparing to quash a strike. He assigns his secretary to take her to the theater and, thinking the husband has left, the pair return home for love-making. But the husband hasn't departed, for the jam has been settled, and he had determined on a nap. The secretary flees panic stricken and the husband gives a smiling assurance to his wife's pledge of "always faithful," the while, with fine subtlety, throwing the secretary's hat and coat out the window.

Good for any kind of program.

"Ship Ahoy"

(Pathe-Fable—1 Reel)

Usual Aesop Short

A MALE quartet, personified by four cartoon characters, and good musical synchronization highlight this pen-and-ink conception of the Fable gang's trip aboard a schooner sailing the deep blue sea. Hits the half-way mark for current cartoon material.

If your feature needs strong short support in the comedy line, don't depend too much on this.

"Chile Con Carmen"

(Universal-Cartoon—1 Reel)

Make Room for Oswald

THIS equals any sound cartoon screened in recent weeks. And that's saying plenty. Oswald tries to two-time Miss Hippo by playing a hot Spanish mama. They both give him the air when big-boy toreador comes to town. Tory is floored in the bull fight and little Oswald then conquers the beast. They're in for a load of laughs.

Use a Western and a talking act and you're all set.

"Pathe Review No. 1"

(Pathe-Silent—1 Reel)

Spot This Novelty

A PLEASING mixture of picturesque air shots of the islands in the Philippines group, scenes of the Bowery, depicting its sordid old age, a battle to the death between two of the famous Asian fighting fish, and a revel in color where the French Alps turn Swiss. The latter, colored by the Pathechrome process in France, reveals some beautiful shots. First of 1930 series.

Although this reel comes synchronized, too, the silent version might prove a restful novelty, sandwiched in between your sound feature and other talkie shorts.

"Bows and Arrows"

(Pathe-Talker—1 Reel)

A "Sportlight"—'Snuff Said

PHILIP ROUNSEVELL, said to be an authority on archery technique and the making of bows and arrows, does his stuff along with other record-breaker archers, in what turns out to be a highly interesting reel. Far removed from the beaten tracks of the sport reel field. They'll like it.

Plug this one and use a good comedy.

"The Fallen Star"

(Vitaphone-No. 910—1 Reel)

Effective Dramatic Sketch

GEORGE ROSENER is starred in this dramatic playlet, which contains a few laughs and tears. It's about an old actor, who, in his poverty recalls his Civil War veteran sketch of bygone days. As a feeble old soldier, trying to stir up enough pep for a Memorial Day parade, he gives a touching portrayal.

This is a good number to use on patriotic days and a good balance for a comedy feature.

"Romance De Luxe"

(Educational-Talker—2 Reels)

Fast-Action Comedy

MONTY COLLINS, featured in this Mermaid unit, finishes thirteen hundred feet of slapstick with a bang. Most of the gags are old, although they furnish material in a fast-moving story that winds up with an escaping car perched in a precarious position over a precipice, a situation first used in the pioneering days of picture-making, but, nevertheless, always a hair-raiser. Provides 15 minutes of fun.

Enough in this for the short comedy spot in your bill. Try a good sound western, or a song and dance number and cartoon subject.

"On the Air"

(Pathe-Topics—1 Reel)

Fairly Interesting

VAN BEUREN uses a ventriloquist gag to rattle off the current alleged humor of big-city newspapers. The chatter is mediocre, but the stunt used is different.

Needs lots of strong support.

Additional short subject reviews appear on page 83.

Novarro Scores, 8 Of 9 N. Y. Critics Agree

Despite crudities and production slips which they declare exist, eight out of nine New York critics reviewing "Devil May Care," which is now rounding out its third week at the Astor in New York at $2 top, agree that the picture is a personal success for Ramon Novarro. This is his first talker.

Considerable charm runs through the picture, critics generally unite in saying, several pointing out that footage is excessive and that many banal situations were permitted to creep into the treatment.

A cross-section of their opinions follow:

American—A handsomely mounted, beautifully photographed, capably enacted production. . . .

The weaknesses are manifest. The story is from one of the earliest movie blueprints. The mood is destroyed by the introduction of a real up-to-date "torch" song, sung by Marion Harris. There is much repetition and more improbability.

But despite all this, the production is magnificent and the picture thoroughly entertaining and not without inspiration. Pictorially it reaches an eminence seldom attained in this or any season. Ramon Novarro emerges from the haze of doubt haunting the microphone as perhaps the greatest of the young romantic actors.

Dorothy Jordan, the heroine, is distinctly the discovery of the year. . . .

Daily News—The tenderness, the charm, the romantic appeal of Ramon Novarro's silent screen personality are enhanced a hundred-fold by the irresistible foreign-accented spoken tones and the enchanting, cultured dialogue and an exceptionally good cast. . . .

The picture runs too long. Its last reel and a half could be cut considerably to box-office advantage and an atrocious interfering color sequence should be wholly removed for the good of "Devil May Care."

Post—The film moves somewhat too slowly and several of the comedy situations are unnecessarily prolonged. The action is urther delayed by a ballet which is not very good and completely irrelevant.

Novarro's voice is pleasing and he is sufficiently dashing for his romantic role. He sings frequently sometimes sweetly and sometimes lustily, but generally satisfactorily.

Sun—Ramon Novarro, who used to be one of the most artificial movie actors in Hollywood captivity, turns, in his first talking picture "Devil May Care," to be the most charming player of light romance on the screen. . . .

Graphic—Watch the Novarro fans grow after this exhibition of his talents. He has several opportunities to display his cultivated, beautiful singing voice, but the microphones also catch the fascination of his speaking tones and he doesn't for one scene discard its sensitive gift for pantomime and his keen humor. . . . a charming new screen lead, Dorothy Jordan, who has a pretty face, an engaging manner, and a winsome voice. . . .

"Devil May Care," taken from the French play, "Battle of the Ladies," has a thrilling story, excellent tenor. . . .

You may find this one a bit too lengthy, but you'll agree with us that it's a lovely little picture, and a grand triumph for the already triumphant Novarro.

Evening Journal—. . . besides being delightful entertainment, the production introduces Novarro as one of the best of the audible screen stars.

It's a diverting romance, set in the Napoleonic period. . . .

Evening World—Novarro gives an extremely felicitous portrayal. . . and he invests the portrayal with an overtone of light comedy which infinitely enhances its enjoyment. . . .

The story . . . either doesn't take well to the screen or it is too long. . . .

Dorothy Jordan . . . displays an enormous lack of experience. . . .

Telegram—Ramon Novarro proves conclusively that he is just about the best interpreter of romantic roles on the screen today and that he is a light, facile comedian of no mean ability. His performance is at all times finished and expert and leaves nothing to be desired. Then, too, he has a finely cultivated if not a powerful singing voice and he renders his musical numbers with much gusto and feeling. . . . "Devil May Care" is a delightful and entertaining romance. . . . creditably acted with a tuneful score and one that should provide more than just a few moments of pleasant diversion.

World—I am afraid "Devil May Care" is a story rather to be admired by the juveniles. Its recording and notably when its people sing is of no vast assistance. . . .

"It doesn't look so hot," was what Motion Picture News said about "Devil May Care" in its review published on December 28.

Short Subject Reviews

"Wednesday at the Ritz"

(Pathe-Talker—2 Reels)

Only So-So

THE best part of this comedy is the recording. Charles Kempner, while intoxicated, is placed in the wrong hotel room and upon awakening finds himself in the suite with a big blonde gal, Evelyn Knapp. He thinks she is the one he married while under the influence of the whoopee water. The sudden arrival of her husband proves he's all wet, a la slapstick. Pretty dull.

Use strong shorts here. Required.

"An Irish Fantasy"

(United Artists—Sound)

Fine Subject

AUDIENCES do not have to be Irish to appreciate this charming musical subject made by Hugo Reisenfeld and William Cameron Menzies. It shows an old harp explaining to a boy the significance of the three leaves of the shamrock, with cut-ins giving opportunity for fine singing and pictorial work. There are a number of fine songs, a courtship, wedding, a sad parting between bride and groom, climaxed by patriotic scenes, which bring in some good war shots. O. D. Dull directed.

Particularly good for a comedy bill.

Some Critics Like, Others Take Raps at "Party Girl"

Critical opinions on "The Party Girl," now current at the Gaiety are about divided among New York reviewers. Several describe the picture as "daring"; others, "crude" and "cheap." Richard Watts, critic on the Herald-Tribune, dismisses it as "a waste of time." Excerpts from the reviews follow:

American— . . . rather daringly different . . . plenty of excitement and lots of "it" . . . Miss Barrie . . . an excellent actress and a distinct decoration to the screen.

Daily News—There really are a couple of kicks in this one. It's a mixture of the very good and the very bad which makes for a happy medium.

Evening Journal— . . . a crudely deliberate aim at the box-office without either good taste or entertainment value of any kind.

Graphic— . . . only spasmodically reaches the standard of program material.

Herald-Tribune— . . . a waste of time.

Morning Telegraph— . . . rather daring occasionally, quite entertaining in spots and just a bit dull in others.

Sun—The story . . . is heavily plotted. It does, however, move fast and not without entertainment.

Telegram— . . . an incredibly bad and cheap talking picture. . . .

World— . . . a good deal of hash and also dull.

"The Party Girl" was reviewed by Motion Picture News as "Dangerous Business" on December 21. "It has a racy, sexy, fast story . . . that should rate it plenty of bookings in week run houses," read the criticism.

Some Bouncer

Oklahoma City.—Because he went back-stage to see his chorus girl wife, he was hit with a baseball bat swung by C. E. Teeter, manager of the Palace, and owned by the Mid West Enterprises, C. E. Stevenson alleges in an assault-with-intent-to-kill charge filed with Justice of the Peace W. P. Hawkins. Teeter is under a $1,000 bond waiting preliminary hearing.

Critics Like "Sally" And Marilyn Miller

Marilyn Miller in "Sally," her first talking, singing, dancing picture, scores an emphatic hit, in the opinion of New York newspaper critics. The film which is now rounding its third week at the Winter Garden at $2 top, is pleasant entertainment according to most reviewers. A consensus o ftheir criticisms follows:

American—The incomparable beauty and charm and grace that is Marilyn Miller has been successfully transported from stage to screen. . . . The picture itself is as gorgeously glittering as any to reach Broadway. . . . Alexander Gray, the leading man, sings in good voice, but, unfortunately, he doesn't possess screen personality. . . .

Daily News—Discount a story which simply couldn't have happened except from a musical-comedy writer's imaginative pen, and you have a gorgeously technicolored, entirely eye-filling talkie-singie in "Sally," which celebrated Marilyn Miller's screen debut at the Winter Garden Monday evening. Miss Miller is a joy to behold.

Evening Journal—"Sally" is pleasant entertainment although it moves slowly and is hampered by indifferent dialogue and colors that are too bright. In construction, it's still a stage musical comedy.

Evening World—If you can imagine such an extravagant thing, Marilyn Miller is even more radiant upon the screen than she is upon the stage. . . .

Graphic—It . . . fulfills its purpose of eye-filling entertainment that is easy on the mind. The film transfer is a successful technical achievement. . . . The plot is artificial and the comedy at times pathetic. It is a visual treat of frothy composition, depending upon the beauty of its star, the elaborateness of its ensemble dance numbers and the tuneful quality of its music, some of which has been familiar for a few seasons.

Herald-Tribune— . . . Miss Miller revealed all the qualities that have made her one of the most distinguished of the local song and dance heroines. She sang reasonably well, danced gorgeously, acted successfully enough, registered a definite and attractive personality and looked simply swell. . . . Her vehicle might have been improved upon, though.

Morning Telegraph—She is a beautiful woman, a swell dancer and an earnest trouper. . . . Miss Miller gives what doubtless is the best performance of her career.. . . . But the story she is expected to support is far too flimsy for entertainment purposes, the splendid players who surround her are given nothing to do and the musical score provided for her background is, to be conservative, not the most distinguished of the season. . . . however, Miss Miller manages to make the film lively and engaging, the which is no small tribute to any player.

Post—Marilyn Miller's dancing is enchanting on the screen, as it was on the stage. Her acting and her singing are, if possible, even more cloyingly sweet. . . . This film has added nothing to the old stage production and seems to have lost a great deal.

Sun—Certainly as musical show drama it is mild. And certainly as spectacle it is excessively pastel in the unsubtle shades of Technicolor. And as for the plot of "Sally," the silent pictures laid it low long before it found its voice on the screen. But Miss Miller is a delight.

Telegram—It still remains a thoroughly delightful musical comedy largely because of Miss Miller's superb dancing and because of a genuinely amusing performance by Joe E. Brown in the part created on the stage by Leon Errol.

Times— . . . is still another example of the extraordinary progress achieved in screen material. . . . If anything, Miss Miller is more lovely here than she was on the stage. . . . It is without a doubt the most beautiful picture that has come to the screen, and so far as Miss Miller is concerned one never wearies of her nimble dancing or her pleasing singing. . . .

World—The screen is kind to Miss Miller. Her delicate features are well emphasized by the Technicolor, and the grace and charm of her dancing are heightened by some well-conceived angle shots with the camera. . . . The comedy is supplied chiefly by Joe E. Brown. As the Duke of Checkagovinia he is often funny and at other times only narrowly misses. With the assistance of Jack Duffy, . . . Mr. Brown indulges in some precarious foolery upon a ladder that struck last night's audience as very amusing indeed. . . . It is, however, Miss Miller, with her twinkle eyes and dancing feet, that makes "Sally" an enjoyable film.

"Box-office and how," said this publication in its review of "Sally," published December 28.

Weekly Box Office Check-Up And Showmen's Ad. Tips

In Figuring Percentage Rating On Pictures, The Normal Or Average Business Of The Theatre Is Taken As 100%

Aviator, The (W. B.)

BALTIMORE—Rivoli, (1,981), 6 days beginning Saturday, and including midnight show New Year's Eve, 25c-50c. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News, "A Night in a Dormitory" (George Le Maire comedy), Leon Navara, Georgie Price; (Columbia Gem). Weather clear and cold. Opposition (screen) "Tanned Legs," "It's a Great Life," "Song of Kentucky," "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Three Loves," "Disraeli," "Sunny Side Up," "Condemned," "The Viking," "Glorifying American Girl." (Stage) "Wings Over Europe," Vagabond Players in "Poor Dear Mother," by Baltimorean, Stuart Gibson, Jack Lamont and his "Oriental Girls." Rating, 110%.

HOLLYWOOD.—Warner Bros. Hollywood, (3,000), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News, Vitaphone Varieties. Opposition, "Welcome Danger." Weather, rain. Rating, 129%.

Ad Tips—Exploit the title with the names of Patsy Miller and Edward Horton. Use front cover of herald enlarged white on black and place head of Patsy Miller on inside of herald in the ad under her name. Use border of falling airplanes with signature of house at top. Use catchline: "Here's the ace of funmakers in an aviation comedy that takes the non-stop laugh records." Many tie-ups can be arranged including book store tie-up and window display, buttonhole airplanes for kids, toy plane contest essays on "Why I want to learn to fly." Audience appeal is strong for everybody for it has many laughs and they are put over in great shape.—Frank Price, Jr., Mgr., Rivoli, Baltimore.

Broadway (U)

TROY, N. Y.—Proctor's, (1,800), 25c-60c, 4 days. Other attractions, vaudeville. Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Tiger Rose," "Show of Shows." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Featured this heavily in the newspapers as the first picture smash of January, a good time jubilee with Glenn Tyron and Evelyn Brent in the stellar roles. Audience appeal, general.—Jacob Golden, Mgr., Proctor's, Troy, N. Y.

Broadway Scandals (Col.)

DALLAS.—Capitol, (1,440), 25c-35c-50c. Other attractions, Vitaphone short, Universal News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Navy Blues," "Marriage Playground," "Disraeli," "Hot for Paris." Rating, 110%.

OTTAWA.—Avalon, (990), 25c-35c, 3 days Other attractions, "The Constabule," "Pussy Willow," Fox Movietone News. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Paris," "Rio Rita," "Sweetie," "Illusion," "Darkened Rooms." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—The title is the best bet for exploitation. Used cutouts of chorus girls in the lobby to give the musical comedy atmosphere. The names Sally O'Neil and Carmel Myers will help business. Copy used: "The glitter and splendor of a musical revue with snappy song hits combined with a human love story that will reach your heart." Audience appeal—general.—Ray J. Stinnett, Mgr., Capitol, Dallas.

Ad Tips—The censors did some slashing with this revue feature, and, therefore, we concentrated on the suggestion that the story dealt with the troubles of love backstage, with the poor litle chorus girl trying to save her boy friend from the blandishments of the imported star. The feature is ideal for a hook-up with the radio stores because of scenes in the broadcasting studio, the latter interlocking with the stage sequences. The plot is far more interesting than that found in most musical spectacles. Young and old and all classes liked it.—P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Chasing Rainbows

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Criterion, (2,000), 7 days, 25-50-75c. Other attractions, Paramount News, Harry Langdon in "The Head Guy." Weather, splendid. Opposition, "The Mississippi Gambler," "The Painted Angel," "Flight," "This Thing Called Love," "Chasing Rainbows," "Their Own Desire," "The Cocoanuts." Rating, 125%.

Cocoanuts, The (Par)

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Rialto, (700), 15-25c. Other attractions, Pathe News, All talking comedy. Weather, splendid. Opposition, "The Mississippi Gambler," "The Painted Angel," "Chasing Rainbows," "Flight," "This Thing Called Love," "Their Own Desire." Rating, 100%.

College Love (Univ.)

OTTAWA.—Columbia, (900), 15-35c, 3 days. Other attractions, Hearst Metrotone News, Laurel and Hardy comedy. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Sweetie," "Paris," "Illusion," "Broadway Scandals," "Rio Rita," "Darkened Rooms." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—"You know the Collegians—They're just like a good old-fashioned serial story. You'll find them in a feature-length attraction, 'College Love.' Wow! How they love—Dorothy Gulliver and George Lewis." This was the theme of the advertising. It was emphasized that the feature was all-talking. Young people flocked to see it and the feature drew a big family trade.—Ambrose Nolan, Mgr., Columbia, Ottawa.

Condemned (U. A.)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Stanley, (3,654), 6 days, with midnight show New Year's Eve, 25c-60c. Other attractions, Metrotone News, organlogue, "Irish Fantasy" (U. Stage, "Wings Over Europe," Vagabond Players in "Poor Dear Mother," by Baltimorean, Stuart Gibson, Jack Lamont and his "Oriental Girls." Rating, 120%.

CLEVELAND.—Stillman, (1,900), 7 days, 40c-75c. Weather, fair. Other attractions, "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet" (Paramount song), "Marching to Georgia" (Paramount), Hearst Metrotone News. Opposition, "Sunny Side Up," "Navy Blues," "Laughing Lady," "His First Command," "Love, Live, Laugh." Opposition Stage, "Earl Carroll Vanities," Thurston. Rating, 116%. (2nd week).

HOLLYWOOD.—Grauman's Chinese, (2023), twice daily, 75c to $1.50. Other attractions, Fox Movietone and Metrotone News, Laurel and Hardy Comedy "Night Owls" and symphony orchestra. Weather, rain. Rating, 76% (5th week).

Ad Tips—In lower left of newspaper advertisements use half tone cut of Ronald Colman and Ann Harding embracing and looking toward reader. Signature across the top with Colman's name large, in "Condemned," with Ann Harding. "Glorious Romance . . . Startling Drama . . . The screen's Greatest Lover in His Finest Role. A Thrilling Smash Hit That Played Six Months in New York." Notify editors of your newspapers serial of this story can be had free for asking. Use a radio talk on your local station. Use Colman proverb contest explained on page two of press book. Monkey presentatoin stunt to local official may crash your newspapers. Tie-ups with pet shops, feminine modiste's and hair-dressing shops. Audience appeal strong for those who like story off beaten track and one that holds interest.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l Mgr., Loew's Stanley, Baltimore.

Dance Hall (RKO)

TACOMA.—RKO Pantages, (1,500), 7 days, 30c-75c. Other attractions, vaudeville headed by "Odds and Ends" with Sidney Marion, Chic Kennedy and chorus. Weather, rainy. Opposition, "Show of Shows," "Illusion" and "Sunny Side Up." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—Exploited Olive Borden and Arthur Lake and type of story. The appeal was general due to the comedy situations.—W. L. Fenny, Mgr., RKO Pantages, Tacoma.

Disraeli (W. B.)

BALTIMORE.—Metropolitan, (1,500), 6 days, and shown Sunday night to start week and midnight show New Year's Eve, 25c-50c. Other attractions, "Pat Rooney and the Rooney Family" in "Marking Time," Kinograms, Organ. Weather, clear and cold. Opposition, (screen), "Tanned Legs," "It's a Great Life," "Song of Kentucky," "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Three Loves," "Sunny Side Up," "The Aviator," "Condemned," "The Viking," "Glorifying the American Girl." (Stage) "Wings Over Europe," Vagabond Players in "Poor Dear Mother," by Batimorean, Stuart Gibson, Jack Lamont and his "Oriental Girls." Rating, 175%.

DALLAS.—Old Mill, (1,044), 15c-25c-35c. Harry Langdon in an all-talking comedy, "Sky Boy," Vitaphone short, "Travelin' Alone" and Pathe News. Weather, fair. Opposition, "Navy Blues," "Marriage Playground," "Hot For Paris," "Broadway Scandals." Rating. 105%.

Box Office Check-Up And Ad. Tips

SAN FRANCISCO.—Embassy, 7 days, 50c-75c. Other attractions, Vitaphone acts, Fox Movietone News. Weather, cold. Opposition, "The Marriage Playground," "Their Own Desire," "Vagabond Lover," "The Locked Door," "Hollywood Revue of 1929," "The Love Parade" (4th week). Rating, 125%.

Ad Tips—Get your slice of big national advertising campaign arranged for by Warners. For your own ads, use black square on angle in center of space with white letters: "George Arliss in 'Disraeli' with Joan Bennett." Have line cut of Bennett's head in upper right and line cut of Arliss in character in lower left. Use phrase: "The world's foremost dramatic actor for the first time on the talking screen." Have special invitation showing for heads (of) schools, colleges to explain what an educational picture this is. Great chance for tie-ups with book stores for window displays and counter displays. Audience appeal everyone will like George Arliss as the powerful, human character in this.—C. S. Langue, Mgr., Metropolitan, Baltimore.

Ad Tips—The name of George Arliss together with that of the title which was his most famous dramatic success should bring in good business anywhere. Give both plenty of space in all publicity and let the public know that it is an all-talking production. The names of Joan Bennett, Mrs. George Arliss and Anthony Bushell should also be mentioned in copy. Audience appeal, general.—Old Mill, Dallas.

Ad Tips.—Feature as presentation of one of the theatre's great masterpieces. An all-talking historical drama, made into a wonderful production by the genius of George Arliss.—D. C. Lane, Mgr., Embassy, San Francisco.

Flight (Col)

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Liberty, (1,800), 4 days, 25-50c. Other attractions, Silly Symphony, "Hell's Bells," "Santa's Toy Shop," Fox Movietone News. Weather, excellent. Opposition, "The Mississippi Gambler," "The Painted Angel," "Chasing Rainbows," "Their Own Desire," "Cocoanuts." Rating, 100%.

Footlights and Fools (FN)

PROVIDENCE.—Strand, (2,200), 7 days. Other attractions, "The New Halfback," "He Loved the Ladies," "Paramount Sound News. Weather, cloudy, warm. Opposition, "Show of Shows," "Navy Blues," "Her Unborn Child," "The Mighty." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Colleen Moore always drawing card here. Exploitation should feature colorful nature of this film and mention list of tuneful melodies. Star, of course, must be heralded to the skies. General appeal to all over 16.—Ed Reid, Mgr., Strand, Providence.

Gamblers, The (W.B.)

OMAHA.—State (1,200), 25c-40c, 3 days. Other attractions, "His Wife's Birthday," (Par.), "The Singing Brakeman," (Col.), Universal News. Weather, clear and warm. Opposition, "His First Command," "Show of Shows," "Navy Blues." Rating, 120%.

Ad Tips—A very timely topic of Wall street and the stock market crash that should make money anywhere now. Names to help the draw are H. B. Warner and Lois Wilson. Audience appeal, masculine.—Irving Cohen, Mgr., State, Omaha.

Girl From Havana (Fox)

MINNEAPOLIS.—Aster, (812), 20c-35c-75c, 7 days, 6 shows daily. Other attractions, newsreel. Weather, mild. Opposition, "Vagabond Lover," "Show of Shows," (2nd week), "Laughing Lady," "Mister Antonio," "Jazz Heaven," "Pointed Heels," "Girl From Havana," "Is Everybody Happy?" "Porgy," (legit. offering by the Theatre Guild at the Lyceum). "Front Page," (legit. offering by dramatic stock company). "Jazz Babies" (burlesque.) Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—Announced this picture as a thrilling adventure of love and mystery. Played up the two stars of the photoplay—Lola Lane and Paul Page.—J. B. Goodwin, Mgr., Aster, Minneapolis.

Glorifying American Girl (Par.)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Parkway, (1,092), 6 days, 15c-35c. LOS ANGELES.—Fox Criterion, (1,652), 2nd week, 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions, Fox Movietone News and "Copy." Opposition, "Glorifying the American Girl," "Their Own Desire," "Oh Yeah," "Paris," "Taming of the Shrew," "Hit the Deck." Weather, rain. Rating, 128%.

Ad Tips—Played this picture as the world premiere and gave it much extra newspaper space and exploitation, featuring it as funnier than "The Cock Eyed World," but 30 per cent hotter. And, of course, we played up the stars big. This picture ran neck to neck with "Sunny Side Up," which established a new house record for all Albany a few weeks ago. Audience appeal, general.—Charles Goulding, Mgr., Harmanus-Bleecker Hall, Albany, N. Y.

Ad Tips—Play up the title which is a good one. Victor McLaglen should be given plenty of space in all newspaper copy. Also mention the names of Fifi Dorsay and El Brendel. Advertised this as being written and directed by Raoul Walsh who gave you "Cockeyed World." Newspaper copy used—"Hot tunes—hot mammas—a couple of hot sailors on the loose looking for the sweets of Paris." Audience appeal—adults.—John H. Thoma, Mgr., Majestic, Dallas.

Illusion (Par.)

OTTAWA.—B. F. Keith's, (2,596), 15-60c, 6 days. Other attractions, Five RKO acts, orchestra overture, "Stepping Out" with Charlie Chase, Pathe silent news, Canadian scenic. Weather, fair and mild. Opposition, "Paris."

Box Office Check-Up And Ad. Tips

"Sweetie," "Broadway Scandals," "Rio Rita," "Darkened Rooms." Rating, 92%.

TACOMA.—Fox Colonial, (965), 7 days, 25c-35c. Other attractions, "Hawaii" (sound) color scenic), Fox Movietone News and sound comedy, "Doing a Favor for Phil." Weather, rainy. Opposition, "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up" and "Dance Hall." Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—There is plenty to talk about in this feature, with its all-talking, singing and dancing. References were made to the teaming up of Buddy Rogers and Nancy Carroll and these alone were sufficient in the billing. Feature also has stage life, high society, night club life, a number of tuneful songs, a circus bit, gorgeous scenes and action, all of which were mentioned. The title is not a box-office draw, except when attention is drawn to the fact that it is a picture from Arthur Train's novel by the same name. There are many Rogers-Carroll fans and, in addition, the feature has wide appeal.—J. M. Franklin, Mgr., B. F. Keith's, Ottawa.

Ad Tips—Popularity of Rogers and Carroll, together with Train's story, gave ample range for newspaper publicity exploitation. Song hits also worked in well. The appeal was general and enthusiastic.—Doug Kimberley, Mgr., Fox Colonial, Tacoma, Wash.

Is Everybody Happy? (W. B.)

MINNEAPOLIS.—Lyric, (1,238), 7 days, 7 shows daily, 15c-25c-40c. Weather, mild. Other attractions, Mack Sennett comedy, "Look Out Below," Pathe Sound News. Opposition, "Vagabond Lover," "Show of Shows," (2nd week), "Laughing Lady," "Mister Antonio," "Jazz Heaven," "Pointed Heels," "Girl from Havana," "Porgy," (legit. offering by Theatre Guild at the Lyceum), "Front Page," (dramatic stock company offering.) "Jazz Babies" (burlesque offering). Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Shot the works on Ted Lewis. Lobby, music store, and newspapers carried dope on the "high hat tragedian of jazz." Secondary, and we will say that it was very much secondary, attention went to Ann Pennington and Alice Day. Our front was something to make good eyes plenty sore it could be seen for two blocks without anybody straining an optic.—R. Lefre, Mgr., Lyric, Minneapolis.

It's A Great Life (M-G-M)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Century, (3,221), 6 days, with midnight show New Year's Eve, 25c-60c. Other attractions, Metrotone and M-G-M News, Loew-Publix Unit, "Fan Fancies," headed by Ken Whitmer with Emil Boreo, Oddity, "Dangerous Females," (all-talking M-G-M comedy), organlogue. Weather, clear and cold. Opposition (screen) "Tanned Legs," "Song of Kentucky," "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Three Loves," "Disraeli," "Sunny Side Up," "The Aviator," "Condemned," "The Viking," "Glorifying the American Girl." Stage, "Wings Over Europe," Vagabond Players in "Poor Dear Mother," by Baltimorean. Stuart Gibson, Jack Lamont and his "Oriental Girls." Rating, 111%.

BOSTON.—Loew's State, (3,700), 7 days, 30c-50c. Other attractions, stage number Parisian Red Hots, Hearst Metrotone News, Fulmer & Wayne. Weather, warm, rainy. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "Mysterious Island," "Lost Zeppelin," "So Long Letty," "Vagabond Lover," "Tanned Legs." Rating, 130%.

Ad. Tips—Exploit heavily on the Duncan Sisters because of their vaudeville and stage reputation. Use half tone cut of Vivian in clinch with Lawrence Gray in upper right of newspaper ad with signature of house at top and type matter running down left side. Copy: "Laugh the laughs! Sing the hit songs! Dance the Dances!" Plenty of chances for music, record, phonograph and radio tie-ups with the three songs in this picture. Don't miss out on window displays and ad. tie-ups with millinery, fur, jewelry and hat shops. Audience appeal is very strong for all classes as Duncan Sisters do fine work in this picture. Reputation will bring many and play itself will bring crowds of others.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l. Mgr., Loew's Century, Baltimore.

Jazz Heaven (RKO)

Stage, Thurston, Earl Carroll's Vanities. Rating, 130%.

MINNEAPOLIS.—State, (2,300), 7 days, 5 shows daily, 25c-35c-60c. Weather, mild. Other attractions, Charley Chase in all-talking comedy "Stepping Out," "Song of the Isles," color symphony, "Barnyard Battles," Paramount Song Novelty. Opposition, "Vagabond Lover," "Show of Shows," (2nd week), "Laughing Lady," "Mister Antonio," "Jazz Heaven," "Is Everybody Happy," Pointed Heels," "Girl From Havana," "Porgy" (legit. attraction offered for a week by Theatre Guild at Lyceum.) "Front Page," (legit. offering by dramatic stock company) "Jazz Babies," (burlesque offering). Rating, 80%.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Rialto, (1,498), 25c-60c, 7 days, Paramount Sound News, Mack Sennett comedy, "A Hollywood Star," Lois Wilson in "Love or Money." Weather, clear-cold. Opposition, "Love Parade," "Untamed," "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up," "First Command." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Pointed out this as another sophisticated parlor drama, as good as Madame X. It's appeal is for those who like to think in the movies.—Sanford Farkas, Mgr., State, Cleveland.

Ad Tips—Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook in a perfect talkie. Will prove a 1930 hit. Strong and universal appeal.—Jack Galt, Mgr., Rialto, Portland, Ore.

Locked Door (U. A.)

SAN FRANCISCO.—California, 50c-65c-90c, 7 days. Other attractions, Paramount Sound News, Paramount talking comedy, "Love or Money," "Bouncing Ball Song" and California orchestra. Weather, cold. Opposition, "Disraeli," "Marriage Playground," "Their Own Desire," "Vagabond Lover," "The Love Parade," (4th week), "Hollywood Revue of 1929." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—Advertise as all-talking version of Channing Pollock's vital melodrama. Arouse curiosity as to what went on "behind the locked door." William Boyd, Rod La Rocque, and Barbara Stanwyck trio of stars have their own following.—Nat Holt, Mgr., California, San Francisco.

Lost Zeppelin (Tiffany)

BOSTON.—Park, (800), 25c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, cartoon, Universal Talking News. Weather, warm, rain. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "It's a Great Life," "Mysterious Island," "Vagabond Lover," "So Long Letty," "Tanned Legs." Rating, 130% (world premiere).

Ad Tips—Title should bring in a good percentage of the business and Mary Brian and Fredric March will help give things a boost if given due mention in all advertising. Let the public know that it is an all-talking picture adapted from Edith Wharton's novel "The Children." Copy used—"the novel that thrilled millions now startlingly alive on the talking screen. Truly a story of moderns for moderns." Audience appeal the grownups.—Melba, Dallas.

Ad Tips—Advertise as Edith Wharton's $10,000 prize story "The Children," made into an all-talking picture. Mary Brian as star has big appeal.—Hal Horne, Mgr., Granada, San Francisco.

Mighty, The (Para)

PROVIDENCE.—Victory, (1,600), 7 days. Other attractions, "Gun Boat Ginsberg," "The Suitor," Pathe Sound News. Weather, warm, cloudy. Opposition, "Footlights and Fools," "Show of Shows," "Her Unborn Child," "Navy Blues." Rating, 95%.

Ad Tips—Another strong film that is bound to boost Bancroft with fans of all ages. Feature war and gangland backgrounds and refer to star's previous triumphs in he-men roles. Should carry appeal to all adults who like strong drama and plenty of action.—Mat Reilly, Mgr., Victory, Providence.

Ad Tips—Haines' name and picture title are enough to draw capacity business. Coupled with the names of Karl Dane and Anita Page, it becomes a sure bet for any house. Stress comedy, and Haines as a doughty gob. Appeal is to old and young.—W. V. Taylor, Mgr., Loew's State, Houston.

Ad Tips—Sold on the idea of Haines first all-talker. Star and title of picture were enough for draw here, but tieups helped. Local naval units co-operated and 70 naval reserves, all in full uniform, marched from their headquarters with a police escort to an evening showing during run. Audience appeal, general. —Charles Pincus, Mgr., Paramount, Omaha.

Ad Tip—Breezy William Haines is excellent material for ballyhoo in ads and readers. Title is catchy and can be tied up with feature stories. Be sure to mention that this is Haines first all-talkie. Appeal: All ages from 10 up to 90.—J. P. McCarthy, Mgr., Loew's State, Providence.

Nix On Dames (Fox)

MILWAUKEE.—Merrill (1,298), 25c-60c, 7 days. Weather, cloudy and cool. Other attractions, comedy and newsreel. Opposition, "Paris," "Halfway To Heaven," "Welcome Danger," "Hell's Heroes," "Show of Shows," "The Kiss." Rating, 95%.

TROY, N. Y.—Troy, (2,000), 35c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, Vitaphone selection, Movietone News. Weather, pleasant. Opposition, "Tiger Rose," "Sacred Flame," "Broadway," "Vagabond Lover." Rating, 120%.

Ad Tips—Play this as one of the biggest pictures of the year with no less than 77 of the stars. Audience appeal, everyone.—Benjamin Stern, Mgr., The Troy, Troy, N. Y.

Ad Tips—"77 Stars! 350 chorus Beauties! 100 shows in one!" Color, beauty, variety, grace, and melody. Laugh with Winnie Lightner. Hear John Barrymore in one of his famous stage soliloquies. Richard Barthelmess, Dolores Costello, and the famous sister teams of the screen. Dazzling array of stage and screen talent,—nothing like it yet seen in screen revue. This was advertising slant. Appeal of this picture is to every screen and stage fan in existence.—Holden Swager, Mgr., Kirby, Houston.

Ad Tips—Used elaborate theatre front with "77 stars" emblazoned on marquee. Sold picture on its lavishness, but plot-less revues don't go so well here. Audience appeal, general.—Lionel Wasson, Mgr., World, Omaha.

Ad Tips—Plenty to play with in exploiting this film. Cast reads like filmdom's who's who. Mention everybody and refer to fact that 77 stars in all will be seen and heard. Big spreads were used here with excellent effect. Film is being held. Has appeal for all classes and ages.—Sol Braunig, Mgr., Majestic, Providence.

So Long Letty (W. B.)

BOSTON.—Fenway, (1,500), 25c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions, comedy, "In and Out." Paramount News. Weather, warm, rain. Opposition, "Pointed Heels," "Mysterious Island," "It's A Great Life," "Lost Zeppelin," "Vagabond Lover," "Tanned Legs." Rating, 120%.

Song of Kentucky (Fox)

BALTIMORE.—Hippodrome, (2,500), 6 days, with midnight show New Year's Eve, 20c-60c. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News, Pathe Audio Review, Bert Smith Players in "Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath," with acts, chorus, orchestra and organ. Weather, clear and cold. Opposition (screen) "Tanned Legs," "It's a Great Life," "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Three Loves," "Disraeli," "Sunny Side Up," "The Aviator," "Condemned," "The Viking," "Glorifying American Girl." Stage, "Wings Over Europe," Vagabond Players in "Poor Dear Mother," by Baltimorean, Stuart Gibson, Jack Lamont and his "Oriental Girls." Rating, 150%.

Song Of Love (Col.)

DENVER.—Orpheum, (1,650), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, RKO vaudeville, Pathe Sound News and Aesop's Fables. Weather, fine. Opposition, "Show of Shows," "Navy Blues," "Paris," "Three Live Ghosts," and "South Sea Rose." Rating, 120%.

Changing Styles

MAYBE you don't think that the styles in women's dresses have any relationship with movie theatres. Well directly, they may or may not, that's not the purpose of this little chat.

But after all, the styles in picture entertainment have changed considerably in the past year or so and of course, in order to keep step with these changes the method of presenting the shows and the kind of equipment used all underwent lots of changes.

Managers who used to let the projectionists take the film from the can and put it right on the machine for the first show found such tactics way out of date and likewise found that previews of all sound subjects had to be a regular part of their theatre's routine.

Not so unlike the flappers' dresses says we.

How come?

Well, up to this season the little "chippies" used to wear 'em well above the knee and cavorted around like a bunch of young colts. Skippin', runnin' and hoppin' like a bunch of babies.

BUT, styles change, and they are wearing 'em well below the knee.

Can they continue to cavort about, skip about or hop about?

Keep your eye on one of 'em that tries to and you'll soon see how funny they look. Now that they have grown up (if longer dresses make 'em age) they must act the part that they look.

And why not the same condition as far as movie entertainment is concerned?

You just can't carry on in the old-fashioned way any longer.

Just as the actions of the girls have been changed, so must the actions of the theatre manager and his theatre presentations change.

If the flapper acts like a jumping-jack she is making an ass of herself, and if the theatre manager tries to deliver shows to his patrons as he did in the days of the "silents" then he is headed for the door on his way out.

There is only one answer to any question of changing styles.

That is, keeping right up to date all the time and in step with styles, in the running of your theatre and presenting your shows.

Unheard of sums have been spent in new booth equipment and unless you are getting the most out of that expensive equipment, you are not really capable of looking after an investment involving so much money.

Let's try to make it a point, from now on, to keep right up to the mark when it comes to modernizing, not only our weapons of warfare (if we can call them such) but the methods used in the presentation of our shows. Don't let the patrons get any sort of notion that they can see the shows to better advantage in some other theatre.

Max Melincoff Made A B.O. Smash With This One

Max Melincoff, the live-wire manager of E. M. Loew's Capitol Theatre in Pawtucket, R. I., has already passed along some mighty interesting bits of exploitation and publicity and, as we all know from previous reference to his activities, he is an enthusiastic CLUB member and a great believer in the policy of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

We rather admire Max's frankness and willingness to put himself on record when he successfully puts across any stunt that found its first suggestion in the ROUND TABLE CLUB column. And in this respect he writes to say—but, here, it will sound better if we let you read a little bit of his latest letter, because he expresses himself far better on the subject than we could ever hope to do in rewriting a story. Read on, for yourself.

"I am tickled to death to see the CLUB going over so big, and only hope it continues. The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB is a 'Managers' School' in itself and the lessons given therein are a great help.

We took one of your tips on the extra benefit idea—and how it went over! As you know, I am a great believer in institutional advertising and the show went over 100 per cent for me. Fortunately at the time, the only local paper with a circulation of 30,000 sponsored the toy fund, and I not only put the show over for them, but have won their everlasting friendship by doing so, and that means a whole lot in a town where the newspaper is your main advertising medium."

Capitol Ushers in New Uniforms

So you see, he was really instrumental in putting over a great idea, and in the cut with this story you will notice the front page publicity that the theatre secured through this marvelous tieup and also how the local paper ran a picture of his ushers to inaugurate their new uniforms, which was just a slight token of the newspaper's appreciation for the fine cooperation on the Christmas show.

Great stuff, Max, and we want you to know that we appreciate your thoughtfulness in keeping us posted on this good-will activity of yours, but keep up what you have started. You are certainly headed for a great future in the show business and it would tickle us pink to know that we aided in any way possible. So long for the present, and all good wishes for the New Year.

Shreiber's Latest Stunt Opens His Newest Theatre

J. Schreiber, who owns and manages the Fine Arts Theatre in Detroit, Mich., certainly gave that theatre a marvelous ballyhoo opening for talkies just here recently on December the 1st.

You will notice from the photograph, which is unfortunately a little blurred, how effective this ballyhoo of the Scotch Kiltie Band must have been around the Fine Arts neighborhood where they paraded and attracted considerable attention.

It is hardly necessary to give Schreiber a formal introduction, as the reputation he has already achieved in Detroit at his open-all-night Blackstone Theatre qualifies him for front page publicity in any trade paper in the land. However, with the addition of the Fine Arts Theatre, he now has the only two theatres open all night in Detroit and showing all sorts of pictures. More power to you, Schreiber.

We should certainly like to hear from Mr. Schreiber again as this slight token of his showmanship leads us to suspect that he is capable of putting over many other big campaigns that would be a great help to other showmen who are likewise ever trying to increase their box office receipts. How about it, Mr. Schreiber, let's hear from you again soon?

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Built Kiddie Biz. to Big Proportions at Small Cost

The important part of this particular article is, what are you doing to jack up your kiddie trade on Saturday afternoons?

You may all well recall the continuous plugging of this subject on these pages up to a few months ago, when other and important subjects crowded this particular item into the background. However, the subject is just as vital and important today as it was then and will forever remain important as long as there are theatres and kiddies to attend the shows.

How Bill Levey, manager of the Beacon Theatre in Pt. Washington, L. I., handles this phase of showmanship was revealed at a recent conference with Mr. Levey on this particular subject.

It seems that by reason of adding an inexpensive picture to his regular Saturday show, he was instrumental in increasing the Saturday afternoons business tremendously.

What Mr. Levey and the Century Circuit have accomplished in this respect, any theatre man can likewise accomplish, providing the manager and organization he is working for are both willing to recognize the possibilities of kiddie trade, especially on Saturday afternoons.

Another phase of Mr. Levey's activities was capitalizing on Mickey Mouse cartoon, which has become so popular not only with patrons but with the show world as well. And we show here an illustration of a neat little card which was passed out throughout the town, especially to the younger generation, and if you still have any of your youthful blood in your veins, you will recognize the kick the kiddies must have gotten out of this little throwaway.

"The Hit of the Show"

Dear Patron

I will be at the Beacon Theatre in a brand new Cartoon, "The Jazz Fool" on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 18-19

Be sure to see and hear me

(Signed)
Mickey Mouse

We would certainly appreciate hearing from our many members and readers dealing with the subject of kiddie matinees or what form of stimulants they are using to increase the box office receipts from this particular angle. Here is a subject that any one who is successful in handling it will have added business for other showmen throughout the country and would be a real cooperative move.

Weiss-Perlberg Should Be Called "Pep" Incorporated"

Shove over and make room for another little contribution from the famous combination of Weiss, Perlberg, Inc., pepping up and keeping the old registering machine hot donw at the Florida Theatre down in Jacksonville, Fla., for Publix.

Here is the way he ballyhooed the picture "Untamed" by the use of a truck flivver which was driven around the town minus a chauffeur.

The gag, to be a little more explicit, was as follows: The driver would ride in the car and then remove the steering wheel at street corners and would get out of the car and go to the opposite side of the street and he would whistle and wave his hand and the car would automatically start and follow.

Of course, the secret of the stunt was that a man was concealed in a box under the rear seat with dual steering apparatus and with a periscope for vision, and since the car was run very slow at such times as the regular driver was out of the seat, it naturally was safe enough.

That this stunt caused far more comment than anything else that has been attempted in quite a few weeks immediately makes it stand out as being a corker, because Weiss and Perlberg, Inc., are forever engineering stunts that are outstanding and business getting from every angle. Another thing that you can chalk up about this stunt was that the cost was about $10 a day and if that didn't more than pay for itself in the attention getting value of the entire ballyhoo, then they can make mince meat out of the flivver and I'll eat it for my Sunday dinner.

Adolph Pincus Returns to B. & P. Circuit in Jersey

Adolph Pincus, lately identified with the Rockland Theatre, Nyack, N. Y., for the Bratter & Pollack Circuit, has again returned to the B. & P. fold as manager for the Ritz Theatre in Lyndhurst, N. J., where he succeeds Earl Arnold, who has been promoted to another theatre.

Knowing how capable Pincus has been in the handling of the Nyack house makes us certain that he will accomplish far more at the Ritz than his Circuit actually expects. Here's wishing him all the luck in the world, and we are certainly glad to know that he is now back in the active group again.

Eugene Parrish Says:

"I am enclosing my application for membership in the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB. I have been a steady reader of that section of the NEWS ever since it first began . . . and have never seen anything like it for good sound ideas."

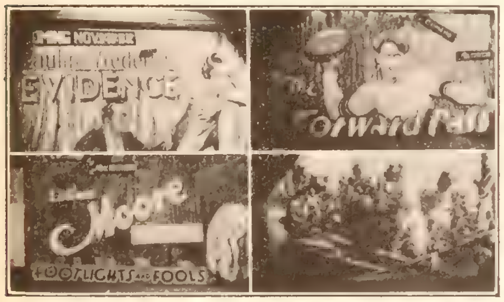
R. B. Hamilton Injects New Pep Into Norwich Palace

This will serve as your opportunity of making the personal acquaintance via his photograph and this story of R. B. Hamilton, Resident Manager of the Warner Brothers Palace Theatre in Norwich, Conn.

Hamilton's photo really shows that our former opinion of him was more than justified. He's got the look of a real showman about him, and unquestionably he is helping make theatrical history in that "once" peppy theatrical (?) town of Norwich.

You may recall the marvelous little tabloid newspaper which Mr. Hamilton has started in Norwich, known as the Norwich Palace News, and chock full of entertaining lines about the theatre and its current and coming attractions and policy. Now with this story, we also want you to see four of the attractive lobby displays which were designed and worked out under the personal supervision of Mr. Hamilton and offered a distinct novelty in showmanship for Norwich.



The one on the extreme lower right hand corner was in the form of a Thanksgiving novel lobby display as well as advertising Billie Dove in the "Painted Angel," and he arranged a real novelty in the person of a two headed calf which was born not far from the town.

Thank you kindly, "R. H." for your fine CLUB spirit and activities, and here's hoping you continue the way you have started. Remember us to Corey, Mrs. Martin and the rest of the gang that we know up there in Norwich. We hope to say "hello" to you in person before very long.

NOW ITS STAMP COLLECTING!

Who ever said that New York and vicinity ran around in circles probably knew what he was talking about; as witness the present box office stimulant—The Stamp Club gag.

The idea being to give away a small envelope containg a quantity of foreign stamps and to the lucky few, each week, an album to paste them in.

Inasmuch as both the young and the older kids were always crazy about stamp collections, this one is back on the pan for all it's worth—and then some.

But since it is bringing 'em back every week, then it's up to us to say that it is a corker.

Try it yourselves. Must be plenty of sources to tie up with for the stamps—albums—and what have you. And the investment is little enough if it clicks at the b.o.

M. S. Hattwick Was Quick To Cash in on This One

Do you recall the box about the Holidays not long ago headed, "Are You Set?" Well, M. S. Hattwick, proprietor and manger of the Blue Bird Theatre in Mill Hall, Pa., hastens to prove that HE was "Set" by sending us a clipping from his local paper setting forth the details of his fine Potato-Grocery Benefit Show which went over one hundred per cent.

The newspaper clipping told the story so clearly that we are reprinting it below:

POTATOES, GROCERIES GIVEN AT BENEFIT SHOW

Poor of Mill Hall and Children's Aid Home Will Be Helped with Supplies

Twenty-four children from the Children's Aid Society home in this city were taken to the movies at the Blue Bird Theatre, in Mill Hall, Monday evening, when Walter S. Hattwick, proprietor of the theatre gave a benefit show to aid the society and the poor of Mill Hall. The house was packed with spectators, many of whom paid their admission by donations of potatoes or groceries.

Quantities of sugar, rice, lard, canned goods and other staple groceries, as well as several bushels of potatoes were collected from those who attended the benefit. Representatives of the Children's Aid Society assisted in receiving the donations.

All but the three youngest of the children in the local home were guests of Mr. Hattwick at the show. They were conveyed to and from the theatre in automobiles.

Some of the supplies received at the benefit will be distributed among several poor families residing in Mill Hall and the remainder will be brought to the Children's Home here by Mr. Hattwick.

Thank you Mr. Hattwick for your thoughtfulness in sending us that letter with the clipping. How come you are not enrolled in the Club? We are always after showmen like yourself to become active members and so we suggest that you shoot in your application by return mail and see if you don't find your membership mighty interesting and profitable.

H. L. R. Gribble Is Well Equipped to Handle Big Job

Here is some interesting information about H. L. R. Gribble, City Manager for the Community Theatres, Inc., in Milwaukee, Wisc.

Gribble has been in the movie game for the past eighteen years in several different fields which covered projectionist, camera man and manager.

He once managed the Gay and Temple Theatres in Harriman, Tenn., for the Crescent Company of Nashville and made a good job of it as long as he was there. Later on, he went with the Saenger Theatre in Mississippi which he managed and put over quite successfully.

Was cameraman for Hearsts's News Service in New York and also did some camera and exploitation work for Loews Theatre in Nashville and Memphis.

All of these little bits of information lead us to believe that Gribble is a livewire and is going to be heard from plenty in the immediate future. Right now he is City Manager for the Community Outfit with the Orpheum and Plaza Theatres of Burlington, Wis., under his direct supervision.

O. K., Gribble, we'll hold you at your word and withhold any further judgment until we see how you get going when you hit your stride, but don't forget to enclose one of your own photographs with your next letter, so that we can give you a more intimate introduction on these pages.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

City Manager Lawler Has Something New in "Radio"

When you read about all those high-powered radio broadcast ideas and remember that you have no local station to play with on this most desirable angle, then don't throw up the sponge. In fact, there is still hope, and plenty of it if you are one of those fellows like the manager in this story, who refuses to be "downed."

But wait a minute;—suppose you follow up the details of the stunt yourself and see how it strikes you? Just as a point of information we want you to know that this gentleman is the City Manager for the Irvin, Majestic and Castle Theatres out in Bloomington, Ill. for Publix.

Bloomington has no federal licensed radio station. The theatre managers there are unable to make use of the many splendid tie-ups used in connection with radio stations elsewhere.

But it remained for the ingenuity of City Manager Ralph W. Lawler to solve the problem. Lawler arranged with six leading restaurants and confectioners in the city to permit the installation of radio loud speakers. These speakers were connected to the theatre by means of telephone cables, leased at regular telephone company rates for private telephone wire. At the theatre, an amplifying unit from an old radio set, a microphone and an electric reproducer for playing records was located.

These songs and musical numbers were "broadcast" through the various telephone wires to the six speakers located about town. Intermittently, announcements were made about current attractions at the theatres and credit was given the cooperating radio and record dealers.

In this manner, Lawler was able to confine the cost of the stunt to the actual rental of the wires, which amounted to $8 each per month. Much comment resulted, for the idea attracted much attention from everyone.

"Best Essays" Brought Increased Biz. for Larner

Manager M. Larner of the Bucklin Theatre in Elkhart, Ind., used a novel sort of a gag in exploiting "Our Modern Maidens" when that attraction played his theatre.

Through a clever tieup he made an arrangement with the Elkhart Business College, offering five monthly passes for the best essays on "Our Modern Maiden, What Is She Coming To?"

The contest was a terrific success and hundreds of essays were turned in. This is a darn good angle inasmuch as it brought the picture to the attention of the very class of theatregoers that it naturally would appeal to, namely, the collegiate and business school student.

This did not constitute the entire campaign engineered by Mr. Lerner, as he also tied up some beautiful window displays in local drug stores as well as in several of the larger and more representative chain stores in the town.

How about telling us some more about your activities, Mr. Lerner? We are always anxious to pass on a good tip or two to the other boys who are ever on the alert to take advantage of a good showman's activities.

C. T. Perrin's Kiwanis Activities Mean Good-Will

Down in Greeley, Colo., C. T. Perrin not only takes an interest in his theatre duties but also takes pride in being an illustrious member of the Kiwanis Club. This Kiwanis affiliation served a definite purpose in this instance in that he interested the members in seeing "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" playing at the Rex Theatre, Greeley, Colo.

Since the regular meeting night fell on Thanksgiving Day, the Kiwanis Club held an impromptu meeting and then at the invitation of Manager Perrin came to the Rex Theatre in a body. THE MEMBERS BROUGHT ALONG THEIR WIVES AND PAID THE FULL ADMISSION PRICE FOR THEM.

This stunt netted the theatre more money than would have ordinarily have been received as this group of men rarely visit the Rex Theatre.

All the members and their wives seemed to be pleased with the idea of attending in a body and many suggested they try it again in the near future.

For which friend Perrin is deserving of a lot of credit for unearthing a new business-getting angle. Keep it up "C. T." and the big guns will be taking note of all your doings. And how.

D. S. Molivar Offers an Unusual Reward to Patrons

Just what the best move would be to help put over a theatre that has had pretty tough playing in its past may best be answered by the way of D. S. Moliver, new manager for the Empress Theatre in Manayunk, Pa., happened to hit upon when he took over that house.

We are reprinting the wording that appeared in a two column ad in local papers and which carries a certain kind of a "wallop" that may have a bearing on similar ideas that you may want to work out in the future. At any rate, we suggest that you look it over.

I will personally give FIVE DOLLARS to the person sending me the best letter on the following subject:

"HOW TO MAKE THE EMPRESS THEATRE EVEN MORE POPULAR THAN IT IS"

in introducing myself to the people of Manayunk and vicinity, permit me to take this opportunity to welcome your patronage. In behalf of our organization and the personnel of the Empress Theatre, we hereby pledge ourselves to give our individual attention in the matter of making every one of your visits to our theatre as pleasant as possible.

The "EMPRESS" Personnel
D. S. MOLIVER, Manager

Thank you, Mr. Moliver, for sending us this clipping as well as the other material, and we shall certainly look forward to knowing how you are putting over your theatre out there in Manayunk.

BUSINESS MAN OFFERS FINANCIAL AID TO WIDOW

Prominent Local Merchant Offers to Assist Widow in Distress.

One of Faribault's most prominent business men today offered to provide sufficient financial aid for at least a year to the young widow who has offered to give away her baby boy to anyone that guaranteed to provide it with a suitable home.

Hundreds of inquiries have been received at the Daily News office requesting the name and address of the young widow, but the Daily News has been requested not to disclose the identity of the person who made the offer.

It is hoped that the offer of the Faribault business man will be accepted, so that it will not be necessary to part the tiny infant from its mother at such a tender age.——Advertisement.

PARAMOUNT OFFER TO FIND HOME FOR BABY

The management of the Paramount theatre, having offered to assist in securing a home for the two-months old baby boy, whose mother is unable to support and care for it, has reached an agreement with the young widow to permit the baby to be given away free to some patron of the Paramount theatre next Monday night. The public is assured that the baby is in the best of health, and that the patron of the Paramount who is fortunate enough to be selected to adopt it shall not be obliged to make any promises or agreement, other than that they offer proof that they are of age, in fairly good financial circumstances and fully capable of providing a good home for the baby. The management of the theatre desires to call attention to the hour the baby will be given away, the time being at the end of the first evening performance at about 9 00—Advertisement

HUNDREDS OFFER TO ADOPT BABY

In response to the advertisement published in last night's Daily News by a young Rice county widow, offering to give away her two-months-old baby boy to anyone offering to provide a suitable home for it, there have been received today, up to press time, over fifty replies. The young widow assures the public that the offer is bona-fide and that the baby is in good health, and that there will be no strings attached to the bargain. Upon adoption, the baby will belong, absolutely and unrevokably, to the person or parties whom she decides is best fitted and most likely to provide a good home for him.—Adv.

CITIZENS PROTEST GIVING BABY AWAY AT PARAMOUNT

Hundreds of indignant Faribault citizens have protested to the authorities in an endeavor to forbid the management of the Paramount theatre to give a live baby away to some unknown person next Monday night. The protests are for various reasons. Many feel that it is unfair to the baby and that there are no definite assurances that it shall be provided with a good home. Others believe that the procedure is inhuman. "Just the idea of sending the tiny two-months-old babe out into the cold world, among perfect strangers, gives me the cold shivers," said one indignant mother.

Regardless of the protests, Manager Glaser of the Paramount theatre states that 'the baby will be given away free to some patron next Monday night, immediately following the first evening performance. We have seen the baby and he is 'just too cute for words.' I am sure that no one could mistreat him, and that the fortunate person that is selected to adopt him will make every effort to bring him up in a manner that will be a credit to the community.'—Adv.

A Real Live Baby—Free!

A Million Laughs With This B. O. Smash

> Giving away a free pig and calling it a live baby is by no means new. But Lloyd Sinclair put it over and was followed by many others. Then along came Will Glaser who took the old idea and dressed it up in new trimmings so that it took on added importance as a novelty, business getter and audience laugh-provoking stunt. Read all about it. You'll find it a marvelous "gag" for any house. Then Use It!
>
> "Chick"

Without a doubt everyone of our readers remembers the famous baby gag that was printed on these pages not so very long ago.

Well, if you don't, we will refresh your memory with a still more elaborate stunt based on the same idea.

The series of ads and advertising readers which he ran in conjunction with this "giving a baby away" stunt explains the story even more eloquently than we could even begin to do, and therefore merely call your attention to the series in the order in which they were run, and you can work out the results in your own mind.

A Darn Good Start

You will note he starts off with a two column four inch ad headed "Who Wants to Adopt a Two Months Old Baby?" The reading matter is all worked out with a view of attracting attention. He then started running on four separate days a series of advertising readers set up the same as the news items of the local papers with the proper head and the story all tending to build up the interest which was created by the ad itself. On the day that the live baby was given away, he incorporated it into his regular ad by giving it top billing and then of course the next day the local paper in a legitimate news report on the front page told the public what it was all about.

We certainly want to compliment Will on the fine way he handled this compaign, and while we do not know whether he found its basis in the Lloyd Sinclair stunt, it nevertheless shows good judgment and showmanship.

We unhesitatingly recommend this stunt as a laugh and business getter for any theatre regardless of how high class or where located, it is a sure fire stunt and the best part of it is that it can be run in connection with any picture that you want it to, as it is primarily a business builder for an off night, rather than a stimulator for any particular picture. Those members or readers of these pages who find the suggestion worth while following can get further information by writing direct to the Chairman at Club headquarters, and if they successfully engineer this stunt, they should at least send us the dope as Mr. Glaser has done.

Now You Try It

Come on you live wire showmen, if you're putting over something that is really outstanding, it need not necessarily be original. Many an original idea was revamped and put over with so much pep that it was really new from every standpoint. If you have succeeded in giving your town the laugh of a life time, if you have taken a dead night, and by reason of some idea turned it into a box office winner, don't keep it a secret. Help the other fellow as he is helping you. Pass along the good word and what you are doing as well as how you are doing it to the ROUND TABLE CLUB, so that the greatest majority of showmen can benefit by reading about your experiences on these pages.

The ad below was the opening shot in Glaser's "Free Baby" stunt, while the ad on the right was used only on the day the baby was to be given away.

Who Wants To Adopt A Two Months Old Baby!

Due to financial reverses, a young widow living in Rice County has decided to give up her darling baby boy, providing that a suitable home, with pleasant surroundings, may be found for it. Interested parties are requested to submit a proposal in writing, giving full details as to their financial ability to adopt and rear this infant.

EAGER THEATRE PATRONS CRANE NECKS—WHO WON THE BABY?

A still hush fell over the Paramount audience last night at 9 o'clock as the curtain was drawn after the first show, and the time for the prize award of a real live baby drew near.

Whispers could be heard. "I wonder if they are really going to do it." 'Sh-h-h' Here he comes,' as a man stepped out from behind the curtains. There was no need to quiet those present as a tense atmosphere filled the [illegible] Moorish castle in expectancy of the award of the little two months-old tot.

'No questions will be asked, but we want to be assured that the baby will be well cared for,' announced the man. 'What would I do with it if I got it?" whispered [illegible] in the [illegible] there he was [illegible] there in the [illegible] about the middle, as the eyes of everyone in the theatre turned to Emmet Galagan.

Much Suspense.

A bit hesitant, Mr. Galagan rose to his full six feet in height and strode down the aisle as the atmosphere of curiosity replaced that of suspense. The man disappeared for a moment, and then appeared with the baby and how cute! "Isn't he darling!" [illegible] a young lass as the baby was brought forth dressed in the full [illegible] of baby-style.

Mr. Galagan re-traced his steps up the aisle, amid the chuckles and cheers of applause of the onlookers. A [illegible] live two months old crawling baby pig, 'the cutest little baby pig I ever saw.'"

Bob Suits Put Over Best Holiday Show on Record

Bob Suits, dynamic manager of Loew's Colonial Theatre in Reading, Pa., tied up for the third consecutive year with the annual reception to Santa Claus which is a marvelous stunt sponsored by merchants.

As in previous years, Santa arrived at the railroad station where he was received by thousands and thousands of kids. There was likewise, a band to lead him and then a parade through the principal streets all in his honor.

This marvelous parade wound up at Loew's Colonial where the daily papers estimated, conservatively, that over 10,000 kiddies tried to gain admission to the theatre for Santa's reception.

Suits once more showed his keen showmanship by arranging a special performance from the top of the marquee for the benefit of the folks who could not get into the theatre, and as a result traffic on the main street was tied up for more than an hour.

The photograph with this story is just a small bit of evidence of some of the youngsters who jammed the street in front of the theatre in an effort to gain admission. We leave to your imagination without affidavit or other sworn testimony just what kind of publicity break Bob Suits secured for the Colonial Theatre thru this fine celebration and since it is just typical of what we expect from Bob and his various activities, we know that the crowd will be glad to hear about the way he put it over.

Thanks for passing the dope along, Bob, and here's hoping that you keep up the good work, and continue to keep us posted on all the great stuff you are pulling out that way.

PLEASE notify the Chairman of any change in address.

Immense Banner Attracted Business for Marc Wolff

Marc J. Wolff, Manager of the Palace Theatre, Gary, Ind., worked out a mighty unusual front for "Why Bring That Up?" when he strung this immense banner, as shown on the photograph below, across the top of six double window stores located in the theatre building.

This must have been a peach of a darb for Marc, and undoubtedly attracted all of the attention that he expected it would when he went to the trouble of working it out.

Nice work, Wolff, but how come we haven't heard from you in so long? You'd better shoot something in more often, or we will think you're laying down on the job, and that would be a tough opinion to have of a "peppy" showman like yourself.

Santa Arrived by Plane For Waugh's Celebration

As far as Howard Waugh was concerned, Santa Claus arrived at Meriden, Conn., and the Fox Poli Theatre via a tieup between the Theatre and the local Sears Roebuck Store.

This photograph really does not do justice to the mob of youngsters who assembled to meet Santa Claus, who you will see in the center of the picture, but at any rate it will give you a faint and rough idea of how well the stunt went over.

We have before us a tear sheet from the local paper showing a picture of Santa Claus getting into the aeroplane and the headline reading "Santa Claus on way here from Pole in Aeroplane."

Great stuff, Howard, and we should have come in on the same aeroplane with Santy so as to take advantage of some of that famous Waugh Christmas hospitality (whatever that may be).

Howard was aided in engineering this entire stunt by Ernest Doreau, his able assistant. We have Howard's assurances that Ernest will shortly send his application in to join the heavy MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB, and with the send-off that he gets from his boss he certainly belongs in this outfit.

Best regards to yourself and the Mrs. until I get up to see you myself.

Aeroplane Ballyhoo Was B. O. Magnet for Lashley

Here is a photograph of the front of the Palace Theatre in Raleigh, N. C., as well as the marvelously attractive truck ballyhoo on the picture "Flight" which was conceived and executed by H. G. Lashley, manager of that Publix Saenger Theatre.

The aeroplane was loaned to Mr. Lashley through the Curtis flying service, and was mounted on a truck while one of the pilots sat in the cockpit of this plane while it was being drived about the town.

He also secured a lobby display consisting of a wind tunnel as used in the Curtis School for training students, and had one of the instructors from the airport come down every day and give demonstrations. Naturally this kept the lobby full pretty much all the time, and was a marvelous ad for the attraction as well as the theatre.

This constituted but a small portion of Lashley's marvelous tieup in connection with the attraction and we certainly would appreciate hearing more about his showmanship activities any time he cares to send it along.

By the way, Lashley, I don't believe we ever had one of your pictures at CLUB headquarters, and we are anxious to get all of the active members' photos on file. Why not accommodate us with one by return mail? Thanks!

G. B. Odlum Combined His Greeting Card With Advt.

Our good friend G. B. Odlum, who directs the destiny of the Capitol Theatre in Elmyra, N. Y., incorporated a Merry Christmas card for his patrons in connection with the opening of "The Vagabond Lover" at that theatre. We thought it was a mighty clever way of working both and killing two birds with one stone. Therefore, we make mention of it.

We were glad to hear from "G. B." and we want him to know that although we haven't kept in touch with him as frequently as before, he will bear with us we know, because he realizes that we are fairly swamped with contributions and mail, besides running around visiting other cities.

I haven't despaired yet, "G. B." I still hope to reach Elmyra other than rushing through it on the 20th Century Ltd. So long for the present and best of luck for the New Year.

E. L. Kidwell says:

"The ROUND TABLE CLUB department is certainly increasing. Why don't you put it in a separate cover? Mail it with the regular issue of the NEWS and it would be easier to file."

Al Gillis' Show Clicked With Both Public & Press

When Al Gillis starts out to put something over, you can chalk it up as being 99 9-10ths per cent. successful even before it takes place. That's what faith we have in Al's ability as a showman and theatre manager.

All of which leads us to the fact that the fine Christmas party which he planned for the Fox Palace Theatre in Waterbury, Conn., went over with a "bang" and was so successful that they are still talking about it. Not only in Waterbury, but even way down in New Haven and around Hartford.

Which is a wonderful tribute to Al from the industry's viewpoint, but you can just imagine the tribute the local paper and his patrons must have given him for his fine good-will spirit in engineering a performance for the kiddies such as he did.

The show was run on Tuesday morning, December 24th, with the doors opening at 9:30 in the morning, and the show starting at 10 o'clock. Everything was advertised "free," which included a Tom Mix picture, vaudeville, and many other presents and incidentals, all tending to make the kiddies happy and put them into a real Christmas spirit.

Good work, Gillis, and don't be surprised if I walk in on you some time during January, as I plan a little trip up through Conn. at that time. Best regards to Hershel Stuart and the rest of the Fox Poli boys, who are boosters of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, the same as yourself.

Thrift Gags & Attractions Sold Together by Mgr. Lee

Harold C. Lee, resident manager of the Babcock Theatre in Bath, N. Y., for the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, recently combined a corking good throwaway in the form of a Christmas shoppers' list, which was a mighty fine plug for the Fox Thrift Book they were selling in all the Metropolitan Playhouses.

However, he didn't use just the one side; but found room on the opposite for a fine piece of copy on "The Flying Fool" which was going to be run at the Babcock Theatre in conjunction with a Church Benefit Performance.

He also used a mighty effective throwaway on "Bulldog Drummond" in the form of a teaser ad which told the cash customers, it was a reminder to see Ronald Coleman in this all mystery drama and as an advance plug, the opposite side carried a few lines about "Madame X" which followed shortly after.

Nice work, Harold, and we are certainly glad that you are remembering your CLUB affiliations by keeping us posted on everything you are putting across. Keep up the good work.

"Thank You Boys"

The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB wishes to take this means of expressing its appreciation for the marvelous CLUB spirit displayed by our many members and readers in the way they followed our suggestions for Special Kiddie Shows for institutional inmates and others prior to the recent Holiday season.

The mass of newspaper clippings and other evidence of the success of the shows was so great that it would crowd out more important matter were we to go into detail on each one of these particular stories.

At any rate, we are glad that these suggestions are carrying weight with our wide group of members, and we are sure that they all benefitted by what we had to suggest to them.

Fred Johnson's Good-Will Activities Going Great

Just a little over a year ago Fred E. Johnson's activities around Marietta and Cambridge, Ohio, dealing with local community good will angles was the topic of many interesting discussions on these pages.

Now that Fred has transferred his street address to Oil City, Pa., where he holds forth for the RKO Drake Theatre in that city, we find that he is continuing the same livewire showmanship and good will tactics, but on a bigger and better scale.

In the photograph with this article, you will notice the contributions made for the poor kiddies' Christmas party which he worked through the Salvation Army of Oil City.

Many valuable news stories found their way into the local papers which made the entire stunt still more attractive.

One portion of the newspaper mentioned that Fred E. Johnson, the theatre manager, has turned over to the adjutant of the Salvation Army 685 packages of used clothing, each containing one or more garments.

Great stuff, Fred, and it's exactly typical of what we expected of you in your new location. Keep up the great work, but be sure to keep us posted so that we can tell the rest of the gang just what you are doing and how successfully you are putting these things across.

Blumenthal Plays Santa For Passaic Youngsters

Harold Blumenthal won a marvelous front-page break in his local newspaper out in Passaic, N J., in connection with the special movie matinee in which Blumenthal played Santa Claus to a host of a thousand orphans, who gave him a wonderful welcome.

We have from time to time recounted the activities and showmanship angles of this fine young showman, and we know that our many members and readers are as interested in knowing what he is doing, as we are in hearing from him ourselves. Here is a showman who adds a local twist to practically everything he accomplishes with the worthwhile result that the theatre benefits twofold, both in patronage and a fine community spirit, feeling that is always a wonderful foundation in any theatre regardless of where it is located.

We wish our space would permit our reproducing the stories that appeared in the local papers about Blumenthal and the New Montauk and Capitol Theatres in Passaic, N. J., which he runs for the Stanley-Warner outfit, but we will have to pass it up at this time and tell you more about him in future issues of the NEWS. Best regards, Harold, and here's wishing you a mighty Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Russell W. Volz Says—"There is a Santa Claus"

Russell W. Volz finally reached a goal that he set for himself many years ago, but is strong in his belief that "there is a Santa Claus."

Just how this all happened we won't attempt to tell at this time. We will wait and see how he makes out in his new responsible position and then we will be better equipped to tell you more about him as well as the interesting history he has had previous to this time.

Here's as much as we are going to let you in on: He is just 20 years old; a union organist; a licensed motion picture operator; a sign operator; is married and has two boys.

With a background like that, he certainly SHOULD be able to get somewhere in this business. After much sweating and heartaches he has finally come into active possession of the new Clifton Theatre, a neighborhood house in Cincinnati, O., which has just been closed down for a few weeks for complete re-equipping and remodeling for the installation of Western Electric Talking equipment.

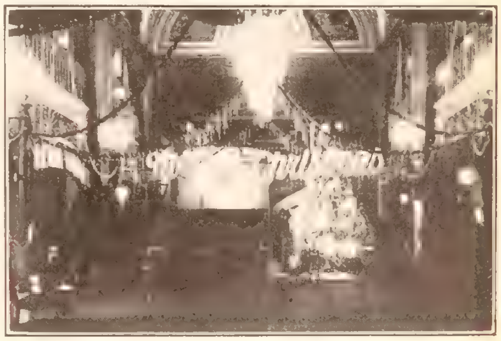
As soon as the house opens we shall expect to hear some wonderful things about Russell W. Volz and what he is doing to put this house over, as he describes it as one of the prettiest theatres in the suburb of the city of Cincinnati.

The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB conveys to Mr. Volz all of their best wishes for his success in his new enterprise, and backed up with his experiences and tough jobs he has had to handle in the show business, he should certainly be able to put this one over if it can be put over. Lots of luck to you, Volz, and be sure to tell us how you are making out on this adventure you are starting on.

Attractive Lobbies Helped Put Over Holiday Spirit

Although the photo does not do it full justice, a close study will reveal that a lot of good taste was used in making up this display.

Thank you, Mickey, for sending us this photograph and remember we are always anxious to publish any of your activities on these pages, because so many of our other members find them constructive and useful.



A proper and timely display around the Holidays in some part of the theatre where the patron is bound to see it, is always a fine way to create a warm feeling between the theatre and its patrons.

In this respect many of our members and readers have sent us photographs showing how they decorated their foyer or lobby for the recent Holiday season. We have selected from among the batch for early publication one from Mickey Gross, Manager of the RKO Orpheum Theatre in Sioux City, Ia.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

WAR DECLARED IN CANADA??

Better watch your step, General Allan, because we have direct evidence before us that General Egan is out to put the Western Division of the ROUND TABLE CLUB Canadian members ahead of the Eastern Division and knowing the pride you have in your Eastern gang, we are certain you would not want anything like that to happen without some sort of a battle.

We hope we are not hurting Pete's feelings by divulging the contents of a recent bulletin sent out from Regional Headquarters for Western Canada from Regina, Canada, in which he says at the conclusion of the bulletin " . . . I am sure you all agree with me that Western Canada should be kept at the top as far as the Canadian section is concerned."

Great work, Pete, and maybe giving away the secret will get Jack Allan sufficiently pepped up to start a competition between the two divisions.

However, we'll be tickled to death to run more Canadian stuff if the Canadian boys furnish us with the proper material. Apparently the last section made a tremendous hit, because we have received as many letters from members in the U. S. as we have in Canada expressing their admiration for the fine work being done by the Canadian boys.

You Can Never Tell Where Egan Will Grab Some Space

Pete Egan, livewire manager of the Capitol Theatre in Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, continues to crash the local paper, and as usual, always with a different angle. We are reproducing a cartoon which appeared about Pete on the sporting page of this local paper, and undoubtedly this brought a whale of a lot of attention to not only Mr. Egan, but to the theatre as well.

Nice work, Pete, and keep the old mailman busy by seeing that you and your gang of peppy western managers keep sending the stuff into CLUB headquarters right along. We know you are putting over some great stuff, but we want the rest of the world to know about it.

"Bill" Resnick Got All Excited and Paid a Debt

Looks like future activities on these pages will carry a whole lot about the fine showmanship of William "Bill" Resnick, manager of the Old Colony and Plymouth Theatres in Plymouth, Mass.

We are glad that our Christmas card had such a marvelous effect on Bill so as to make him go across the street and pay a guy five bucks that he owed him, but if that's the case, I'm going to start mailing duplicates out to all the fellows that owe me money, and I'm here to tell you that I could buy gas for my car for quite a while if they all ponied up at once—?

However, I don't believe they are all so optimistic and cheerful givers as Bill so that we'll be thankful that we started him off on the right track.

But to get away from kiding, we certainly want the whole wide world to know that we were glad to hear from Resnick again, and it seems that with the theatres all equipped and ready to shoot on a big "sound policy" that the experiences in the lines of exploitation, publicity and theatre operation that he will shortly go thru should make mighty fine reading matter on these pages. We shall withhold further judgment until we see what Bill has to say for himself in his next letter. How about it? And here's wishing you all the luck and prosperity for the New Year that you so well deserve.

"Chuck" Copperman's Activities Worth Watching

Charles B. "Chuck" Copperman, manager of the Ohio Theatre in Warren, Ohio, is mighty pleased with his membership and hastens to get himself a CLUB pin, and tell us how tickled he is to be one of the "gang."

Among some of "Chuck's" latest activities was the "Barnum was Right" stunt used in connection with "Broadway" and it went over with a bang. He is a great believer in going out after a picture in a big way, and ties up many stores as well as putting on an unusual lobby ballyhoo.

We won't tell you too much about "Chuck" in this first story, because we really set out to make your acquaintance with him via his photograph but we do want you to know that he has asked us to convey a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all the members, and we know that they will be just as quick to wish him the same.

Let's hear some more from you Copperman, and keep us posted on everything you are doing that brings dough to the Box Office. That's what counts these days, and that's what interests us all at any time we can lay our hands on a little bit of the "gelt."

L. O. Hill says:

"Have followed the doings of the CLUB for the last six months, and have found many suggestions that have worked to very successful campaigns."

Manager, Marshall Wareham Theatres,
Manhattan, Kansas.

McKay & Wilson Meet a Situation With Speed

The answer of what to do when your local newspaper will not cooperate properly is adequately answered by T. W. McKay and J. H. Wilson, manager and assistant manager, respectively, of the Grand and Strand Theatres in Rutland, Vt.

In order to get out your own paper, you need only be a live-wire showman and follow the example of such men like McKay and Wilson and others who have met similar situations and made it even bigger and better than if their own paper had cooperated and given them the necessary space.

While we only show the front cover of the Rutland Tribune, which is the paper they are turning out, we heartily recommend that you drop a line to either of them and ask them to send you a copy of the complete paper. It is worth while looking through and contains a wealth of valuable material whether pictures or stage.

In this fine little newspaper they have tied in some wonderful local advertising and they certainly must have made the thing not only self-supporting, but profitable as well. And any one successful of doing things of this kind is deserving of every nice thing we can say about them. Their slogan, "A copy in every home," is worth following.

Foreign Members Always Welcome in the Club

We always take exceptional pride in welcoming foreign members into the ROUND TABLE CLUB because we feel that we are covering quite a bit of territory when we attract the attention unsolicited of showmen in the far quarters of the earth.

Among the latest foreign showmen to join the ROUND TABLE CLUB was Jack R. Hayes, General Manager for the Universal Picture Theatres, Inc., of Java, Deca Park, Welterreden, Java, D. E. I.

The Deca Park Theatre in that far off country, is under Mr. Hayes' direction and it would give us great pleasure in setting forth the details of how he is exploiting and putting that theatre over to his particular type of clientele. How about it, Jack, don't you think we could induce you to send us this information as well as your own photo and some details of your past experiences in the show business? Thanks anyway in advance, and convey our kindest regards to the other CLUB boosters in your country.

John B. Ward Adds Plenty Of "Pep" to His Exploits

John B. Ward, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, turns out a neat and profitable little program which we are picturing here so that you can get an idea of what he has accomplished.

Advertising plays as important a part in the makeup of this house organ as the attractions itself. And, of course, from the advertisers' viewpoint it is a mighty good break for them. However, the attractions themselves do not suffer by being sandwiched in and there is a feeling that everyone receiving this program does read the little sheet from cover to cover.

If you think John takes a back seat when it comes to a cutout, just cast your eye on this one that he has erected on the marquee for "Sonny Boy," and you will probably agree with us that it attracted plenty of attention from the passers-by out there in Niagara Falls.

We should certainly like to count Mr. Ward as an active contributor to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, and we are certain that his promise to keep us posted from time to time will be met in the full sense of the word. Best regards, Ward, to all the rest of the enthusiastic ROUND TABLE CLUB members and let's hope we have the opportunity of meeting personally in the not too distant future.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

R. K. WAYLAND is the manager of the Portola Theatre, in Portales, New Mexico, and adds another member to the roles of the ROUND TABLE CLUB from that particular CLUB where we are anxious to enroll some more active members for this organization. Let us hope that Mr. Wayland, makes an active member and keeps us posted on everything going on theatrically down his part of the country.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

A. J. LE VAYE is still another member from a foreign country to join the CLUB. He hails from Berlin, Germany, and has been a steady reader of these pages for over a year. We would now like to hear what he has been doing in the show business, and what his present connection is so that we can pass it on to the many other members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB always interested in knowing about the new members.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

H. L. R. GRIBBLE is City Manager for the Community Theatres of Milwaukee, supervising the Orpheum and Plaza Theatres, in Burlington, Wisc. We have a whole lot more to tell you about Gribble than this short introductory paragraph will allow but we would like to get his photograph by return mail so that we can incorporate it into a proper article in an early issue of the NEWS. How about it, "H. L. R."?

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

FLOYD CORMICAN manages the American Theatre, out in Indiana Harbor, East Chicago, Ind., and was proposed by Jack Albertson, also a recent new member. We should certainly like to know a whole lot more about Floyd and what he is doing along the lines of theatre operation and exploitation for the American Theatre. His own photograph would also assist us in giving a more intimate introduction on these pages. Come on, Floyd, get busy or we'll have to make Jack get after you.

J. B. HARDY, of Loew's Mall Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, really does not require this type of an introduction as we have already told you much about him on the CLUB pages in the NEWS. But since all new members must enter through this portal, we have now reached his name. Best regards to this new memgards to this new member from his many friends in the business.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JACK R. HAYES manages the Decca Park, Welterreden, Java, in the D. E. I., and, of course, is more than welcome in joining our large group of foreign members in the ROUND TABLE CLUB We sincerely trust that he will become a real active member as many of our foreign members are right now, and that he gets as much good out of the CLUB pages as they do. Welcome, Jack, and please let us hear from you regularly.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JACK MOORE MURPHY manages the Palais Royal Theatre, in Geelong, Victoria, Australia. This is a 2,100-seat theatre that is handing out the best in entertainment down in his country. We shall, tell you more about Jack and his interest in the ROUND TABLE CLUB in subsequent issues of the NEWS. In the meantime we wish he would send us his own photograph and a few paragraphs concerning his past history in the show business.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

J. CONNOR manages the Fox St. Helena Theatre, in Chehalis, Wash., and we would certainly like to exert a little hypnotic power on him so as to make him contribute regularly to these pages. Our reason for saying this is that we know that he is a doggone good showman, and we believe that the things that he is pulling out there in Chehalis would interest everybody in the show business. What do you say, Connor, can't we possibly sell you an idea?

NEW MEMBERS!

Please be patient if your application was sent in and your name has not been published as a new member.

The increase in membership during the past few months has been so great that we are behind in the announcing of these new members.

More names will be published hereafter in an attempt to catch up with the newcomers.

Thank you.

What is a show without a laugh?

QUANTITY in your program can never take the place of snap and pep. And the whole tempo of your show depends on the number of laughs it contains. Your patrons will never be bored with a show that makes them laugh.

There is less reason today than ever before to offer a laughless program. Sound has made the Short Feature Comedy much finer and much funnier entertainment. Educational's Talking Comedies have brought forth new and smarter comedy stories, and new stars—and they have made such old favorites as Lloyd Hamilton bigger amusement factors and greater box-office assets.

Here is a name worthy of shining from any marquee in the world. Light up your marquee with it while you lighten your programs with *"PEACEFUL ALLEY" "TOOT SWEET" and *"GRASS SKIRTS."

*Here is a Hamilton the public would never have had a chance to appreciate had it not been for the advent of sound... This is good stuff—don't miss it. —M. P. News

A wow. Lloyd Hamilton is back with a bang, and in the talking field he looks better than ever... Miss this, and you do your patrons a big injustice. —Film Daily

Lloyd Hamilton has made another knock-out comedy... will prove a welcome addition to any exhibitor's program. —The Billboard

PARAMOUNT TALKING SHORTS

A great start for a big year of Short Features

The amazing record of talking comedies in 1929 indicates the biggest year in Short Feature history in 1930. And Educational Pictures begin the year by jumping into the lead with the comedies that are proving the real laugh sensations of the country.

What a laugh pace Mack Sennett, Jack White and Lloyd Hamilton are setting! No wonder The Billboard says that "any exhibitor that plays . . . . . Educational shorts at this time is doing his patrons a great favor." There's no excuse now for a program without a laugh. And every extra laugh is extra money at your box-office.

IS ALCOHOL POISON?

SEE PATHÉ SOUND NEWS NO. 8 FOR THE ANSWER!

Ten years of rum and wrangling have made Prohibition the most consistent front-page news subject in the history of American journalism. Yet never has Prohibition hit the front-pages in blacker headlines than during the past week. This is due to the publication by President Hoover's crime commission of the Wickersham report, which has aroused a nation-wide storm of argument. . . Pathe Sound News, its finger ever to the public pulse, immediately made a pictorial survey of Prohibition. That's newsreel enterprise! You will find the survey in issue number 8, released currently. . . That the survey is timely, that it is non-partisan, and that it is honestly reportorial, is demonstrated by the fact that Messrs. Cherrington, Russell and Copeland, prominent on both sides of the Prohibition fence, give their vehement views on the subject of how successful Prohibition has been, via the Pathé screen. . . Flashes of the Coast Guard, of enforcement on the Mexican and Canadian borders, of the government distillery at Louisville, round out the subject. . . Pathé Sound News once more demonstrates its right to the coveted title of editorial authority of newsreel journalism!

Vol. XLIII NEW YORK CITY, JANUARY 18, 1930 No. 3

GIVE IT TO THEM STRAIGHT

IN THE early days of sound, long, long ago, exhibitors, producer-affiliated and otherwise, took the short cut to profit by attempting to delude the public with the type of entertainment they sold.

Talking pictures which weren't that at all, were misrepresented with the inevitable result that before long the fan made a terrific squawk. The public was right and the exhibitor wrong.

The same situation is current again, this time with musicals. They are not motion pictures in the accepted sense of the word, but the exhibitor, believing his patronage dumb or not caring a hoot what it thinks, advertises them as such. In the sense that they are a series of pictures on a screen, the term is correct. In treatment, they are not and the public should be so advised.

The Right of Selection

If you want to see drama or comedy on the stage, you know what to select because the show is properly merchandised. Each is a play certainly, but the information necessary to make your decision is provided. Today, in pictures, those who don't like musical comedy are inveigled into the theatre when they would select other entertainment if they knew for what they were headed. This, in our opinion, is tantamount to misrepresentation because of the exhibitors' oversight.

Give it to them straight. Tell them what is on the screen. Sell them as hard as you can, but do it on the level.

A Bandwagon to Clamber Upon

Pointing out—and wisely so—that merely to attack undesirable motion pictures serves to increase attendance where such pictures are shown and is "definitely harmful to the cause of better pictures," the General Federation of Women's Clubs commends itself and the industry for cooperating in furthering film standards that meet the requirements of the nation's women.

The General Federation represents 5,000,000 women. Therefore, this influence swung for or against motion pictures means something. That these clubwomen look with favor on the industry and its producing efforts is encouraging.

The exhibition end of the business should get in line and further this friendly interest, rather than accept it merely as something already working for them. Movements such as this at the outset should receive their sponsorship from the big chains controlled by producers. It is easy to imagine how rapidly the idea would spread into the byways of exhibition if the acknowledged leaders in the field make evident their desire to cooperate. They should, but probably won't, the picture business being what it is.

Why Outside Interference?

Bankers investigating motion pictures. Checking last year's profits with the possibilities for 1930 to determine how heavily or otherwise they will extend their aid. A growing skepticism in several quarters that count over the operating methods of several who sit in seats of the mighty. Inside rumors concerning important personnel changes. Why?

The answers might be several. There have been several rather notorious instances of mismanagement in high corporate affairs. The record shows that. Whether the business, by force of size, is slipping away from the methods and the manpower of yesteryear is something which several financial moguls are asking.

It does appear incontestably true that if the machinery were working as smoothly as it should Wall Street would not express concern over the future. Yet Wall Street is doing that very thing. And Wall Street, you must remember, is usually well-informed.

Where Is Wide Film Leading?

Wide film is creeping up on the industry. It is inevitable that it should. Producers have held a number of serious discussions looking toward a sensible handling of the problem. They appreciate the fact that the near-cataclysm created by sound must be avoided.

Demonstrations in producer-owned theatres may be expected shortly. Coupled with this the word is passed around that there will be, can be no stampede. No? Suppose the first production on wide film wows 'em. Then what?

A page torn from history recalls to mind that one picture, "The Jazz Singer," furnished the spark that set off the sound explosion.

KANN

An Insider's Outlook

TELEVISION, today's bugaboo and tomorrow's eventuality. Only that tomorrow is some time off. Would you know why? Because the electrics to whom you must turn for info regarding this development are too smart in a business way to dump another innovation on the market when potential millions are yet to be made via installation of sound reproducers.

Take the United States. Western Electric is completely on top of the heap. At "Erpi," you know, all theatres not W. E. equipped are on the possibility list. Couple that with the houses which have not yet turned sound and you can figure for yourself how plentiful the possibilities are. Consequently, it seems anything but reasonable to assume that bulk revenue like this will be jeopardized in favor of any new amusement kink, no matter what the nature.

Foxy

It probably never entered Bill Fox's mind to take up scientific boxing as a divertissement, but the manner in which he has been warding off body blows in the past six weeks or more certainly qualify him as an expert in the fist-dodging art.

Rather mighty matters have been going on behind the scenes. At the minute, it looks as if Fox might pull through his financial embarrassment, trusteeships, threatened receiverships and civil suits notwithstanding. Exhibitors on the Fox books are to be asked to play their part and subscribe to the $35,000,000 in notes which represent the latest broadside in Fox's move to raise funds and pay off pressing short-term obligations.

Exactly how it will work out, is your guess. The move carries all of the earmarks of a determined effort, one that has a very favorable chance of being exactly the step necessary to pull the Fox companies out of the financial rough.

Somewhere in the background, Otterson and Stuart are lurking—not so importantly as they did a week or so ago. The underground, rumbling like the very devil all through the week, has it that they were not even permitted to attend several meetings during the week at which Fox was whipping his financial program into shape.

Otterson, acting for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Stuart, on deck for Halsey, Stuart and Co., represent $27,000,000 of the Fox obligations. Twenty-seven from thirty-five—provided the thirty-five millions are snapped up—leaves a margin of eight. What we are trying to get over is that if the two downtowners get what is coming to them, dollar for dollar, their interest in Fox affairs may be expected to dissipate into thin air.

David Sarnoff

"Life is a dream," said a great Spanish playwright, who wrought mightily and composed two hundred dramas to prove it. One can dream and yet be practical in the highest degree, even in business.

With nothing but the clothes on his frail body, a Russian boy named David Sarnoff came through Ellis Island, and dreamed and worked his way to power and much usefulness to his fellows. Today, though less than forty years old, he is head of the greatest radio corporation in the world. Radio embraces a mighty network of subsidiary industries, and the degree of his responsibility as well as his achievement give one pause for thought.

It proves there is no nationality in brains. The poorest newcomer shall in this land rank with princes, if he be found worthy.

—"The New York American."

The outcome is in the balance with the odds leaning ever so slightly toward Fox.

In the Canyon Again

Purely a banking proposition. Elisha boys that prowl in and out of the canyons of the financial district never tire of cooking up new set-ups in the picture business. Now, R-K-O and Pathe.

Purely a banking proposition, Elisha Walker of Blair and Co., who figures in the financial structure of both R-K-O and Pathe, is the chap at whose door this latest alliance is laid. Remember we told you many weeks ago that something like this was in the wind. Pointed out that if it happens—the chances are much stronger now—the deal will be a bankers' party entirely. May not even mean actual physical merging of the two companies, but more along the lines of turning Pathe into an important production feeder for the R-K-O theatres.

Joe Kennedy has placed Pathe squarely before the shrine of de luxe pictures only. R-K-O needs more than Radio Pictures make. Q.E.D.

He's Sensible

Conversation with Lothar Mendes is usually productive of something. For instance, the other day we started to chin and before we knew it the entire morning had slipped away.

The arguments—many of them—revolved around trends, past and current, in picture fashioning. Mendes believes—as we have for some time past—that talkers have thrown into the lap of the industry an opportunity that shimmers with gold. It is his thought the studios are still hovering around the starting line and that whatever has been accomplished to date is merely a harbinger of that which is to come.

He stands foursquare for less dialogue in dialogue pictures and a more gradual, but persistent, introduction of natural pauses such as permeate any well-constructed stage play. He's entirely correct. Talkers don't have to talk all through their length to be effectual. Music belongs, he asserts, but only when it fills a definite objective. Further, the musical comedy formula appears to him to be entirely wet. Right then and there, we rose on our two insecure feet and cheered him.

Why?

And apparently for no reason whatsoever, the following reaches the light of day.

> Wilmington, Del.—Denial that Warners are seeking to purchase seven Fox theatres was made here coincident with the visit of Harry M. Warner to John J. Raskob. Warner came here from Washington where he had an audience with President Hoover.

Mighty interesting and really engrossing. Dig into your memory a bit and recall how H. M. helped Bill Fox financially in acquiring W. F.'s First National stock—for cash. Of course, it was a case of value received with Warner, but after

Exhibitors May Be Called on To Aid Fox Carry Out New Refinancing Plan

Surprise Scheduled at Forthcoming Company Meeting May End Trusteeship; $35,000,000 in Notes to be Sold

When William Fox enters the ring at his companies' annual stockholders' meetings, he may deliver the deciding punch in a long and hard fought battle to continue as operating chief of the Fox enterprises. Stockholders of Fox Theatres meet on Feb. 15, and those of Fox Film April 15.

If the newly-formed Fox Securities Corp. is successful in raising $35,000,000 needed to pay off pressing short-term obligations, it is possible that the trusteeship committee, with which Fox has been sparring for many rounds, will be disbanded.

Success of the new plan to raise the $35,000,000 depends upon the present 15,000 stockholders, approximately 25,000 Fox employees, the general public, and theatre accounts of Fox Film. Concessions, it is understood, will be made to exhibitor bond purchasers in the nature of special franchise arrangements, a slash in rentals and, possibly, protection on Fox product. Despite the fact that strong efforts are now being made to enlist recruits for the funding campaign, MOTION PICTURE NEWS understands that a group of Jewish philanthropists who met with Fox on Sunday in answer to a plea for aid, have already signified their intention of underwriting the bond issue of seven per cent. three-year gold notes.

Fox, during his entire career, had been active in Jewish philanthropic work and, it is said, this factor influenced the group to get behind the drive. David A. Brown, chairman of the board of the Broadway National Bank, active in real estate circles, operating head of the United Jewish Fund, and other movements of this type, was immediately brought into the picture, at a meeting held at the Ambassador Hotel, New York, on Wednesday night. Brown, as president of Fox Securities, will operate the company along the same lines used in systematic drives.

Brown succeeded Jules Brulatour, who resigned after negotiations for support of Eastman had fallen through. Eastman is understood to be a note-holder of Fox to the tune of $6,000,000.

Fox quietly arranged for formation of Fox Securities Corp., chartered in Albany on Jan. 13, with Samuel Untermyer, corporation lawyer, passing on the papers. Untermyer is also mentioned as the new personal attorney for William Fox, and new legal advisor of Fox Film and Fox Theatres. Organization of the campaign was made following futile attempts to enlist the direct aid of several big financial interests, some of them, it is said, including Fischer Bros., Detroit; George Eastman and Eastman Kodak Co., William Randolph Hearst, RKO, Henry Ford, a group of 100 Jewish bankers, and others.

It is Fox's desire to rush the new financial movement so he can approach the stockholders at the forthcoming annual meetings of Fox Film and Fox Theatres with something definitely lined up. Notes held by A. T. & T. and Halsey Stuart & Co., as well as overdue obligations of New York banks, must be met shortly.

Record Earnings

Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, Greater New York and upstate chain is enjoying the biggest earnings in its history, it is understood. The chain recently chalked up a weekly net of around $158,000, it is learned. Earnings now are said to be running at a rate which would give the circuit net profit of $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 for its fiscal year.

Inside Story Seen In Eastman 'Plea'

That quick "in and out" move of Jules Brulatour in resigning the presidency of Fox Securities Corp., after but 36 hours in office, is the subject of much speculation in film and financial circles. Brulatour's action, it was explained in the official statement, was due to a trip he is planning as the result of which he felt he could not properly discharge the duties of the financial firm formed to take Fox off the spot where the financial difficulties had placed him.

However, back of the scenes there is reported to have been enacted a real drama, which had as its opening the reported appeal of William Fox to George Eastman in the hope of bringing the Eastman Kodak millions to his aid in the present emergency. For a time, it had been reported, with considerable credence, that Eastman really was coming to Fox's aid.

The Eastman Kodak head is said to have been in a peculiar position in the matter, faced with the necessity of giving Fox every consideration, yet without being forced into a position where he would be diverting the money taken from other film firms, to the coffers of a competitor. Particularly was this a delicate situation, it is said, because of the bids being made for raw stock business by Du Pont-Pathe.

The Brulatour connection with the Fox Securities Corp. was taken as an indication that Eastman Kodak was lending assistance, but on Tuesday, the day after Brulatour was named president, L. B. Jones, vice-president of Eastman Kodak, denied to a Rochester newspaper that the company was holding up the Fox trusteeship or that it was taking part in any refinancing plan.

Fox Denying U. S. Charge of 'Trust'

General denial of Department of Justice allegations that Fox's acquisition of control of Loew's is in violation of the Clayton anti-trust law was to be embodied in answer of the company to the government charges, slated to be filed Friday.

3 Year Note Plan Outlined by Brown

Issue of $35,000,000 seven per cent. three-year gold notes, callable at 105 in 1930; 110 in 1931 and 115 in 1932 is to provide funds for Fox Film and Fox Theatres and subsidiary companies, David A. Brown, president of Fox Securities Corp., explains in announcing purpose of the financing company. Trustees for the issue are the Broadway National Bank and Trust Co., New York, of which Brown is chairman of the board.

"The security for these notes will be the promissory note of short-term obligation of the borrower secured by mortgage or pledge of such stocks or other securities, assets, or equities, as in the opinion of the board of directors of the Fox Film Corporation will be of value at least equal to twice the amount of the advance based upon a suitable appraisal."

Fox Theatre Deals Up at N. Y. Meet

Disposition of pending theatre deals will be discussed Friday at meetings in New York between Fox executives and heads of circuits concerned. Ike Libson, Cincinnati; Karl Hoblitzelle, Dallas; N. L. Nathanson, Toronto; the Schines, Gloversville, and a number of others are slated to attend. These operators are being called into New York by William Fox. Retrenchment in some sections may be determined and in others expansion of present holdings.

Fox-Libson Chain Deal Reported Off

Cincinnati—Future of the Libson chain is a subject of speculation, following announcement by Ike Libson that the deal by which Fox was to gain control of the chain was off. Libson was in New York during the week conferring on the reported deal, option for which expired Jan. 12.

He stated in a recent interview that he intended to continue operation of his houses. Cincinnati housese involved are the Capitol, Lyric, Strand, Palace, Keith's and Family.

U. S. and Defense Still Unagreed on Number of Arbitration Case Points

Government Contentions In Action Filed by Asst. Atty. Gen. O'Brian Listing Questions Still to be Acted Upon

There are a number of questions still involved as to the legality of certain features of the arbitration system, in the case brought by the government versus the Hays organization, its distributor members and Film Boards of Trade.

The government's proposals in the action have been submitted in U. S. Federal Court, New York, by John Lord O'Brian, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust cases brought by the Dept. of Justice. These are slated for consideration, after which a final decree in the matter will be issued by Federal Judge Thacher. Contentions of defense attorneys were submitted some weeks ago.

Under the procedure, opposing counsel seek to reach agreement on points at issue, after which each side submits a brief covering points of difference.

R-K-O Sets Cap for L. I. Chain

R-K-O is mapping plans for a wholesale invasion of Long Island towns in an effort to build up its holdings in Greater New York. A deal is on for the Seider houses. Other operators on the Island have been approached.

With the former Keith-Albee and Proctor houses, plus A. H. Schwartz's Century chain of 26 for which negotiations are still on, R-K-O is now assuming a position of formidable opposition to the Loew chain.

$2,000,000 Net for R-K-O Is Estimated for 1929

Net earnings for Radio-Keith-Orpheum for 1929 are estimated in excess of $2,000,000. This is before deduction of preferred dividends for Keith-Albee-Orpheum and Orpheum Circuit. This deduction would bring the net to about $1,160,000, it is estimated, compared to net loss of $45,743 in 1928.

Musicians Won't Return If Sound Policy Flops

Houston, Tex.—Open resentment by musicians and undercover resentment on the part of the public has followed announcement that Paramount Jan. 24 will drop stage shows here. Notice has been given to musicians and stagehands, the former stating they will not return to their posts if the all-sound-film policy flops, but will sign with Houston's four radio stations. Manager E. E. Collins of the Metropolitan refuses to comment on the situation.

Minneapolis—Eddie Ruben, division manager for Publix, is here for several weeks, following a report business is off in Northwest theatres of the circuit.

Trust Suit Not Dropped at Omaha

Omaha—Suggestion made to M. Stern of the Classic Pictures Exchange, that he withdraw his suit charging restraint of trade, has not been acted upon. The suit is the result of alleged refusal of service to the Strand, Newton, Ia., then the Classic and operated by Stern Brothers. It had been thought here that Stern would withdraw the suit, due to his position as a member of the Film Board. Earl Miller now operates the Newton house.

Chicago Operators Win $2.50 Pay Hike

Chicago.—Operators in sound houses here won a $2.50 weekly increase for 1930 and a similar hike will be granted next year, under terms of the two-year contracts signed by the union with the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, and with the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners. There is no change in rate at unwired houses.

Chicago operators are classed as the highest paid group of theatre craftsmen, the hourly rate declared to be between $2.50 and $3.50.

Secret Profits Charged in Sale of Roxy, N. Y., Site

Charging that officers of the companies which held original options on the Roxy site made large secret profits, Benjamin and Herman Warendorf, as stockholders, have brought suit to prevent dissolution of Organizers Holding Corp., which succeeded Associated Pictures Corp., and Associated Holding Corp. The answer of defendants is to be made when the case is argued.

Westerns Returning

Return of westerns to popularity next year has been predicted by a number of industry leaders, who feel that the advent of sound will prove of benefit to the western picture. Fox's plans embrace two westerns: "The Oregon Trail" and Zane Grey's "The Last of the Duanes."

Loew Net Takes Swing Upward

With only one-third of the second fiscal quarter to go, net of Loew's, Inc., for the current three months is expected to surpass the corresponding 1928 period, and, in some quarters it is believed, will approach the record-breaking net of $3,151,954 for the first quarter, ended Nov. 22, 1929.

Operating profit for September-October-November of 1929 totaled $4,240,743, as compared with $2,997,276 in 1928, less depreciation and taxes of $1,088,789, and $895,243, respectively. The $3,151,954 net of the first three months in 1929 compares with $2,102,033 for 1928, a jump of $1,049,921.

The last financial statement revealed total working capital of approximately $30,000,000, with current assets reaching close to $40,000,000.

At the last annual stockholders' meeting of Loew's, held in November, "Wall Street News" reports, "Fox holdings of Loew's, as shown in the books, are understood to have totaled approximately 435,000 shares out of the total of 1,363,993 of no-par common outstanding. It is believed the Fox interests hold additional shares which are issued possibly in different names or have ben acquired since that time."

$2,000,000 Fox Chicago House

Chicago—Nearly $2,000,000 will be spent for erection of a new Fox theatre on the site of the Commercial, 92nd and Commercial Ave., Sidney Meyer, vice-president and general manager of Fox Chicago Theatres, states.

Fox Developing New Nature Color Process

Hollywood—Fox is spending $1,000,000 on a laboratory being built at the Western Ave. studios. It will be used exclusively for the Fox Nature Color process, which has been under experimentation for the last three years. One of the initial pictures to be made with the process will be "The London Revue."

Voluntary Arbitration Under State Laws Backed by Exhibitors Forecast

Opposition to Enactment of State-Wide Statutes Would Be Withdrawn Under Plan Now Under Advisement

Voluntary arbitration with exhibitor opposition to arbitration laws in the respective states removed may be an outcome of the 5-5-5 conferences, for all parties concerned are sold on the idea of arbitration. It is the set-up that constitutes the main points of difference.

Both the M.P.T.O.A. and Allied proposals call for reestablishment of arbitration, Allied being prepared to withdraw its objection to enactment of state arbitration laws throughout the country if a voluntary system is adopted. This would assure enforcement of arbitration awards, it is felt, the filing of such decisions being carried out in the same manner as the filing of judgments. In states which have arbitration laws, it is pointed out, decisions have practically the same effect as judgments.

There now are ten states with arbitration laws, including New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Louisiana, Arizona and California. Similar statutes have been sought in a number of other states, but have been opposed by exhibitors.

Well, Well!

Margaret Brooke press-agents Jeanette MacDonald in this manner:

"Jeanette MacDonald, by special arrangement with Messrs. S. Claus and K. Kringle, presents 'The Season's Greetings.'

"Jeanette MacDonald is her real name. She was born in Philadelphia on June 18, 1907. She stands five feet, five inches in her sox and weighs 122 pounds right after a bath. She wears a 2½AA slipper—the smallest feet in the talkies. She has red-gold hair, but to our knowledge has a blonde disposition; and her eyes are sea-green or sea-blue; sometimes they change while you're looking at her."

Etc., etc., etc.

Illinois Unit to Join Allied Ass'n

Chicago—Illinois Independent Theatre Owners, new organization of unaffiliated theatres recently organized here, will make formal application to join Allied States Ass'n at its meeting here Wednesday. W. A. Steffes, Northwest unit head and a leader in Allied organization work, is slated to be principal speaker.

Change in Bookings Creates New Wrinkle

Baltimore—Local exhibitors are watching with keen interest, a new situation which has sprung up following simultaneous release of "Gold Diggers of Broadway" to a colored house while the Warner feature was still playing at Keith's, a big downtown stand. The picture played the Royal, a colored house operated by Flacks Bros. Whether this policy will work out for large pictures and still give the residentials a break is uncertain.

Producers Prevent Good Film Stories?

The reason why the majority of film stories are so poor is because scenario writers are never allowed to write good ones, Edgar Wallace, English dramatist and writer of mystery stories, states in the current issue of "Screenland."

"A producer tries to do more than produce," he points out. "He'll get a good author, pay him a lot of money for a story, and then when everything is ready to shoot will tear his story apart. The average producer who knows no more about drama than a baby does about bootleg liquor inserts his thumb into the pie and the result is like nothing on earth.

"The average producer should confine himself to figuring production costs and let the director and writer, the actor and technician, combine their talents to work out a picture in which dialogue will not impede action and in which action will carry the positive earmarks of reality. That's the answer to the perfect moving picture—the answer to every movie producer's prayer!"

Rival Exhibitors Units in Mid-West?

Minneapolis.—There is talk of independent exhibitor organizations in the Omaha and Kansas City zones, according to "Greater Amusements," regional trade paper. In both of these sections, the exhibitor associations are affiliated with the M. P. T. O. A. If such independent units are organized, affiliation with Allied States Ass'n would be sought, it is understood.

Allied Not Organizing Rival Units—Myers

Allied States Ass'n is not taking any steps to organize independent exhibitor units in territories where organizations affiliated with the M. P. T. O. A. are operating, Abram F. Myers, president, informs Motion Picture News. In some instances where independents form their own organizations and apply for membership in Allied, the application is considered, but otherwise no effort is being made to sponsor rival associations, he says.

In a number of territories request has been made by independents for Allied to come in and organize, he admitted, but this is not being done. The Allied leader has not received any formal invitation to attend a meeting of the new Chicago exhibitor unit, Myers said while in New York. Allied now has representation in 32 states, some of which, however, are overlapping states, served by the exchange zone in which the Allied member has headquarters.

No Anti-Film Bills Planned in Virginia

Richmond — No adverse legislative measures are expected to be passed by the administration of Gov. John G. Pollard. It is practically certain that the legislature will approve the $7,000 request of state censors for sound equipment, which will enable the censors to enforce their proposed ban on alleged vulgarity and obscenity in talkers. Lack of equipment now hampers them, they say.

Herbert Operettas Go to F. N. for 1930 Schedule

"Mlle. Modiste" and "The Fortune Hunter," both Victor Herbert operettas, have been secured by First National as specials for its 1930-1931 program.

Booking Combines for Allied Zones

Booking combines in all territories where Allied States Ass'n units operate, which will have the sympathetic co-operation of the organization are under consideration, as exclusively outlined last week in Motion Picture News.

While the exhibitor co-operatives will not have official status, so far as the organization is concerned, they are expected to receive Allied co-operation. Recently a co-operative was formed in Michigan, to operate for members of the state unit. Iowa has a co-operative headed by E. P. Smith, who is president of the Iowa exhibitor unit.

Various Theories Advanced in Blair McElroy Suicide

Chicago—Various theories are advanced in the death here of Blair McElroy, 51, of Fitzpatrick & McElroy, with evidence, according to police, of suicide. The body of the veteran exhibitor was found in the vacant home of a friend. One report was that financial reverses were responsible, but this was denied.

"The Escape" to Be First Anglo-American Talker

London—John Galsworthy's "The Escape" will be filmed as the first Anglo-American talker to be made by Associated Talking Pictures for release by RKO. Costs and profits will be split by the two firms and the pictures known as Associated Radio Pictures. Stories will be by British authors, the films made in Britain with English casts, assisted by American stars.

Allied Ready to Resist Any Return To Deposit System by Distributors

Opposes Any Deposits for Exhibitors Declining to Sign Arbitration Contract Would Be Coercive Under Trust Law

Reported plan of distributors to offer exhibitors who decline to sign voluntary arbitration agreement the alternative of posting advance deposits will be resisted by Allied States Ass'n, which already has gone on record as favoring a voluntary system of arbitration, whether through individual agreements on each contract, or a blanket arrangement between Film Boards and exhibitor organizations.

Allied, it is understood, takes the position that the levying of deposits, to which the association is opposed, will involve an element of coercion, of equal degree to that under fire in the present systm. In accordance with this stand, the organization is prepared to appeal to the Dept. of Justice, in event deposit demands are made on exhibitors who decline to arbitrate.

P.F.-L.'s Stand

There will be no return to advance deposits at least so far as Paramount is concerned, Sidney R. Kent, general manager, is understood to have made clear at an early session of the 5-5-5 conferences.

Colorado 'Blue' Law Hangs in Balance

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Is the Colorado "blue" law, passed in territorial days, a measure to prohibit Sunday amusements, or is it merely an excise law for revenue producing purposes? This is the question to be argued Monday before the Supreme Court on appeal by Arthur Phelps, district attorney in a case where D. J. Mooney, of the Princess, Ordway, successfully defended himself against a charge of violating the state law by operating his house on Sunday. Exhibitors in two other cases have successfully defended themselves by contending the statute is a revenue law. This is the first appeal to the Supreme Court.

Continental Opening Two More Branches

Continental Theatre Accessories has opened its branch at Los Angeles, is building a Philadelphia office and has plans completed for a branch at St. Louis, states Harold Rodner. The new equipment firm's New York office was opened several months ago.

Report Selznick Will Head Paramount N. Y. Plant Denied

Hollywood—David O. Selznick's trip East is linked with reports that he will take over general managership of Paramount's Eastern plant. The report, however, is denied here.

Selznick is now executive assistant to B. P. Schulberg at a salary that runs into five substantial figures annually.

Roach Here from Coast

With 12 comedies still to go, Hal Roach is in New York discussing plans for the new 1930-31 product with officials of M-G-M. The remaining 12 on the current line-up will be made with French and Spanish versions.

Censor Threat at Los Angeles Dies

Los Angeles—Danger of rigid film censorship and Sunday closing has been averted through opposition of Mayor Porter, who states he would veto the proposed ordinance giving the police commission broad powers in the regulating and padlocking of local theatres. As a result, the suggested legislation will die without even consideration.

Hoyt Due In N. Y. for Production Confab

Production plans of Equitable Pictures will be set at a conference to be held in New York upon the arrival from Hollywood of Harry O. Hoyt, newly appointed production chief for M. P. Congress, exhibitor franchise unit.

Arthur S. Friend, vice-president of the Congress; Dr. Wm. Marston, Equitable vice-president; Prof. Walter Pitkin, Eastern story editor, and George W. Stout, Equitable chief, will attend, after which Stout and Dr. Marston will go to the coast with Hoyt to commence work on the first program.

Hoyt, who was signed this week, was formerly a writer, director and producer on various Hollywood lots.

Publix Now Operating Three Theatres at Portland, Me.

Portland, Me.—Publix now is operating three of the city's four major first runs, as a result of a 50 per cent partnership deal in the State and Maine, closed with New England Theatre Operating Co. Publix recently acquired the Strand here. The Empire, operated by Empire Amusement Co., now is the only independent first run. E. M. Loew has three theatres here, the Portland, Colonial and Casco. Publix-Netoco-Portland Corp. is the operating company for the three houses under Publix management.

Other Netoco Houses Not Affected by Portland Deal

Boston—None of the other Netoco theatres in New England are affected by the merger of Portland houses, Samuel Pinanski, president of New England Theatres Operating Co., states.

Kent Return to Speed Meeting?

Holding of the distributors' meeting, at which proposals will be drafted for submission to the 5-5-5 conferences is expected around Feb. 1. S. R. Kent, who originally was chairman of the conferences, is slated to return to New York from Europe Jan. 27. His return is expected to speed holding of the distributor meeting, and resumption of conferences with exhibitor committees from the M.P.T.O.A. and Hays office.

Specialty Talent New F. & M. Demand

Los Angeles.—Specialty talent is the big requirement of the Fanchon & Marco shows, for line-up girls must not only be able to sing and dance, but must have individual ability as well. This is part of plan to have each stage idea carry out a continuity or main theme from start to finish.

One early Fanchon and Marco "Idea" will feature a juggling line-up. Another is to have a corps of girl aerialists, garbed as birds singing in scenic tree-tops.

Principals also are required to work together in greater extent in 1930 Fanchon and Marco productions.

1st Paramount Revue Scheduled in Spring

Hollywood.—"Paramount on Parade," featuring 35 stars and featured contract players, as well as a number of free lancers, who raise this total to 50, and made up of 15 separate starring units, will be released in spring. It is Paramount's first revue and is being made under personal supervision of Albert A. Kaufman, aided by Elsie Janis. General supervision was by B. P. Schulberg.

"Mary" to Make Three with Ben Glazer as Supervisor

Hollywood.—Mary Pickford probably will make three pictures this year, the first of which may be "Peg o' My Heart," talker rights for which are owned by the star. The productions will be adapted and supervised by Ben Glazer.

Douglas Fairbanks and his staff are rushing plans for his next picture, which Sam Taylor will direct.

Television Not to Be Brought Out Till Maximum Wiring Is Reached

Companies Said to Feel Costly Television Apparatus Must Await Further Development of Sound Pictures

No attempt will be made to market television apparatus on any substantial scale until possibilities in the field of theatre wiring are realized to a full extent, Motion Picture News learns. The big electrics, it is stated, take the view that sound pictures must be developed steadily during the next few years, before any attempt is made to introduce costly television apparatus.

Meanwhile, experiments with television are continuing at a rapid pace, with laboratory developments said to have progressed far beyond the stage equipment demonstrated publicly to date would indicate. However, with the wide screen and color development ushering in a new era, television may be expected to be held in abeyance, so far as theatres are concerned.

Hollywood

It is Fannie Brice who sums up the Hollywood situation as follows:

"I was out there eight months, worked five weeks and got three years' pay."—N. Y. Daily Mirror

"Hit the Deck" Is Socked, Praised

"Hit the Deck" (Radio Pictures) is a triumph for Jack Oakie, but the picture is alternately praised and condemned by New York critics, following its Earl Carroll opening. While their views vary widely, all critics save one ("The Times") sing Oakie's praises. Their viewpoints, briefly told, are:

American—Oakie is at once the strength and weakness of the present lavish production. . . . He is off the screen far too much and in his absence the film slows materially. . . . On the whole . . . pleasing entertainment with two or three especially fine moments. . . .

Daily Mirror—Good entertainment, lively, tuneful and spectacular. . . . He (Jack Oakie) is great: . . . is coming right out on top if he continues the clever work he has been doing. . . .

Evening World—Luther Reed has made the same mistake here he did with "Rio Rita"—he has totally ignored the greater sweep of the screen and has contented himself with photographing the stage production. And the deplorable result is that he has not even measured up to his model. . . .

Graphic—Oakie up to his flicker habit of completely sauntering away with the entire production . . . on the whole a mildly entertaining picture, not especially well produced, with Oakie the principal reason why film fans should see it. . . .

Herald-Tribune—In none of his (Oakie's) works has he overcome handicaps with the expertness he now reveals. . . . Messrs. Oakie and Youmans are the heroes. . . .

Morning Telegraph—Without attempting to justify obvious futility of screening a stage musical comedy and expecting it to be satisfying picture material, I recommend "Hit the Deck" as being as good as any of the rest of its type. . . .

Post—Encrusted with a stale and thoroughly uninspired story, lacking any semblance of grace or spontaneity and oppressed by some of the feeblest dialogue I have heard in pictures.

Telegram— . . . A tuneful, rollicking and buoyant evening's entertainment; . . . enough snap and ginger to make it delightful and satisfactory if not distinctive entertainment.

Times— . . . anything but an inspired entertainment. . . . Jack Oakie, whose only excuse for being in a musical comedy is his pleasing smile. . . .

World—Jack Oakie's infectious smile and Polly Walker's ingenious charm make of "Hit the Deck" a thoroughly merry if somewhat inconsequential film. . . .

"The production rates to do substantial business," was what Motion Picture News thought of "Hit the Deck." The picture was caught first by this publication, the review appearing in the issue of December 21.

Films for Balto Legit

Baltimore—"Rio Rita" opened the new grind film policy at the Embassy, downtown house. It has had a long stock career and recently played Jewish pieces. Hon Nickel, owner of the Gayety, burlesque, bought the Embassy and installed Joe Robbins as manager.

Schenck to Sign Sam Harris Soon?

Joseph M. Schenck is expected to increase the list of stage names on the United Artists' roster when he signs Sam H. Harris, "legit" producer, before returning to Hollywood.

Negotiations are in progress to provide U. A. with at least three Harris productions on the company's 1930-31 schedule.

U. A. London House to Cost Eight Million, Schenck Says

A few days ago it was $5,000,000 but this figure has been raised to $8,000,000, being the estimated cost of the theatre United Artists will build in London, to be ready in the summer of 1931, Joseph M. Schenk said Tuesday on arriving in New York from Europe with Samuel Goldwyn.

Both Schenck and Goldwyn are enthusiastic over the popularity of American pictures abroad, declaring the talker advent has not decreased that liking. Europeans, "love" American pictures, they declared, pointing out that almost the same kind of entertainment is liked abroad as here. "Berlin, Paris and London can't get enough of the American interpretations of night life in this country," said Goldwyn.

Underwood and Underwood

Enthusiasm over the popularity of American films abroad was expressed by Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn upon their arrival in New York this week with Mrs. Goldwyn

New Television System Is Shown at San Francisco

San Francisco—Phil Farnsworth, 23-year-old University of Utah graduate, demonstrated his television device here at the Crocker Laboratories, where he has been developing the invention. The system does not use scanning discs common to other methods.

Buying Television Rights

Universal is purchasing television rights of vehicles being purchased for protection, preparing for advent of television. Contract for rights to "Carnival" conveys television rights to the company.

Entrance of Talkers Means Exit of Vilma?

Vilma Banky's contract with Samuel Goldwyn terminates early in April and is not expected to be renewed. Blame the talkers.

Goldwyn brought "the Hungarian rhapsody" to the States in 1923. He starred her in a series with Ronald Colman and later starred her on her own. Miss Banky recently completed "Sun Kissed" for M-G-M, on a "farming" arrangement. Whether or not this marks her last film in this country is problematical. In some quarters it is reported she will return to foreign studios in the footsteps of many other imported players who were forced out of the picture with entrance of sound.

Miss Banky's part in "Sun Kissed" is one which requires a female lead with a foreign accent. Her last for Goldwyn-United Artists, "This Is Heaven," was made early last year, and released in June.

Korda Making Musical

Hollywood—Alexander Korda's first directorial assignment since joining Fox will be an untitled filmusical featuring J. Harold Murray and Fifi Dorsay. Original story and musical numbers are now being prepared.

"Little Fellow" Faces Hard Job To Continue, Iowa Leader Says

Towns Under 1,500 Doomed by Sound Overhead Is View of E. P. Smith—Others Experiencing Better Business

Des Moines—While conditions are improving steadily in the larger-sized towns of Iowa, exhibitors in towns of 1,500 and under face serious difficulty in continuing due to sound overhead, declares E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa exhibitor unit.

The tendency to eliminate the little fellow who cannot afford sound is working to advantages of exhibitors in the larger communities adjoining, he says. This fact, coupled with better pictures, has resulted in a 25 per cent increase over the state generally.

With the larger towns now able to compete with neighboring city houses, a further increase in net is anticipated. There now are about 200 Iowa sound houses, with Western Electric, RCA-Photophone and De Forest Phonofilm predominating.

Maberry Resigns Columbia Post, Dunas Is Successor

Chicago—Cecil E. Maberry, Middle West division sales manager for Columbia, has resigned. Phil Dunas, branch manager here, succeeds him, it is reported. Maberry some months ago relinquished the post of Columbia general sales manager, in order to return to the Chicago territory. Prior to joining the company he was Middle West district head for P. D. C. and Pathe. He was a vice-president of Goldwyn prior to that firm's merger with Metro.

Dunas recently took over management of the Columbia Chicago branch, and prior to that was with United Artists at Washington. He came to that company from Universal, where he was sales manager of the Reginald Denny productions.

R-K-O Chain to Be Equipped for Steroscopic Pictures

With the initial theatre designed for showing of third dimension pictures using the Spoor-Bergen process, completed at the R-K-O studios on the Coast, plans are under way for equipping of the chain of R-K-O houses for the process. The new films will project a picture about 50 per cent higher and 250 per cent wider than standard-size pictures. "Dixiana" is the first picture to be screened with the process, which is scheduled for regular release.

The Columbia, New York, will probably be the first. It is planned to have the theatre so equipped by September.

New Plaza Opening

Leo Brecher's new Plaza, 58th St. between Park and Madison, New York, is to open Monday. It replaces the old Plaza at 59th and Madison, razed to make way for an office building. The old Plaza was a unique society institution, patronized by many of New York's social elite.

Sound Nut Proves Small Town Bane

Okeechobee, Fla.—Sound overhead has proven a boomerang to W. H. Russell at the Park here, with the result that the house has had to revert to silents, playing western Saturdays and remaining dark the balance of the week.

The house couldn't afford the big pictures, Russell says, so the big towns nearby got the business on sound pictures. This coupled with hard times and storms made the last year a trying one here and in other small towns of the state. Sound overhead consumed about 85 per cent. of receipts, according to Russell.

Writ Bans Straw Vote on "Blue" Law at Columbia

Columbia, Mo.—Sunday shows will not be decided by a straw vote, the Circuit Court has ruled, granting a permanent injunction in favor of the Columbia Theatre Co., and against the city council. A temporary writ was obtained last November by the theatre company, charging the reform element had control of the election and there was no proper safeguard against election frauds.

Maryland M.P.T.O. to Elect At Annual Meeting in March

Baltimore—Allied States' M.P.T.O. of Maryland has appointed a nominating committee to select candidates for election at the annual meeting, scheduled for March 20.

Poland on Duncan Story

Hollywood—Joseph Franklin Poland has been engaged by M-G-M to write an original for the next Duncan Sisters filmusical.

Poland recently returned from a three months vacation in Hawaii after completing a year's contract with Pathe.

N. W. Exhibitor Unit Now Operating Poster Exchange

Minneapolis—Operation of a poster exchange by the Northwest exhibitor unit is under way.

Nix on Rough Stuff

Baltimore.—A quick three-column flash for the Hip, managed by Nat Keene, was turned down by "The Sun" because it was considered indecent. Exception was taken to the half-tone on "Mexicali Rose" (Columbia) which showed Sam Hardy leaning over Barbara Stanwyck lying on a couch. "The Sunday American" ran the flash.

Arson Hinted in Rochester Fire

Rochester, N. Y.—Claiming traces of incendiarism appeared in the wake of a fire which Sunday swept the attic of Fay's, 1,200 seat downtown house, causing damage of $35,000, police held Edward Harding, janitor, for investigation, but placed no charge against him. The house is closed. Water drenched everything in the auditorium and on the stage.

Gasoline soaked waste was reported found in a cupola on the roof by firemen. Harding denied he knew of its presence. Edward M. Fay, of Providence, owner of the theatre, called police long distance here to back up Harding's character.

Arch McCallum, manager, said no date could be set for reopening.

Pathe Fire Probe Expected by State

ALBANY, N. Y.—Governor Roosevelt will be asked to appoint a committee to conduct an inquiry into alleged irregular practices in the Tammany administration in New York in a bill sponsored by Republican leaders in the legislature. One phase of the investigation will be a sweeping probe of the city fire department as a result of the Pathe studio fire, in which ten lives were lost.

Exchange Investigation Is Launched at Toronto

Toronto—Spurred by the Pathe studio fire in New York, the Ontario government has concluded a two-day investigation into film storage conditions at Toronto exchanges. Deputy Fire Marshal Lewis reported adversely against film storage at the Warner exchange and the inquiry was instituted when an appeal against a closing order was entered by the distributor.

New regulations governing storage have been promised and lawyers representing distributors guaranteed co-operation in removing any fire menace where sound.

Start Cincy House in Feb.

Cincinnati—Construction on the $3,500,000 theatre to be built here at Peebles Corner starts in February.

Films Under Fire as Harm To Youth in Pope's Message

Vatican City—Motion picture shows are attacked as one of the agencies contributing to "the moral and religious shipwreck of youths" in a long encyclical published in the official organ of the Vatican and written by Pope Pius. The encyclical deals principally with the education and safeguarding o fyouth, and classes films with "impious and licentious books" and the radio.

"These powerful means for reaching enormous numbers of persons, which governed by healthy principles could be of the greatest utility to education and instruction, are, alas, only too often subordinated to the incentive of evil passions and the avidity of gain," the Encyclical states.

Hays Silent

Hollywood—Will H. Hays has no statement to make in connection with attack of the Pope on films, which was first brought to his attention by Motion Picture News. Hays is here on his annual visit and expects to remain about three weeks.

"Last Frontier," Ince Special, a Sound Remake for Pathe

Hollywood—"The Last Frontier," produced as a special by Thomas Ince for P. D. C. several years ago, will be remade by Pathe as an all-talking western for release on this year's program.

The dialogue is now being prepared, with present plans calling for production to start in March. William Boyd will head a "big name" cast.

"Unborn Child" Passed by Milwaukee Censor Board

Milwaukee—"Her Unborn Child," talker being distributed in this territory by Mark Ross, passed the Milwaukee censor board without eliminations.

Desberg Again Operating Head of Cleveland Houses

Cleveland—Fred Desberg again is general manager of the Loew houses here, following resignation of Howard Price Kingsmore.

Columbia Signs Two

Hollywood—John Harvey Fox and Bert Glennon are the two latest directors on the Columbia lot. Fox is new to Hollywood and will first direct "The Prince of Diamonds." Glennon, long with RKO, awaits an assignment.

Studies Musician Problem

Mexico City—President Portes Gil is studying means to relieve the unemployment situation among musicians brought about by growing popularity of sound pictures.

All About Love

Hollywood—Joan Bennett, United Artists contract player, returns late this month from an eastern trip to play featured lead in "In Love With Love," adapted from Vincent Lawrence's play. Hamilton McFadden will direct.

Plans Screen Operas

Chicago—Lawrence Tibbetts and Grace Moore, grand opera singers, are to appear in several screen operas for M-G-M, Louis B. Mayer stated here while en route to New York.

German Talker for Run

"Because I Love You," German talker made in Berlin by American General Film Co., is to open for a run Jan. 24 at the Mansfield theatre, New York.

Rothstein Set

Los Angeles—Nat G. Rothstein is now executive vice-president of Boroughs, Landfield, Inc., advertising agency.

Protestants Mum on Pope's Film Attack

Washington—Officials of the various national organizations of the Protestant religions having offices in Washington are reluctant to comment upon statements published in New York and attributed to the Pope, in which motion pictures are attacked as occasioning "the moral and religious shipwreck" of youth.

However, it was explained by a high official in one of the organizations, the Protestant groups find themselves in accord with the Catholics with respect to the need for improvement in the quality of films. Generally speaking, however, these organizations do not condemn motion pictures in toto, any more than they condemn books or plays as a whole.

"Our attitude," it was explained by Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, "is that the board recognizes that a great deal has been done toward improvement, but it also recognizes that a great deal still must be done in the matter of cleaning up motion pictures. It is a very difficult matter, because we have to deal with different classes of people, with different ethical and moral views.

"We recognize the absolute necessity of cheap amusement,' and therefore are interested in improving the moral tone of pictures but without making the industry difficult for those engaged in it."

'Aviator' Stamped Amusing Program

Edward Everett Horton's new talking comedy, "The Aviator," is an amusing program offering, with Horton putting it over in his own individual style, critics of five New York newspapers agree, in reviewing the attraction at its Beacon showing. Their opinions, in brief, follow:

Daily News Pretty fair program film, occasionally quite amusing

Evening World . . . hilariously funny (Horton) . . . makes a commendable effort out of it

Graphic . . . airy love story.

Times Horton upholds his reputation for being able to get more laughs out of slight facial contortions than most comedians.

World noticeably illogical, but nevertheless rapid and dizzy enough to be quite acceptable. . . .

Motion Picture News described "The Aviator" as "a fast-moving comedy" in its review, published on January 11, 1930.

"Navy Blues" In The Lead at L. A.

Los Angeles.—William Haines in "Navy Blues" made the grade with plenty to spare at Loew's State this week, rolling up $37,375 to a rating of 139 per cent, respite the rain that deluged the city. The week-end was particularly wet and left its mark on box-offices here and in Hollywood. However, Haines' draw did the trick at the State, despite obstacles.

Two Warner theatres pulled through in fine style, too, but the others slumped. At Warners' Hollywood, "Sally" did $28,000, which was just twice normal business at this theatre. Warners' Downtown with "The Show of Shows," rolled up $36,100, capturing for itself a rating of 241 per cent.

"Condemned," in its sixth week at the Chinese, did a measly $9,190, or a trifle over fifty per cent of normal business. "Hit the Deck" at the Orpheum drew in $18,000 for its third week and "Hot for Paris," paying Critetion, $8,500, which is 85 per cent of normal gross for that house.

At the Paramount, "The Laughing Lady" grossed $24,000, or a rating of 96 per cent. In view of the weather, this is a creditable performance. "Rio Rita" finished its seventh week at the Carthay Circle with a gross for the seven days of $10,000, which gives the picture an 80 per cent rating. "The Taming of the Shrew," in its third week at the United Artists, did $12,500, which means a 94 per cent rating. "Tanned Legs" finished up at the R-K-O slightly under normal with $15,500 on the week. At the Egyptian, "The Trespasser" did $13,500.

New Theatre Chain Is Formed in Nebraska

Omaha—The United Theatre Circuit of Omaha has been incorporated here with capitalization of $150,000 to operate, build and equip theatres in this territory. Officers include William C. Raapke, president of the U. S. Theatre Supply Co., and the U. S. Scenic Studios; F. R. Parker. vice-president of the same company, and Dr. H. R. Brown and W. E. Penner, both of Beatrice, Neb. The new company has acquired control of the Ritz at Beatrice and other deals are pending.

The First?

Hollywood.—Harry Rapf is well advanced on his "Hollywood Revue of 1930" for M-G-M, which promises to be the first screen revue of the new year. Marie Dressler, Weber & Fields and DeWolf Hopper are among players in the successor to "The Hollywood Revue," which Rapf supervised last year.

Work on $2,500,000 House at Hollywood Starts Soon

Hollywood.—Work is slated to start in 60 days on the $2,500,000 theatre, apartment and hotel development at Wilshire Blvd. and Beverly Drive, to be operated by West Coast-Hollywood Theatres, a subsidiary of Fox West Coast Theatres. The project is slated to be completed early in 1931. Gore Bros., Sol Lesser and Mike Rosenberg, who acquired the site several years ago, will build and own the new project.

Genesee Firm Gets Two Houses at Elmira, N. Y.

Batavia, N. Y.—The Genesee Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., of this city, acquired the Newton Amusement Corp. of Elmira, operator of the Capitol and Colonial there, when they purchased the controlling stock owned by M. A. Shea of New York and J. Meyer Schine of Gloversville. Contracts have been let to remodel both houses.

Metropolitan Administration Building to Cost $20,000

Hollywood—Twenty thousand dollars will be spent to erect a new administration building at Metropolitan Sound Studios. William S. Holman, general manager, let the contract to Meyers Bros. Twelve producers now are working at the plant.

Society of M. P. Engineers Starts Monthly Journal

Publication of the Journal of the Society of M. P. Engineers was started this month, and will be published monthly, replacing the semi-annual Transactions formerly published. It will be strictly scientific or technical in nature. L. A. Jones of the Journal committee is temporary editor, although a permanent editor is to be appointed.

First Educationals Ready

An initial group of four Ufa educational shorts is ready for distribution by North American Sound & Talking Pictures, manufacturers of Tone-O-Graph, which plans tie-ups with schools and colleges.

Henry Memorial Planned

Richmond, Va.—E. F. Neal heads a new company formed here to erect a memorial theatre to Patrick Henry. Thomas Gresham, president of a local chain of hotels, is backing the project.

Seek Sunday Shows

Humboldt, Ia.—If permitted to give Sunday shows, Manager Frank will wire the Humboldt. Petitions requesting a referendum on the question are being circulated.

Two Stories Heard on Reasons Butterfield Quit Mich. Unit

Detroit—Sponsoring of a new association "for their own benefit" by directors of the Michigan unit and alleged effort of this new organization to hire employes away from his company are cited by Col. W. S. Butterfield as reasons why he withdrew from the Michigan exhibitor unit.

The general impression here has been that the Butterfield and Kunsky (Publix) chains withdrew because of the unit's activities against arbitration, as a member of Allied States Ass'n. This viewpoint led some time ago to decision to raise the dues of the association, in order to offset the monetary loss allegedly caused by withdrawal of the affiliated chains.

Butterfield cites his activities since formation of the Michigan unit, to success of which he contributed. He has, he points out, "stood by the organization through thick and thin."

"But, in the past two months," he continues, "I could not help but notice that the other members on the board of directors seemed to have something on their mind and, on inquiring, I found out that some of the directors were forming an association among some of the exhibitors for their own benefit. And, as this was against the by-laws of the association, I asked for information and why it was that all of the exhibitors had not been called into the meeting, giving them all an opportunity to join their new association if they so desired. While none of the board of directors told me that I was not wanted in the organization, their actions spoke louder than words. Even with this going on, and feeling that harmony could not be continued in the organization, I made no move to resign, feeling that maybe in time the conditions would be corrected and our little association held together. But, two weeks later, when I was informed that some of the exhibitors who were connected with the organization they were creating had deliberately approached employees in our office to try and hire them away, I felt that it was time to sever our connections with the M. P. T. O. of Michigan, Incorporated, which had tolerated a select few of their members to try and create something that would not work in harmony with all of its members. So, on Wednesday last, I attended the board meeting, explained our position and tendered my resignation.

"Feel that this explanation is due to the exhibitors of not only Michigan, but to all theatre owners who are trying to work in harmony with any association. For, when an organization that is put together for mutual interest and not profit, cannot function to permit all the members of the board of directors to know what is going on, or foster the organizing of something that is of a secret nature, it is a positive fact that sooner or later that organization will deteriorate or go out of existence."

Cohen Named to Special Columbia Foreign Post

Harry J. Cohen, until last July assistant general manager in Europe for Warners, has been named special foreign representative of Columbia Pictures, with headquarters in New York. The appointment closely follows selection of Milton J. Schwartz as European sales manager and the opening of offices in Paris and London. Cohen was a branch manager and feature manager for General, later assisting Richard A. Rowland, James B. Clark and Joe Engel in organization of Metro, continuing as manager of the foreign department, until the Goldwyn merger when he joined Warners.

"Birth of a Nation" with Sound Score for Revival

Hollywood.—Harry Aiken has started recording of synchronized sound effects and musical score for "The Birth of a Nation," D. W. Griffith's film which was first shown about 15 years ago.

Releasing plans are indefinite at the present time, although Aiken figures the picture big enough to stand up as a road show attraction.

50 Theatres in Vienna Now Showing American Talkers

Vienna—With 24 theatres adopting sound policies this week, the total number of talker houses now is 50. All but six or seven have American reproducing equipment. It is estimated that approximately 3,000 musicians are jobless.

Erlanger Plans Talkers

Los Angeles.—People want the spoken drama and enjoy it as much as they ever did, despite the talker craze, but just the same E. L. Erlanger intends to give talkers a place in his legitimate houses.

Preparing " Du Barry"

Hollywood—Sam Taylor and his staff are preparing the talker version of "Du Barry" which will star Norma Talmadge for United Artists. Taylor will direct.

Three Contracts Renewed

Hollywood.—M-G-M has renewed contracts with John Mack Brown, Louis Mann and Hedda Hopper.

Kennedy Head of Equipment Advertising Dept. of News

Tom Kennedy, veteran tradepaper man, and for more than five years with Motion Picture News, has been named advertising manager of the equipment division, succeeding Paul Abbott, who resigned to join McGraw-Hill Publications.

Kennedy since 1925 has been specializing in the equipment field. Since 1927, he has handled editorial matter and make-up of "The Showman," published monthly as a feature of Motion Picture News. His early experience includes a year on the staff of "Motography," which Exhibitor's Herald absorbed. For several years he was connected with "Exhibitor's Trade Review."

Les Davis Named President Of Portland Film Board

Portland, Ore.—Les Davis, veteran manager of the First National exchange, is new president of the Film Board. Charles Powers (Fox) is first vice-president; Eddie Lamb (RKO) is second vice-president, and Ruth Doyle, secretary. Directors are: Harry Percy (Pathe); Howard Mapes (Star Film Co.), and Louis Amacher (M-G-M).

W. E.-Warner Arbitration Hearings Continue Sunday

Arbitration hearings are to be continued Sunday in the disagreement between Warners and Electrical Research Products over royalties on Western Electric sound equipment. This sets at rest report that agreement had been reached in an "out of court" settlement. The arbitration hearings have been going on for a number of months.

Originally Vitaphone marketed sound equipment, and when this function was taken over by Electrical Research, Warners were to receive a share of the gross on pictures made by the process and on theatre wiring, it is contended.

Warners Declare Dividend

Warners on Thursday declared quarterly dividend of 55 cents on the preferred and $1 on the common, payable March 1 to stock of record Feb. 10.

Pacent Patent Suit to Be Continued, Says W. E.

Western Electric intends to continue prosecution of its patent suit against Pacent Reproducer Corp. and Pacent Electric Co., until a decision is rendered on the merits of the patents involved, G. C. Pratt, head of the legal department, states. The Appeal Court dismissed appeal from the District Court ruling in New York that Western Electric and Electrical Research Products were improperly named as plaintiffs.

New Sound Methods In Lab Work Up at Confab

Revolutionary laboratory changes brought about by sound highlighted the first in a series of technical conferences sponsored by the new Association of M. P. Laboratories for its regular twice-monthly meetings, held in the organization's headquarters at New York.

Donald Hyndman, Eastman Kodak technician, traced the history of sound and its connection with the laboratory field, culminating his remarks with a detailed analysis of the newest methods of sound developing and printing.

Permanent officers were elected at the last meeting, when S. L. Bargman, organizing secretary, was elected to continue as secretary and manager. Other officers include Bursch, of Filmlab, president, and O'Keefe of Warners, vice-president.

Paramount Building Broadway Theatre?

Paramount's delayed plans for building a new Broadway theatre to be erected on the site of the Criterion are understood being revived with acquisition of additional property on 44th St., adjoining the site. Seneca Holding Corp. is the purchaser. Ralph Kohn, treasurer of Paramount, and Elek J. Ludvigh, counsel, are officers of the firm.

A. T. & T.'s Family

American Telephone & Telegraph has more stockholders than any other firm in the world, with 469,000 holders of shares on its books. The shares are widely separated throughout all states of the Union and in 50 foreign countries.

Setay Aided "U" in Pay-Off on Notes

Setay, New York financing unit headed by H. J. Yates of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., put up a large part of the money used by Universal in paying off $2,500,000 in debenture notes which were retired about two weeks ago.

During negotiations with Setay, Universal sold its Ft. Lee (N. J.) laboratory to Consolidated, and when the loan was made by Setay, Consolidated made a deal on all "U" print work in the East. At the same time, Universal agreed to have Eastman stock used for prints. Universal had been using Agfa for many years.

Consolidated has made overtures for acquisition of the plant and print work of Universal over a period of four years. Carl Laemmle is reported to have stood in the way of a deal. The "U" chief believed that an entire plant was necessary, despite the fact that overhead continued during off-seasons and that the "lab" lacked facilities for speedy work.

Laemmles Coming East

Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle, Jr., are due in New York from the Coast in a week.

"Seven Keys" Fails to Open Purses of Broadway-Wise

A peak into the till of the Carroll, New York, at the end of the three-week run of "Seven Keys to Baldpate," gave RKO chiefs a headache it is reported.

Further down the main stem, RKO has cause for another "big head" with "Rio Rita," which played to $27,000 in the first week, dropping to half that intake in the second, while the third, and current week, is understood to be worse.

Another for Paquin

Hull, Que.—Donat Paquin, owner of three theatres in Hull and one in Ottawa, has purchased the Regent, Gatineau, from Joseph Laflamme, and the house will be reopened after being dark several months.

Littau in Charge at Roxy

Direction of the Roxy theatre orchestra passes to Joseph Littau, following resignation of Erno Rapee.

Stanley Net to Show Big Jump

November and December net of Stanley Company of America is understood to be higher than the total intake for the preceding ten months in 1929. Earnings for last year will show a big increase over the previous year, indicating that the retrenchment policy introduced some months ago is beginning to assert itself.

When Warners acquired control of the 250-house chain in October, 1928, on an exchange-of-stock basis, it bought into a company that had been experiencing operating difficulties which were keenly felt in its financial statements. The dividend in that year was reduced from $4 to $3, and later discontinued altogether. Many of the houses were running in the "red," and for months following the deal, Warners insisted on stiff retrenchment, which began to show results in October of last year.

Gottesman Becomes Warner Executive

Alfred Gottesman will assist Spyros Skouras in the operation of Warner theatres. It is understood he will act in an executive capacity, without a title.

Gottesman was interested in a string of theatres in Connecticut until he sold out to Warners some months ago.

Espey Succeeds Berry as Warner Pittsburgh Chief

Reeves Espey, long publicity director for the Skouras Bros. in St. Louis and later brought to New York when Spyros Skouras assumed charge of Warner theatre operations, has been transferred from New York, where he handled all de luxe operations to the Pittsburgh division, to succeed Ace Berry, resigned.

Arthur M. Brilant, who edited "Carry On," house organ for the theatre department, was to be assigned duties in Atlantic City, but late in the week the assignment was revoked and the order given to maintain him in New York. "Carry On" has been suspended. The Warner office says the move is temporary.

Headquarters Shifted

Atlantic City—Operation of all Warner houses here will soon be shifted from the Globe to the New Warner theatre building. Danny Finkelstein, son of M. L. Finkelstein, formerly of the Northwest Theatre Circuit, Minneapolis, is Warner divisional manager here.

Warner Club to Put Show on Broadway for Public

Warners' home-office club is dickering for a Broadway house where it will stage its annual "Gaieties" early in February. The plan is to play the house one night a week for several weeks. Al Zimbalist and Sanford Abrams are the dance directors.

Kalmine, Warner Booker

Harry M. Kalmine, former division manager of Warner New Jersey theatres, now is chief booker for the circuit.

$15,500,000 Estimated Net Of Paramount During 1929

Net of $15,500,000 after all charges and taxes, equal to $6.34 a share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year is estimated by Paramount for 1929, a new high for the company and 78 per cent. ahead of the $8,713,000 net chalked up in 1928.

The estimated profit for the fourth quarter is $5,770,000 and equals $2.15 per share on the shares outstanding at the end of the year. This profit is 111% ahead of the corresponding fourth quarter profits for 1928 of $2,737,000.

The earnings per share for 1929 increased 50 per cent. or $2.12 per share, although over 500,000 additional shares of stock were issued during the year. Profits of subsidiaries consolidated for the first time are included from the date of their acquisition only and not for the entire year.

The earnings for the year were over twice the dividends requirements, the dividends paid during the year being approximately $7,300,000, leaving an addition to surplus of approximately $8,200,000 for the year. Likewise profits are over $1,000,000 in excess of the $14,323,000 issue of Paramount 6 per cent. debenture bonds outstanding at the year end, which is the only funded debt having priority over the common stock of the company. Earnings indicated are about 18 times present annual interest requirements on these debenture bonds.

Lists 65 Pictures On New Program

Los Angeles—Paramount's production schedule this year calls for expenditure of between $19,000,000 and $19,500,000, an increase over last year of $1,750,000. Sixty-five features and 52 shorts will be made by the company, all of the shorts and ten features scheduled to be made in New York. This eastern schedule represents an aggregate of $4,500,000. The remaining 55 features, scheduled to cost $15,000,000 will be filmed here.

While the foreign business is said to have held up during the year, Paramount has determined upon foreign versions of talkers. French versions are to be made in New York and Spanish versions here. German versions also are planned. This will reduce to 11 per cent. the maximum loss in foreign sound business, B. P. Schulberg believes.

Of the total gross revenue secured by the company, 75 per cent. is from theatres owned or controlled by Paramount.

Technicolor Output Jumps 36,000,000 Ft.

Sudden demand for color has stepped up Technicolor's output from 14,000,000 ft. early in 1929 to a current annual rate of 50,000,000 ft., and by March the output will be further augmented to an annual turnout of 100,000,000 ft., a total increase of 86,000,000 ft.

Net of $1,000,000 for the year ending Dec. 31 is expected.

"Glorifying Girl" Called Weak Sister

"Weak Sister" is the phrase which sums up critical opinion of nine New York newspapers on "Glorifying the American Girl" (Paramount). A few skits and editing save it "from utter banality," "The American" states, in a review, reflecting the consensus of opinions, which follow:

American— . . . a very weak sister which is saved from utter banality by the introduction of an Eddie Cantor skit. . . .

Daily Mirror Mediocre stuff.

Daily News—Millard Webb has given us a sloppy piece of direction . . . and nobody in the cast distinguishes him or herself.

Evening World— . . . unglorifying. . . . The story is all but pointless.

Herald-Tribune—For at least two years the . . . Paramount organization . . . has been striving to provide a motion picture. . . . It seems, however, that the result is hardly worth all the effort.

Morning Telegraph— . . . the new film wins by a pair of shears and a paste-pot wielded by the cutting room staff.

Telegram— . . . an outmoded and dismally tiresome film. . . .

Times—The only really bright spots . . . are the episodes in which Eddie Cantor, Helen Morgan, Rudy Vallee and Mary Eaton officiate. . . .

World— . . . just a fair show.

"Glorifying the American Girl" is "very weak," according to MOTION PICTURE NEWS' review of the picture published on January 11. Exhibitors were urged to plug the stellar names to put it over.

Paramount, N. Y., Sets New Mark with 125,000 in Week

Attendance and gross records at the Paramount toppled the week ended Jan. 2, when attendance totaled 125,000, bringing cash intake better than $5,000 above the previous high mark. On Dec. 27, attendance was 19,000. The New Year's holiday swelled receipts.

Publix In Complete Control of Duluth Downtown Houses

Duluth.—Marking retirement of J. B. Clinton and the Charles P. Myers estate from the local first-run field, Publix has acquired complete control of the Lyceum, Strand and Sunbeam. Clinton retains his suburban interests, including the Doric and West Duluth. Al Anson, northern district manager for Publix, will be in charge of operation for the time being.

To Dismantle Omaha House

Omaha—Representatives of Publix' real estate department were here recently conferring with a local realtor on plans to convert the former Rialto into a bus depot. Publix holds a 99 year lease on the theatre, which was closed six months ago.

Mrs. Goldwyn, Note!

Sam Goldwyn, back from Yurrop and Paree, spilled an interesting yarn to shipnews reporters this week. Said he, in effect:

Paris and the night clubs are the bunk. Parisian shows, ditto. Cabarets and the whole shebang very dull and very uninteresting. Just so much applesauce. (Goldwyn saying this, not the writer)

What we've been trying to dope out is in exactly what part of Paris Goldwyn stayed.

General Accord That "Hell's Heroes" Is Well-Done Film

The majority of metropolitan critics lean over backward in their praise of "Hell's Heroes," reviewed by MOTION PICTURE NEWS on the Coast some weeks before New York saw it, and described at that time as a superior attraction. Charles Bickford, in particular, comes in for a considerable share of praise for his work. Critical comment on his acting and the picture itself follows:

Daily Mirror—A dandy western drama. Charles Bickford's . . . performance stands out brilliantly. . . .

Daily News—The action is tense, stark, singularly moving . . . William Wyler deserves the highest of praise for his direction. . . .

Evening Journal— . . . done with extraordinarily impressive and sincere dignity . . . Bickford gives an outstanding performance. . . .

Evening Journal—Charles Bickford, Fred Kohler and Raymond Hatton . . . are so good that there's little to choose among them. . . Certainly this picture . . . deserves honorable mention. . . .

Evening World— . . . one of the most noteworthy pictures to be shown at this house in months.

Graphic— . . . A naive tale well told. . . .

Herald-Tribune— . . . a mixture of good and bad . . . it has something new and original in its method of telling a story . . . acting . . . is excellent. . . . Yet, for the picture connoisseur, this is one to see.

Morning Telegraph—While . . . an out-and-out sob opera, it manages nevertheless to maintain an air of near reality and moves forward through blood and thunder. . . .

Post— . . . sentimental and sententious film. . . .

Sun— . . . has an effectiveness at times. This is due principally to its leading actor (Charles Bickford). Its weakness is that its desert scenes tend to become monotonous.

Telegram— . . . commendably acted and directed. . . .

Times— . . . an interetsing and realistic bit of characterization . . . The three main characters are excellently depicted, especially Mr. Bickford's portrayal.

World— . . . a well made picture play, photographed, acted and directed in a fashion which brings out its best possibilities. . . .

In Publix Houses

Jacksonville, Fla.—Prince's Sanford and the Etta at Ocala, of the Publix-Saenger-Sparks chain are to be equipped with Tone-O-Graph "Baby Grand" devices. Contracts were signed here by representatives of Publix and North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment Corp., of New York, for immediate installation. Sunrise Theatres, Inc., will equip its Sample theatre at Fort Pierce, with Tone-O-Graph.

Sound for Dollar Steamers

San Francisco—The Dollar Line S. S. Co. will install Western Electric sound in all its Orient and coast-to-coast steamers, commencing with the S. S. President Fillmore, which departed from New York on Thursday on a round-the-world cruise.

Benefit Shows

Omaha—Twenty-six local charitable institutions will share in the showing of 1,000,000,000 feet of film during 1930, Regina Molseed, secretary of the Omaha Film Board of Trade, announced.

Before the "Mike" In N. Y. Studios

MURRAY ROTH, director-in-chief of the Vitaphone studios over in Brooklyn, directed Lorraine Howard and Florence Newton, vaudeville headliners, in a short entitled "Wedding Belles" this week. This "Mutt and Jeff" pair is a riot.

THERE was plenty of money floating around the studios out Flatbush way recently. Yeh in the title of a Vitaphone short "Money, Money, Money," featuring Homer Mason and Marguerite Keeler, which Edmund Joseph directed. The aforementioned lucre remains in one family since Miss Keeler is Mrs. Mason.

ART LANDRY has a big secret which he is guarding. He promised the lowdown in a few days.

RUTH ETTING, the Ziegfeld "Whoopee" star, visited the folks over at the Vitaphone studio and made a short called "Broadway's Like That" which Arthur Hurley directed. She started out by calling herself a designer out where Mrs. O'Leary's cow started something or other, but it seems that nobody wanted designs. So Miss Etting got herself a job in a night club to sing and dance. Made records—Ziegfeld heard—New York—success.

FOURTEEN years ago, a school boy played hookey in order to watch Hobart Henley direct a picture in Yonkers. A would-be wise guy interrupted the shooting and Mr. Henley, turning to the w.g. said:

"If you want to direct this picture here's the meg and go ahead." Needless to say there were no more interruptions. At the Paramount studio we reminded Hobart Henley of the incident and were told "he remembered it clearly." But the gag is: This writer was the schoolboy.

THEY shot a boarding house scene in Maurice Chevalier's latest picture "The Big Pond" at the Paramount Long Island Studios the other day and the odor of corned beef and cabbage was in evidence for the next two days.

WINDSOR PICTURE PLAYS, INC., ponsored by Henry Ginsberg and Weiss Brothers, have moved offices from the De Forest Studios at 318 East 48th St. to larger quarters in the Godfrey Building. "Her Unborn Child" recentyl produced by the Ginsberg-Weiss combination has aroused interest enough to warrant the move, 'tis said.

DURING the shooting of Eddie Buzzell's latest Vitaphone short, "Keeping Company," a miniature Bronx Park zoo was on the set. One of the animals, a fox terrier, took a liking to Bill Quinn, chief "still" man, and followed Bill around like the proverbial "lamb" that Mary had.

STUART ERWIN, the paddle-pated student in "Sweetie" will again appear with Helen Kane in "Dangerous Nan McGrew" which will be made at the Paramount Long Island studio under direction of Mal St. Clair. Wonder if Miss Kane will use the shotgun here.

HE STUDIO SLEUTH

Young Resigns

Hollywood—Lon Young, producing supervisor for Audible Pictures, has resigned and opened his own headquarters for production at Tec Art.

150 Women to Participate In Daily Previews at Studios

Hollywood—One hundred fifty representatives of the 5,000,000 clubwomen of the United States will participate in daily previewing of pictures at the studios, to give producers an insight into women's viewpoint, as well as to apprise membership of the merits of current films.

Announcement of the plans was made by Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, associate director of public relations for the Ass'n of M. P. Producers. Volunteers who will participate represent the General Federation of Women's Clubs, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, Daughters of the American Revolution, American Ass'n of University Women and Parent-Teachers organizations.

The women, says Mrs. Winter, are not launching "any great crusade," and are seeking to improve pictures by constructive co-operation. Censorship is opposed by the clubwomen, she asserts.

Nathanson Denies Chain Plan Is Off

Montreal—Denial that his $25,000,000 chain development proposition has been abandoned is made by N. L. Nathanson, sponsor of the proposed circuit in opposition to Famous Players Canadian Corp.

"The financing of the company has already been provided for," says Nathanson, pointing out that franchise arrangements have been made with a number of distributors.

Building Race Is Expected at Toronto

Toronto—While Montreal has been hearing reports that differences between N. L. Nathanson, former managing director, and Famous Players Canadian have been settled, this city is preparing for a building race with the opposing parties building on Yonge St., within a few hundred feet of each other. The proposed Famous Players house will seat 4,000 and cost an estimated $2,000,000, while the Nathanson-Fox house is expected to be of similar capacity.

$15,000,000 Building Program Planned at Eastman Park

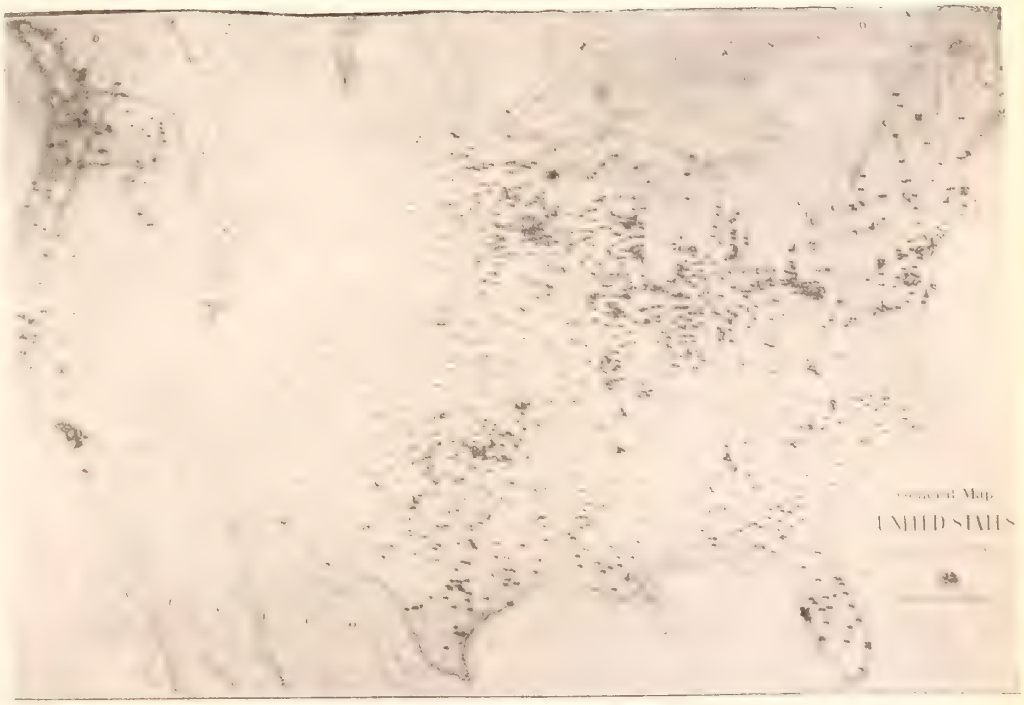
Rochester, N. Y.—Eastman Kodak will spend $15,000,000 on building and improvements at Kodak Park. In addition, the height of the office tower will be increased to 340 feet.

Hyndman Shifted to N. Y.

Eastman Kodak has switched Donald Hyndman, from Kodak Park, Rochester, to New York office, to assist Dick Brady.

Dividend in Scrip

Dividend of $1 declared Dec. 5 on Fox Film Class "A" will be payed Jan. 15 in scrip instead of cash to holders of record Dec. 31.



Geographical illustration of the distribution of the five year Tiffany franchises throughout the United States. A number of franchises have been sold in many cities and zones, this fact being shown on the original by numbered tacks not discernible in the above illustration.

Production in Canada Urged By Board of Ontario Censors

Toronto—Canada must develop production of pictures to counteract the influence of American films, the Ontario board of censors declares in its annual report. American domination of Canadian screens, the report emphasizes, "has already been a subject for strong complaint not only in Canada, but in Australia and New Zealand.

Of 2,496 films submitted last year, 1,805 were approved as submitted, 631 were approved with eliminations and 60 were rejected outright, the report shows.

"Canada and the United States, side by side," the report states, "represent two different democratical political systems established by two groups of English-speaking people on this continent. The leading features of each system are emphasized by the educational authorities in each country, particularly for the benefit of those of non-English origin.

"As the home market is the primary one, most of the films are prepared from the home point of view. Where one country makes most of the world's films and the adjoining country makes none but is treated by the producing country as part of the domestic market, the preservation of a distinct Canadian point of view and outlook is naturally a matter of concern."

Grubels and Publix Spike Report Deal is Closed

Kansas City—Report that the Grubel circuit in Kansas and Missouri had been taken over by Publix is denied by Grubel Brothers and Publix officials here.

FitzPatrick Recording Two

James A. FitzPatrick is recording first two releases for 1930 of his American Holiday Series of short subjects. These pictures are entitled "Abraham Lincoln" and "George Washington," and will be released for playdates on and around Feb. 12 and 22, respectively.

West, New Christie Star

Hollywood—Following his work in the first talker, "Marching to Georgia," a two-reel Christie talker, Buster West has been signed by Christies to star in a series. He starts work on the series next month.

Form A. P. S. Chapter

Winnipeg.—Projectionists have organized a chapter of the American Projection Society with 14 charter members. William Hale is president; Joseph Cooper, secretary, and E. W. Ross, treasurer.

Another Installs Ear Phones for Benefit of Deaf Patrons

Algona, Ia.—Seats in the balcony equipped with earphones for the benefit of those of defective hearing were part of the new equipment installed at the Call O. H. by N. C. Rice.

Theatres Closing

Paris (By Wireless).—Picture houses here threaten to close Jan. 25 unless the government agrees to reduction of the 17 per cent tax on grosses. Legitimate houses recently determined to close their doors Jan. 25 unless tax relief was forthcoming.

Cecil Cunningham, British Player, in M-G-M Revue

Hollywood—Cecil Cunningham, British mimic and comedienne, has been signed by M-G-M for the new M-G-M Revue. Miss Cunningham will appear in sketches with Weber and Fields and Louis Mann. Chuck Reisner is directing.

Famous London Legit House Installing W. E. Equipment

London—Chalk up another notable victory for talkers, the Dominion, famous legitimate house, having capitulated. Western Electric equipment is being installed.

Gets Another at Boise

Boise, Ida. — Reopening was scheduled this week for the Strand, recently acquired by the Menmar Theater Co., Publix subsidiary, which also operates the Pinney.

An Insider's Outlook

all Fox needed those ten millions.

Not that Wilmington and First National necessarily have anything to do with one another. Not at all.

"Happy Days"

The big baby of the Fox lot. We've just seen it and what we think runs something like this:

"Happy Days" will bring just that to theatres. It's a musical revue, tied together neatly with a story idea that carries some sense. It appears that Colonel Billy, antiquated enough to stick to the idea that show boats along the river are still the thing, meets one tough time. Marjorie White, the girl in the troupe, hits on the happy thought of appealing to the celebs who once worked for the colonel when they weren't so hot to come to the rescue. So to New York she goes, invades the Stage and Screen Club where the complete Fox roster from Will Rogers down the line are introduced and finally gets over her mission. The boys come through, organize the show, draft George Olsen and his band for the music and hotfoot it down South and into the revue the picture then takes you.

The music is catchy and the production values very much there. The individual numbers are of varying quality—some not so hot, others good. The sum total of the entire proceedings, however, makes for a real entertainment. With its personality line-up, it is difficult to figure how "Happy Days" can miss.

KANN

The Switching Post

Hollywood

JOE E. BROWN has signed for the featured comedian role in Arthur Hammerstein's initial filmusical for United Artists, "Bride 66." Other cast selections to date include Dorothy Dalton, Lois Moran, and Joseph Macauley.

EUGENE PALLETTE, Paramount stock contract player, has had option on his agreement renewed for an additional period.

* * *

CHARLES BICKFORD will be featured by M-G-M in "The Sea Bat," which Wesley Ruggles will direct.

* * *

PAUL CAVANAUGH has signed with M-G-M for a part in "The Circle," which David Burton will direct. Cast includes Lewis Stone, Ernest Torrence, Catherine Dale Owen, Alison Skipworth and Mary Forbes.

* * *

MARIE PREVOST will have the featured spot in Columbia's talker production, "Ladies of the Evening" which Frank Capra will direct.

* * *

SHEILA LA GAE has been signed to play opposite Tom Tyler in his current western talker for Trem Carr Prod.

* * *

ARTHUR STONE will have an important role in Victor McLaglen's next for Fox, "On the Level," which Irving Cummings will direct. Aggie Herring, Ben Blewett, and Lee Tracy are in the cast.

* * *

FIRST NATIONAL has started production on Billie Dove's latest talker, "Sweethearts and Wives," with Clarence Badger directing. Cast includes Olive Brook, Sidney Blackmar, Leila Hyams, Fletcher Norton and Alphonse Martel.

* * *

CHESTER MORRIS, who made his picture debut in "Alibi," will appear in Roland West's next talker, "Love in Chicago."

* * *

MONA MARIS will appear opposite Warner Baxter in "The Arizona Kid." Al Santell will direct.

* * *

JOHN T. MURRAY and Vivien Oakland round out the cast for "For the Love O' Lil," a Columbia picture.

* * *

COLUMBIA has signed Virginia Valli for the feminine lead in "The Black Sheep."

* * *

HARRISON FORD has been signed by RKO to appear in "I Love You," Richard Dix's next starring talker for that company. Mel Brown will direct.

* * *

PARAMOUNT plans to feature Harry Green in "Business Is Pleasure," from an original by Elsie Janis and Gene Markey.

* * *

MARION NIXON will again play opposite Eddie Dowling in his next starring musical for Sono-Art, "Honeymoon Lane." George Crone will direct.

* * *

DOROTHY LEE will be seen in "Radio Revels," which features Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey.

* * *

REGIS TOOMEY has been signed by Radio to play the male lead in "Framed," an original by Paul Scofield which George Archainbaud is directing.

* * *

RICHARD ARLEN is at work on "The Light of Western Stars," under co-direction of Otto Brower and John Langan. Supporting Arlen are Mary Brian, Harry Green, Regis Toomey, Fred Kohler, William Le Maire, George Chandler and Sid Saylor.

Equity Flays U. S. Method of Using Foreign Players in Lingual Films

Urges Adoption of Hopkins System of Using American Actors, With Voice Doubles for Each Foreign Version

American screen players are urged by Actors Equity to "exert their influence with producers to induce them to abandon the mistaken policy of making foreign versions with foreign actors in foreign countries." Players "should stand together on the subject of re-vocalization and not appear in any foreign versions unless the screen portions of these foreign versions be made by American actors," the association says in the current issue of "Equity Magazine."

Equity foresees a safeguard for American players in the Edwin Hopkins "Vivigraphic" system of producing foreign versions "which will enable the screen features of American players to be re-vocalized with foreign voices in as many languages as may be desired." The Hopkins plan of producing multi-lingual versions is understood to have been rejected by several Hollywood studios, although one important producer is said to be negotiating for a license to use the patented plan.

"The leading American film stars may find that too much time is taken up in becoming familiar with more than four or five of the most important foreign languages. The foreign versions for the languages where there is less distribution may be made by newer stars and starlets, and the principal producing company, after making five or six languages may sell the sets to less prominent producers for the other languages, instead of the latter engaging in the making of states rights pictures.

"It is obvious that all this means a great deal of extra work for the American players, but at the same time it will mean a great deal of extra salary; perhaps triple or quadruple as much as they now make from a production. It also means that the American screen personality may continue to dominate the world's talkie screens and not become supplanted in other countries by local luminaries.

Lessening of Expense and Other Factors Are Claimed

"For producers it means a great lessening of expense, since the rehearsals may be carried on without any overhead expense. Production costs on the set will be greatly lessened, for when the time for shooting comes the players will all be letter perfect and the various versions may be run through rapidly. The supplementary casts will also supply an audience for the camera performance, a great factor in the giving of a performance by any actor.

"It also makes available to producers the finest talent from all countries as heretofore, and the magnificent standards of American production need not be cut down. All the silent shots, which may run from a quarter to half the footage need only be made once. The sets need be erected but once, and the lighting arranged but once. Leading film executives, indeed believe that only by means of this process will foreign productions be possible, as separate productions in each foreign country are not economically feasible. The booking will not pay for the production in most languages. * * *

"The Hopkins process is well known to sound engineers and technicians, but through what seems to be a mistaken idea of film executives that different facial and vocal personalities would not blend, the process has not yet come into general use, although it effects tremendous savings as compared with multiple production abroad.

"In order for American actors to understand the situation, a description of how the Hopkins process is carried out is necessary. Most inventions have reduced the volume of employment for the actors. This is one that greatly expands it.

"If, for example, English, Spanish and German versions are to be made, the text is first translated into Spanish and German. Casts of Spanish-speaking stage players and German-speaking stage players are engaged for the vocal records.

"The American actors become letter perfect in the English version and at the same time familiarize themselves with the Spanish text and the German text, the several groups of actors attending each others' rehearsals. All this takes place before 'shooting' of the production begins, so that there is no studio overhead incurred. The directors for both screen and voice, however, conduct the rehearsals.

Present System for English Used by New Hopkins System

"On the set the American actors first perform the scene in English in the usual way, making the English film and English sound records simultaneously.

Then, before the scene is dismantled, the American actors perform the scene again speaking the Spanish text as best they may. It is necessary for them to speak the Spanish dialogue exactly in order to provide the proper lip movements, but their accent need not be perfect. As the Spanish-speaking sound records they make, are not later used in public, they may be prompted by the Spanish actors and may view the text from large placards, phonetically spelled, placed at various locations outside the camera lines.

"The American actors now stand aside and the Spanish actors perform the scene, the Spanish sound records being thus made. The camera shots of this version are not used in public. Thus the Spanish actors need not be screen personalities. They should, however, be trained and magnetic actors of the Spanish stage, as their sound records should be of a quality to vie with the American screen personalities.

"They should perform the scene letter perfect in Spanish and as closely as possible to the stage business of the English version, but they need not attempt to do so in exact synchronism,. as that would make them constrained and stilted, (besides being a physical impossibility). The main thing is for them to give a 'performance' for the sound records just as the American actors must give a 'performance' for the screen version however inaccurate their Spanish accent may be.

"As voices remain young much longer than do faces, it will be easy to utilize the work of the long-trained Spanish stage players for the vocal records, players who may never have possessed pantomimic or screen personalities. The vocal and the pontomimic arts are separate arts, and few individuals are equally talented in both.

"After the Amercian actors have made the Spanish lip movement screen version and the Spanish players have made the Spanish records, the Hopkins process, in the laboratory, brings them into exact synchronism. Since discrepancies of as much as ten per cent may be rectified, very few retakes will be required.

"The synchronism effected is so perfect that Spanish audiences will suppose that the American players speak Spanish, unless it be announced otherwise.

Process Applicable Either to Disc or Film Uses

"After the synchronism is effected in the laboratory the film and records may be reproduced in as numerous prints as necessary, and may be exhibited in theatres on the usual apparatus without any alteration in the print or apparatus. The Hopkins process is applicable either to disc or film edge records.

"Youthful American screen personalities who have not had an opportunity to perfect themselves in English dialogue by actual stage work, which requires from three to five years hard experience, not to be gained by any amount of vocal coaching by teacher but only by actual contact with audiences, may also be re-vocalized in English by exxperienced American stage players.

"The Spanish version is next having been made as described, the German version is next made in the same way.

"If it be decided to make a talkie in several languages such as Spanish, German, French, Italian, Portuguese (for Brazil), Russian, Japanese, Chinese, Swedish, Czec, Polish, Greek, Turkish, Hindustani and the like, translators of those languages first make texts, which may vary slightly to agree with the dramatic tastes of the audiences of the various countries and with the differing censorship regulations.

"Foreign casts are then engaged and become letter perfect, the general group serving as an audience for each language group and all actively learning as much about each other's languages and art of acting as possible. It is, of course, great mistake to make an talkie unless the players are letter perfect, for it the actors are fishing for lines they will not give a performance.

Paramount Not to Make Talkers Abroad, Kent Says

Paris—Paramount is not considering European production of talkers, believing such procedure too costly, Sidney R. Kent, general manager, stated in a recent interview here. Likewise, he said, the making of foreign language talkers in Hollywood with imported talent, would be too expensive. His company, Kent said, finds the best solution in extracting the dialogue from such of its sound pictures as have considerable action and inserting French subtitles.

Kent was here with Robert Kane, who heads a Franco-American group to produce French talkers. Paramount, said Kent, has no financial interest in the enterprise, but will be glad to distribute talkers the group makes, if they are up to standard.

Equity Wins Suit

Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News

Washington.—Right of Actors' Equity Association to prohibit its members from accepting employment from agents not holding a permit from the organization was upheld when the Supreme Court refused to pass upon the validity of the Equity resolution. Equity insisted that the resolution was made necessary when the Supreme Court held that legislatures had no power to fix the fees of employment agencies.

William Edelstein, New York agent, brought suit to prevent enforcement of the resolution, winning in District Court, but reversed by the Court of Appeals.

Some Title

The world's record for a long title is claimed by M. J. Weisfeldt, distribution head of Talking Picture Epics, for Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's first talker, "Across the World with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson." The picture, the firm's second release this season, opens Jan. 20 at the George M. Cohan, New York.

Epics' initial release, "Hunting Tigers in India," is to have day and date premieres Sunday at the Chestnut St. Opera House, Philadelphia; Shubert, Detroit and Baltimore, Los Angeles.

Reely?

Nogales, Ariz.—Wild west stuff in true film fashion was resorted to by Art Accord, film cowboy, it is alleged, when an operative for a surety company tried to arrest him here. Accord, the operative said, drew a knife and forced the operative into a closet, crashed through a window and was about to drop to the ground when nabbed by a deputy sheriff. The company had posted bond to secure Accord's release on bail when arrested in Los Angeles on charge of possessing liquor.

Exchange of Ideas on Reproduction Problems Aiding M-G-M Technicians

Questions of Showmen Pave Way to Solution of Sound Problems

> ### Speeding Progress
>
> Thorough discussion of new problems being experienced daily is one of the methods used by M-G-M sound technicians in improving their service to theaters and to facilitate the gathering of accurate data on difficulties common to various sound systems.
>
> In this article, the sixth of the series being published exclusively by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, the technicians offer answers to a wide variety of questions. File this article for ready reference.

ANSWERING questions is one of the many important services which M-G-M's staff of sound technicians is hourly rendering. Nearly every trouble call or good-will visit which these men make is followed by an extended discussion of sound recording and sound reproduction problems.

As all of these inquiries, and the answers given, are contained in the technicians' reports, it has been a comparatively easy matter to collate them for the general information of all exhibitors. Incidentally, it may be interesting to know that copies of questions and replies are sent to the Sound Training School at the M-G-M studio, where they are reviewed and where standardized answers are worked out.

Some Common Problems

Among the most commonly made inquiries, with the replies thereto, are the following:

1. How can you tell when a disc is unsafe to play? By visual inspection. The things to look for are excessive warping, cutovers, scratches, bumps, gouges, etc.

2. What causes disc records to warp and how can warping be overcome? Excessive heat, when the record is stored otherwise than perfectly flat. Warping can be overcome by laying the record upon a flat surface with a rather heavy weight on the center and leaving it in a warm room for several hours.

3. How many blank frames may be inserted without harm in one spot of a sound-on-disc print? Five blank frames can be used temporarily until replacement film can be inserted.

4. Why is it necessary to replace missing footage in sound-on-film prints? It IS necessary to replace such footage to preserve continuity.

5. How many frames can be cut from a sound-on-film print without seriously affecting the dialogue? We take four as a medium. However, in some spots, where there is a pause in the dialogue, it is possible to cut out more frames without serious effect.

7. What is the difference between disc warping which will and which will not cause trouble? A warping that has a slight tendency to throw the reproducer head just a small distance toward the outside wall of the groove will not be harmful if the warping is gradual enough. Any other sort of warping is harmful.

8. Why should cotton gloves always be worn when inspecting or handling sound film? To keep the sound track free from finger prints.

9. Why should finger prints be kept off the film, and especially off the sound track? Because they affect the change of light falling upon the photo-electric cell, causing unpleasant noises.

10. Why are medium tone needles generally better than full tone? They reproduce a minimum of surface noise. They give better reproduction of high frequencies. They are more flexible than full tone needles and have a tendency to track better, too.

11. Why are sound-on-film prints never mounted on 2,000 foot reels? These reels are so large that there is great chance of their bending in shipping and thus damaging the film. The sound track, being near the edge, needs the best possible protection in shipping and winding.

12. Why does a disc record start from the inside instead of the outside? There are two reasons: (1) Because the oscillations are closer together at the inside of a record than at the outside, it is desirable to have needles sharpest where the oscillations are closest, and hence most difficult to follow. (2) Because use of the center of the disc as a place for stamping information data, makes it desirable to place the starting mark here also.

13. What causes film to buckle? Either low or high humidity—too little or too much moisture. When humidity is low, the buckling is with the emulsion side inward; when the humidity is high, the buckling is with the emulsion side outward. The lamp in the projector frequently will cause low humidity and inward buckling. Obviously, when film buckles with the emulsion side inside, it should be put in a spot where it can absorb moisture; when it buckles with the emulsion side outward, it should be put in a spot where it can dry.

Experts Outline Corrective Measures for Improving Reproduction

14. What effect will a scratch have on a sound track? It will occasion unpleasant noises and may cause a decrease in sound volume.

15. What is the effect of oil or wax on a sound track? It produces all sorts of unpleasant and foreign noises.

16. In what way is M-G-M sound-on-film feature production different from Movietone? M-G-M's sound-on-film recording is by means of a light valve, whereas Movietone is recorded by use of a flashing lamp, called an Aco tube.

17. Why are two start marks necessary on sound-on-film prints? One is for the picture aperture and one for the sound aperture. When the two are accurately placed in the projection marchine a proper loop of the film between the two apertures is assured.

18. What can cause a picture to get out of synchronization, even though the film and disc record are both perfect? Either the disc or the film, or both, might be started at some place other than the start mark. Or there might be a slipping of the disc on the turn table.

19. What causes clicks, booms and annoying noises in reproduction? Dirt on the film, bad needles, poor horns, untreated splices, faulty tubes, defective equipment and poor recording.

Volume Control Stressed

20. Why are some sound pictures too loud and some too soft to be heard? The fader setting may not be properly operated. Lack of volume in some cases is due to acoustical conditions in the theatre. Perhaps the exciting lamp filament may be sagging or the lamp may be black. Perhaps the batteries are low and need recharging.

21. Why does M-G-M ask exhibitors always to dincontinue the equalizer when playing its sound discs? The equalizer, primarily intended to decrease surface noise, tends to narrow the range of reproduction and cut out the extremely high frequencies which Metro alone attempts to obtain in its recording.

22. Why will sound, reproduced from film, sometimes fade out to a mere whisper and come back in full force to perfect synchronization? Dirty fader contact, dirty rheostat contacts, defective amplifier tubes.

23. What happens if the needle is not changed after running each record? Both the record and the reproduction suffer. The possibility of cut-overs also is increased.

A Wow!

"The Musicians' Union is spending $500,000 to stop 'debasing of musical taste by the talkies' . . . As soon as it begins to show results, the buggy painters' union is going to do something about the automobile craze, and the makers of satin petticoats are going to stop the debauchery of American Womanhood brought about by silk step-ins."—Walter Winchell in "The New York Daily Mirror."

Idea Exchange Aids M-G-M Sound Staff

24. As the sound is ahead of the picture on a sound-on-film print, how can the sound and picture get back in synchronization if several frames are cut from the film? The distance between the sound and picture on the film is nineteen frames. While this distance is being traveled, or for about three-fourths of a second, there is no synchronization. But there is synchronization after the nineteen frames have passed the sound aperture at the point where the splice was made. The sound is not ahead of the picture from a point of reproduction; it is only ahead on the print.

25. Why are exhibitors and exchanges advised not to wax sound-on-film prints? Because the laboratory has done sufficient waxing. Additional wax would be likely to spread onto the sound track, having a disastrous effect on reproduction.

26. How many frames of film pass through the projector with every revolution of a disc? Forty-three.

27. If there are a fixed number of frames to every revolution of a disc, how do words come just as fast from the outside of a record as from the inside? The inside of the record is traveling at exactly the same angular rate of speed as the outside.

28. What is the most common cause of defect in sound-on-disc prints? The most common cause is failure to replace the proper number of frames when a splice has been made.

29. If the light on the sound track is out of focus, what is the effect? Distortion, loss of high frequencies and loss of volume.

30. Will dirt in disc records cause the same trouble as dirt in the film sound track? Dirt on either disc record or sound track will cause surface noises as well as loss of volume.

31. What causes a sissing sound when words end in "s"? Poor reproduction of high frequencies.

32. What is tubbiness and what causes it? The effect of tubbiness is that of sound coming through a barrel. This may be due to recording, to the acoustical conditions of the theatre, to a bad exciting lamp, to faulty adjustment of apparatus and to various other causes.

33. What is an overload and what is its effect? It results from exceeding the range in any part of the recording or reproducing system. It is manifested by a degree of harshness and a breaking up of the sound.

Phonofilm Now Available on Narrow Gauge Film

Dr. Lee DeForest, research engineer for General Talking Pictures Corp., has developed a miniature Phonofilm for reproducing sound on 16 mm., film.

This is said to be the first time that this system has been made available for the narrow or amateur film. The total weight of the sound reproducer and projector will be less than 20 pounds. This compares with approximately 800 pounds for other portable machines using sound-on-film. DeForest has filed his patent applications and is preparing to turn out the machines in quantity for use by amateurs and commercial photographers.

Trailers as Aid to Salesmen Tried by Paramount and "U"

Hollywood—In an attempt to stimulate advance enthusiasm among sales staffs, producers now are cutting special sound trailers while big productions are being made and shipping these trailers to their branches to acquaint salesmen with highlights of the pictures concerned.

The innovation was introduced by Paramount when about a dozen special sound trailers were prepared for "The Vagabond King" and sent out on a tour of exchanges. One trailer was assigned to a certain group of exchanges and rotated on a regular schedule. Cut to about 800 feet, the trailer was shown only to exchange employees and members of the sales staff, with outsiders and exhibitors barred under strict orders.

Universal is duplicating the stunt for two productions now under way: "Paul Whiteman King of Jazz Revue" and "All Quiet On The Western Front." Six copies of an 800-foot trailer on each have been shot out to branch offices to give salesmen an advance peek of what they may expect in each production.

This method of advance showings for company sales forces could not have been established successfully during production of silent pictures, mainly because of the great chance that scenes in the advance trailer would be cut out of the finished pictures. But with sound pictures, the chances are comparatively small that certain sequences or musical numbers will not appear in the finished picture because of the compactness of the sound film script prepared previous to production and the reduced amount of cutting necessary in sound pictures as compared with silents.

Green Blames Sound For Unemployment

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Displacement of workmen by machinery, and particularly theatre musicians who have been replaced by installation of sound, were given as the reasons for existing general unemployment conditions by President Green of the American Federation of Labor at the mid-winter conference of the organization here.

"Talkie music, particularly," said Green, "has presented a situation of very grave concern. Installation of machine-made music in theatres, with the subsequent displacement of theatre musicians, has been a big blow to these artists, and perhaps it will tend to curb the development of such artists."

200 Seater Claims to Be Smallest Wired in Neb.

Clearwater, Neb.—In this town of 400 the Palace theatre with a capacity of 200 claims to be the smallest in the state showing talking pictures.

Murrel P. Simpson and William J. Asmussen, who took over the house a year ago, began the exhibition of talkies with devices of their own construction. Last month, with the aid of local capital, the operators installed Bestone equipment and remodeled the tiny auditorium. Business is fine, they report.

Swing to Sound Shows No Let-up

Jackson, Miss—"The Mighty" inaugurated sound policy of the Istrione, managed by L. C. Kramer.

Jerome, Ida.—L. M. Zug has opened his sound policy at the Rialto here.

Cambridge, Ida.—Sound pictures will make their debut in April at the Community.

Poplar, Mont.—C. Jensen is preparing installation of sound picture equipment at the Glacier.

Austin, Tex.—Two houses in this territory have reopened after a dark period for wiring. The Texas, Austin, and Jack Kaufman's O. H. Braunafel have new sound policies.

Gooding, Ida.—Sound reproducing equipment has been installed at the Schubert here.

Soledad, Cal.—Talking picture equipment is being installed at the local house which is being remodeled for the purpose.

Oakland, Cal.—Golden State circuit has remodeled its Lincoln and installed a Western Electric reproducer. R. Hendrickson is manager.

Omaha—Recent sound installations in this territory include the Queen here, Western Electric; Park, Clear Lake, Ia.; Grand Oelwein, Ia.; Western Electric; Strand, Leon, Ia.; Cee-Bee, Manson, Ia.; Howell, Howell Neb., Quality Tone; Corby, Omaha, Bestone; Lyric, Atkinson, Neb., Western Electric; Iowa (formerly the Plaza), Waterloo, Ia.

Lakewood, O.—The Lakewood is being wired for Tone-O-Graph device.

Milaca, Minn.—The Casino here has installed North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment.

Ridgely, Md.—Community has gone sound with a Tone-O-Graph installation.

Denton, Md.—Sound equipment has been installed in the Palace, via Tone-O-Graph.

Stapleton, S. I.—The Richmond is showing talking pictures, a Tone-O-Graph having been installed.

Sutton, W. Va.—Contracts have been signed for immediate installation of Tone-O-Graph sound and talking system.

Waterbury, Conn.—The Lyric is being remodeled for sound equipment. Tone-O-Graph will be installed there shortly.

Six Mile Run, Pa.—Old Home Theatre has gone talker with Tone-O-Graph installed.

Rochester, N. Y.—The Victoria, downtown house recently taken over by Samuel Tandler, has gone sound. The theatre had been closed temporarily to permit installation of Western Electric equipment.

Salt Lake City.—Earl D. Smith has installed a reproducer in the Tower.

Salt Lake City.—Sound equipment is being installed at the West High School.

Baltimore.—Princess at Eager & Bond St. is being wired for sound. North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment Corp. will install its "Baby Grand."

Big Business

Western Electric's sales for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, exceeded $400,000,000, comparing with actual sales of $287,931,936 in 1928, declares President Edgar S. Bloom, who anticipates a big increase in 1930, based on orders already on hand.

Non-Flam Screen for W. E. Houses Ready

Immediate deliveries of Raytone Flameproof sound screens are promised by Schoonmaker Equipment Co., New York, following approval of the non-inflammable screen by Electrical Research Products. Hereafter, the screen will be specified for Western Electric equipment installations. Previously another screen had been specified by company engineers. The new screen is snow-white, with a diffusive finish, said to be devoid of any reflection or shine, enabling projection of a picture without shadows or streaks and showing contrast between high and low lights. The screen is installed at the Rialto and New Beacon in New York, and has been approved by the Washington exhibitor units and fire department of the capital city.

Tone-O-Graph Agencies Named

Donald M. Eaves, Charlotte, N. C., has been appointed distributor for North Carolina, by North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment Corp. of New York. The Lone Star Film Co., Dallas, will be distributor of Tone-O-Graph products in Texas. With the appointment of Love B. Herrell, Atlanta, for the states of Tennessee, Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, North American Sound and Talking Picture Equipment Corp. has a 100 per cent. representation in the Southeast.

4,466 Houses Throughout World Wired by W. E.

Total number of Western Electric installations throughout the world is now 4,466, and of the number, 3,322 are in the United States. Forty-four countries are represented in the foreign installations.

Midnight Matinee Vogue Hits Coast and Catches On Rapidly

Los Angeles—Saturday midnight matinees, which have been operating for the past year at Grauman's Chinese to profitable business and are used in many cities all over the land, look to become regular features of several Hollywood and Los Angeles theatres in 1930.

Warners opened "Sally" at the Hollywood Theatre Saturday night on an extended run and intend to continue Saturday midnight performances indefinitely. Loew's State institutes a regular policy of Saturday midnight shows this week, using the regulation program including the Fanchon and Marco unit, plus special entertainers.

In providing the week-end owl programs, various theatres obtain stage and picture names to provide additional "draw" possibilities. Tie-ups are arranged with the producer of the picture whereby extra talent is secured gratis via contract players and others working in current pictures.

Loew's State is the Fox West Coast downtown weekly run house which books important program pictures of M-G-M and Fox. It is also the local first run for Fanchon and Marco units. It is reported that circuit officials will extend the Saturday midnight matinees to similar houses in large cities of the chain if the experiment proves a success at the State.

Hawaiian Business Groups Entering Production Field

Hollywood.—Business interests in Hawaii are getting together for the formation of a small producing company to make a series of one and two-reel sound films with various locations in the islands as backgrounds.

The purpose is to attract prospective tourists. It is reported that the tourist trade to Honolulu during the past year has not been up to expectations, and business organizations interested in the progress of the islands feel a stimulant is needed.

Wyler Peeved at "U" Over Who's to Make "The Storm"

Hollywood—When Universal started searching for a director to direct the talker remake of "The Storm," William Wyler, contract director with the organization, got decidedly peeved. Wyler, who had just finished "Hell's Heroes," figured he was entitled to a shot at "The Storm," but studio executives felt otherwise.

Although reports are broadcast that Wyler would direct "The Storm," it is known that Universal is still looking for another director to handle the assignment.

Install Ultraphone

Minneapolis—Ultraphone is continuing installations throughout this territory, reports Ted Karatz, general manager of the Company.

Carillo Film Postponed

Hollywood—Leo Carillo will remain in Australasia for an added six months, which necessitates postponement of his scheduled Tiffany production, "Senor Manana," second of his series for that company.

Resume Production

Hollywood.—Warners are resuming production of "Isle of Escape," which was stopped several months ago when Monte Blue was seriously injured. The entire cast of the picture has been assembled to complete the production.

Columbia Assigns Seitz

Hollywood.—George B. Seitz is to make another picture for Columbia, having been assigned direction of "Private Property." He recently completed "Murder on the Roof."

16 Toronto Independents Now in Buying Combine

Hanley Heads Denver Board

Denver—Samuel Hanley (Paramount) is new president of the Film Board, elected to serve for a six months' period. A. P. Archer is vice-president and Jack Drum, secretary. Arbitration board members are: J. T. Sheffield, R. J. Morrison and Henley.

Denny in the Mille Film

Hollywood—After many conflicting reports, Reginald Denny has been signed for the lead in Cecil B. De Mille's first filmusical for M-G-M, "Madame Satan," which goes into production in February. Jeanie McPherson is credited with the original story, with adaptation by Gladys Unger.

Crool

It was at the premiere of a new musical talkie and the star billed as "the voice with the soul," had just sung.

"I hear they had a double for her," said one first-nighter in the lobby.

"Nonsense," said another. "No producer would pay anyone to sing that way."—Motion Picture Magazine.

Stop Us If We're Wrong

SAMUEL GOLDWYN has returned to New York from London. While in the British capital he arranged for premiere of "Condemned" at the Tivoli. The producer now is mapping plans for Ronald Colman's next picture, "Raffles," as well as conferring with Florenz Ziegfeld on "Whoopee," which will be the initial Ziegfeld-Goldwyn picture.

Bad Taste

"Girls to hire for the out-of-town buyer" is the risque line being used in copy for "Party Girl," Tiffany picture current at the Gaiety, New York. "See the road to din, sin and gin" is one of the catchlines being used to sell the picture.

Hart's New Role

William S. Hart, old-time strong and silent western hero, has undergone a complete transformation, according to "Motion Picture Magazine." If ever any one person was the embodiment of everything silent on the screen, Hart was that, reads the screen monthly. He was the most noiseless hero in the completely noiseless era of the films. Compared to William S., a clam is a side-show barker. And now, in contrast, William S. has reversed himself in his work by entering into radio broadcasting. He has undertaken to win a new public and revive an old one by his voice alone. Today his fans may not see him saying good-bye to his old hoss, but they can hear him, and perhaps the hoss whinnying tearfully in return. This, through the aid of an animal impersonator.

Exhibitor Named Speaker

Quebec City—T. D. Bouchard, St. Hyacinthe exhibitor, has been named speaker of the Quebec legislature.

Wiring French "White House"

Paris.—Because his presence at theaters is supposed to be attended with ceremony, President Doumergue rarely goes, and so is having the Elysee Palace wired for sound. This, it is said, will obviate any embarrassment, which attendance at theatres showing American talkers might occasion, in view of his lack of patronage at the opera and Comedie Francaise.

Academy Running Technical Bureau of Producers' Ass'n

Hollywood—Technical bureau of the Ass'n of M. P. Producers has been transferred to the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences, with its extended activities to be administered by the board of directors with the present joint committee from the producers' and technicians' branches of the Academy as nucleus.

This committee is now sponsoring acoustic classification of set materials, the development of devices to silence the camera, and the study of improved lighting for sound pictures. Irving G. Thalberg, is chairman of the committee, which includes Sol Wurtzel, M. C. Levee, Fred W. Beetson, Walter Stern, Nugent H. Slaughter, H. Keith Weeks, William Sistrom, H. G. Knox, Frederick M. Sammis, J. T. Reed, J. A. Ball, Gerald F Rackett, F. E. Pelton, Frank Woods, and Lester Cowan

Formal transfer of the technical bureau followed the last meeting of the board of the Ass'n of M. P. Producers, Inc., at which an initial appropriation of $15,000 a year was assigned towards the support of the Academy's augmented technical program.

A research laboratory is not contemplated in the Academy's plans, which will emphasize correlation of the work of the various present laboratories for maximum efficiency on problems facing the industry generally or common to a number of studios. Standardization of materials and non-competitive processes will be furthered and the studios will be kept in direct touch with technical improvements affecting the industry.

Camera and projector apertures were recently standardized through the Academy. Specifications will be announced in the near future for the standardization of the positive prints used by theatres. The school in Fundamentals of Sound Recording and Reproduction for Motion Pictures recently conducted for employees of 17 studios will be continued and similar educational projects undertaken for other branches of the industry. Composed of 400 of the principal actors, directors, producers, technicians, and writers, the Academy is a non-profit service organization.

Megley came to the coast for the RKO circuit six months ago to stage the weekly change vaudeville revues for the local RKO theatre.

Film Not Up to Snuff, "U" Orders a Complete Remake

Hollywood—After finishing "The College Racketeer," Universal decided the picture was not up to snuff and called for a remake.

A new story was written by Matt Taylor and Charles Webb, and Lew Collins assigned to direct the second version. James Murray, Kathryn Crawford and Edward Hearn were the only members of the first cast retained with the new players, including Carl Stockdale, Lee Moran and Richard Carlyle. Only a few hundred feet of film from the first version were retained for the second.

Good Programmer, Say N. Y. Reviewers of New Dix Film

Richard Dix's first talker, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," gets a good break from New York critics. There is general agreement that the picture is a diverting programmer, but does not rate a Broadway showing at the Carroll, where it is now playing, at $2 top. Say the reviewers, in boiled down comment:

American—An excellent film version of George Cohan's play. . . .

Daily Mirror—Good program movie, but never a "special."

Evening Journal— . . . grand entertainment. While it's not strong enough for a two-a-day, the picture is better-than-average program fare.

Evening World— . . . Dix seems to have hit upon a screen vehicle more nearly suited to his distinctive talents than anything in which he has been seen in recent years.

Graphic— . . . judged as a program picture is excellent entertainment, carrying a few thrills and many laughs.

Herald-Tribune— . . . direction is smooth . . . and the production . . . shrewd and sprightly. . . .

Morning Telegraph— . . . Dix . . . gets away to a slow start in his first talking picture . . . play simply does not adapt itself to sound screen interpretation.

Sun— . . . Dix . . . has now become an excellent farceur . . . this talkie is an excellent transcription. . . .

Times— . . . Dix . . . gives an agile and pleasing performance . . . quite exciting, with a fair fund of merriment.

World— . . . makes second-rate movie material . . . the film may, and probably will, offer its moments of dramatic excitement.

"Good, but not at $2," is MOTION PICTURE NEWS' analysis of the new Dix picture, reviewed in the issue of January 4.

Benny Rubin Negotiating Deal to Star for Tiffany

Hollywood.—Benny Rubin is finishing his one-year contract with M-G-M and may sign with Tiffany to star in a series of feature talker comedies. Rubin is discussing terms and conditions for a new term contract with M-G-M, but in the event that the comedian and company cannot get together, he will accept the Tiffany proposition. Tiffany would star Rubin in "Sunny Days," an original filmusical by A. P. Younger as his first if he makes the switch.

Smart Peepuls

Paris—The city council passed an ordinance taxing producers and newsreel trucks 50 francs for every subject filmed in the city streets or other public places. Apparently they failed to realize that every shot included in films, newsreels, especially, has a pronounced publicity value with tourists.

"Nanette" Hailed As Real Entertainment in New York

There is a load of entertainment in "No, No Nanette," according to the preponderance of critical opinion among New York reviewers. Several, including Richard Watts of the Herald-Tribune, think some of the charm of the stage play has been lost. Watts calls the picture "pretty depressing" and, on the other hand, Regina Crewe, in the American, describes the picture as "one of the few naturals of the season."

A cross-section of their opinions, condensed but embracing the highlights, follows:

American— . . . one of the few naturals of the season for those who want to laugh loud and long. Of all transposed stage plays this is the best.

Daily Mirror—A tuneful, entertaining picture, distinguished by the good comedy work of Lucien Littlefield, Zasu Pitts and Louise Fazenda.

Daily News— . . . enough to bring a giggle and a gasp of appreciation from even the severest cinema follower . . . bright, cheery and, of course, tuneful and danceful. . . .

Evening World—You'll have an enjoyable time—but for complete enjoyment you'll have to fight against becoming too discriminating as to plot, . . . a deeply diverting comedy. . . .

Herald-Tribune— . . . the affair was pretty depressing.

Post— . . . sequences wherein the full regalia of a fabulous musical show is reproduced on a wide screen and in Technicolor are as effective in their way as anything so far turned out of Hollywood. The pity is that one has to be led up to them through so much idiocy.

Sun—Thanks greatly to the farce sense of the comedy quartet . . . the picture is not dulled by the richness of its backgrounds . . . provides a diverting evening.

Telegram— . . . has lost much of its original charm. . . .

Times— . . . proves to be quite a merry affair. . . .

World— . . . hits the top rank of current musical films. . . .

"A fine all-around show," was MOTION PICTURE NEWS' verdict of "No, No Nanette." Review appeared January 11.

Three of M-G-M's Big Guns Spotted in for L. A. Runs

Hollywood—Three M-G-M productions will be spotted in the trio of Fox West Coast long run houses this month. "The Rogue's Song" plays Grauman's Chinese; Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie" opened Jan. 17th at the Fox Criterion, while Ramon Novarro in "Devil May Care" goes into the Fox Carthay Circle on Jan. 29.

"The Rogue's Song" and "Devil May Care" runs will be on the regular house policies of twice daily at $1.50 top. "Anna Christie" will run on a continuous policy. All three will open with special $5 premieres.

Questioned In Taylor Probe

Los Angeles—Otis Hefner, ex-convict, who claims knowledge of the Taylor murder mystery, was brought here this week for questioning.

Publix Wins

Middletown, O.—Publix was victor in the four-cornered battle for the lease on the new $600,000 house to be built as part of an apartment building on Broad St. It will seat 1,800. When a Cincinnati building firm announced bids for construction, scouts for RKO, Schine, Fox and Publix rushed in with proposals for a leasehold.

Harding Praised; Film Called So-So

Ann Harding and the cast of "Her Private Affair" (Pathe) come in for praise, but New York critics express contradictory opinions of the entertainment quality of the offering presented at the Colony. Summaries of the viewpoint of 11 reviewers follow:

Daily Mirror—Fairly entertaining.

Daily News—A dandy, finely directed program picture.

Evening Journal— . . . good entertainment due more to its cast and treatment than to the plot itself. . . .

Evening World— . . . a positive gem.

Graphic— . . . a contradictory piece of celluloid entertainment.

Herald-Tribune— . . . appears to be another antique product taken off the shelf and made into a talkie. . . Ann Harding gives an exceptionally good performance.

Post—Except for the last 15 minutes or so . . . absorbing, well written and effectively worked-out melodrama. . . .

Telegram— . . . a really first-rate talking picture. . . .

Times—While the photoplay is irrational at times, it is nevertheless a penetrating drama and displays intelligence in most instances.

World—Ann Harding gives one of the finest performances this week . . . which I have seen in any audible motion picture. . . . As drama, the play is labored and obvious. . . .

Critics Differ on New Haines Film

Opinions of ten New York newspaper critics vary on William Haines' new talker, "Navy Blues" (M-G-M), some feeling it good entertainment, others branding it commonplace and silly. Viewpoints generally agreed, however, that the film is funny. Their opinions, tersely told, follow:

Daily Mirror—Rowdy and gentle, touching and laughful, this is a dandy little movie.

Daily News— . . . just a little picture, a wholly unimportant one, which, nevertheless, offers a good share of laughs. . . .

Evening World— . . . a highly amusing comedy.

Herald-Tribune— . . . a thoroughly commonplace effort.

Post— . . . one of the most successful as a terrifying, two-fisted amusement in which the star has appeared.

Morning Telegraph— . . . Haines . . . is little better or worse than in his former and silent pictures. . . .

Sun— . . . An unpretentious little slapstick comedy romance. . . .

Telegram—If you enjoy the type of portrayals Mr. Haines insists on giving, you will find enough laughs . . . to keep you fairly well amused.

Times— . . . silly, cumbersome affair.

World— . . . not funny.

"'Navy Blues' will rate as a good comedy," said MOTION PICTURE NEWS in reviewing the Haines picture on November 2, "and will do fine business."

Board's Challenge on Boner By Chase Remains Unanswered

Canon William Sheafe Chase, reformer and advocate of Federal censorship, has refused, to date, to accept a challenge of statements charging the National Board of Review with creating the impression that it is pretending to have censorship powers by Federal authority. The challenge followed an address by Chase, made at a film session held by the Institute of Statesmanship at Rollins College, Florida, where the canon, by direct statement, tried to discredit the board as "a socially minded group." He is charged with an attempt to make it appear as if the board was directly identified with the industry, this in view of the generally-understood fact that the National Board has been on unfriendly terms with important factors in the business for some time. The denial of Chase's allegations was addressed to Hamilton Holt, chairman of the Florida institute.

Canon Wm. Chase, the board pointed out, made certain statements which "tend to create a false impression of the National Board and its work and questions the integrity of its members." He is quoted as saying that "through use of the words 'passed by the National Board of Censors' they 'pretend to have a censorship of all films by a national authority' and that the obvious 'dishonesty' of this label they were later persuaded to change to 'passed by the National Board of Review' without ever changing the 'nation-wide impression that Federal authority was doing the reviewing.' We are aware that Canon Chase has long sought, by innuendo and direct statement to discredit the National Board of Review as a socially minded group, opposed to his efforts and to all efforts to establish Federal censorship of pictures.

Board Challenged Chase in 1926

"Representatives of the National Board took occasion to challenge these statements of Canon Chase before the committee on education of the House of Representatives in April, 1926, when the Swoope and Upshaw bills to create Federal censorship of pictures, both of which bills Canon Chase sponsored, were under hearing by that committee. Canon Chase at that time publicly withdrew certain statements he had made before the committee regarding the board and its work. At that time, a full statement regarding the organization history, nature and work of the board was read into the record of the hearing by the National Board's representative and is available through that record for examination. * * *"

"* * * It is independent of the motion picture industry, has never been the servant of the industry and is and has been entirely unconnected with any agency created by the industry. No one is qualified for membership on the National Board who is connected with the motion picture industry. * * *

"* * * To charge that this group of reviewers and that the National Board as a whole should at any time have been engaged in seeking to create the 'nation-wide impression that Federal authority was doing the reviewing' or that the label placed on films reviewed by the board and representing the impartial judgment of its members, read 'the National Board of Censorship' as in the beginning or 'the National Board of Review,' as it does now and has for many years, should be used 'dishonestly' * * * is to libel the motives and integrity of the many prominent and socially-minded people actively engaged in performing the work of the board. We are taking this opportunity to again challenge Canon Chase's remarks regarding this organization. * * *"

DeWees Buys Lease On Pantages In Vancouver

Vancouver.—The leasehold interest of the Pantages has been sold for $125,000 to D. P. De Wees, well-known exhibitor in British Columbia and operator of the Strand.

H. V. Sharples, of the Joe Toplitzsky Co., Los Angeles, handled the deal. The Toplitzsky Co. recently sold the Pantages chain in the United States and some in Canada to R-K-O with the exception of those in Los Angeles and Fresno which were sold to Warners.

Previous to the house going dark last summer it was managed by Lloyd Pantages.

U. A. Switches Sales Force

D. J. McNerney has been appointed manager of United Artists' San Francisco office. He was transferred from Seattle. H. Harden, office manager for McNerney, is now filling the same post and also as exchange head at Seattle.

Fred Lind is now handling sales in northern and central Washington and Idaho, and Fred Talbot is handling sales for southern Washington and Oregon.

New Ottawa Policy

Ottawa.—A policy of special runs has been adopted by Ray Tubman of the Imperial starting with "Glorifying the American Girl." The Imperial is said to have been in the "red" with an assortment of split-week first and second runs.

Toomey Opposite Brent

Hollywood—Evelyn Brent and Regis Toomey will be featured by Columbia in "Framed," a crook melodramatic talker. Maurice Black and William Holden are in the support.

Changes "Firewalker" Title

Hollywood—"Girl of the Port" has been selected as new title of RKO's "The Firewalker," recently completed, with Bert Glennon directing.

Kimberley Here

Paul Kimberley, managing director of National Screen Service, Inc., of England, is in New York from London.

Impatient Bandit Foiled

St. Louis.—His impatience prevented an unknown bandit from obtaining receipts of Shaw here, for he departed with just $4 after binding the negro porter and a chauffeur, determining he could not wait for the tardy manager.

Women's Clubs Out To Cut Down Danville Billboards

Danville, Va.—An appeal asking that placing of billboards on the fringes of the city be stopped has been made to the city council by the Women's Club.

Vaudeville Dropped

Rochester, N. Y.—After several weeks of vaudeville and film, Fay's downtown house, seating 1,200, has dropped stage shows for straight sound films. The house also shaved matinee prices to 15 cents for children and 25 and 35 cents for adults.

High and Low Along Music Row

TAKE off your hats, caps, derbies, or whatever you may use to keep your head warm, to Joe Burke, who draws his stipend from Warner Bros. "Why?" sez you. "Because," sez we, "this lad's songs have led in popularity and sales for thirty-one weeks during the past year. Yeh, there's fifty-two of 'em in a year. Joe's "Carolina Moon," which Joe Morris took a chance on, was the top seller for nineteen weeks. His "Tip-Toe Thru The Tulips" from "Gold Diggers of Broadway," headed the best-seller list for the last twelve weeks in 1929 and to date is still firmly entrenched there. He is being closely pressed by a fellow named Joe Burke (the same guy), whose "Painting The Clouds With Sunshine" has held second place for the past twelve weeks." Good boy, Joe.

* * *

JOE DAVIS, head of the Triangle Music Co., had nothing to do the other day so he hied himself to Station WOR and faced the "mike" for a half hour. It might have been because of the songs, but anyhow he'll be heard every Monday morning over the same station. "Blue Turning Grey Over You" is one of his latest publications and looks good.

HANDMAN, KENT & GOODMAN have added three new numbers to their catalogue. They are "Without My Girl," "What A Perfect Night for Love" and "Collegiate Love." "Melancholy," which Lou Handman wrote, still heads the catalogue and has left the firm far from being that way.

* * *

GEORGE K. ARTHUR, screen comedian, is in town doing a wee bit of recording for Brunswick. One of the songs, "Why Leave Me?" is his own composition.

* * *

HAROLD SPINA, staff writer for Green & Stept, Inc., was presented with a pair of future songwriters by the missus. The firm didn't have to send him a card or such. They merely presented him with a copy of their latest song-hit, "Congratulations."

* * *

BELIEVE this or not, Mr. Ripley, but Elmer McDonald, manager of Witmark's St. Louis office, knows 2,000 popular songs that have appeared during the past twenty years and can sing any of them on a second's notice. He has sung over no less than 276 radio stations throughout the country and states that ballads are most frequently requested such as "That Wonderful Mother of Mine," "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery Of Life."

F. D. LONG, of Wichita, Kansas, claims to have discovered a "singing mouse." His friends stand ready to support his statements. If the aforementioned mouse should decide to come to New York and do a little song-plugging for some of the music firms here, his future is assured.

PINCUS

Sound for Battleship

Sound equipment is being installed aboard the U. S. battleship Texas, the first of America's fighting ships to be wired.

Imagine!

Take it from Fannie Brice, who vows that she heard it while in a Hollywood studio. They were making a picture about the Civil War when the head of the firm, a dialectician, ankled on the set. Spying the actor impersonating General Grant, he growled: "I dunt vant dat man mit de beard in dis picture!"

"But," butted the director, "we've searched all over for someone who resembled General Grant and he's the best likeness we could get!"

"I dun't vant no beards in mine pictures!" cried the magnate, "and not unly cant HE wear one, but even Napoleon couldnt."—"The New York Mirror."

18 Song Writers Under Contract to 1st Nat'l

Eighteen composers and lyric writers are now under contract to work on First National musical productions. Jerome Kern and Otto A. Harbach are one team and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, is teamed with Sigmund Romberg. This quartette leaves soon for the Coast. Already at work in the First National studios are Eddie Ward, Al Bryan, Harry Akst, Grant Clarke, Con Conrad, Archie Gottler, Sidney Mitchell, Al Dubin, Joe Burke, M. Jerome, Harold Berg, and the trio of Michael, Clery, Ned Washington and Herb Magidson.

Original Operettas to be Written by Straus

Oscar Straus, Viennese composer now en route to the United States, will compose original operettas for Vitaphone, states Harry M. Warner. The composer is slated to arrive in New York Jan. 24 and then proceed to Hollywood.

Arthur Going Abroad

George K. Arthur is in New York appearing in vaudeville and making records for Brunswick. One of the songs being recorded is titled "Why Leave Me?" which was written by Arthur and will be one of the numbers sung when he broadcasts over NBC next week. He is scheduled to go to Europe to make a picture with Adolphe Menjou and return to the Coast about Feb. 25.

Witmark Slashes Prices

M. Witmark & Sons, music publishers controlled by Warners, have reduced prices on its "Black and White Series," which include the Victor Herbert songs. The cut is approximately ten percent. Last month, Witmark reduced prices on all other music classifications.

Pollack on Sales Tour

Bernard Pollack, general sales manager for M. Witmark & Sons, is on an extended tour which will take him as far west as the coast. He will visit every branch office in the organization.

Marlo Promoted

George Marlo, for the past three years assistant professional manager for DeSylva, Brown & Henderson, has been promoted and is now in charge of the mechanical department.

Davis, Coots & Engel Deny Reports They Are to Close

Harry Engel, president of Davis, Coots & Engel, Inc., denies reports his firm is to close, and brands persistent rumors to that effect as "absolutely groundless." "It's ridiculous to say the least," Engel continues, "especially when we are publishers of the music of 'Sons O' Guns', the Broadway musical comedy which is showing weekly gross of over $50,000. Warners have an interest in the firm, but the controlling interest is held by J. Fred Coots, Benny Davis and myself. We are now negotiating deals with two other Broadway producers and are to supply songs for picture interests."

Three new songs which have been added to the catalogue are "Blue Eyes Get Red Red Ready for Love," written by Al Hoffman and Charles O'Flynn; "You Can't Stop Me from Falling In Love With You," and "He's Made to Order for Me," both written by Coots and Benny Davis. Arthur Behim is professional manager for the firm.

Effort Again to Be Made to Levy Canada Music "Tax"

Ottawa—Another effort to revise the Copyright Act to enable theatres to be licensed to show copyrighted musical selections will be made at the legislative session which opens here Feb. 20. The subject has been introduced twice previously, but never has reached a vote. Some time ago, the Canadian Performing Right Society lost its case before the Privy Council in London in an attempt to collect royalties from Canadian theatres.

Witmark in New Offices

M. Witmark & Sons will move into new offices in the Cunningham building at Broadway between 51st and 52nd Sts, New York, on Tuesday. The new offices have 10,000 square feet of space in which will be fifteen piano rooms, a radio and concert bureau and a special band and orchestra salon. The opening marks the company's forty-fifth year of active connection in the music industry.

Pinkard Writing Score

Maceo Pinkard, writer of "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Mammy," "Lila" and others, is doing the musical scores for "Here 'Tis Honey," first all-colored musical comedy since "Shuffle Along" and "Liza," the latter containing his scores. The book is by Clifford McGuinnes and will be staged by Leonard Harper, who staged "Hot Chocolates."

What Could They Say?

Hollywood.—Someone told Snitz Edwards there was a part open in a picture at Paramount that was right up his alley. Edwards lost no time in getting over to the studio, but was informed that he was not the type. They needed a big financier and business leader and audiences would not believe a man of his stature could possibly be a financial giant.

After listening to this line of conversation, Edwards broke in with the remark, "I'm the same size as Adolph Zukor—and he's no flop."

Then Edwards walked out.

Opinions On Pictures

Happy Days

(Fox—All Dialogue)

A Load of Entertainment

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

THEY corralled the entire Fox lot, tied it into a revue with a cleverly concocted yarn revolving around a benefit performance for a Southern colonel old-fashioned enough to stick to his show boat and turned out a picture that carries a carload of entertainment.

"Happy Days" is a glorified minstrel show with some numbers that are just plain average, some that are very good, but a sum total of pleasing divertissement that will send the picture over with audiences anywhere and some to spare. One of the highlights is a charming number by Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, but in the picture you get glimpses of such figures as Will Rogers, Willie Collier, Walter Catlett, Ann Pennington, Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe, Dixie Lee, Sharon Lynn, Frank Richardson, Marjorie White, Dick Keene, Farrell MacDonald, Paul Page and some more which space prevents listing. A gilt-edged line-up of entertainers against a rich production background aided by a number of swell song hits. It's in the bag. Recorded by Western Electric.

If you must use shorts, make 'em dramatic.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Story by Sidney Landfield. Directed by Benjamin Stoloff. Dialogue by Edwin Burke. Staged by Walter Catlett. Lyrics and music by Gilbert and Baer; Conrad, Mitchell and Gottler; James E. Hanley, James Brockman, Harry Stoddard and Marcy Klauber. Dances staged by Earl Lindsay. Photographed by Lucien Andriot and John Schmitz. Length, 7,526 feet. Running time, 1 hour and 30 mins. Release date not set.

The Ship From Shanghai

(M-G-M—All Dialogue)

Potent Sea Melodrama

(Reviewed by Edwin Schallert)

A STORM-DRIVEN oceanic thriller — the kind that makes you feel the lash of the wind and wave—that is "The Ship from Shanghai." It is a melodrama with a final psychological twist.

A lot of typical de Mille society folk set out on a cruise with a crew that is badly selected. A short distance and the steward exhibits a Bolshevik streak. He stirs the men to revolt. A storm intervenes before the plan is carried forward, and when it is over the boat is a drifting hulk. The society folk forget their fine manners, but not their dignity, and when the steward starts his rampaging they attempt to put him in his place.

Because he has a complex for being the upper dog instead of the underdog, he doesn't stay put for long. He becomes master and starts to demand a toll of love and romance. It is not long before things are popping wild, but it is the girl herself who by playing on his mad complexes sends him to his doom. Louis Wolheim as the steward and Kay Johnson as the heroine are the virtual stars.

Comedy relief is necessary in this case as story is heavy.

Produced and distributed by M-G-M. Dramatized by Dale Collins from the novel, "Ordeal," by John Howard Lawson. Directed by Charles Brabin. Photographed by Ira Morgan. Length, 6,225 feet. Running time, 1 hr. 10 min. Release date, Jan. 31, 1930.

Call of the Circus

(Burr Enterprises—All Talking)

Not So Hot, Mostly Not

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

THERE is a lot of mawkish sentiment, laid on thick and plenty of dull moments in this drama of the circus, central characters of which are trying to shake off the call of the sawdust ring and the big top. The characters alienate the spectators' sympathy and then strive to get it back through a series of incidents which by the time the final clinch is reached, develops into near burlesque. It's pretty tedious stuff, although the picture has moments when it gets over some comedy and heart interest.

Bushman is cast as a retired clown, who has become a wanderer, and the main story is told by means of a flashback on what had taken place in his life. He had married a circus woman, who engineered the match to get a home for herself and son. The husband falls in love with a girl he has saved, and she in turn falls in love with the son, called back from the circus by his mother. The old circus wagon has a habit of turning up just when it is needed to save the situation, but that final appearance is a laugh. The acting is good, although the action gets cumbersome at times.

After the Fog

(Beacon Pictures)

Just a Fair Talker

ALTHOUGH given some good production values, this is just a fair talker. Mary Philbin hasn't much to do, except appear unhappy which she does very well, the whole story revolving around a mistaken marriage to a fast-stepping young scion of wealth. There are some weepy and far-fetched bits, but otherwise the story follows a fairly well-beaten track.

This has a good cast, which gets over the flimsy story with good interest. There are some good sets and some fine atmosphere. It's about the old-fashioned daughter of a lighthouse keeper, who marries a ne'er do well. Her father is an unrelenting old hardshell, who can't get over the fact that she married against his will.

There is good dialogue in this, plus some fairly good direction, so it should get over as a fair program picture. It compares favorably with the general run of Philbin pictures, but is not in any way outstanding.

Use musicals and a strong comedy with this.

Her Unborn Child

(Windsor—All Dialogue)

Censorable; Be Careful

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

THE title of itself is sufficient to convey an idea of what it is all about. The daughter of a highly respectable family gets into trouble Of course, she blames it all on love and maybe she was right. At any rate, the baby is on the way. The boy apparently completely under the thumb of his aunt who proves to be his mother as the story unfolds, balks at marriage because he believes himself nameless. Efforts to inveigle a girl into an operation are thwarted by the family doctor. When the boy discovers who he really is, he offers to marry the girl. The girl finally accepts him.

Carries all the earmarks of censorable material. Certainly it is dubious entertainment, particularly for theatres that cater to family trade. Box-office, yes—but of the sensation-seeking variety. Think it over before you jump.

Produced and distributed by Windsor. Story based on stage play by Howard McKent Barnes. Directed by Albert Ray. Scenario by Frederic and Fanny Hatton. Photographed by Tom Molloy, Irving Browning, Buddy Harris. Length, 7609 feet. Running time, 1 hour, 24 mins. Release date, Jan. 10, 1930.

Let's Go Places

(Fox—All Dialogue)

Pleasant Enough

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

NARRATING how young aspirants with voices surmount the Hollywood wall and become figures of importance in the talkers. It makes nice entertainment. No excitement creator, but pleasant stuff.

Joseph Wagstaff is the boy who assumes the title of Paul DuBonnet, meets Lola Lane on the train coast-bound, finds himself mistaken for the real DuBonnet, an operatic tenor and makes good. The story is pretty slim and usually skiddy, but the diverting antics of Walter Catlett, as the great Hollywood director, and the rather infectious foolery of Frank Richardson, as the young hopeful's manager, do much for the proceedings. The musical numbers are catchy, if not memorable.

Miss Lane hasn't much to do and the same goes for the rest of the cast, but the zip is there and puts the picture over.

Dramatic shorts as contrast suggested.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Directed by Frank Strayer. Scenario and dialogue by William K. Wells. Rampant Age

(Continental—All Dialogue)

Fair Program

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

MODERN youth, this picture would have you believe, devotes its time to one party after another, most of them developing into out and out drinking bouts. The picture is of the flaming youth type, of which there has been a steady supply of late. It gets over some fine comedy bits, thanks to the work of Eddie Borden, who walks away with the picture. This is good light material, and hasn't anything objectionable from the censor angle. It's good entertainment and has sufficient comedy to carry it. The plot is rather thin, but doesn't lag, after it gets under way. The picture is recorded by RCA-Photophone.

The story concerns a jazz mad youth, who insists upon having his fling and then gets peeved when the girl friend adopts a similar course.

This has selling points from the jazz mad youth angle which can be made the basis for a drive to obtain viewpoints on modern youth. If you don't make too many promises it will get over as a satisfactory program offering. Play up Eddie Borden, who may be expected to be heard from.

This can best be used to advantage with one or two dramatic shorts.

Man from the Restaurant

(Amkino—Silent)

Forget It

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

THE Russian Front is still at it. This time it is propaganda besprinkled with paprika and food, but no matter how you disguise it, propaganda it is.

The hero, in this opus, is a waiter in a capitalistic restaurant—even eating places were that way before the revolution. He's stepped on, browbeaten by generals and war profiteers. Even his daughter who later gets a job as one of the violinists in the restaurant is submitted to indignities only to be saved in the end by her stalwart lover who knocks the stuffings—complete—out of the profiteer who tries to ruin her. In this, you get an idea of how Soviet producers handle a love story. It's not much. Vindication for the working masses, we suppose, is to be written into the beating inflicted on the profiteer who symbolizes the plutocrats—one can't be too sure.

American audiences aren't very strong for propaganda with their entertainment, in any form, even though it is sugar-coated, but may regard it as study of Russia before the Revolution. If they would, it would have a chance to get by as theatre fare.

At any rate, don't worry about this. Remember to forget it and you've done exactly the proper thing.

The best shorts in the world won't help.

Nice Assortment of Shorts This Week; No Highlights

The Duke of Dublin

(Paramount-Christie—2 Reels)

It's There

THIS is Charley Murray's show. Here you have him playing the part of an Irish pick-and-shovel artist who falls heir to a million dollars. He goes in for real estate, buys a big apartment building and finds himself messed up in a party which ends when the girl involved shunts him into a siding in order to escape her husband. The household pet dog forces Charley out of the window. Between him and the ground six floors below is a lowly telephone wire. He phones the operator and finally gets his wife . . . all awhile in suspended animation. A very clever gag. It makes the picture the funny comedy it is. Time, 18 mins.

Fine short for any bill particularly if feature is heavy.

"The Iron Man"

(Pathe-Sound-Cartoon—1 Reel)

Good Sound Cartoon

FEW in the 1929-30 "Aesop Fable" sound cartoon series equal "The Iron Man," which has nearly everything needed in a short of the pen-and-ink variety. Again music is the chief comedy attraction, creating many laughs when tied up with the antics of the cartoon characters.

A good slapstick, or a short dramatic number will go well with this.

The Farmer's Wife

(Allied—Silent)

Lightweight Entertainment

THERE isn't much plot to this English comedy which concerns the marital aspirations of a wealthy and conceited farmer. The old boy sets out to give the eligibles of the neighborhood a great break, only to find that they do not share his views on what a great catch he is. Finally, he comes back home to find that a servant girl offers all of the attributes in a mate that he is seeking. This, necessarily, moves slowly due to the nature of its theme. There is plenty of excess footage, which generous trimming could eliminate.

The picture has some beautiful outdoor settings and whimsical characterizations, but otherwise doesn't offer much. The title hardly contributes anything so far as box-office draw is concerned. A few comedy touches aid in pepping up the picture.

The acting is acceptable, even though cumbersome, but the story material is so thin that the patron is away ahead of the footage in doping out how it will all end. There are no names which have any box office significance so far as America is concerned.

Silent houses catering to an arty clientele can get by with this, but it doesn't call for anything in the way of promises. It lacks action, so should be played with a stronger-than-usual comedy or a line-up of dramatic shorts.

Needs strong supporting bill.

Produced by British International. Released by Alfred Feature Film Distributors. Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. From play by Eden Phillpotts. Editor, Arthur Kutner. Photographer, not listed. Footage, 6,845 feet. Release date, Jan. 4, 1930. Length, seven reels.

Scrappily Married

(Paramount-Christie—2 Reels)

Bright—In Spots Only

RONEY is the mollycoddle husband and Gertrude his dissatisfied young wife. Wife is all upset because hubby failed to remember her birthday with a gift. Across the hall, the philandering husband of a shrewish wife palms off on Roney a gift intended for a sweetie. Gertrude finds it and accepts the present as an expression of her husband's good intentions. Not so much. Carries a few laughs, but they are far apart. Directed by A. Leslie Pearce. Running time, 20 mins.

Give it plenty of support. It needs it.

"In the Park"

(Pathe-Sound-Topics—1 Reel)

Better Than Predecessors

VAN BEUREN again uses the ventriloquist-dummy gag to unravel comedy in newspaper columns, turning out a "Topics of the Day" talking number which is, by far, an improvement over others in the current series. The sound is good and the material will get many laughs.

A good number to include on a bill requiring light comedy relief.

"Post of Honor"

(Universal—Silent—2 Reels)

Typical Western

HARD riding highlights the latest in the Bobbie Nelson series, directed by Jack Nelson, who puts his cast effectively through the paces of a Western story, which is meat for those who feed on blood-and-sand material. Garth, a renegade, forces his attentions on Margery Elsom and that gives Eagle Harden, a broad-chested trader hero the chance to prove his worth, aided by Margery's little brother, Sammy.

This short on a bill with a good comedy two-reeler will make feature support.

"At the End of the Road"

(Advance Trailer—Sound, 1 Reel)

Good Singing Short

ETHEL WATERS signs the popular number, "The End of the Road," a series of animated scenes supplying the backgrounds with the words flashed on the screen. It's a well-done and a light subject that will help any kind of bill. Particularly, if you're going to play M-G-M's "Hallelujah," this will serve as a good plug for that feature, although it stands on its own merit. Running time, 5 minutes.

Balances nicely with feature and comedy.

"Make It Sappy"

(Universal—Silent—2 Reels)

Lots of Laughter

SID SAYLOR "makes it sappy" all right, creating a basketful of laughs in a story burlesquing a modern-day hero—the newsreel cameraman. Sid has a tough time catching the wedding of the big fight champion, but finally fills his box with enough stuff to worry the fighter, who has signed a contract with a film company for exclusive shots of the party. In his excitement to bring the material to headquarters, Sid drops the camera in a lake, ruining the film. Several shots with Sid on top of a tall steel structure provide thrills.

Enough comedy in this for your bill. Get a heavy short for contrast.

Ad Tips—Names of Chatterton and Brook should be played up. Use head cuts in advertisements and billing and use the line: "A smart sophisticated romance of a society widow vs. three men." Some tie-ups that can be arranged are letters spelling names of stars placed in classified ads of your local newspapers with pass given the winners; a question contest of "Why Did The Laughing Lady Laugh" When Did You Laugh Your Heartiest?" contest. Audience appeal is fine for all who like a society comedy drama that is superbly acted and directed. Did fine here.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l M'g'r, Loew's Century, Baltimore.

Lone Star Ranger (Fox)

PORTLAND, ORE.—Fox Broadway 1,912 25c-60c. 7 days. Other attractions: Fox Movietone News, Roy Devaney at Wurlitzer, Fanchon & Marco's "Black & Gold Idea," including the Kemmys, Arnold Grazer plus Sam Jack Kaufman and novelty numbers by band. Weather, Snow-cold. Opposition: "Sally," "Vagabond Lover," "Sunny Side Up," "Sacred Flame," "The Aviator," Rating 120%.

Love Parade (Par.)

OMAHA.—Paramount (2,900), 25c-60c. 7 days. Other attractions: Senator Murphy with Publix "Farmyard Florics" unit, Paramount News, orchestra and organ. Weather: cold. Opposition: "New York Nights," "Paris," "They Had to See Paris," "Sacred Flame." Rating, 150%.

SALT LAKE CITY—Paramount (1,400), 15c-50c, 14 days. Other attractions, sound news. Weather, unsettled. Opposition, "Romance of the Rio Grande," "Second Choice," "First Command." Rating, 125% (2nd week).

Ad Tips—Omaha Bee-News shoe fund sold picture with a two week's radio campaign. Star's name is now a real draw here and picture has all the color and romance necessary to do big business. Packed the house at a midnight preview. Audience appeal, general.—Charles Pincus, M'g'r, Paramount, Omaha.

Marriage Playground (Par.)

HOUSTON—Metropolitan (2,512), 25c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions, Publix stage show, "Let's Go," led by Lou Forbes, master of ceremonies; Pathe Sound News, and Taylor Holmes comedy, organ specialty and orchestra overture. Weather, fair and warm. Opposition, "Condemned," "It's A Great Life," and "Romance of Rio Grande." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Play up spicy theme of jazz-mad parents, changing mates in midstream, and in lesser vein the romance of 17-year-old Judy. Mary Brian and Frederic March, Kay Francis and Lilyan Tashman should all be billed in caps. The kids also, will draw patronage, especially in small towns. Appeal is to all classes and ages.—E. E. Collins, Mgr., Metropolitan, Houston.

Mexicali Rose (Col.)

BALTIMORE.—Hippodrome (2,500), 6 days, 20c-60c. Other attractions: "Fifty Miles From Broadway," (Pathe all-talking comedy), Pathe Sound News, Bert Smith Players in "Nighty Night," with chorus and acts, orchestra, organ. Weather: moderate to clear cold. Opposition (screen) "Lost Zeppelin," "Laughing Lady," "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Two Days," "Disraeli," "Sunny Side Up," "Tiger Rose," "Dynamite," "Navy Blues." Stage Play-Arts Guild in "H. M. S. Pinafore," German Grand Opera Company and Philharmonic Symphony, Al Golden and his "Dimpled Darlings." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—Exploit title with names of Sam Hardy and Barbara Stanwyck with half tone cut in newspaper ads of Sam Hardy embracing Barbara Stanwyck, but cut off lower parts of body so that picture will not be offensive. Use catchline: "The story of a heartless coquette who knew no law but her own turbulent passions!" Plenty of tie-ups for you on this. Theme song "Mexicali Rose," for radio, phonograph, radio and music shops. Admit girls names Rose, free but escorts must pay. Audience appeal is strong for all classes and ages. Appealed strongly to our clientele.Nat Keene, M'g'r., Hippodrome, Baltimore, Maryland.

Mississippi Gambler (Univ.)

Ad Tips—Called this a successor to "Show Boat" and pointed to the presence of Joseph Schildkraut in both of these attractions. Joan Bennett was also worth special mention. The Southern atmosphere is refreshing in midwinter. Various scenes were screened with the Magnoscope and announcement was made of the heightened effect on the full-stage screen for the story's climaxes. Held appeal for both old and young and all except the intellectuals. —P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Mysterious Island (M-G-M)

DENVER—Rialto (1,100), 25c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, Pathe Sound News. Weather, cold. Opposition, "Kibitzer," "Show of Shows," "Forward Pass," "Evidence," "First Command." Rating, 70%.

CONDUCTED BY AN EXHIBITOR FOR EXHIBITORS

The House Manager

SOONER or later we knew that we would be called to task. Not that this is the first time it has happened. It's about the twentieth, and always on the same question: "Why not talk about other things besides theatre managers on that page of yours?"

Well, occasionally we do talk about other things, but after all, our first and last concern is for the theatre manager and all others engaged in earning a living by running or advertising the theatre.

We find two classes of executives supervising the majority of chain theatres today. One who believes in the manager as a most important cog in the machinery of the circuit. The other feels that the house manager is just there to see that the house is clean and the cup machine supplied with cups. As some one else so neatly expressed it—"Custodian of the keys to the cup machine."

A careful analysis of both types of men reveals the most encouraging fact that the former executive is far more in evidence than the latter. The wider the man's experience the more convinced is he that through the house manager, and through no one else, will the theatre be properly run and the receipts increased if it is at all possible to increase them.

Therefore, we have every right to feel that we know just a little bit about the subject and can back up our knowledge with the many years of experience we have had, not only as a house manager, but equally as a supervising manager.

Only recently we happened across a theatre that was in the red for several hundred dollars a week. The manager was in the "dumps" and if not for the necessity of earning a living would have quit long ago. A little talk brought out the information that he was not allowed to exploit his pictures, create tie-ups, or in fact, do anything at all without first submitting every little detail of his intentions in a report to his circuit's main office. Invariably, he was turned down.

He finally sold his boss an idea. They agreed, after much pleading and argument, to give the man a free rein for four weeks and not to hinder him in any way for that space of time.

Last week was the third week of the trial and a phone call from this house manager revealed the glad tidings that he had been authorized to draw an additional "ten spot" starting that week.

Which once more proves that if you've got the right kind of managers, give them a chance to put the house over and use their own brains, and then you are giving the theatre a pretty good chance to become a consistent profit-maker.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Ed. Hiehle Never Forgets His Duty to the M.R.T.C.

These pages seem almost dull when we fail to find any mention of Edward J. Hiehle of the Midland and other theatres in Newark, Ohio. Ed used to be a sort of fixture on these pages for so long that now we don't read about him regularly we have gotten so that we miss him quite a bit.

However, we can say in all justice to his fine CLUB spirit that Ed has been keeping in touch with us in some manner, shape or form all the time, and it certainly is a pleasure to hear from him and know that he is still an active and interested member of the CLUB.

Listen, Hiehle, I hope you will overlook my apparent neglect, but things have reached the point at CLUB headquarters where I am fairly swamped in trying to keep the tremendous amount of articles on their way into the CLUB pages each week, as well as answering the mass of correspondence that accumulates day in and day out.

If I don't get another opportunity, I want you to know that we wish you all the Season's best greetings and hope that next year is a mighty happy and prosperous one for you and your family. So long for the present, and remember me to Riney, who, by the way, has not been in communication with us for several months. What's wrong, has he got the writer's cramp?

NOTICE

PLEASE notify the Chairman of any change in address.

Something Good Is On the Way From Roberts

We are very grateful to Mr. William Roberts, president and general manager of the Shawnee Amusement Company, operating the Shawnee and Rialto Theatres in Plymouth, Pa., for a most interesting package containing a wonderful line up of exploitation and advertising stunts.

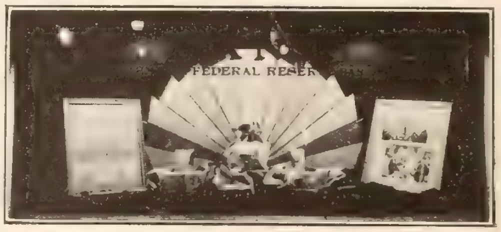
With the rearrangement of the CLUB pages, we are compelled to withhold this for publication for a week or two, but it will shortly make its appearance, and we suggest that you watch for it because it will be worth your while to read through every detail of the marvelous campaign that Mr. Roberts has successfully executed in Plymouth.

Thank you again, and let's hear from you as often as you possibly can get around to write us.

Bank Window Affords T. R. Earl Another Tie-up

T. R. Earl has an unusually effective display in the window of a prominent bank on "Gold Diggers of Broadway," playing at the Paramount Theatre, Idaho Falls, Ida.

The center of the display, as you can see on the photo, showed a bag with a label on it indicating the bag contained $1,000. A bank book appeared on either side of the money bag and a fan-like piece of art work served as the background.



On the right of the window appeared two stills from the picture, framed. And on the left was a card, framed, on which appeared, "We Pay You to Safeguard Your Savings—You can sit back and laugh at GOLD DIGGERS at the Paramount today."

Inasmuch as the bank is located on the busiest corner in the city, the window display attracted plenty of interest.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GIVES YOU THE "ICY STARE"!

LOCAL MERCHANTS JUST WON'T CO-OPERATE!

CHURCHES AND OTHER INSTITUTIONS CAN'T BE WON OVER TO THE THEATRE!

These represent but some of the many troubles we all encounter in the course of our daily grind.

Tell us your problems and let your brother members and managers help you to the proper solution.

Your name, theatre and city will be kept in strict confidence when the problem is published and all answers or suggestions will be received at Club headquarters and forwarded direct to YOU.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Larry Lasky's Activities Are Certainly Assorted

Mr. Lawrence Lasky is responsible for helping to stimulate the Monday business at the Publix-Broadway Theatre, Springfield, Mass., due to an excellent tie-up with the street railway company.

The Springfield Street Railway agreed to pay the theatre $35 every week during the period for the trailer which was run at every performance during the length of the tie-up—from Dec. 7th to Jan. 6th. The trailer is approximately 150 feet of actual traffic scenes in Springfield—tending to encourage the use of street cars in preference to automobiles as well as bringing out the advantages of making Monday night "Broadway Night."

The Street Railway also agreed to distribute 10,000 cards carrying copy, "Free Ride Home—This ticket stamped by cashier at Broadway Theatre when purchasing theatre ticket is good for one fare on Springfield Street Railway on date issued. See Dolores Costello in 'MADONNA OF AVE. A'—also 'THREE LIVE GHOSTS'—Avoid Traffic jams, ride in safety—Use Street Cars—Monday, Dec. 16." These cards were distributed every Monday by the conductors upon the payment of fare.

The Street Railway also agreed to furnish a special street car for five hours every Monday with canvas signs on both sides—40′ x 5′ with copy reading, "Your Parking Problem Solved, Avoid Traffic Jams—Ride in Safety—Use the Street Cars and Leave the Auto Home." And then followed copy about the theatres, pictures and play dates. It was also understood that the special car would be run on the main streets at the peak hours during the day and in order to stimulate interest and create enthusiasm they ran the street car for 6½ hours Saturday through the main streets at the peak hours.

The theatre agreed to flash a trailer at every performance during the period; print the cards which the conductors distributed; pay the street car company 8 1-3 cents for every ticket properly stamped at the box office while purchasing a ticket at the theatre, and used that night for a return fare home. The theatre also agreed to furnish the signs for the street car display. After the first week, it was merely necessary to have new insertions printed showing the attractions.

Some idea of the bigness of this tie-up may be gleaned when it is known that the established price for the use of a ballyhoo on a street car is $10 per hour. At this price, the theatre receives $255 worth of advertising for the period. The 40,000 tickets over the period distributed by the conductors cost the theatre $48.

Mr. Lasky sincerely believes that this particular tie-up will prove most beneficial to the theatre in stimulating Monday's business. The value of the street car ballyhoo to people on their way in town certainly cannot be overlooked.

Creamer's Newspaper Advertising Is Clicking

J. W. Creamer, managing the Palace Theatre in Muscatine, Iowa, for the Fox West Coast Outfit, has certainly been putting over some marvelous newspaper advertising in the past month or so, and we want to compliment him, especially on the small one-column ads that he has been running.

Creamer uses mighty good judgment in the make up of his advertising, even right down to the small ones, whereby the ad stands out because of the neatness of the display and the abundance of white space surrounding the type He also uses very good judgment in the selection of the mats to be used with these ads with the result that the Palace Theatre advertising is distinctly a credit to the theatre.

Fine work, Creamer, and we also want you to know that we considered your "potato matinees" a knockout. Unquestionably the publicity you received from the newspaper was deserving and the Salvation Army must have been delighted with the food that you furnished for their Christmas baskets to be distributed to the poor.

We also want to compliment you on the idea of putting a free pass into each basket,because if there is anything in the line of good fortune or good cheer that the poor folks are deserving of, it is the opportunity of visiting and enjoying a performance in as fine a theatre as you are running out there for the Fox West Coast Outfit.

Keep it up, Creamer, and you are bound to get favorable reaction before very long.

Ernie Smithies' Local Tie-ups Bring Fine Results

One of the Canadian contributions which failed to arrive in time to get into the special Canadian edition, was that of Ernie Smithies, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Kingston, Ontario.

Ernie has sent us a clipping which is sufficient evidence, so far as we are concerned, that he is on the alert to take advantage of every good-will angle that presents itself for the Capitol Theatre up there in Kingston.

In this respect he arranged through the Kiwanis Club for a children's special show whereby 1,400 of the city's youngsters were the guests of both the Kiwanis and the Capitol Theatre at a special morning's performance on December 14th at 10 o'clock. The children met at the armory at about 9.30 A. M. and received a ticket there; they then marched to the Capitol Theatre, headed by Santa Claus and a band of Sea Cadets. Ernie arranged for bags of candy to be away as the children left the theatre, and with the very careful arrangement laid out by both the Kiwanis Club and Mr. Smithies, the children were under proper adult supervision every moment of the time they were at the theatre.

This was a fine angle, and we are certainly grateful to Mr. Smithies for passing it along for the rest of the crowd. Thanks, Ernie, for your good wishes, and let us in turn wish you a happy and prosperous New Year.

Jim Newman Engineers A "Whoopee" Celebration

Jim Newman, who manages the Strand Theatre in Tampa, Fla., is doing a lot of shouting about a Whoopee celebration in conjunction with a 13th Anniversary celebration for the Strand Theatre there.

Part of Jimmy's activities consisted of decorating the front in real carnival style, and he certainly didn't stint when it came to colored lights, flags and banners. Besides, he had other pennants and floral decorations for a corking, attractive display which is still the talk of Tampa.

He then proceeded to install a phonograph in the lobby with a man who kept changing the records, and gave the public plenty of popular tunes to keep them "stepping."

In passing, we would mention that Friday happened to be the 13th, and it being the 13th anniversary of the theatre, both worked out a lucky combination, so the monster birthday cake that was cut on that day and handed out to all those who attended the theatre, gave him another angle to get some more free publicity for the theatre. We might also add that beauty souvenirs were given to the ladies and cigars to the gentlemen.

It seems like a real old home week celebration for Newman and the Strand Theatre, but this is typical of Jimmy's activities, and that's why we like to hear from him so often.

Candy Tie-up A Corking B. O. Gag for Roy Slentz

Roy Slentz tied up with a candy distributor in a stunt that reacted to the advantage of publicizing "Sweetie" playing at the Colorado Theatre, Pueblo, Colo.

The candy distributor has a chocolate covered marshmallow bar that is called "Sweetie." 1,000 of these chocolate bars, properly tagged, were distributed at a football game Thanksgiving Day morning (opening day of SWEETIE).

The tags attached to the bars of candy carried copy:

> "Meet SWEETIE—a new delicious candy and NANCY CARROLL in Paramount's all-talking collegiate musical comedy SWEETIE—Colorado Theatre Now."

The candy bars were of a generous size and were much sought for. The candy tie-up proved to be mutually beneficial to both the candy distributor and the theatre and especially to the theatre in helping to popularize the picture as was evidenced by the excellent box-office receipts.

Eight excellent window displays were also obtained with drug and candy stores.

Here is one that all of you boys can use without waiting for the next football season or another "Sweetie" to come around. Plenty of opportunities if you're on the look out for 'em.

S. G. Fleet Robinson Says:

"Your ROUND TABLE CLUB must sure be a great help to the boys in the field as it holds my interest and I can hardly wait for the new issue to come out each week."

Jack Albertson Makes Sure They Know About It

Jack Albertson, house manager for the Indiana Theatre, in East Chicago, Ind., is another of the aggressive showmen who are rapidly forging to the front by reason of their up to the minute tactics in the operation of their theatre.

Like all other wide-awake showmen, Jack and his theatre take advantage of every opportunity to capitalize on some phase of the theatre's operation. In this particular instance, the wide film discussion attracted their attention and they opened recently with an 18 x 24-foot screen, and a big ad pertaining to "Magnafilm." It went over very good and they even secured editorial mention in reference to this fine piece of work.

Magnafilm Is The Newest Scientific Achievement of Motion Picture Engineers—and, as usual, The INDIANA Presents It First!

We are showing with this story the top portion of the big and impressive ad which is self-explanatory, so far as the "Magnafilm" angle is concerned.

We also want you to take a look at the program of the Indiana Theatre, which is printed on very neat stock with a red border and design on the front cover, and black for the type. It made a particularly fine-looking house organ, and we thought that there were some points about it that might appeal to our other members and readers, and we are therefore reproducing it here.

The above represents but a small portion of Mr. Albertson's activities at the Indiana Theatre, as among his recent stunts was the use of a teaser which went to about 1,000 of the pupils in the high school, plugging "The Sophomore," and likewise a state-wide game of football that was the talk of the entire community.

We are always glad to hear from this grogressive member and showman, and we hope that he keeps us posted as much in the future as he has in the past. So long, Jack, and best wishes for a very happy New Year.

Are Organists Really Good?–Just Ask Fred

We don't often find either the time or the space to devote to organists, but when one comes as well recommended as Jerry Gaddis, featured organist in the RKO Drake Theatre in Oil City, Pa., then we must pay a little attention to it, because if he did not possess unusual merit, Freddie Johnson would never have boosted him to the skies.

Jerry is proving himself a most popular organist at the console in the RKO Drake, where he has been but a short time but has already recruited so many followers and ardent admirers of his solo and broadcasting work that he is rapidly forging to the front as one of the well-known organists of the East.

Prior to his taking up organ work, Jerry was quite an accomplished pianist and very well known in his own home town, St. Joseph, Mo., for the red hot jazz that he pounded out of the keys. Later on, in 1907 to be exact, Jerry became an orchestra leader and traveled over the country with quite a few well known musical comedy productions. A little later on he accepted a nice position as conductor and pianist at Parkersburg, West Va.

KEPT ON ADVANCING

However, when the Missouri Theatre, a new Publix house opened at St. Joseph, he was offered the position of organist and later was promoted to the position of solo organist for the same house. This he held for about a year and a half. However, when a new organ was installed at the Ritz Theatre in Clarksburg, Jerry decided that he was going to hop back to the fields of his former conquests.

The most interesting feature about Jerry's style of playing and his novelty programs are the originality that he injects in the entire proceedings. He is extremely versatile and is equally at home with grand opera or jazz which is quite an accomplishment in these days of specialized musicians. He has been able to recruit a marvelous following of fans through his wonderful Sunday and Thursday broadcasting over station WLCW.

LET'S HEAR FROM JERRY

It was really a distinct pleasure to pass on the information about this fine musician and organist, and we are certain that Fred Johnson's opinion is substantiated by Jerry's ability to click at the Keith Colonial Theatre in Oil City.

Here's hoping we hear some more about this chap because we could use to good advantage a few little stories dealing with organ specialties in theatres, especially theatres equipped with sound, so that the other fellows will know that an organ is an important part of their program if they only know what to do with it.

How about it, Jerry, can you find time to write us a few little letters, telling us how you are putting it across? Thanks anyway in advance and best regards to Fred E. Johnson.

M. G. Kaplan's Stunts To Be Broadcast Here

Believe it or not, but we have an idea that M. G. Kaplan, manager of the Rivoli Theatre in Rochester, N. Y., is going to make a doggone good member for the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB.

You may be wondering why we feel this way about Kaplan, but there was something about the brevity and directness of his first letter that rather appealed to us.

We will, however, withhold judgment at this time and just let you know that he has successfully launched a Matinee Club For Kiddies at the Rivoli Theatre, whereby he gives them free photos of the different movie stars when they attend the regular Saturday matinee performances in conjunction with the serial "King of the Congo."

Glad to welcome you "M. G." into the ROUND TABLE CLUB, but we'd like to see you do some stepping so that the rest of the boys can find out more about you. You might also enclose one of your own photographs with your next letter, so that they can see just how you look.

Novel Tie-Up Aided Robt. E. Hicks To Put This Over

Robert E. Hicks used three girls, dressed as artists to work a stunt that attracted lots of attention for the theatre's ninth birthday and "Pointed Heels" playing at the Paramount Theatre, Atlanta, Ga.

"Celebrating our 9th Birthday—Now playing POINTED HEELS with William Powell, Fay Wray, Helen Kane and Skeets Gallagher," were prepared and the girls were put to work hanging the cut-out letters in their proper order to properly spell out the billing. The stunt attracted lots of attenion, and inasmuch as the letters were taken down again as soon as the sign was completed, and the process started all over again with a new crowd waiting to see the result.

Some comedy was injected into the stunt by having the girls occasionally misspell a word and the crowd would let up an awful howl across the street.

The stunt was used on Saturday prior to Monday opening and also on Monday and Tuesday, when inclement weather forced its discontinuance.

The Atlanta Baking Company presented the theatre with a 55-pound birthday cake which was on display in the lobby until Friday night, when it was presented to the Atlanta Georgian's Empty Stocking Fund and sold at auction for $19.50 at a benefit midnight show at the Publix-Georgia Theatre.

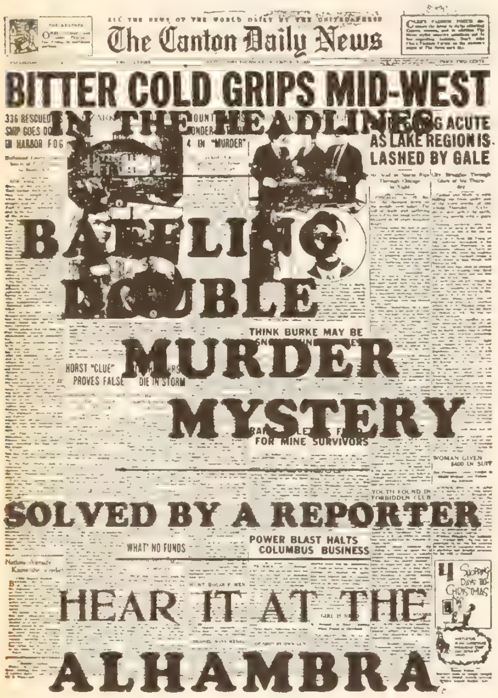
Newspaper Imprint Was A Smash for Murdock

J. E. Murdock, manager of the Alhambra Theatre in Canton, Ohio, for the "Ace" Berry Division of the Stanley-Warner Theatres, pulled a corker in conjunction with a recent attraction when he tied up with the local paper to furnish tear sheets of their first page imprinted with a blazing red ink headline reading "Baffling Double Murder Mystery."



The Canton Daily News

BITTER COLD GRIPS MID-WEST

BAFFLING DOUBLE MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED BY A REPORTER

HEAR IT AT THE ALHAMBRA

According to the reports that reached CLUB headquarters, the boys that were putting out these papers got so hot on the idea that they yelled "DOUBLE MURDER AT THE ALHAMBRA" with the unusual result that a crowd of Chrismas shoppers gathered around the front. The telephone rang all afternoon and all together it set up a great deal of excitement for an hour or so, so he rushed an announcement card out to the front of the theatre, "THE DOUBLE MURDER IS ON THE SCREEN."

While the imprinting gag is by no means new, it is nevertheless sure fire and ties in with most any kind of picture that lends itself to this form of exploitation.

We are certainly delighted to welcome Mr. Murdock into the ROUND TABLE CLUB through the medium of this first contribution of his, but we are certain from what we recall of him at the "Ace" Berry get-together in Pittsburgh last November, he will make a peach of an active member for these pages.

Let's hear some more from you, "J. E.," and you might shoot along your own photograph with your next letter. How about it?

Will Glaser's Many Stunts Are Providing B. O. Results

Will J. Glaser, who manages the Paramount Theatre in Faribault, Minn., used a novel form of a green sticker printed with red ink announcing December as the big show month at the Paramount Theatre and with the added advice to shop early, relax at the theatre and calling attention to the daily matinees and free checking services besides.

Will has also taken advantage of the "For Your Personal Information" card, which has appeared on these pages on numerous occasions, to be passed out signed by the ushers, in laying out the campaign for several weeks' attractions to play at the Paramount Theatre. In the case of his information card, he adds a postcript which is very timely, and the wording rather appealed to us, so we are repeating it here.

"Here's a friendly tip, buy and send your Xmas gifts before December 15th. We are going to show some mighty fine pictures in December that you will not want to miss, so be prepared for a real treat."

That's what we call real good showmanship. In addition, among Glaser's activities, was a midnight show through which he used a special souvenir admission ticket that certainly must have caused a lot of comment and gotten a lot of attention for the theatre and the attraction itself. We wish we could reproduce it on these pages, but it consisted of a black card printed with white ink, and was not quite clear enough for reproduction. However, if you are interested in this type of a ticket, take a tip and drop a line to Will Glaser, and you may rest assured that he will send you a sample, or tell you all you want to know about it.

So long for the present, Will, but keep up your fine CLUB activities and let us know what you are doing along the lines of exploitation and showmanship up there in Faribault. And we don't want to forget to wish you a very happy and prosperous New Year.

Wm. L. Greenbaum Adds Another One To M. R. T. C.

Clock up another one for the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

This time it is William L. Greenbaum, who manages the Uptown Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Stanley-Warner Circuit.

Bill, according to the send off that George Riester gives him, is a live-wire formerly located out at the Circle Theatre in Indianapolis for "Ace." He is full of many tricks and we are looking forward at this writing for some information on the "Flight" campaign which he so successfully put across at the Uptown Theatre.

How about it, Bill; are you going to live up to all of the nice things that George said about you? You'd better put yourself on record one way or the other, before we start "riding" (?) you, as you know we're pretty tough cowboys when we start going. However, don't forget that "Flight" campaign and let's hear from you as often as you can sit down to a typewriter, and by all means, make sure your own photograph is included in your very next letter. O. K.? Regards to the gang.

Here is Where One Theatre Advertised Another

"The Virginian," playing a week's engagement at the Paramount Theatre, Atlanta, Ga., received an endorsement from another theatre, urging the patrons to see one of the best pictures of the year.

This is the first time one theatre in Atlanta has ever run a trailer endorsing an attraction at a competing house.

With the assistance of the Western Union people, just prior to Thanksgiving, the names of 100 Atlantans who formerly lived in Virginia were obtained. To each of these people was sent a Thanksgiving greeting-telegram calling attention to the forthcoming showing of "THE VIRGINIAN" and inviting them to see it as guests of the theatre.

Seventy-five out of the 100 wires sent out were used and Robert E. Hicks feels that this was a particularly good stunt inasmuch as the receivers had to keep the wires from Thanksgiving until last week—and they certainly were discussing it with their friends in the meantime.

Many of the telegrams also brought in paid admissions and were effective from a goodwill standpoint as well.

Thomas H. James Used an Excellent Stunt Here

Thomas H. James used an excellent stunt in ballyhooing Joan Crawford in her first starring vehicle, "Untamed," playing at the Empire Theatre, Montgomery, Ala.

A one-horse wagon was hired for opening day of picture and the next day—the wagon to be on the streets from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.

On the wagon was placed a cage effect with a cut-out head of Joan Crawford. This head could be seen on either side of the wagon. And on top of the cage was a 2' x 6' banner giving the title of the play, play dates and name of theatre.

To attract more than passing interest, the driver carried a cow bell which he rang at different intervals.

Breaking a House Record Gives D. E. Knorr a Rep.

D. E. Knorr, Resident Manager for A. R. Boyd's Embassy Theatre in Allentown, Pa., has the distinction of having broken every known house record for the Embassy Theatre through the showing of "Sunny Side Up."

Not only has he the satisfaction of recording this on his daily and weekly statement, but the newspaper made much publicity out of it and he succeeded in getting several interesting and valuable readers in connection with the attraction and the theatre.

It is really worth mentioning when a manager succeeds in putting over a picture even as outstanding as "Sunny Side Up" in a town the size of Allentown and playing to over 70,000 during the course of the run. In this respect Mr. Knorr is entitled to all the credit that is no doubt being heaped upon his shoulders, and it would certainly be our extreme pleasure to tell the Industry at large a whole lot more about this man and the theatre and what they are accomplishing along the lines of publicity and exploitation.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

BORESOME!

It might be well to keep in mind the importance of watching the various portions of your regular program so that no one feature of it becomes tiring or boring to your patrons.

Right here on Times Square there is a representative movie palace where, whether you like it or not, they serve a "pot of noise" under the title of music.

Happening into said movie palace the other evening I found that the Overture had been dropped due to the unusually long feature and stage show. I heard no less that a half of dozen comments when the stage went dark for the news reel—making it plain that the overture was out—about the relief of not having to get a headache from a symphony (?) orchestra that would be a decided hit in a first class boiler factory.

Even Broadway can be all wet at times and from indications they were plenty wet about what the public wanted in the way of music and overtures. So even you and I can also make mistakes and develop a fondness for something that may be tiresome and boring to your patrons.

Try to get audience reaction from some source or other about the various portions of your programs and keep a weather eye peeled for the opinions of the customers who pay their hard earned dough to be entertained—and we mean entertained.

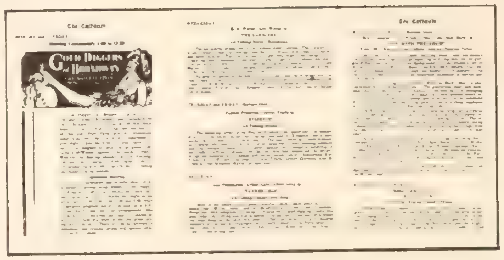
Novel Program an Aid to Sullivan's Two Theatres

George W. Sullivan, manager of the Cathaum and Nittany Theatres in State College, Pa., drops us a line to apologize for his long silence, but gives a most legitimate excuse for his inactivities.

We learn from his latest letter, that they have been busy installing sound in their Nittany Theatre which now makes the theatres in the town 100% talkie.

It is our purpose in the course of corresponding with hundreds of showmen to pass on ideas regardless of whether we think they are revolutionary or merely of a little or a lot of value to the other followers of our pages. In this respect, we know we are going to start quite a discussion by showing one of the recent programs of the Cathaum theatre turned out by Mr. Sullivan, you will note that in place of the usual program layout he discusses the picture in the form of a personal chat as well as the theatre policy, and gets away from the routine announcement of the stars and the attraction, plus the surrounding program.



We suggest that you give this idea a little consideration, because it contains much of interest that might be combined in your program, and we are sure that you are as anxious to improve them as we are to pass on new ideas in this direction.

Mr. Sullivan, under the direction of Maurice Baum who is the owner of the two theatres in State College, Pa., has been turning out some mighty fine mailing material for their patrons in the form of an announcement recommending certain attractions, as well as dealing with a matinee boosting campaign.

On this latter angle, they are making a direct appeal for matinee theatre parties as an addition to the social program of the women of that city.

Here is an angle that if your theatre contains the proper atmosphere and surroundings, with proper plugging should be able to go over with a tremendous amount of success both from the standpoint of goodwill as well as box office receipts, and we are certainly grateful to Mr. Baum and Mr. Sullivan for passing this along to us.

There were many other interesting features to the work being done by these two showmen, but we will reserve it for future discussion about these houses for a later issue of the NEWS.

Thank you, George, for your very fine letter, and let's hope that you make it a practice to keep us posted at all times on what is going on up your way.

Hal Winston Accomplishing Fine Work in B'klyn

In his own small way, and with the limited facilities that he has to work with Hal Winston, who is looking after the destiny of the Manor Theatre for the Century Circuit, Brooklyn, put out this attractive street ballyhoo for "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu."

This photograph serves a dual purpose, besides showing us the ballyhoo dressed as a Chink with the sign on his back, it showed an exceptionally fine piece of poster design work on this same attraction.

Inasmuch as the Manor Theatre is a typical neighborhood house, they are to be congratulated on this fine type of sign work, which certainly is on a par with some of the better houses in the big transient centers.

Here's hoping we hear some more from Hal Winston, because we have a lot of faith in his ability to make the grade as a real honest to God showman.

Jimmy McKoy Finds Another New Picture Plug

The appearance of a man on the street carrying a red flag was enough to attract all sorts of attention but this particular stunt was used by Manager James H. McKoy to advertise "Dynamite," playing at the Olympia Theatre, Miami, Fla.

The red flag had white letters sewed on it reading, "CAUTION DYNAMITE." And the man helped to ballyhoo the stunt by saying "Dynamite" was the name of the picture playing at the Olympia.

Two hundred automobile hangers carrying copy, "A CARELESS DRIVER PLAYS WITH DYNAMITE" were hung on parked cars. This stunt further helped to popularize the title of the picture.

Two hundred arrow indicators were placed in conspicuous locations throughout the city; the arrows pointing in the general direction of the theatre.

Roy S. Nowitzky Has Plenty to Do in Reading

Among the many other new and active members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, we want you to know Ray S. Nowitzky, manager of the Wilmer & Vincent's State Theatre in Reading, Pa.

Ray is kept on the jump to keep abreast of the theatrical parade in that peppy city of Reading, and with the 1500 seat house to put over and keep out of the red he has a man's size job on his hands.

We would certainly like to know just how he is going about his advertising and exploitation so that we can possibly arrive at a comparison between the different managers of Reading, all of whom are members of the CLUB.

How about it, Ray, will we hear from you regularly?

Walter Morris Changes His Address in Florida

Walter Morris, whose activities at the Stanley Theatre in West Palm Beach, Fla., have found their way to these pages on many, many occasions, has not been changed to the Paramount Theatre in Palm Beach, Florida, effective immediately.

We are certain that Walter will continue his wonderful March Of Progress that he started at the Stanley, and the activities he engineers for the Paramount Theatre will likewise find their way to the CLUB pages as regularly as his past contributions.

Here's wishing you a lot of luck, Walter, and maybe if we get down Florida way this winter we will have the opportunity of meeting you personally. Regards to Wally Allan and the rest of the boys down there.

GREETINGS—AND HOW?

"Ace" Berry's holiday card cops the prize in being one of those "tiny" things measuring 30"x40" in size and if it was but a little larger would have filled a nice 24 sheet stand.

Thanks, "Ace," same to you and the gang "in spades."

Hyde Injects Many New Angles Into Exploitation

This is the way Bolivar Hyde, Jr., manager of the Polk Theatre in Lakeland, Fla., exploitated "Forward Pass" with the aid of a big parade that composed the high school football team through a clever tieup with that institution.

As you will note from the photograph, these fellows carried a mighty good banner all around the town, which gave the attraction and the theatre a pretty good break for an outdoor ballyhoo.

They certainly look like a pretty husky crowd and we believe they entered into the full spirit of the tie-up and every body was satisfied all around.

Here is the "flag pole sitter" that Hyde used on top of the Polk Theatre to exploit "Half Way to Heaven." We only hope that you can visualize what a great gag this must have been to the passers by of the Polk Theatre, because then you will fully appreciate the tremendous value of this angle for exploitation purposes.

When Bolivar tells us that this was one of the best stunts they have had in a long time and no doubt helped put the picture over in a big way, we agree with him 100%.

Nice stuff, Bolivar, keep on sending them along, they are all typical of your fine showmanship.

Bill Levey Deserts Port Washington for New Post

Bill Levey for the last year or so connected with the Century Circuit Beacon Theatre in Pt. Washington, L. I., where he earned a marvelous reputation for himself as a showman and theatre manager, is now taking care of the Empress Theatre in Brooklyn, for the same Circuit.

We don't know whether to console or congratulate Bill, but we know if any one can make good, he can. Lots of luck, Bill.

Crashing Newspaper Space Is A Habit With Gettier

Chalk up another for Vogel Gettier, manager of the Capitol Theatre at Grand Island, Neb.

This time Vogel, succeeding in crashing his local paper not only in connection with his potato and fruit matinees, run prior to the holidays, but also in connection with the famous Capitol Theatre's Birthday Club, a button of which is worn by the different members of this peppy little business-getting organization.

So much attention has been attracted to this Birthday Club idea of Vogel's that the Grand Island Daily Independent commented on it editorially in their issue of December 23rd because of the marvelous way in which it was being handled.

Of course, you probably all know the idea of the Birthday Club, the kiddies are all registered with their date of birth, name and home address, which provides the theatre with a corking good, live mailing list, and on the day of their birthday they are presented with a complimentary ticket for not only the youngster, but one adult as well, for either the Majestic or Capitol Theatre in that city.

We hardly felt it necessary to go into a more detailed explanation about this one, because it is already so well known, but if by any chance you want a little more dope on it, write us direct, and if you can put it over half as well as Vogel has then you can pat yourself on the back for being a darned good showman.

NEW GEN. MGR. FOR OHIO CHAIN

Edward J. Mooney, when last heard from was somewhere in the "wilds" outside of Philadelphia, but has now become General Manager for the C. & M. Amusement Co. operating a group of theatres in Cambridge and Marietta, Ohio.

We are certainly pleased to hear from Mr. Mooney, and of course we can't forget the theatres he is now connected with, because our good friend Fred E. Johnson originally joined the ROUND TABLE CLUB from that circuit and in the same position that Mr. Mooney now occupies.

Mr. Mooney should accomplish great things down there in Ohio but of course we shall expect him to show his CLUB spirit by keeping us posted with details and photographs of everything that is being engineered. What do you say Ed, will we hear from you or will we be disappointed? The answer rests entirely with you, but in the meantime give our best regards to our many friends in the theatre business down in your part of the country. You will find that we met most of them at the last Gus Sun shindig that was held up in Sandusky, Ohio.

Irwin's Lobby Display Gave 'Em a Real Thrill

A bit risque but within the law might easily describe Irwin R. Waite's lobby display for Clara Bow in "The Saturday Night Kid" playing at the Queen Theatre in Galveston, Tex.

This attention-getting lobby display consisted of a borrowed shower bath ring and curtain from a local plumber. Then a life-size cut-out of Clara Bow was surrounded by the curtain with her head protruding outside. A light back of the cut-out made a silhouette show through the curtain to obtain the most compelling results the Queen Theatre has ever had.

A circular card at the top of the shower bath carried copy, "Don't be Scared! I'm not coming out Saturday." Other card displays on either side of the bath display and standing on the floor carried copy about the picture, star, theatre and play dates.

He also secured twelve excellent window tie-ups with Chesterfield Cigarettes in connection with the exploiting of "The Virginian."

The Chesterfield people fixed up the windows themselves—using such catch lines as, "In a cigarette it's taste, In a Kick it's distance and in THE VIRGINIAN now playing at the Publix-Queen, it's Romance."

Two stills in frames also occupied a part of these window displays which helped to publicize the "Virginian" to better than average receipts.

The Chesterfield tie-up was effected without involving one cent of expense to the theatre which is something worthwhile to be considered in checking up the value of a tie-up.

BOOST YOUR CLUB!

Jack Murphy of Australia Glad to Join Club Ranks

In introducing foreign members, we do not want to lose sight of Jack Moore Murphy, Manager of the Palais Royale Theatre in Geelong, Victoria, Australia.

Demonstrating how far reaching the news of the ROUND TABLE CLUB is in its scope to call attention to the different members of the CLUB to friends that they have all over the world, Mr. Murphy mentions in his letter his former association with Bill Smeltzer of the Riviera Theatre in San Francisco.

Let's hear some more from you, Murphy, and tell us what you are doing out there in Australia. And if Bill Smeltzer happens to let this story catch his eye, he should immediately sit himself down and write Murphy a letter to renew former acquaintance.

Mel Todd Put Harmonica Contest Over Big in Colo.

Harmonica contests have been successfully worked by many showmen throughout the country, and with the fine aid lent by Educational Pictures and the proper local cooperation there is no question of it going over and bringing plenty of money to the theatre.

The latest one to try this same gag and put it over successfully was Mel Todd, manager of the Fox Grand Theatre at Rocky Ford, Colo., for the Fox West Coast Co.

We have before us his newspaper ads as well as the readers and they all show a wonderfully planned and executed contest.

In addition to the newspaper tieups, he had tied up several local stores, bringing additional publicity for both the theatre and the stunt itself, and we do not hesitate in recommending this type of a contest to any theatre wishing to stimulate kiddie trade in connection with some attraction. If you want the details, write us direct and we will see that they are furnished as promptly as the mail will deliver them.

Great work, Mel! Now, how about sending us the details of some more of your activities?

Russell W. Volz says:

"I want you to take me into your ROUND TABLE CLUB and help me put over this theatre . . . as an exhibitor."

Manager,
New Clifton Theatre,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Shewell's Activities Continue to Attract Attention

The four photographs shown on the accompanying cuts will give you a rough idea of how George Shewell, exploitation manager for the York Theatres in York, Pa., has been keeping that theatre's name before the public.

There is a certain twist of fine showmanship to the way George is handling these various campaigns and we are more than pleased to note the progress he is making because of the faith we have in his ability to put over any house when it comes to exploitation and advertising. This faith was built up by his past experiences in the old days when he was located at the Auditorium Theatre in Coatesville, Pa., and at which time his activities attracted our attention to such an extent, that we ran a special story about him, and received much favorable comment about it from our members and readers about the things he was doing.

We also want you to take a look at the wording he used in connection with a "Gold Diggers of Broadway" newspaper ad, and we are sure you will find much of value in it to incorporate in some of your own advertising.

HOW WOULD YOU
WRITE THIS AD?

IF like us—you had the greatest picture in years—acclaimed from coast to coast—holding many records for attendance and receipts—hailed by critics and public as the fastest, funniest, laughingest most tuneful musical comedy hit that has yet come to the screen—

AND because of these facts—you wished to convey your enthusiasm to the public—to urge everybody not to miss it, etc.—

WHAT would you say?

Thank you, George, and be sure to keep your promise to keep us posted on your activities.

STILL ANOTHER CLUB BOOSTER

We have pictured many of our enthusiastic members in their respective offices with their membership certificates proudly displayed on the wall, and from all over the country. Some in big cities. Some in small cities. Some in small theatres, and some in large, because location or type of house means nothing in the life of a ROUND TABLE CLUB member, he's enthusiastic just the same.

In the latest contribution to our gallery we show you Joseph W. Kligler, manager of the Daly Theatre in uptown New York and a manager who has been kept mighty busy for the past few months preparing and getting his house open with new sound equipment.

We certainly appreciate Joe's fine CLUB spirit in sending us this photograph but we already know that he is a great booster for the CLUB and a great believer in the many benefits to be derived by following our activities in the NEWS every week.

So long, Joe, drop in and say hello next time you are down around the Exchanges.

'Rain' Organ Plug Created Interest for McCullough

James McCullough, of the Madison Theatre, Peoria, Ill., working with Milton Herth, his solo organist, used a novel "song-plug" for "Singin' In the Rain," one of the popular song hits from "Hollywood Revue."

Starting a week in advance, Herth featured the number, and then announced with slides that in cooperation with a local newspaper, the theatre would offer prizes for the best original chorus to the same song.

The newspaper gave the contest much space and the response was heavy.

Branch P. O. in Lobby Helped Frederick's Biz.

C. Frederick has opened a branch post office in the main foyer of the Publix-Capitol Theatre, Pittsfield, Mass.

Equipment for the branch post office including scales and large street box for letters and parcels were secured from the main post office.

Stamp sales of all denominations including stamp books and postcards are increasing daily much to the surprise of the Post Office officials here, who at first were reluctant to co-operate.

Many fine compliments from the patrons have been received on this post office service.

In addition to the branch post office, the theatre also tied up with the Red Cross on their Christmas seals which went over big. For selling stamps and insuring parcels, the young lady in charge of the desk also operated the telephone on her desk. The telephone company rigged up this dummy instrument so the girl can ring it by pressure of the knee and when she talks gives a sales spiel loud enough for everybody in the lobby to hear it; the sales talk being confined to the current or forthcoming picture.

REAL CLUB SPIRIT

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"Organs and Organists"

It has always been a source of argument ever since sound was considered "in" as to whether a theatre should continue the use of their organ or any other musical angle outside of their horns.

About the best answer we can give to this particular question is to suggest a visit to Warner Brothers new Beacon Theatre in uptown New York, which has been opened with a strictly all sound policy, but they feature an organist who is going to make a "rep" for himself and the theatre in that swell neighborhood section of the city.

It was our pleasure to witness their inaugural program, and listen to this featured organist sell his stuff to the audience, and how it went over is nobody's business because he had the gang singing right along with him and he handed out plenty of laughs without treading on anyone's toes.

If you've got an organ in the house, buy yourself a decent organist and feature it. It will get you dough every day in the week, and we don't mean maybe.

"Chick."

Sardino Tried "Human Billboard" With Success

Frank Sardino is deserving of credit for the showmanlike way in which he staged a human billboard above the marquee of the Syracuse Theatre in Syracuse, N. Y., just recently.

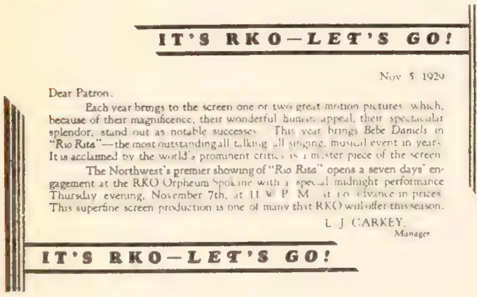
He used ten girls to form this display and gave the "Hollywood Revue" a marvelous sendoff in his city, where this type of ballyboo has not been seen as yet.

From reliable sources we learn that Frank has been engineering some wonderful stuff in the management of the theatres under his direction and we would appreciate the opportunity of telling all about them on these pages, providing they furnish us with the information. How about it, Mr. Sardino; can we look forward to a detailed report now and then of what you are doing in your houses?

Larry Carkey Still Has 'Em Clicking In Spokane

L. J. Carkey's activities at the RKO Orpheum Theatre in Spokane, Wash., continue with the same brand of high-class and high-powered showmanship that marked all of his past activities while he was in the East.

We don't care what city or theatre has inaugurated a big picture with a preview performance, but we doubt whether it was handled in a more dignified or in a more thoroughly showmanship manner than Larry handled the special preview of "Rio Rita" at the Orpheum in Spokane.



IT'S RKO—LET'S GO!

Nov 5 1929

Dear Patron.

Each year brings to the screen one or two great motion pictures which, because of their magnificence, their wonderful human appeal, their spectacular splendor, stand out as notable successes. This year brings Bebe Daniels in "Rio Rita"—the most outstanding all talking all singing, musical event in years. It is acclaimed by the world's prominent critics as a master piece of the screen.

The Northwest's premier showing of "Rio Rita" opens a seven days' engagement at the RKO Orpheum Spokane with a special midnight performance Thursday evening, November 7th, at 11 P. M. at no advance in prices. This superfine screen production is one of many that RKO will offer this season.

L. J. CARKEY,
Manager

IT'S RKO—LET'S GO!

The invitation was as nicely turned out as an invitation of its kind should be, and in addition to this angle brought much favorable comment from the public and the press by reason of their leaving cards with their opinion of the picture. He likewise sent out a marvelous postcard dealing with the same attraction, and which we are picturing here, because we want you to see how he worked it out and how attractive the postcard looked.

This was but part of his fine exploitation on this particular attraction, but it also included an unusually fine restaurant napkin imprinted far superior to any we have seen in a long time as an advertising plug of this kind. In addition he tried a stunt which appealed to us very much, whereby he turned out a card which was signed by the patrons upon solicitation of children, asking whether they expected to attend one of the performances of "Rio Rita," and a second portion of the questionnaire asking why or why they had not been attending the Orpheum Theatre.

It also had a line for suggestions, which is a good idea, because you can pick up many an angle from your patrons that might otherwise go unnoticed or unheard of.

The bottom of the questionnaire was addressed to children and told that if they got ten of these cards filled out by adults in their neighborhoods, they would receive a free theatre ticket.

Every one of the items recounted in this particular story, about Larry Carkey, is worthy of more than your passing attention, and we are certainly grateful to him for his fine CLUB spirit, and we also appreciate his remarkable showmanship which is reacting favorably at the Box Office.

Telegrams Aided Lashway To Sell This One Big

Three hundred co-operative telegrams got Manager A. L. Lashway a lot of publicity for Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger," playing at the Olympia Theatre, Lynn, Mass.

The telegrams were sent to the homes of people not in the habit of attending the theatre regularly, such as doctors, lawyers and business men. The idea was a co-operative one with Lynn's leading restaurant and a taxi company near the theatre. While there is no definite way of judging the results, both the taxi company and the restaurant said it resulted in increased business for them, so it is evident that the theatre got their pro-rata share of the business.

The telegram read, "Christmas is near. Everyone has one night set aside for amusement. Make it this Monday night. Call Breakers ten thousand for a town taxi. Go to the Olympia Theatre. Hear Harold Lloyd in 'Welcome Danger.' After the show visit the Hawthorne Cafe Oxford Street for lunch and dinner. You may make reservations for Christmas."

John P. Ward says:

"I certainly enjoy reading what the other boys are doing, and will do my part in the future toward keeping you supplied with a little news from time to time."

Manager, Capitol Theatre,
Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

We Thank You, Leslie!

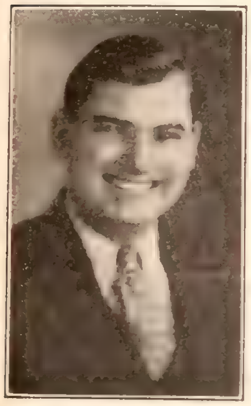
HERE is what Leslie Whelan of the Harold Lloyd Corporation has to say about the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

"While I am not an exhibitor, I am indeed, very much interested in your section in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. I can safely say, the contents each week has increased my showmanship knowledge many times and has given me an inside on practical theatre operation and exploitation, which I doubt could be gotten elsewhere."

J. F. White Has Very Interesting Theatre Background

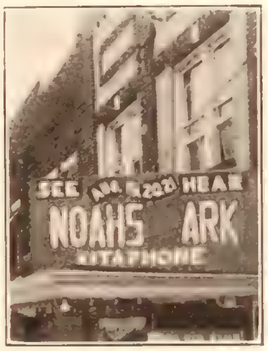
This, brother members, is J. F. White, Jr., better known as Francis, who manages the Capitol Theatre in Asheboro, N. C.

Although he is but 28 years of age, he has been in the theatre business ever since 1918 and has acquired a marvelous knowledge of practically all angles of the business itself.



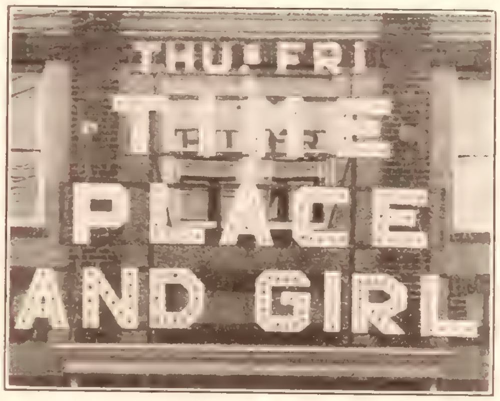
Around February 1st in addition to the Capitol Theatre management, he will also take over the management of a new theatre now under construction in the same city. However, to us he appears very well equipped to handle any number of houses, and we shall expect many interesting things about this new member in the immediate future.

We wont attempt to have too much to say about White in the first article that we write about him, as we shall probably have many interesting things to say in later issues, however, there is one phase of his activities that appeals to us and that is the use of beaver board electric signs which are becoming increasingly popular all over the country. One of the reasons for their popularity is because they are so inexpensive to make and yet so effective. We show here Francis' first effort at this type of sign in connection with "Noah's Ark," and we also want you to see how the sign looked when illuminated at night. It was a good start, too.



Now after a little experience the sign takes an entirely appearance, this time on the attraction "Time, Place and Girl" we find something that would even look good on Times Square or the Loop and the attention of the passers-by is an important factor for the theatre.

If any of you other fellows are not taking advantage of this inexpensive type of marquee sign, then you are losing out on a good bet. We advise you to stock up on a bunch of sockets, some spare wire, the frame work doesn't amount to enough to talk about and the sign itself is a matter of effort rather than expense.



We are certainly glad to welcome Mr. White into the ROUND TABLE CLUB and urge that he continue his fine start as an active member by seeing that we get all the details of his activities, not only in theatre management and exploitation, but also in goodwill creating ideas that he works out from time to time in his own town.

Bakery Tie-up Was a Good Gag For This House

Thomas H. James got lots of publicity for "The Four Feathers," playing at the Empire Theatre, Montgomery, Ala., when he arranged a splendid tie-up with a bakery.

The tie-up was with the city's largest bakery and they wrapped with each loaf of bread for three days in advance—a circular. The circulars announced the awarding of 100 free tickets to see and hear "THE FOUR FEATHERS" if the holder of the lucky numbered coupon corresponded with one of the 100 numbers posted in the Empire Theatre lobby.

The circular, of which there were 8,000 printed and distributed, were of such a size to permit plenty of forceful sales copy about the picture, star, cast, theatre and play dates, as well as details of the contest and a paragraph about the bakery.

Since the bread gets a wide distribution not only throughout the entire city, but the neighboring towns as well, the stunt served an excellent purpose in exploiting the picture.

Moss Continues March Of Progress On Coast

It was not so very long ago that we told you something about the fine showmanship activities of Richard L. Moss, manager of the Fox Raymond Theatre in Pasadena, Cal.

You may also know that we have been following the experiences of this aggressive young showman since the time he left N. Y., to join the Fox West Coast outfit, and we predicted great things for him. Not that we want to pull the "I told you so," but we are certainly proud to watch his mighty fine progress.

His latest exploit is keeping that theatre before the public and taking advantage of every bit of free publicity that he can grab off with the organization of a junior booster club which is going over with a bang and we hope that Dick sends us all of the information as to how he handled the thing very soon, so that we can pass on the complete details of it for the benefit of so many of our other members and readers who are constantly on the alert to improve business from this angle.

He also engineered recently a distribution of pamphlets by a mystery girl for the showing of "Masquerade" which brought him several fine boxes in the local paper and which got attention.

He likewise gave away a miniature automobile in conjunction with the showing of "Speedway" and handed out 2,000 handbills for their junior matinee.

There are so many interesting angles to this young chap's exploitation activities, that we are at a loss to try to incorporate them all in one brief story. However, we are certain that his Junior Boster Club gag is worthy of your attention and we shall await with interest the arrival of complete details dealing with this entire campaign at the first opportunity that Mr. Moss has to send it.

Thank you kindly, Dick, and remember us to the rest of the crowd out on the Coast.

Space Grabbing Is An Art!

If we were to start to compile a record of the different showmen in the U. S. who have succeeded in grabbing off the greatest amount of free space, Ray A. Grombacher of Spokane, Wash., would unquestionably cop first, second and third prize and still lead the field for whatever other prizes were offered in the contest.

We have had many of Mr. Grombacher's newspaper publicity items before us, but due to the crowded condition of the ROUND TABLE CLUB space and the tremendous number of contributions and letters received from our large host of members, we have been compelled to put non-member items in the background. This has unfortunately been the case with Mr. Grombacher, but at this time we cannot refrain from making some particular mention about his activities, and we must certainly hand it to him when it comes to ballyhooing his theatre through local papers. We would be almost inclined to suspect that he has a controlling interest in these papers, judging from the fine breaks he gets, but we would rather lay it to his keen showmanship and live publicity mind.

Here's hoping that all of the managers on Ray Grombacher's Circuit find the ROUND TABLE CLUB sufficiently interesting to enroll as members, so that we can follow their activities more regularly by reason of the fact that they will be members.

Here's Hoping We Meet Art Kershaw Real Soon

Art Kershaw, managing director of the Osborn Theatre in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, and also the Tivoli Theatre in the same city, almost threatened to run in and make our acquaintance on a contemplated trip to N. Y. However, at this late date we are beginning to give up hope that he will reach N. Y., so we won't wait for his visit any longer, unless it will come in the form of a surprise, which will be equally welcome.

At any rate, we want you to know that Mr. Kershaw, in spite of his busy moments looking after two theatres, has always found it interesting and profitable to follow the activities of the ROUND TABLE CLUB through MOTION PICTURE NEWS each and every week.

We regret that he did not send us a picture of his new Osborne Theatre, but if business happens to be slow at your own theatre while you're reading this little story, we are picturing the front of the Tivoli Theatre with some of the customers WAITING to get in and it ought to cheer you up enough to make you look forward to better and prosperous days to come.

Thanks for the letter and photograph, Mr. Kershaw, but we are nevertheless going to hope that we meet you personally before very long. Best regards to every one of the boys in Canada.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

MORE NEW MEMBERS!

H. C. RIEGEL, JR., manager of the Shaw Theatre in St. Louis, Mo., knowing of our previous expression to line up some of the livewire managers in this peppy theatrical town, Riegel can do a whole lot to keep the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages posted on theatrical and theatre managers' activities in St. Louis. How about it, H. C., are we going to hear from you regularly?

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

MARTIN K. KAPLAN manages the Rivoli Theatre in Rochester, N. Y., and it shall be our pleasure to keep a weather eye peeled on the mailman for signs of activities from this new member. Listen, Martin, supposing you get a hold of Belcher at the Riviera and find out why he don't communicate with us more often. We in turn will write him to get after you, and perhaps when we are all finished we will have a couple of good active members once more from Rochester.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

CHARLES B. "CHUCK" COPPERMAN manages the Ohio Theatre in Warren, Ohio, and we already have ample evidence of the fact that he will make a most enthusiastic member for the ROUND TABLE CLUB. We have shown you his photograph and we have told you about his activities. It will be our extreme pleasure to continue passing along his various exploits via these pages, as rapidly as he passes them on to us. Thank you, Chuck, and let's hear from you again soon.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

WILLIAM HAMBORSKY is the assistant manager at the Harlem Grand Theatre on 125th Street, in N. Y. C., and we do not know at this particular writing just what his activities in that house consist of, but we have hopes of his keeping us posted and we in turn will pass along the information.

SONNY SHEPHERD manages the Grand Theatre in West Palm, Fla., for the Wolfson-Meyer Theatre Outfit the same that Harold Kopplin is bringing in the sheckels for. We're hoping that Sonny follows the example of Mr. Kopplin and tells us what he is doing to keep the box office busy and his bosses happy. You might include your own photo, Sonny, with your next letter.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

JERRY SAMUELS is the assistant manager of the Arena Theatre in New York for the Consolidated Chain and if he has anything to do with the exploitation or advertising of that theatre we would certainly welcome the opportunity of hearing from him as to what he is doing and how he is doing it. Let's hear from you, Jerry, and tell us what it's all about.

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

L. O. GILL manages the Marshall Theatre in Manhattan, Kansas, and since we have already told you something about this new member via a regular article in the CLUB pages, this paragraph will have to take the form of a cold introduction. We can make it a little warmer if L. O. will send us one of his own photographs and a little of his past history in the show business. How about it, Gill? Why not get a little more chummy with the crowd?

Wear Your Club Pin! ! !

SIGMUND S. SCHEFFEL manages the Lyric, Liberty and Harding Theatres, in Chicago, Ill., and must certainly have his hands full with three theatres to look after. However, we will look forward to hearing what this gentleman has to say for himself, and just what he is doing to handle this man-size job. How about a little letter by return mail, Sig?

NEW MEMBERS!

Please be patient if your application was sent in and your name has not been published as a new member.

The increase in membership during the past few months has been so great that we are behind in the announcing of these new members.

More names will be published hereafter in an attempt to catch up with the newcomers.

Thank you.

"Photography Excellent . . ."

"Photography excellent . . . ". Thus ends the movie review that influences thousands.

We are mindful of the director and his staff-men whose skill accounts for good acting, good direction, good composition and good lighting. And of the operator in his booth we take account. Unstinted credit must go to them. But Bell & Howell takes particular pride in the "photography excellent" stamp placed upon the tens of hundreds of featured movies made by Bell & Howell Standard Cameras since 1907.

How has Bell & Howell thus maintained its technical leadership for the past 23 years? The answer lies in this company's willingness to forego immediate gain to the gradual upbuilding of the industry; in its eternally vigilant staff of engineers and technicians; in its generous appropriations for research into the theory and practical mechanics of cinematography.

The culmination of all these things is the new Bell & Howell Engineering Development Building, a costly but finely equipped plant devoted to the solution of the present and future technical problems of the industry. It is already paying dividends to producers, distributors and theater-owners, large and small; the investment it represents is in every way justified. We invite you to submit your particular problems, too.

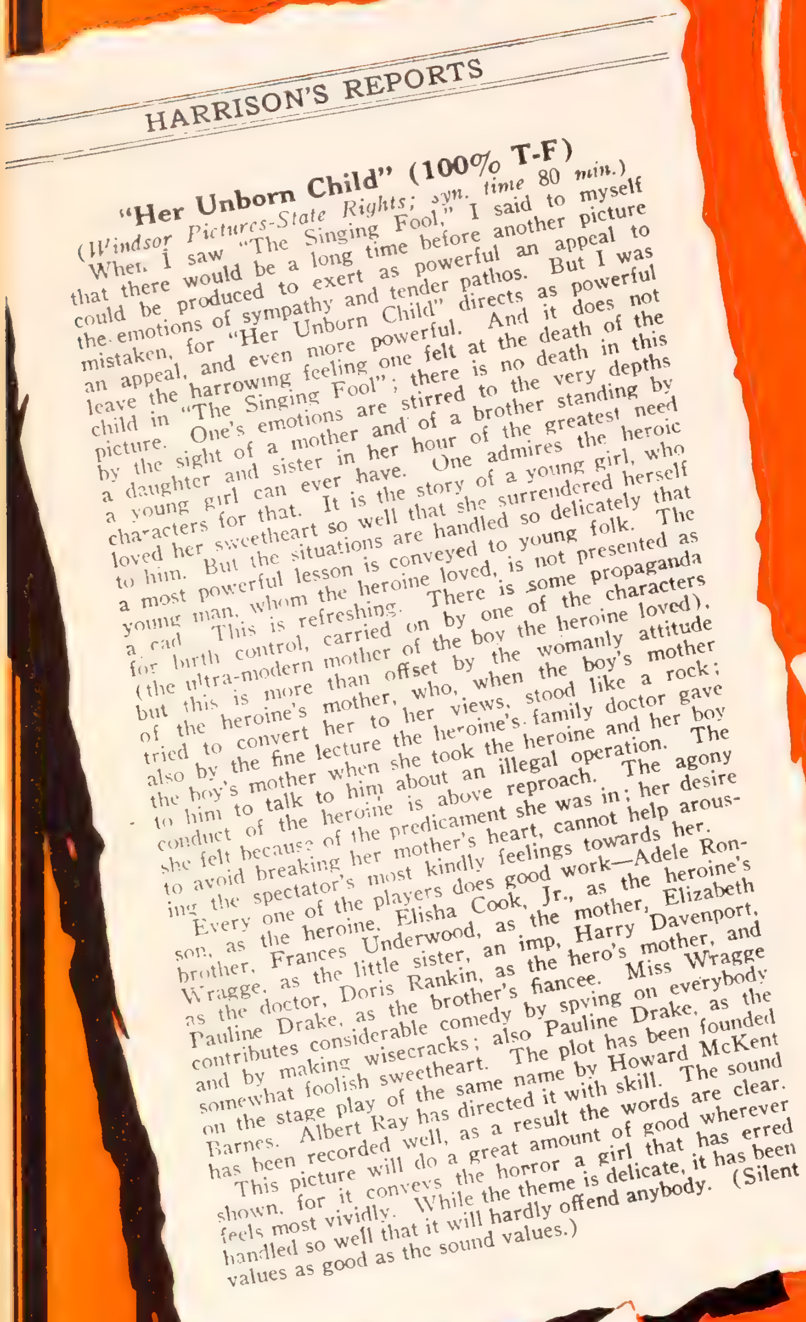
More Powerful in Appeal than "The Singing Fool"

– Pete Harrison



HARRISON'S REPORTS

"Her Unborn Child" (100% T-F)

(Windsor Pictures-State Rights; syn. time 80 min.)

When I saw "The Singing Fool," I said to myself that there would be a long time before another picture could be produced to exert as powerful an appeal to the emotions of sympathy and tender pathos. But I was mistaken, for "Her Unborn Child" directs as powerful an appeal, and even more powerful. And it does not leave the harrowing feeling one felt at the death of the child in "The Singing Fool"; there is no death in this picture. One's emotions are stirred to the very depths by the sight of a mother and of a brother standing by a daughter and sister in her hour of the greatest need a young girl can ever have. One admires the heroic characters for that. It is the story of a young girl, who loved her sweetheart so well that she surrendered herself to him. But the situations are handled so delicately that a most powerful lesson is conveyed to young folk. The young man, whom the heroine loved, is not presented as a cad. This is refreshing. There is some propaganda for birth control, carried on by one of the characters (the ultra-modern mother of the boy the heroine loved), but this is more than offset by the womanly attitude of the heroine's mother, who, when the boy's mother tried to convert her to her views, stood like a rock; also by the fine lecture the heroine's family doctor gave the boy's mother when she took the heroine and her boy to him to talk to him about an illegal operation. The conduct of the heroine is above reproach. The agony she felt because of the predicament she was in; her desire to avoid breaking her mother's heart, cannot help arousing the spectator's most kindly feelings towards her.

Every one of the players does good work—Adele Ronson, as the heroine, Elisha Cook, Jr., as the heroine's brother, Frances Underwood, as the mother, Elizabeth Wragge, as the little sister, an imp, Harry Davenport, as the doctor, Doris Rankin, as the hero's mother, and Pauline Drake, as the brother's fiancee. Miss Wragge contributes considerable comedy by spying on everybody and by making wisecracks; also Pauline Drake, as the somewhat foolish sweetheart. The plot has been founded on the stage play of the same name by Howard McKent Barnes. Albert Ray has directed it with skill. The sound has been recorded well, as a result the words are clear.

This picture will do a great amount of good wherever shown, for it conveys the horror a girl that has erred feels most vividly. While the theme is delicate, it has been handled so well that it will hardly offend anybody. (Silent values as good as the sound values.)

This ad is not intended to sell you but to HELP YOU SELL!

ARE YOU SHOWMAN ENOUGH TO CASH IN ON THIS?

●

Theatre owners, theatre operators and your advertising and publicity men: We at PARAMOUNT have just seen two remarkable pictures, "THE STREET OF CHANCE" and "ROADHOUSE NIGHTS." Release dates, Feb. 8th and Feb. 15th, respectively. Both are of outstanding box-office quality. Messrs. Adolph Zukor and Sam Katz were so impressed with the possibilities of record theatre revenue from these pictures that they have ordered all Publix theatre managers to conduct special, enlarged campaigns on them. A written guide to selling "THE STREET OF CHANCE" and "ROADHOUSE NIGHTS" to the public is going to all Publix managers. WE OFFER IT TO YOU BELOW!

●

"THE STREET OF CHANCE"

You always knew William Powell would give a truly great performance in a swell picture built around him. This is it! (Not a bad piece of copy for advertising it.)

You get the same thrill out of looking at "The Street of Chance" as you got when you first saw "Underworld." A sense of strong, red-meat, gripping entertainment, with everything VITALLY REAL. This show, Powell's first starring film, will do for him what "Underworld" did for Bancroft.

Powell's a big-time gambler in it. He'll bet a hundred grand on a cut of the cards. It's in his blood, like a disease. It wrecked his marriage to a beautiful girl. He's ruthless but square. He has another gambler bumped off for welching and doesn't flicker an eyelash. But he also stakes a newsboy's wife to three years in Saranac. Powell's kid brother has got gambling in his blood, too. The kid marries a fine girl and brings her to New York because he wants to play the great "Natural" Davis. "Natural" is Powell, though the kid doesn't know it. Powell sees the kid and his marriage start to go the same heart-breaking route that his has gone. Powell determines to head him off at all costs. To do it, he has to welch in the biggest gambling game of his career. And Powell's bumped off for it.

Sell Powell as per the first paragraph above. Remind them of his fine performances in "Interference," "Canary," "Greene," "Four Feathers," "Pointed Heels" and the others. They demanded him as a star—now they've got him! The Lovable Bad Man of the Screen. The Finest Voice in the Talkies. The 1930-Type Star. Screendom's Most Polished Actor.

Sell the women: What does it mean to be a big-time gambler's wife? Never knowing when he leaves you whether he's coming back a millionaire or a pauper—or at all. In the picture Powell's wife tells how he went out to the corner for five minutes to 'phone his mother and got back three days later with $200,000 won at stud poker. His Wife vs. the Game. Playing the game of love with loaded dice. Hearts—are they something to love with or something to fill a flush with?

Sell the title: "The Street of Chance" is Broadway. Not the Broadway of the lights and theatres. Not the Broadway of the gunmen and the racketeers. But the Broadway where shadows in green eye shades risk a fortune on a roll of the dice; where grim-faced men gather in guarded rooms; where Nerve is King and the Goddess of Chance is Queen and Death rewards the weakling. Map the Street of Chance and mark on it the hotel where "Natural" Davis got his, the apartment where his wife waited, the hotel where the Big Game took place; Larry's.

Sell the story: He risked his brother, his wife and his life on a card. Did he win? The King of the Street of Chance. Fate loaded the dice. Etc.

Sell the supporting cast: Regis Toomey, Jean Arthur (Rogers' new girl friend in "Halfway to Heaven"), Kay Francis (never so beautiful as here). They're all good.

Get a newsboy, like the kid in the picture, to hand passersby cards reading: The Big Game's on at the Rialto Theatre. Stud Poker. "Natural" Davis is playing. Maybe they'll let you tag the street the theatre's on as THE STREET OF CHANCE, putting signs on telephone poles, etc.

Merchant tie-up: Get all the stores on the shopping street of the town to come into a co-op. page under the heading NOT "THE STREET OF CHANCE" BUT "THE STREET OF SURE VALUES."

Window tie-up: Show the various hands in the Big Poker Game in the picture; Powell's, Toomey's, Dorgan's and the rest. A store selling playing cards might give this a window.

The stills are swell. Many of them fine for cut-outs. Show big heads and shoulders of Powell silhouetted against Times Square, Broadway, etc.

"ROAD-HOUSE NIGHTS"

Audiences eat it up. We tried it out at previews in Yonkers, N.Y., and at the Paramount Theatre, N. Y. C., and they went for it like cats to catnip. It's built on a surefire formula—authentic thrills mixed with belly laughs. And some music and a song or two to lend it sparkle. The advance campaign should be especially heavy and smartly planned. The people in "Roadhouse Nights" are:

Helen Morgan—star of "Applause," but not the Helen Morgan of "Applause." She's the glamorous, beautiful brunette Morgan who gets the customers in exclusive N. Y. night clubs all goosefleshed when she swings her legs over a piano and gets all hot and bothered over her man who done her wrong. They get so excited cheering that they pay the $56.75 check in a trance. Doing this kind of stuff she played a bit in Ziegfeld's stage show of "Show Boat" and became the talk of the town. She's this kind of a Morgan in much of "Roadhouse Nights."

Charles Ruggles — funny and lovable drunk of "Gentlemen of the Press" and "The Lady Lies." Charlie is stewed again in "Roadhouse Nights" and has a part that gives him a chance to show why he wowed 'em as the hero of such musical comedy hits as "Queen High," "Rainbow" and the others.

Fred Kohler—heavy of "Thunderbolt" and "Underworld." Doing a Bancroft and doing it swell.

Fuller Mellish, Jr.—the tough hit of the stage "What Price Glory?" and Morgan's "sweet man" of "Applause." And — mark this well because it's HISTORY — AND —

Jimmy Durante—of the famous Broadway stage and night club devastating comedy trio of Clayton, Jackson and Durante. Motion Picture News says, "Jimmy Durante is the Charlie Chaplin of the talking screen." That's not the half of it! After his first scene in the preview at Yonkers the audience burst into roars of laughter if they even caught a glimpse of him in the distance! He's the funniest guy that's hit the screen since the talkies started. He sings. He plays the piano. He roughhouses. He acts. His technique is absolutely unique and unexplainable.

Durante is IMPORTANT. Go after him. Promise them plenty. They'd never heard of the Marx Brothers either—most of 'em—when "Cocoanuts" came to town.

Story by Ben Hecht, who wrote "Underworld." Direction by Hobart Henley, who made "The Lady Lies."

Ten Nights in a Roadhouse—a Lifetime of Thrills, Romance and Laughs for All!

The first night's a love song; The second is grins; The third is a thriller; THEN THE RIOT BEGINS!

See the trick ad and contest in the press sheet based on telegraphic message tapped by Charles Ruggles with ring on telephone transmitter.

Tell the newspaper folks in town that the picture's about two reporters sent on a dangerous story. One get's killed; one marries Helen Morgan. They'll be interested.

SAF 3 MIXER

THE SAF 3 MIXER
Selector of Audible
Frequencies
Marvel Instrument of the Talkie Era

Tunes out frequencies causing BARRELLY MUSIC — MUFFLED SPEECH — SHRILLY NOTES as simply as tuning a radio receiver. Attaches to all types and makes of talking equipments.

SOUND is controlled at the Studio by a MIXER.

You can have the same control necessary for correct reproduction in your theatre with the SAF 3 MIXER.

This instrument was made possible by the achievement of a scientific ideal based on the desirability of controlling sound frequencies. All reproduced sound is caused by electrical frequencies of different periods, ranging from about 30 cycles to 5000 cycles and more. The speech frequencies are in the high range, most melody instruments produce sounds of the lower frequencies. The presence in speech reproduction of over-accented LOWS, causes muffling, drumming sounds which deafen the auditor to the HIGH frequencies, particularly the sibilants "s" "th" and results in a mushy, indistinct rendition of the voice. The SAF 3 MIXER enables the operator to suppress these disturbing LOWS and clear the SOUND. Equally simply is he able to control the HIGHS when music is reproduced, as well as the Middle Register frequencies. SAF 3 will operate on DISC or FILM equipment.

You can put a SAF 3 MIXER in your theatre at a small cost. The installation is simple to make. The operation is simple. The results are amazing.

SAF 3 is a scientifically constructed unit that is absolutely guaranteed. In many cases it will eliminate necessity of expensive acoustical treatment of theatre.

A FILM BILL OF RIGHTS

IMMEDIATELY following the Thacher opinion some months ago, arbitration turned muddled. In a number of key cities throughout the nation, the machinery first slowed down, then completely halted pending a decree outlining what the industry could and could not do.

The period of speculation on that score is over. The decree is now public. In several of its aspects, some preliminary analyses consider it adverse. What is probably meant by "adverse" is that Judge Thacher has legally frowned upon practices that have grown up with the system and which, through usage, are considered equitable and sane. But, from the broad viewpoint of an industry endeavoring to improve the relationship between its component elements without regard to custom and precedent, the story might easily be somewhat different.

A Bill of Rights Defined

However, it is a fact, definitely established, that a bill of rights in matters, arbitration has been handed down for this business to abide by. We recall several responsible men declaring that a clearing of the decks, a definition of what is proper and improper, was much to be desired to the end that necessary adjustments might be made and the way of the future cleared of obstacles. That, too, is now here. What is going to be done about it?

It seems to us that the brain power of this industry, collectively if you like, is more than sufficient to cope with the situation. The observation, old and oft-repeated, that the principle of arbitration is sound stands repetition. No sensible argument against it has ever been advanced to this writer's knowledge. But considerable has been said regarding its set up and its workings.

The Doubts Are Now Removed

But those workings have been defined and held within a sphere which the United States Government considers equitable. And the basis for a clearer understanding and a more smoothly functioning structure turned over to this business. It now becomes mandatory to make the proper adjustments.

This column, therefore, views the Thacher decree as an important document, a Magna Charta if you will, that outlines the limitations as well as the extent of an important industry's legal rights in commercial procedure without which that business suffers.

The Talkers Acquire Tone

Wide speculation has been rampant over the next big development in types of talking pictures. All of the well known and accepted forms of entertainment have been pretty well milked dry. And so it becomes apparent that something new has to be annexed, if anything new there is.

The indications may be wrong, but that something looks like grand, or near grand opera. Lawrence Tibbett, right off the Metropolitan's own stage, is creating furore in Hollywood with "The Rogue's Song." M-G-M has signed Grace Moore and has been flirting with Mary Garden.

From time to time, Jeritza, the Viennese song bird, has been reported about to succumb to the appeal of Hollywood and its gold-paved highways. John McCormack's keen business manager managed to place his Irish tenor with Fox for ten weeks at a weekly figure that is breath-taking. So it goes.

A New Vogue; Watch It Spread

The flood bids fair to rise rapidly from now on. Coupled with this new step forward. . . and certainly it is that . . . is the probability that the screen will attempt to develop an operatic formula of its own, a mixture of what opera gives and the screen requires. The initial attempts, like all new efforts, will probably be laughable. However, this industry has demonstrated its capabilities for resource to the full. Why not then with the operatic urge?

An Insider's Outlook

IT IS whispered—just that and no more—that John J. Raskob has invested $9,000,000 in the Warner Brothers. A lot of money and a lot of potential significance in that. For instance:

Raskob, formerly the factotum that counted in affairs financial for General Motors structure, is very closely identified with the Du Ponts. He was also chairman of the Democratic committee during the Smith campaign. Raskob is very much big business and is generally described as financier extraordinary. The type of man whose name looms large in forecasting the country's prosperity and all that sort of thing.

It Means What?

And so, Raskob—if the whisperings are correct and there is sufficient reason to believe they are—is now a heavy stockholder in the amazingly prosperous Warner group. What it all means makes for several guesses. The more extravagant you make 'em, the closer you'll probably be.

Harry Warner, at one end of the telephone and this observer at the other, had this to say:

> "Warner stock, you know, is on the market and anybody can buy it. So far as direct investment in this company is concerned, I don't know anything about it."

And that, as the phrase goes, is that.

Dizzy Pastime

The Fox melee. Everybody seems to be right and wrong at one time. You head this and you hear that and your conclusions are exactly what you read into them. However, this much is certain:

Every effort is being made to straighten out what is perhaps the most complex tangle the corporate history of this industry has ever experienced. Yesterday, a ray of promising light sifted through the murk of confusing statements in the expressed intention of conflicting interests to ward off a receivership if such a course is at all possible.

The chances? How can we tell, if such eminent legal talent as Samuel Untermyer and Charles Evans Hughes seem to have their doubts?

While verbal barrages are being hurled in all directions at one time, Fox Film continues on its serene and highly lucrative way. Profits, we happen to know rather definitely about this, are sky high and several leagues ahead of anything in the company's career. Gross business is three millions and some old thousands ahead of the corresponding period last year. Cash is flowing into the coffers weekly in six impressive figures. An anomaly and a very curious one at that.

Young Man Named Menzies

It didn't run more than ten minutes, but before "Glorious Vamps" was ended it seemed to us that in William Cameron Menzies who had considerable to do with its production, here was a director of considerable potential importance.

Menzies long has been art director for Joe Schenck. Now he is an associate producer. He should be a director. The one reeler of which we speak offers sufficient proof. Menzies, for instance, has given this one subject production investiture . . . clever, commercial and artistic . . . that many features are denied. He knows the camera. He knows his backgrounds. He knows values. In short he simply knows his stuff and should get a real chance to demonstrate it.

Inside Looking Out

In a certain New York hotel, a well-known film man has set up an office. By his own words, he is acting on behalf of a second and better known executive, but the exact purport of the set-up has not yet come to light. The funny slant on this little incident is that the associates of said second mogul are understood not to know what is going on right under their noses. Interesting situation. Considerable mystery. Also speculation.

Then there is the revived story of the chap . . . big film man . . . who is about to move to new stamping grounds. He's one of the fellows whose salary snuggles in the six figure division every year. The surprise angle of this inside yarn involves a former executive, now inactive in pictures, who may join hands with the man we talk about . . . you'll have to wait for this one.

Who was it anyway who spent a week in Washington pulling wires left and right to keep a very well known star out of trouble because the star had failed to fill out his income tax blank correctly?

R-K-O Reported Seeking to Buy Fox As Battle for Control Continues

Lehman Brothers, The Intermediary, Declared Ready to Aid Refinancing If Fox Agrees to New Trusteeship

"I'll take my chances on a receivership."

That was the dramatic decision made Thursday by William Fox in rejecting the plan for appointment of three new trustees, a proposal which is declared to have been advanced by his own counsel, and agreed to by all parties in the two receivership actions.

Following this decision, Judge Coleman issued an order to Fox to show cause on Monday why a receivership should not be granted for the Fox enterprises.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum, acting through Lehman Brothers, is seeking to acquire control of the Fox enterprises, MOTION PICTURE NEWS is exclusively and reliably informed. A bid for the holdings has been made by the banking firm, it is understood, while the battle for control of the company continues to rage.

Strength to this report was lent Thursday by proposal of Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Fox, that a new trusteeship committee be named to manage company affairs, composed of Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state; John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for president in 1924, and a third to be named by Lehman Brothers. Reports were current Thursday night that Lehman Brothers were prepared to extricate Fox from the present difficulties, if he agrees to the new trusteeship, giving additional credence to the R-K-O angle.

The Untermyer proposal was made at Thursday's meeting of counsel for Fox, for Ira A. Gast, suing for a receivership as a Class A stockholder and for Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, owner of about one-fifth of Class B shares, who seeks a permanent receiver. The meetings were called by Federal Judge Coleman before whom the receiver actions are to be heard. Confidence was expressed at the meetings that a solution would be reached and a receivership avoided. Meanwhile, there is report of a proposed new receivership action for another group of Class A stockholders.

Fox Securities Corp. is continuing campaign to sell $35,000,000 in 7 per cent gold notes, as a means to relieve the situation.

Deal Reported On for British Chain

Reports that a British syndicate is closing a deal for purchase of the Fox holdings in the British Gaumont chain, for $15,000,000 lack official confirmation. Denial has been made in behalf of Lord Rothermere, visiting in New York, that he is connected with the proposed deal. One report is that the Midland Bank of England is behind it.

Several weeks ago, MOTION PICTURE NEWS exclusively stated that a British syndicate was in New York seeking to purchase Fox's holdings in Loew's.

Fox-Gaumont Status Puzzles Britishers

London.—There is a diversity of opinion in the local trade over the status of Gaumont British. It has been consistently denied that Fox had acquired any interest in the chain, despite the opinion prevailing when Bromhead Brothers retired from control. Meanwhile, it is believed that Fox has a controlling interest, or a tentative one, but it is also felt this may be resold, with Paramount again named as a possible purchaser.

Fox Managers Promise to Buy 1, Sell 10 Gold Notes

Purchase of one gold note each and sale of ten others has been pledged by managers of the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses. Similar pledges are expected from managers of all other Fox theatres.

Situation Causing Studio Concern

Hollywood—Effort may be made to induce high-salaried players, directors, writers and others on the Fox lot to accept salary reductions as a temporary relief measure to assist William Fox.

Hollywood.—Although there is considerable concern among the Fox studio personnel over the existing situation, all are sympathetic, especially the old-timers who are standing by to assist in any possible manner.

The concern is over whether existing contracts will hold if a receivership is granted. Studio employes generally are carrying a heavy load of both Fox Film and Fox Theatres stock, many having purchased their blocks at high levels.

Bankers Suing on Short Term Notes?

Neither denial or confirmation is obtainable of the report current in the financial district that Halsey Stuart and Co., have served papers on the Fox Film Corporation on behalf of holders of approximately $260,000 of the $12,000,000 short-term notes due April 1. The suit, reported to have been instituted before date of maturity, is understood to be based on a covenant in the financing agreement between the two firms.

The text of the financing covenant under which it is understood Halsey, Stuart & Co. have based their suit, is as follows: "These notes are a direct obligation of corporation which covenants in the notes that so long as they shall remain outstanding it will not increase or assume, or issue any indebtedness, except unsecured obligations arising out of current operations and unsecured bank loans for current operating accounts made in the usual course of business, maturing not more than 120 days from the date on which such obligations were incurred or such loans were made, as the case may be."

Fox Raps Charge of Mismanagement

Charge was made this week by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, claiming to be owner of approximately one-fifth of the Class B which is the voting stock of Fox Film Corporation and promptly denied by William Fox he had speculated with corporate funds.

The charge was contained in a petition filed in the Federal Court in New York to place the Fox Film Corporation in a permanent receivership in equity. Mrs. Kuser also alleged Fox Theatres Corporation through "dummy and rubber stamp directors voted Fox salary of $150,000 a year." An injunction restraining any payment of salary to Fox, the payments of any monies to him, to any of his relatives or to any firm in which they or he had any interest is sought. Mrs. Kuser attacked the declared purchase of Loew's, Inc. stock at $125 a share, when the stock, she averred, was selling in the open market at $70 a share, the over-payment amounting to $25,000,000. She claims Fox contracted to buy a chain of British theatres for $19,000,000, twenty-five times their yearly earnings without personally examining the properties and relying solely on the seller's representations. Fox declares he relinquished his salary three and a half years ago and has not received a dollar since.

Fox's "Cabinet" Balked at Delay On Trustee Agreement, Suit Charges

Round Robin Signed by Sheehans, Rogers, Grainger, Zanft and Smith Alleged to Have Called on Fox to Fulfill Pledges

William Fox's own "cabinet," the men who have been closest to him in carrying out administration of Fox enterprises, opposed his moves in forestalling carrying out of the trusteeship agreement, insisting that the discharge of this agreement was essential to the future welfare of the companies involved in the present financial situation.

This is the contention made in an exhibit filed in the receivership action brought against Fox Film by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, claiming to hold approximately 20 per cent of the Class B (voting shares). This exhibit purports to be copy of a letter sent to Fox by Winfield R. Sheehan, Saul E. Rogers, James R. Grainger, Howard Sheehan, John Zanft and Courtland Smith.

"Any effort to recede from its (the trusteeship) plan would meet with public condemnation and would be contrary to the best interests of the companies and the entire personnel thereof," it is stated in the letter, allegedly addressed to Fox under date of Dec. 17.

Courtland Smith, one of the reputed signatories, at the time was general manager of Fox Movietone News, a post which he relinquished this week, severing his connection with Fox enterprises.

Text of the reputed letter, as contained in the exhibit filed with the Kuser papers, follows:

Dec. 17, 1929.

Mr. William Fox, President,
Fox Film Corporation,
Fox Theatres Corporation,
850 Tenth Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Fox:

The undersigned, executives of the above companies, having in mind and in heart the preservation and rehabilitation of the properties of the two above companies and the maintenance of the high morale of the executives and administrative forces of the companies, as well as the general employee body of the companies, and the interests of the shareholders and creditors, have deemed it necessary, after careful deliberation, to direct this message to you in the hope that you will give it the prompt consideration and action thereon that it requires.

We wish to impress upon you that the views expressed herein by us are not merely our own views, but are the views of the personnel of our various staffs at home and abroad.

We feel convinced that in order to place the company in a position to properly function and to have a constant source of supply and proper distribution and exhibition of high-class product and to maintain our public relations and the confidence of our public in the companies that the trustees under the trust agreement as executed be permitted to function in accordance with the terms thereof and under the principles involved in the trusteeship.

The creation of this trusteeship was released to the public press by you personally, and in that manner you publicly proclaimed that as your plan and have committed yourself to it thereby and have placed your co-trustees and the eminent firm who represent the trustees as counsel, in a position of receiving your sanction to act in their various capacities. Any endeavor on your part at this time to recede from that position would meet with public condemnation and would be contrary to the best interests of the companies and the entire personnel thereof.

We feel firmly convinced that any other steps or any other contemplated action would be destructive to the companies and to the various interests above enumerated and that nothing short of disaster would follow in its wake.

We feel that you would not ask us to commit ourselves to a course of conduct that we unanimously feel would be highly immoral and which we feel we could not ethically or morally defend. Our conduct in the past should indicate to you that this would never be consented to by us because we have endeavored to maintain a standard of honorable dealings in the course of the execution of our functions as officials of your companies—that we know you would not desire us to depart from.

With the thought in mind only of the preservation of our reputations and that of the companies which we have had an active part in upbuilding and in order to have carried out a policy of reconstruction that will place these companies again in a firm financial and economic condition and to maintain the good-will and confidence of the public, we join in this petition to you to immediately take steps to cause the trusteeship agreement to be carried into full force and effect and to have the trustees carry out their program of reorganization of both companies, feeling confident that in the light of the above you will not refuse this request.

We wish you to know that there is not the slightest desire on our part to have you feel that we are reflecting on you nor receding in our personal loyalty to you, but we in turn feel that after the disinterested efforts we have put into the companies, we are entitled, in turn, from you a loyalty to us, to our reputations and our positions that we feel confident you will reciprocate.

If you acquiesce in this request and carry on under the trusteeship agreement, we firmly pledge the same loyalty, tireless energy and honest application to the exercise of our duties in the future that we have given in the past.

Very truly yours,

WINFIELD R. SHEEHAN,
Vice President & General Manager,
Fox Film Corporation.

SAUL E. ROGERS,
Vice President & General Counsel,
Fox Film Corporation & Fox Theatres Corporation.

JAMES R. GRAINGER,
General Sales Manager, Fox Film Corporation.

H. SHEEHAN,
Foreign Manager, Fox Film Corporation.

JOHN ZANFT,
Vice President & General Manager,
Fox Theatres Corporation.

COURTLAND SMITH,
General Manager, Fox Movietone News.

Protective Committee for Class A Holders Active

Class A stockholders of Fox Film have been requested by the Class A Stockholders Protective Committee to deposit their stock by Feb. 15 with the Commercial National Bank and Trust Co. of New York. Arthur G. Mayor, former director of the Manhattan Co., is chairman of the committee, and other members are Allen I. Cole, former president of the Pennsylvania Exchange Bank; Dr. Julius Toff and T. S. DaBonti, secretary.

N. Y. Trip of Franklin Off, Following Stuart Confab

New York trip of Harold B. Franklin was postponed following his arrival in Chicago where he met H. L. Stuart, one of the trustees. From Chicago, Franklin talked by telephone to Winfield Sheehan in New York making his visit to the home office unnecessary. Prior to going to Chicago, Franklin was in Kansas City on theatre business.

Loew Preferred Holders Receive Dividend Feb. 15

Loew's, Inc., will pay a dividend of $1.62½ to stockholders of the cumulative preferred on Feb. 15, payable to holders on the books as of Feb. 1.

They Wonder Why

Considerable speculation prevails over the sudden resignation of Courtland Smith as general manager of Fox Movietone News. Smith is understood to have been instrumental in interesting J. E. Otterson, a close friend, and Harry Stuart in formation of the trusteeship committee of which William Fox was third member. As a result, it was believed generally that Smith, together with Winfield Sheehan and James R. Grainger, would figure more importantly than ever before in the management of the Fox enterprises.

General Shake-Up at Fox-Case Corp.

The shake-up on the Fox-Hearst Movietone staff, which started when Courtland Smith was succeeded as general manager by Truman Talley, resulted in a wholesale change in the news and technical units.

E. I. Sponable, who resigned as chief engineer and technical director, was responsible for the development of Grandeur film, and many other important developments in the Fox-Case laboratory. E. C. Harvey succeeds E. P. Howard as managing editor of Fox Movietone News.

Exhibitor Aid Is Asked by Showmen

Theatre owners of the nation are called upon to aid in extricating Fox from financial difficulties through purchase of the seven per cent. gold notes being offered by Fox Securities Corp., in a round robin signed by exhibitors representing 233 theatres, who held a meeting in New York.

Exhibitors who attended the sessions, expressed their faith in the company and its soundness, as well as the forthcoming product, and declared their intention of helping organize regional meetings to sell gold notes, sale of which is declared progressing. They also subscribed for a substantial portion of the note issue, it is stated.

Signers of the appeal are: William Benton, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., five theatres: Samuel Bendheim and Morton Thalimer, Richmond, three; Chris H. Buckley, Albany, three; Sydney S. Cohen, New York, two; Fred J. Dolle, Louisville, 25; William C. Hunt, Trenton, 16; H. B. Koppin, Detroit, 30; Howard Payne, Pawtucket, two; Mort Shea, Youngstown, O., 20; H. W. Sherer, Johnston, Pa., two; Frank C. Walker (Comerford chain), 115; Frank Zeitz, New Bedford, Mass., two.

Fox Resisted Trusteeship 48 Hours After Arrangement, Charging "Plot"

Plan Was Part of Well-Concocted Scheme to Gain Control of His Companies, He Tells Stockholders Urging of Buying Notes

Fox resisted carrying out of the first trusteeship agreement, because he believed 48 hours after entering into it that the trusteeship was a cleverly-concocted scheme to gain control of his companies by so-called friends, he indicates in a letter to stockholders, in which he charges a Wall Street plot to ruin him. His letter calls upon stockholders "as a measure of protection to yourself" to buy the 7 per cent notes being sold to raise $35.000.000 to pay off outstanding indebtedness.

Fox's attack on the trusteeship committee members of which beside himself are J. E. Otterson, head of Electrical Research Products, and Harry Stuart of Halsey-Stuart, climaxes lengthy explanation of events which he said led up to his present predicament, and expresses an abiding faith in "square shooting people of this country" who, "when they know the facts they will stand by me and fight with me."

"In the early part of 1928 I conceived a development program for the interests which I represent as president that would involve the expenditure of over $100,000,000. This plan was discussed in its minutest detail with my associates, with my bankers, and those other large forces vitally interested in the success of our enterprises. Without exception the seal of approval was placed on this development program, so that I had every reason to believe that when the plan was carried out there would be no difficulty in securing the necessary financing.

"The plan, briefly, was to purchase successfully operated theatres with satisfactory earning capacity throughout the country, to secure as nearly as possible a controlling interest in one of the most successful moving picture organizations in the world and to get a strong foothold in England by the purchase of a substantial interest in the largest of English moving picture organizations.

"The strategy of my operations were carefully worked out with my business associates and with those who were to carry out the financing end of the program. And may I say in all modesty that every step of this more than one hundred million dollar project was carried out as planned, so that on its completion I was receiving the plaudits and congratulations not only of those in the industry, but of the world at large. I was being heralded by the press of this and other countries as a man of great vision in an industry of great men, representing an investment of approximately two billions of dollars with earnings running into the hundreds of millions.

"Upon completion of this program immense sums of money were required which were made available to me as head of the organization which I represent by my bankers, by great organizations affiliated with us, and by Wall Street bankers—all of these forces were thoroughly familiar with my operations, and as bankers, knew that these short-term obligations would have to be consolidated into long-term financing. There was no limit to the credit of my organizations, and I was encouraged in every way to go through with the program.

"1. On July 17 some friends and myself were motoring to spend a pleasant day on the golf course. Shortly after leaving the city my automobile was run into by a car driven by a nervous woman. My chauffeur paid with his life for this accident.

"2. I was taken to the hospital seriously injured and remained on my back for nearly three months; upon advice of my physician refraining from attending to the business of my corporations.

"3. I returned to my office on Oct. 25, and on Oct. 29, five days after my return, came the financial panic that rocked the whole of this country from one end to the other.

"The securities of the Fox enterprises were no exception to the rule. The crash had affected them as it had the securities of the greatest and oldest organizations in this country. Securities of the organizations which had been purchased in connection with the development program and upon which banks and others had made loans were also greatly affected, so that the need for immediate financing to protect these short-term obligations became very apparent. I immediately presented the situation to the bankers and those others who were associated with me in the creation of these short-term obligations and was very calmly and coldly informed that this was no time to do permanent financing, that the country was in a panic and it was 'each man for himself.'

"It was not long before troublesome days were upon us. 'Each man for himself' semed to permeate the entire structure of the banking interests, with the result that demands were made upon me and my companies which were impossible to meet. At this juncture there was presented to me (what I believe to have been a cleverly concocted scheme) in the form of a friendly gesture in which all that was necessary was for me to place in the hands of 'friends' the control of the companies that I headed and in turn these so-called 'friends' would see to it that the problems of the companies would be solved. Willingly and gladly I agreed to this arrangement, feeling that I would do the companies a great service and at the same time protect the interests of the stockholders who had invested their many millions in the organizations that I represent.

"Within forty-eight hours after this arrangement had been entered into it became evident to me that instead of an attempt to help and protect, I had placed myself in the hands of those who were determined to make capital of the difficulties of my organizations, for which they themselves were in part responsible. Naturally, I resisted this attempt at destruction with all my strength of mind and body, with the result that I found myself arayed against the most powerful forces in the financial world. No matter where I turned every door was closed to me. Banking friends who were lifelong acquaintances came to me secretly and told me that they wanted to help but they dared not; that to come to my assistance at this time would bring down upon their heads the resentment and enmity of the most powerful forces on 'the Street.' They told me that the gods of Wall Street had practically proclaimed my doom and that nothing on earth could prevent this great money machine from mowing me down.

"A whispering campaign of the most vicious nature was started and Wall Street was filled with rumors. The press and the stock ticker carried these rumors daily. A stockholders' committee was supposed to be organized, which I believed and still believe was intended to damage our enterprises. Taking advantage of these rumors, the bears began to raid the Fox securities, so that more of these securities have been traded in on the New York Stock Exchange during the past month than almost any other of the approximately fifteen hundred securities on the exchange. The selling of the Fox Film and Fox Theatres short if presented to the lawmakers of this land would result in legislation which would forever prevent short selling as now engaged in on the New York Stock Exchange.

"During the period of one month the entire issue of the Fox Film Corp. had been sold over three times, when it is a well known fact that out of the 820,000 shares of Fox Film approximately 450,000 shares are locked in vaults in all parts of this country. Many of our stockholders were compelled to throw their stock on the market at a price that had no relationship to its value.

Ford Cold

Unsuccessful bid for support of Henry Ford is reported to have been made by William Fox, who despatched David Brown to Detroit for conferences with the automobile magnate. Brown carried assurance that former President Coolidge and Al Smith had been lined up to serve on a committee, and emphasized comparison of the present Fox situation to Ford's jam of several years ago with Wall St. interests, according to report.

Ford, so the story goes, sent his agent to New York to check the Fox situation, but decided against projecting himself into the picture.

"The present price on the New York Stock Exchange of the Fox Film and Fox Theatres Corp. is approximately one year's earnings of these joint corporations. If there ever was evidence of the danger to the public by 'bear' activities on the Stock Exchange, the history of the past month with the dealings of the Fox securities is the best testimony that could be presented.

"All of my life, since the age of six, I have had to fight the battle of life. This great industry which I now head was started with my life's savings of $1,600. Since then there has been built up a financial structure which represents approximately $250,000,000. I have never been a quitter. I have tried to fight the game clean. And so when I found myself and my organizations sentenced to financial death, I determined to fight this battle as I have fought every battle of my life—in the open, and clean.

"Every sort of proposition has been made to me by every type and kind of financial organization—first, they must make millions; second, I must put my head on the block. I am determined that I shall present my case to the square-shooting people of this country, having an abiding faith that when they know the facts they will stand by me and fight with me.

"I gathered around me loyal friends, men whose devotion and affection for me are unquestioned. I presented my case, and a plan for financing these great organizations developed."

The statement concludes with a description of the $35,000,000 short term note issue which Fox plans to float, and suggests stockholders "purchase some of these securities as a measure of protection to yourself."

Text of Trusteeship Agreement

(As Claimed In Kuser Receivership Action)

Agreement made this 3rd day of December, 1929, between WILLIAM FOX, of the Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York (hereinafter called "Fox"), party of the first part, and H. L. STUART, JOHN E. OTTERSON and WILLIAM FOX (hereinafter called the "Trustees"), parties of the second part.

WITNESSETH:

Fox owns fifty thousand one hundred and one (50,101) shares, or over fifty per cent (50%) of the Class B voting stock of the Fox Film Corporation, a New York corporation, and one hundred thousand (100,000) shares, or one hundred percent (100%) of the Class B voting stock of Fox Theatres Corporation, also a New York corporation.

Fox has requested the trustees to assist said corporations in connection with their financial affairs and the trustees have consented to do so upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto in consideration of the premises have agreed as follows:

FIRST: Fox agrees, contemporaneously with the execution of this instrument, to deposit certificates, duly endorsed for transfer and in form to constitute a good delivery under the rules of the New York Stock Exchange for all of said Class B stock of said corporations owned by him pursuant to and in accordance with the terms of an escrow letter addressed to the Bankers Trust Company, a copy of which is hereto annexed and made a part of this agreement.

Fox further agrees that if under any plan of reorganization and refinancing of said two corporations, or either of them, it should become necessary or proper to deposit under such plan the Class B voting stock of said two corporations that are deposited in escrow with the Bankers Trust Company prior to the termination of the said escrow agreement, Fox will upon the request of the trustees arrange with the Bankers Trust Company for the release of said stock from the escrow and the deposit by the Bankers Trust Company of the certificates representing the same under said plan of reorganization and refinancing.

If the plan necessitates a loss of voting control now vested in such Class B voting stock the value assigned to such Class B stock in relation to the value assigned to the Class A stock of said corporations shall be subject to the approval of counsel for the trustees hereinafter appointed.

SECOND: Fox agrees to deliver to the trustees forthwith the resignations of all of the directors and such of the officers of the said two companies as the trustees may request with the exception of the Presi-

Claim Fox Liabilities Outweigh Quick Assets in Kuser Complaint

Despite a consolidated balance sheet as of September 28, 1929, showing assets of Fox Film Corporation to be $139,267,000, total quick assets of the company are only $6,806,000 as against current liabilities of $12,699,000, Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser claims in her action for a receivership against the corporation.

She asserts the remaining assets consist principally of inventories, investments in and advances to subsidiary companies and associated enterprises "scarcely any part of which would be or could be made available within any reasonable time to meet the current, pressing and rapidly maturing obligations of the defendant. This stand is advanced as another argument in her effort to secure from the Federal Court the receivership which forms the basis of her suit.

The balance sheet so described was drawn up by Touche, Niven and Co., accountants, at the request of William Fox and submitted to the latter in a communication dated December 27, 1929, the complaint alleges. It covers Fox Film Corporation and wholly owned subsidiaries and defines the financial statement of these companies as of September 28,1929, supplemented by "a scrutiny of the general books of the corporation for the period from September 29, 1929, to December 26, 1929," the bill further outlines, adding that the statement gives effect to the following:

(1) The acquisition of certain theatre properties consummated by December 26, 1929, or the consummation of which was contemplated definitely by that date;
(2) The issuance of unsecured notes payable to banks in the amount of $1,200,000 and of secured notes payable to banks in the amount of $1,000,000;
(3) The sale of the investment of the corporation and its subsidiary companies in the capital stock of First National Pictures, Inc., and
(4) The increase of notes receivable arising from advances made by the corporation out of the proceeds derived from the latter transaction.

Described as Exhibit A, this balance sheet is included in the Kuser complaint and reads as follows:

FOX FILM CORPORATION AND WHOLLY OWNED SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES
Consolidated Balance Sheet, September 28, 1929.

(Being balance sheet, prepared from the books without audit, giving effect to (1) the acquisition of certain theatre properties consummated by December 26, 1929, or the consummation of which was contemplated definitely by that date, (2) the issuance of unsecured notes payable to banks in the amount of $1,200,000.00 and of secured notes payable to banks in the amount of $1,000,000.00, (3) the sale of the investment of the Corporation and its subsidiary companies in the capital stock of First National Pictures, Inc., and (4) the increase of notes receivable from associated corporations arising from advances made by the Corporation out of the proceeds derived from the last two transactions.)

Fox Enters Denial of Kuser Charges

In answer to the bill of complaint filed by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser seeking a permanent receivership for Fox Film Corporation, William Fox makes a general denial of the charges levelled against him. This was in the form of a statement made generally to the press. It reads:

"I deeply resent the published statement taken from the bill of complaint filed today by Mrs. Anthony R. Kuser in the Federal Court. Whatever else may happen to me, I propose to maintain my honor. There is not a word of truth to the assertion that I have speculated with the money of Fox Film or Fox Theatres Corporation or with the funds of any company with which I have ever been concerned.

Says Dividends Were $2,203,000

"Not only have Mrs. Kuser's large present stock holdings not cost her a dollar, but, on the contrary, she and her husband were long since repaid their total investment, and have had millions of dollars besides in cash and stock dividends. All I know about the contents of the Kuser complaint is what appears in the newspapers, my counsel, Mr. Samuel Untermyer, having thus far been unable to secure a copy of the pleading.

"It is also stated that I have received hundreds of thousands of dollars in salary. In point of fact, I relinquished my salary three and a half years ago and never since received a dollar. In all that time I never had a check to my order from any Fox company. I ask the public to suspend judgment until the facts can be presented to it, which I hope will not be long.

"The companies are overwhelmingly solvent. The only question is one of a little patience on the part of the creditors until new financing now under consideration can be completed.

"The newspaper accounts state that the Fox Company paid $125 per share for the Loew's stock. In point of fact, it cost the company an average of $105 per share. While this was a good price, although the stock is now earning at the rate of $10 per share, it is worth far more to the Fox Company than the sum paid, the saving from consolidation of the companies in eliminating duplication and overhead charges is estimated to be worth about $17,000,000 per year to the consolidated company.

"In 1915, when the Fox Corporation was incorporated, its capital structure was $500,000 of 8 per cent preferred stock and 100,000 shares of common stock. The $500,000 worth of preferred stock was subscribed as follows: $100,000 by William Fox, $200.-

Asserts Companies Are Fully Solvent

000 by Anthony R. Kuser and his family, and the balance of $200,000 by others in New Jersey.

"I received as a bonus 50,000 shares of the common stock, Anthony R. Kuser and his family received 25,000 shares, and the remaining 25,000 shares of common stock were given to those who bought the remaining $200,000 of the preferred stock.

"Some time during the latter part of 1917, the $500,000 of preferred stock was retired. During the time it was outstanding, 8% per annum was paid on it. After the preferred shares were paid at par and retired, the common shares were the only outstanding stock.

"From 1918 to 1925, these common shares paid $5 per annum. The Kuser family having 25,000 shares of this common stock, received $125,000 per annum in dividends from 1918 to 1925. In 1925 the company was recapitalized in the following manner: The common shares given originally as bonus were called "B" shares and had the voting power, and there were authorized an additional 900,000 shares of common stock: and at this time there was declared a 235% stock dividend or in other words the 100,000 shares outstanding received 235,000 additional shares without payment.

"In terms of shares, the Kuser family shares were increased from 25,000 to between 83,000 and 84,000 shares. The Kuser family received $4 per annum per share on these 83,000 and a fraction shares from 1925 up to the date of the payment of the last dividend in October, or on a per share basis they received $332,000 per year which in four years amounted to $1,328.000 in cash dividends.

Says Stock Cost Nothing

"Originally from 1918 to 1925, they had received $125,000 per year on the stock they held. Therefore, the Kuser family received in all, in dividends $2,203,000. For the number of shares the Kuser family claim they now have left and subtracting that from the 83,000 shares they received for nothing, it is evident they must have sold more than 50,000 shares. It is fair to assume that they sold them somewhere between $70 and $100 per share. And therefore they received for them somewhere between $3,500,000 and $5,000,000. Taking the lesser amount, $3,500,000 and adding to it the dividends they received up to date, which is $2,203,000, makes a total of $5.703,000, without a single dollar invested. The balance of the stock they now hold is additional profit."

"Wasteful Strife" Impends Unless Court Names Receiver, Is Charge

Fox Film Corporation has about $50,000,000 in liabilities due and payable on or before April 30, 1930, and "has made no provision for the payment of any substantial part thereof," it is charged in the action for receivership filed by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser against the Fox Film Corporation.

Mrs. Kuser alleges that many of the creditors are threatening to bring suit if their obligations are not paid as they become due and that "action already taken by some of the defendant's creditors to enforce their claims threatens to precipitate general action by the other creditors and thus threatens to cause a multiplicity of suits and wasteful strife and controversy." The plaintiff further contends that such strife can be avoided if the court will appoint a receiver to manage the business.

Touche, Niven and Co., accountants, on or about December 10, 1929, furnished to Halsey Stuart and Co. a partial statement of the obligations payable and maturing prior to April 30, 1930, which totalled $46,027,565.50, the Kuser papers claim. "In addition," continues the brief, "said statement also set forth liabilities in respect to the acquisition of theatre properties, as to which closing dates had not then been set, and which amounted to $2,534,000 more."

Marked as Exhibit B and attached to the papers appears a list claiming to represent the obligations of the defendant company. The text, now in file in the Federal Court for the Southern District of New York, follows:

Text of Trustee Compact With Fox

dent, also the resignations of the directors of fully controlled subsidiaries and of the directors representing the interests of Fox Film Corporation or Fox Theatres Corporation in partially controlled subsidiaries.

THIRD: The trustees will endeavor to prepare a plan of reorganization and refinancing of the companies and in the meantime will undertake negotiations with a view to preventing the sacrifice of the assets of the companies, including particularly securities pledged. The trustees will also undertake to negotiate with creditors and other persons interested in the situation with the view of obtaining their forebearance and cooperation during the period of the preparation and submission and adoption of any such plan.

FOURTH: The trustees have retained as their counsel Messrs. Hughes, Schurman & Dwight. No plan of reorganization and refinancing of the companies shall be finally submitted to the creditors and stockholders for approval and adoption until all the legal questions involved therein have been approved by such counsel, and if said plan should be disapproved by such counsel for any reason other than legal reasons, then the trustees may submit the plan to both classes of stockholders of the said two corporations, whose decision with respect thereto shall be final and conclusive. It is understood that by "plan of reorganization and refinancing" is meant also the sale of any substantial portion of the assets of said companies or either of them.

FIFTH: The action of any two of the trustees with respect to any of the matters embraced in this agreement shall be deemed to be the action of the trustees.

SIXTH: In the event of the death, resignation or inability to act of John E. Otterson, his successor shall be appointed by Electrical Research Products, Inc., a Delaware corporation, and in the event of the death, resignation or inability to act of H. L. Stuart, his successor shall be appointed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., an Illinois corporation. In the event of the resignation or inability to act of William Fox, his successor shall be appointed by Fox, and in the event of his death by his personal representatives. Any trustee may designate a proxy to act for him in his absence from New York City.

SEVENTH: In the event that the trustees shall, within the period specified in the escrow agreement, or any extension thereof that may be agreed to by said Fox submit a plan for the reorganization and refinancing of said corporation, said Fox agrees that if one of the terms of said plan of reorganization or refinancing is that he will agree that the voting stock of said two companies shall be deposited under a voting trust agreement providing for at least three trustees, to continue for a period of five years, in which voting trustees shall be selected by the trustees, the said Fox will deposit his said Class B voting stock under said voting trust agreement. It is understood, however, that the said Fox or his nominee is to be one of the trustees so selected if at that time he owns a substantial amount of Class B stock in said corporations.

In the event that litigation should delay the submission of a plan of reorganization and refinancing and in the judgment of the trustees an extension of the escrow agreement is desirable Fox agrees to extend such escrow agreement, upon request of the trustees, from time to time, such extension not to exceed in the aggregate six months.

EIGHTH: In the event that the trustees shall elect to relinquish their efforts to bring about a plan of reorganization and refinancing of the companies prior to the time fixed in the escrow letter attached thereto, said trustees shall be at liberty to do so and agree to notify the Bankers Trust Company and the said Fox of such intention at least thirty (30) days prior to the date fixed in said notice of intention, and in the meantime agree to continue to act as trustees hereunder.

NINTH: It is understood and agreed that the trustees by signing this agreement assume no personal financial responsibility and shall not be liable in any event for any acts or omissions on the part of the trustees, their agents, attorneys or employees, or for any cause whatever except for their own wilful misconduct.

TENTH: The trustees are authorized to employ agents, attorneys and accountants or to engage any other assistance which they deem necessary or proper for the carrying out of the intent and purposes of this ageement, and Fox covenants and agrees that he will pay or cause to be paid all disbursements, expenses or charges incurred by the trustees hereunder. The trustees shall serve without compensation.

ELEVENTH: It is understood and agreed that the resignations of a majority of the directors of Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theatres Corporation are to be accepted forthwith and Fox covenants and agrees that he will forthwith cause the remaining directors to elect in the place and stead of the directors whose resignations the trustees request persons nominated by the trustees.

TWELFTH: The trustees agree to maintain and preserve the organization of the said two corporations and their subsidiaries and agree that they will make only such changes in the officers and personnel of said two corporations as in their judgment may be necessary pending the adoption of a plan of reorganization and refinancing of said two corporations.

Pending the adoption of any plan of reorganization and refinancing Fox shall be continued as president of both of the companies, but the trustees may in their discretion cause the board of directors of both companies to change the duties of the president by transferring the responsibility for the financial affairs of the companies to some other officer or officers, person or persons. It is contemplated that there shall be included in the term "financial affairs" all negotiations for the sale, purchase or lease of properties.

According to the Kuser brief, this agreement was signed by William Fox, J. E. Otterson and for H. L. Stuart "by G. E. Stuart."

The Legal Battery

What their total fees are is a statistician's job, but the line up of attorneys in the various Fox situations is mighty formidable. For instance:

Samuel Untermyer is representing William Fox.

Likewise, Joseph M. Hartfield of White and Case.

Hughes, Schurman and Dwight—the trusteeship committee composed of J. E. Otterson, Harry Stuart and William Fox.

Isidor J. Krisel, lawyer in the suit for permanent receivership filed by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, who claims to own 11,150 shares of the Class B, or voting stock, of Fox Film Corporation on her own and 8,000 shares as executrix of her husband's estate.

Farrar Lazarus with whom are associated Wellman, Smyth and Scofield who filed a petition in bankruptcy on behalf of Ira M. Gast of Rutherford, N. J., a holder of Class A, or non-voting stock.

In all, there were about 23 lawyers represented at the meeting in Federal Judge Coleman's chambers Thursday at which plans were discussed to end the Fox financial difficulties.

Fox Rentals Reach High Record Peak

With receiverships threatening, charges and counter-charges flying back and forth, the Fox Film Corporation is enjoying by far the greatest prosperity in its history.

At the end of the twenty-first week of the company's fiscal year, gross billings were $3,000,000 ahead of the same period of the previous fiscal year. Net billings were correspondingly larger. Cash return to the company per week at that time was over $150,000 above the weekly income at the close of the identical week last year.

Says Fox Liabilities Are Much Exaggerated

Statements that liabilities of Fox Film and Fox Theatres Corporations total over $90,000,000 are "grossly misleading," according to Alexander S. Kempner, treasurer of the Fox Securities Corporation.

Kempner declares the reported total of liabilities is misleading "for the reason that such an amount includes a large amount of loans secured by adequate collateral, also liabilities which existed some months ago but which have since been eliminated, as well as the usual current indebtedness for accounts payable which must exist in the operation of any going concern.

U. S. Ban on Compulsory Arbitration Paves Way for Drafting New System

Voluntary Contract and Arbitration Operating Under State Laws Forecast; 5-5-5 Conferences May Solve the Problem.

Drafting of a new form of contract and arbitration system, which shall be voluntary in all respects, with no element of coercion in adoption or enforcement is forecast as a result of the decree handed down Wednesday by Federal Judge Thacher, in District Court, New York. Meanwhile, counsel for distributors are studying the decree, before determining if appeal is to be taken.

The decree, which rules that the compulsory contract and compulsory arbitration are illegal, makes operative the previous opinion handed down by the court, granting the Department of Justice a perpetual injunction restraining distributors from using exclusively one form of contract collectively agreed upon, as well as demanding security from exhibitors for failure to observe such contract's provisions and from suspending or refusing to resume service to any exhibitor, without legal reason.

5-5-5 Meeting to Discuss It

Next step in the contract matter is expected to be taken when distributors meet some time in February to draft proposals for the conferences being held between the Hays organization, M.P.T.O.A. and Allied States Ass'n. It already has been strongly indicated that a new contract and new arbitration system would be sought at these conferences.

May Turn to State Law

The decree, therefore, is seen as clearing the way for speedy tackling of the problem. A voluntary contract and arbitration system probably through individual agreement on each contract is expected to result. This system would operate under state arbitration laws, it is expected.

A curious phase of the situation is that the standard form of contract collective agreement on which is now declared illegal, was drafted in accordance with mandate of the Trade Practice Conference, sponsored by the Federal Trade Commission.

Hays Mum

No comment on the arbitration decree has been forthcoming from Will H. Hays, advised by telegraph by Motion Picture News of the Thacher decree. He now is on the Coast on a periodic visit.

Neither Charles C. Pettijohn nor Gabriel Hess had any comment to make Friday on the decree, both being engaged in a study of the court's decision; Pettijohn over the telephone from Chicago, advising that no comment would be forthcoming.

Arbitrating Halted by Boards in Nov.

Arbitration in the industry has been at a standstill since last November, except in a few instances, when boards suspended activities as a result of the opinion handed down by Judge Thacher, which said in effect that the compulsory features of the standard contract and arbitration system are illegal.

The suspension climaxed a fight waged against the system spasmodically for a few years, and which gained impetus when members of Allied States Ass'n withdrew from arbitration. This withdrawal last summer came some time after trial of the government action against the arbitration system. It had been expected that the government application for an injunction would be denied.

Arbitration rules, now held illegal by the Federal Court, were adopted in April, 1923, after years of negotiation for a standard contract, sought by exhibitors. Succeeding contracts were drafted to meet new conditions, with the present form of agreement written by a committee of exhibitors and distributors named at the Trade Practice Conference, sponsored by the Federal Trade Commission.

All Parties Sold on Idea of Arbitration

While there has been waged a long fight by a number of exhibitors, notably those of the Allied States Ass'n group, against compulsory arbitration, now banned by Judge Thacher's decision, arbitration in the industry will be continued.

The arbitration system, which has saved hundreds of thousands of dollars in costly litigation, is not to go by the board, for all parties in the industry are agreed that the principle is sound. The objection heretofore has been to the set-up

Both the M. P. T. O. A. and Allied proposals have contained provision for resumption of arbitration, and distributors always have emphasized their belief in arbitration. With the three groups sold on the idea that arbitration is desirable and essential, indications are that a speedy working out of a legal system will be accomplished.

No Date Set for Meeting on Distributor Proposals

No date has as yet been set for the meeting of distributors to draft proposals for submission to the 5-5-5 conferences. After these are submitted chairman of the three groups will agree on date of the next general committee meeting.

Compulsory Contract and Arbitration Ruled Illegal

Agreement of distributors to adopt and use exclusively the standard exhibition contract dated May 1, 1928, and adoption of rules of arbitration, and all activities and agreements by which they collectively coerced adoption of and compliance with the contract and rules of arbitration constitute a conspiracy in restraint of trade, Federal Judge Thacher ruled in District Court, New York, in a decree perpetually enjoining such practices, handed down on Wednesday.

The decree, which makes effective Judge Thacher's ruling of Oct. 15, 1929, perpetually enjoins distributors from demanding security from exhibitors for failure to observe provisions of the contract or comply with arbitration awards and from suspending or refusing to resume service to any exhibitor, without legal reason.

Defendants in the action, tried early last year, are: Paramount, M-G-M, First National, Universal, Fox, Pathe, United Artists, FBO (RKO), Vitagraph (Warners), and Educational, the Hays organization 32 Film Boards of Trade.

Judge Thacher's decree also affirms his previous opinion upholding the legality of the credit system.

Myers Expresses Peace Era Hope

Washington—"I earnestly hope the decree will afford a basis for satisfactory adjustment of the contract and arbitration questions when the 5-5-5 conference resumes," Abram F. Myers, president of Allied States Ass'n, stated when advised by MOTION PICTURE NEWS of Judge Thacher's decree.

"Allied States Ass'n," he said, "will cooperate in every way to restore stability and harmony and I hope we are at the threshold of an era of peace and accomplishment."

"The decree," Myers continued, "appears to afford exhibitors the protection which we have been seeking," adding, however, that he prefers to make a study of it before offering any further comment.

This case having come on to be heard, and the Court having considered the evidence and the arguments of counsel, and having filed its opinion herein on the 15th day of October, 1929, and upon motion of the petitioner by Charles H. Tuttle, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, and John Lord O'Brian, the Assistant to the Attorney General, and C. Stanley Thompson, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, of Counsel, for relief in accordance with the prayer of the petition, and the defendants having appeared by their attorneys, Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, and Edwin P. Grosvenor, Arthur L. Fisk, Jr., and Gabriel L. Hess, of Counsel; now, therefore, it is

ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED as follows:

I.

That the agreement of the defendants to adopt and to use exclusively in contracting with exhibitors of motion pictures throughout the United States the "Standard Exhibition Contract" dated May 1, 1928, which is attached to the petition herein as Exhibit "C" thereto, the adoption by the defendants of the "Rules of Arbitration" dated May 1, 1928, which is attached to the petition herein as Exhibit "G" thereto, and all the activities and agreements of said defendants by means of which they have collectively coerced adoption of and compliance with said "Standard Exhibition Contract" and said "Rules of Arbitration," constitute a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade and commerce in violation of the Act of Congress of July 2, 1890, entitled "An Act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," known as the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

II.

That the defendants, their officers, agents, servants and employees, and all persons acting under, through or on behalf of them, or any of them, hereby are perpetually enjoined, restrained and prohibited, individually and collectively:

1. From further engaging in or carrying out said conspiracy or any other conspiracy similar to or having the same purpose and/or effect as said conspiracy.

2. From doing any act or thing whatsoever for the purpose or with the effect of carrying out hereafter the purposes of said conspiracy, or any of them.

3. From entering into any agreement embodying the provisions of paragraph "Eighteenth" of said "Standard Exhibition Contract" dated May 1, 1928, and/or the provisions of said "Rules of Arbitration" dated May 1, 1928.

4. From enforcing, directly or indirectly, any of the provisions of paragraph "Eighteenth," entitled "Arbitration," of said "Standard Exhibition Contract" dated May 1, 1928, against any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States having an existing contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures which contain said paragraph.

5. From enforcing, directly or indirectly, any of the provisions of Rule IV. entitled "Enforcement of Decisions of Board of Arbitration," of said "Rules of Arbitration" dated May 1, 1928, against any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States, on account of any claim, controversy or dispute arising under or on account of any existing contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures.

6. From demanding security from any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States because of any failure or refusal to comply with any provisions of said paragraph "Eighteenth," entitled "Arbitration," of said "Standard Exhibition Contract" of May 1, 1928, contained in any existing contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures.

7. From retaining any sum or sums heretofore received in accordance with the provisions of said paragraph "Eighteenth"

U. S. Restrains Arbitration Deposits and Service Cut-Off

Distributors are perpetually restrained from demanding security from exhibitors for failure to observe provisions of the standard contract and from suspending or refusing to resume service to the exhibitor, without legal reason, in decree handed down this morning by Federal Judge Thacher in the arbitration case. Paramount and ten other distributors, the Hays organization and 32 Film Boards of Trade were defendants in the action brought by the Department of Justice, charging a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

"Agreement of defendants," the decree ruled, "to adopt and use exclusively in contracting with exhibitors of motion pictures the Standard Exhibition Contract; the adoption by the defendants of rules of arbitration, and all the activities of said defendants by means of which they have collectively coerced adoption of and compliance with said contracts and rules constitute a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade and commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act."

MOTION PICTURE NEWS was first to advise the trade of the arbitration decree handed down by Federal Judge Thacher, issuing a special bulletin which was distributed to the trade in New York Wednesday afternoon.

Sees Solution of Contract Problem

Detroit—"To the exhibitors who did not take the course of least resistance, but had the courage to persist in their efforts to secure a fair contract and a fair method of arbitration even at the cost of being branded outlaws and destructionists, Judge Thacher's affirmation of their opinion must be gratifying."

That was the comment made by H. M. Richey, business manager of the Michigan exhibitor unit and a leader of Allied States Ass'n.

"However," he said, "if the decree accomplishes no more than to scrap a system and a contract that were wrong for years, it will be of little value. Out of the chaos of the past several months there rises the opportunity for those who participate in the next conference to do something of lasting benefit to the industry, and upon them is a mighty responsibility.

"The problem of writing a fair contract," continued Richey, "and the selection of a legal method of arbitration of not only the little questions, but also the big disputes of the industry, is far from an impossible task for fair-minded men."

At It Again

Because he is connected with the Hays organization, "The Churchman," national journal of the Protestant Episcopal Church, wants the Baptist Church to recall Carl E. Milliken of the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches. The church publication has been training its guns on the Hays association because of its activities in interesting religious bodies and women's organizations in film work.

Protection to Be N. J. Meet Topic

Extended protection is expected to be the chief subject under discussion at a general meeting in New York Monday of the New Jersey exhibitor association. The organization, which some time ago authorized its officers to institute court action to determine the legality of protection, dropped this move, it is reported, at the request of the Dept. of Justice, which preferred to carry out its own investigation into the clearance situation in the state.

of said "Standard Exhibition Contract" dated May 1, 1928, and/or said Rule IV. entitled "Enforcement of Decisions of Board of Arbitration" of said "Rules of Arbitration" dated May 1, 1928, from any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States, as security for the performance of any contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures.

8. From suspending and from refusing to promptly resume service to any exhibitor in the United States because of any failure or refusal to comply with any provision of said paragraph "Eighteenth" of said "Standard Exhibition Contract" of May 1, 1928, or of said "Rules of Arbitration" dated May 1, 1928, unless there be legal cause for suspending or refusing to promptly resume such service arising independently of any of the provisions of said paragraph "Eighteenth" of said "Standard Exhibition Contract" or of said Rule IV. of said "Rules of Arbitration."

9. From continuing to act upon and from entering into any understanding, arrangement, combination, conspiracy of agreement either to refrain from entering into any contract for licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or motion pictures, or to require the deposit of security as a condition for entering into or continuing to perform any such contract which has not been breached by the exhibitor, or to fix in advance any terms or conditions upon which any defendant or any member of any defendant Film Board of Trade shall enter into any such contract, if the purpose or effect of such understanding, arrangement, combination, conspiracy or agreement is either:

(a) To coerce or to require any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States to submit to arbitration any claim, controversy or dispute with any defendant or with any member of any defendant Film Board of Trade, arising under any contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures; or

(b) To coerce or to require any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States to surrender and to waive the right to have any claim, controversy or dispute with any defendant or with any defendant or with any member of any defendant Film Board of Trade, arising under any contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures, settled and determined by any Court having jurisdiction of such claim, controversy or dispute; or

(c) To coerce or to require any exhibitor of motion pictures in the United States to comply with any award rendered against him in any arbitration proceeding with any defendant or with any member of any defendant Film Board of Trade, arising under or on account of any contract licensing the exhibition of a motion picture or of motion pictures, without recourse or appeal to any Court having jurisdiction of the claim, controversy or dispute occasioning said award.

III.

Nothing contained in this decree shall be construed as prohibiting any defendant or any member of any defendant Film Board of Trade from performing and/or continuing to perform, or enforcing and/or continuing to enforce, by any lawful means any contractual obligation the performance or enforcement of which is consistent with the provisions of this decree. Nor shall anything contained in this decree be construed as prohibiting any defendant or any member of any defendant Film Board of Trade from selecting his or its own trade, from disposing of his or its own products, or from making any contracts with or without provisions relating to arbitration—all upon such terms as he or it may choose—provided such acts are done individually and without combining, conspiring or agreeing with any other defendant or any member of any Film Board of Trade.

Nothing contained in this decree shall be construed in derogation of the right of the defendants, or any of them, individually or jointly, to negotiate and to agree with any exhibitors of motion pictures on a standard form of contract to be used in licensing the exhibition of motion pictures or on any standard provision or provisions to be included in such license contracts, including reasonable provisions for the arbitration of disputes arising thereunder, if done voluntarily and without coercion, and if applied only to the parties to the negotiations and agreement.

Nothing contained in this decree shall be construed as limiting or modifying, or shall in any wise limit, restrict, modify or qualify, the opinion filed in the companion case hereto, "United States v. First National Pictures, Inc. et al. (In Equity No. 45-99), and the decree of the Court entered therein dismissing the petition of the Government on the merits as against the defendants herein; in which case it was held that the Rules and Regulations for the establishment and operations of a Credit Committee, annexed to said petition as "Exhibit A," as agreed to, adopted and enforced by these defendants, was not and is not in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and that these defendants have not engaged in a combination or conspiracy to restrain trade or commerce in violation of said Act on account of their adoption and enforcement of and operation under said Credit Rules and Regulations.

IV.

Jurisdiction of this cause is hereby retained for the purpose of enforcing this decree and making such other and further orders and decrees as may become necessary, and for the purpose of enabling any party hereto to apply to the Court for such further orders and directions as may be necessary or proper in relation to the carrying out of the provisions of this decree, or to apply to the Court for modification hereof if it be hereafter shown to the satisfaction of the Court that by reason of changed conditions or changes in the statute law of the United States the provisions hereof have become inadequate or inappropriate, or have become unduly oppressive to the defendants, and are no longer necessary to secure conditions in harmony with the law.

Future Mergers in Industry Seen Hinging on U. S.-Warner-Fox Cases

Government Attitude Toward Combinations Will Be Determined by Outcome—Other Industries Marking Time

Future mergers and combinations in the film industry will depend upon outcome of the government's action against Fox and Warners, it is believed in financial circles, with all lines of industry eyeing the cases for a general idea of future procedure to be followed by the Department of Justice in enforcing anti-trust laws.

Consolidation movements, generally, have slowed down, for several months at least, in the opinion of bankers, and attorneys. The stock market situation is not regarded as much of a permanent contributing factor as is the government's new attitude.

This was emphasized in the sudden dropping of the Paramount-Warner deal, which is regarded as having served notice on this and other industries that the Department of Justice intended to keep close watch on consolidations.

It had been rather generally understood that the proposed merger had been submitted for approval in the regular way, but its sudden dropping, together with institution of the Clayton Act, suits against Warners and against Fox, are regarded as significant.

Not only has this attitude been stressed in the film industry, but others have felt the effect of the changed administration policy. Under the plan now in operation preliminary approval of combinations has been abandoned.

Fitzpatrick-McElroy Firm Solvent, Audit Emphasizes

Chicago.—Fitzpatrick & McElroy are solvent, it was shown in accountants' report submitted to stockholders, who voted confidence in President Kenneth Fitzpatrick. Following suicide of Blair McElroy, there had been some fear that company finances might have been a contributing factor, but this is declared dispelled by the report. The stock has a net value of $1,120,454; company assets are $1,602,218 and debts $133,764.62. Bonds and mortgages payable total $348,800.65. Fitzpatrick was retained as a director and the board increased to seven members. New members are: J. E. Richards, Alpena; J. J. Sterling, Benton Harbor; W. F. Benning, Benton Harbor; H. Wiegand, Traverse City.

U. S. Jurisdiction Is Denied by Fox

Fox Theatres is not engaged in interstate commerce and so is not within the jurisdiction of the Clayton Act, answer for the company filed in Federal Court, New York contends, in the action brought by the Department of Justice to force the company, Fox Films and William Fox to divest themselves of their holdings in Loew's. Two other answers requesting dismissal of the government complaint have been filed in behalf of the latter two defendants.

Fox Theatres is a theatre-owning company, not a producer, the answer states, pointing out the purpose of the purchase was to merge assets of Fox Film, Fox Theatres and Loew's. The Clayton Act is designed to prevent purchase by a company engaged in interstate commerce of stock of a competitor, and is not designed against mergers or purchase of assets, it is asserted.

Although both Fox firms are controlled by William Fox, there is no direct relationship between them, it is declared. There is no competition between Fox Theatres and Loew's, it is said, because theatres operated by subsidiaries of the two firms are in different sections.

Chicago Meeting to be Held Next Week

Chicago—Meeting of the new Illinois independent unit has been postponed one week to permit exhibitors from outside Chicago to attend. The new unit is expected to affiliate with Allied States Ass'n at the forthcoming meeting.

Stepping Down

San Francisco—A. P. Giannini, president of the Transamerica Corp. in which many picture folks hold stock, intends to resign that office Feb. 8 at the annual meeting, with his son, L. M. Giannini, now executive vice-president, slated to succeed him. Elisha Walker is to become chairman of the board and continue as chairman of the executive committee. Giannini will be chairman of the advisory committee, and says he will be as active as ever in company affairs.

Warners Proceed With Coast Chain

Los Angeles.—Warners are proceeding with plans for building up a chain of houses on the Coast in opposition to Fox West Coast Theatres. Sites already have been obtained at Oakland and San Pedro, in plan of the chain for a theatre in "every progressive community on the Coast." Sites are under consideration here and in Hollywood for two-a-day houses and at Santa Ana.

The Oakland house will be at Broadway and Franklin between 19th and 20th Sts., and will cost a reputed $5,000,000. The San Pedro site is on Sixth St. between Pacific Ave. and Mesa St., and the house is to cost $450,000.

Open Shop Plan of Twin City Houses

Minneapolis — Twin City independents are planning to adopt an open shop policy, with the exception of the five houses of the Lake Amusement chain, W. A. Steffes' Paradise, Fred Holzapfel's Broadway and Clyde Hitchcock's Princess.

Small Exhibitors Lose Fort Worth Tax Appeal

Fort Worth, Tex.—Operators of 15 small theatres have lost their appeal from decision refusing them injunction against collection of the $75 occupational tax levied by the city. Relief, the court held, must come from the legislature. The operators protested they should not be able to pay the same tax as levied on the large houses.

Hollywood.—Benny Rubin, featured comedian, had signed a two picture contract with Tiffany. He has been under contract to M-G-M for the past year.

Trade Commission Conducting Block Booking Probe of 4 More Companies

U. S. Body Investigating M-G-M, Fox, Warner and Universal Methods of Selling Features and Shorts in National Survey

Washington.—Investigation of block booking practices and sales methods of practically all companies, other than the four concerned in the present probe, has been completed by the Federal Trade Commission, Motion Picture News learns. So far, no indication has been given as to whether the investigation has disclosed need for any formal action.

Trade practices of M-G-M, Fox, Warners and Universal, particularly as they concern alleged coercive block booking and combination of sales of features and shorts, making the sale of the latter conditional to the sale of features, are the subject of a new investigation launched by the Federal Trade Commission. The probe is declared to be the result of complaints of exhibitors that they are compelled to buy in blocks or compelled to buy shorts and newsreels as a condition to getting features.

The investigation is part of a national probe to determine if the agreements on block booking and feature and short sales, agreed to at the Trade Practice Conference in 1927, and embodied in the Code of Ethics, are being violated.

Probe Actually On

Preliminary investigation now is being made through a questionnaire being sent to leaders of exhibitor organizations, calling upon them for a report on trade practices. Replies to this probe will determine whether additional field investigation will be required, it is stated.

In addition to the two major practices under scrutiny, the Trade Commission is asking exhibitor leaders to report on other methods being employed by all firms, which in their opinions, may "savor of threats or intimidations to coerce the theatre owner into contracting for more pictures than he desires."

The commission, it is pointed out in connection with its query on block booking, understands that all distributors offer their entire season's output to the exhibitor and often refuse to give him a contract unless he takes all the pictures.

Exhaustive Check Planned

However, what the commission wants to ascertain "is whether the compulsion to block book is the result of the distributor's 'take all or none' attitude, alone, or whether the coercion or compulsion is also due to the use of threats, external pressure or other methods which would be considered unfair under the circumstances."

The commission also wants to learn if in exhibitors' opinion there is evidence "to show that the practice of block booking is indulged in by all the distributing companies as the result of an agreement between them."

A number of exhibitor organization heads have sent to members requests for data wanted by the commission, so that in all possibility, it will be some time before the present nation-wide probe is completed

Censors Active in Six States

Five of six existing state-wide censorship boards operate in Eastern states. New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, are augmented by a state board governing the showing of films in Kansas. Seven key cities have local boards, these including Chicago, Columbus, Indianapolis, Memphis, Milwaukee, New Haven and Portland, Ore., although, in many towns, the mayor or police chief occasionally exercise the right to censor material in objectionable films.

Alberta, Quebec, New Brunswick, British Columbia and Manitoba have provincial laws for censorship in Canada.

National Daylight Saving Law Sought

Brockville, Ont.—Business men of this town, who want daylight saving, intend to foist their view on all of Canada, it is shown in a movement started to have the Canadian Chamber of Commerce sponsor a Dominion-wide daylight law. Opposition has developed in labor and theatre circles.

Mintz Heads Affiliated Sound Recording Company

M. J. Mintz, formerly of the Cameo Music Company, now is in complete charge of Affiliated Sound Recordings Company. Coming within its scope of business are sound recording for pictures, radio broadcasts, tests and electrical transcriptions for commercial purposes and facilities for synchronizing sound with novelty short subjects. A bureau to supply talent also is maintained. A library of more than 30,000 musical numbers and scores is part of the business.

Looks Like Dough

In his first venture as an independent producer, Charles S. Goetz has turned out a picture which should be a money-maker. The production is "The Woman Who Was Forgotten" and has the backing and endorsement of the National Education Ass'n, which will share in the proceeds. The picture tells a touching story of an aged teacher and her struggle for existence when she is deprived of her position.

There are times when the action is too sentimentally overdone, but it registers as an audience picture, with a closing kick that will send them out talking. The film may not rate as outstanding from a production standpoint, but it is clean, looks like some real dough and offers a chance to build goodwill.

Sono-Art Mapping Sales Zone Plans

Work of dividing the country into three zones, with a district manager in charge of each, is under way by Sono Art World-Wide Pictures, following appointment of Harry Thomas, head of First Division Pictures of New York as vice-president in charge of sales and distribution, and of Budd Rogers, formerly of Gotham, as director of sales. Thomas retains his interest in and will continue to operate First Division, which distributes the Sono Art World Wide product in the metropolitan territory. George W. Weeks, executive vice-president, is to devote his time chiefly to production.

Coast Loss From Storm Is Heavy

Hollywood — Recent electric storms, "unusual occurrences" in Southern California, have cost various coast producers thousands of dollars, a check-up shows.

The thunder and lightning shafts played havoc with main power lines at frequent intervals over a period of hours, and in several instances, voltage for sound recording and stage lights dropped to zero while companies were in the middle of scenes. One producer had a nine minute "shot" in a big set which necessitated six color cameras—and the lights and sound equipment "faded" completely on the last minute of the take, necessitating a remake.

Non-Theatrical Showings Irk Exhibitors in Wisconsin

Milwaukee.—Non-theatrical competition is reported increasing throughout the state. The non-theatricals are turning to the silent, it is said, figuring they can get them cheaply in towns where theatres are wired. The result is declared to be serious inroads in theatre business.

Exhibitors in situations adjacent to the non-theatrical shows are taking it on the chin, due to these presentations, it is claimed. Effort is expected to be made to bring the non-theatrical showings under the various laws to which regular picture houses are subjected.

Plunkett Setting "Legit" Stage for Fight Against Sound

Toronto—First serious legit attempt in Canada to buck sound opposition on even box-office terms will be announced Saturday when M. W. Plunkett will make public a project to stage a 70-people revue, with 24-piece name band, 20-voice male chorus, ballet and 90-cent top, at the Victoria, formerly stock. Tentative opening date is Feb. 1st. Luigi Romanelli, orchestra leader, formerly featured at the Tivoli, F. P.'s long-run house, will have the band.

Paramount to Make Series of "Fu Manchu" Thrillers

Hollywood — Paramount's sequel to "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu" to be produced under the title of "The Return of Fu Manchu," with story credited to Sax Rohmer, author of the initial opus, will be the first of a series of Fu Manchu stories.

The present sequel is being made as a result of the success of "Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu."

Series from Tibbett

Lawrence Tibbett's new M-G-M contract calls for a series of musicals, one yearly. "The Rogue Song," initial screen appearance of the opera baritone, opens at the Astor, New York, on Jan. 28.

It Held Them

A silent picture. Several years old, minimum. No music played—nothing but the film. Yet it captured the audience's attention from iris in to iris out.

Unusual in these days of talkers, squawkers or what have you? You bet it is. The name? "The Einstein Theory of Relativity" in which the players are subtitles and charts, but as dramatic and as engrossing as you could reasonably ask a motion picture to be. The picture was surrounding material for "Across the World," new Martin Johnson talker-adventure affair, at the Cohan, New York. But it ran the rest of the show breathless for first honors.

Selznicks in N. Y. Court Over Suit Involving Gems

Lewis J. Selznick appeared in the Supreme Court in New York on Thursday in a suit of his son David, now executive assistant to B. P. Schulberg at Paramount's West Coast studio, to recover $200,000 in jewelry from the executors of the estate of Simon Winnik.

Selznick senior told how Selznick Pictures Corp. hit hard times in 1923 and how his wife took her jewels to Winnik as security for a $35,000 loan. David Selznick claimed that after the loan was made, his mother sold him title to the jewels, but that Winnik, in 1924, obtained a judgment against Mrs. Selznick and sold the gems for $35,000 to satisfy that claim. The complaint alleges that the younger Selznick was not informed of the sale and that Winnik had a representative buy the jewels for himself.

Grace Moore, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has signed a contract with M-G-M. She will sing in musical romances to be made on the Coast.

Schenck Negotiating for "Bird of Paradise" Rights

"Bird of Paradise" will be produced by United Artists as a Dolores Del Rio vehicle, if negotiations now under way are successfully consummated by Joseph M. Schenck. Lupe Velez, however, is also being considered.

First National secured screen rights to "Bird of Paradise" several years ago, but litigation held up production, which was later abandoned.

Cured? And How

The cowboy is riding to the rescue of his lady love. The girl is in dire peril, as the villain approaches closer and closer. And the music for the tense scene, supplied by a phonograph record, is a Hawaiian number with a steel guitar supplying the instrumentation. Patrons of that New York neighborhood house may be in sympathy with the American Federation of Musicians' drive against mechanical music.

Equity Hits Talker-Legit Story Tie Up

Producers in the legitimate field are given a verbal spanking by Actors' Equity in "Equity Magazine," for subsidizing stage stories to film producers who are in the market to line-up talker material. The mental standards of the stage will be lowered if this practice continues, Equity asserts.

Providence Blessed with "Lily White" Films During '29

Providence.—"Purity" of cinema attractions not only has pushed the legitimate drama to the wall in Providence but the films have been so clean that not one change was found necessary during 1929, according to the report of Capt. George W. Cowan, police censor.

Commenting on the fact that there was no necessity of changing even a line or a word in any of the prints the censor ascribes this angelic state of affairs to the careful supervision of films by the National Board of Review.

In other forms of theatrical enterprise, Capt. Cowan found it necessary to make 543 changes and eliminations in 52 weeks. Burlesque shows were slapped 319 times.

Abraham Felt Declared a Bankrupt in Philadelphia

Philadelphia—Liabilities of $4,544,476 and assets of $197,894 are shown in schedules of bankruptcy filed by creditors of Abraham Felt, formerly a member of the firm of Felt Brothers, and a well known exhibitor and real estate operator.

About six months ago Felt removed to New York and since that time is said to have suffered severe losses in the stock market crash and development projects. Abraham Felt, together with his brothers, Fred and Maurice E., was connected with the construction of several picture theatres, notably the Aldine, later sold to the Stanley Co., and the Commodore, West Philadelphia.

Boston Repertory House to Show Silents, First Run

Boston—The Repertory Theatre built a short time ago at a cost of $1,000,000 and dedicated as the first civic theatre in America, will be converted into a picture house. The management has announced that the current production there will be the last. There is no sound equipment in the theatre and present plans do not call for sound installation, so that it will become the only first-run silent house in Boston, operating as an art theatre.

Stop Us If We're Wrong

DAVID SARNOFF, president of RCA, in an address before the School of Business, City College, New York, said that while there were no fundamental barriers to prosperity in the United States, the economic and industrial forces of the nation were still to be balanced to build the country's prosperity upon a sound basis.

A Wise Bird

One of Hollywood's high salaried stars who is well known for his business acumen, declared to a friend the other day that he did not have one dollar invested in the stock market—and never would have.

"My salary is the only easy money I want to get, my investments are in good solid earth or safe bonds that won't be washed out over night," he stated.

U. A. Exchanges Abroad to be Continued for Silent Films

United Artists exchanges in Europe in all probability will be maintained, it is indicated by decision of the company to make silent versions of nine of 12 pictures on its schedule.

Decision on another, "Coquette," has not yet been made. Pictures of which silent versions will be released are: "Bulldog Drummond," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Three Live Ghosts," "The Locked Door," "New York Nights," "Lummox," "The Swan," "The Bad One" and "Hell Harbor." There will be no silent versions of "Condemned," "Puttin' on the Ritz" and "Be Yourself."

Joseph M. Schenck recently returned from abroad, where he investigated foreign conditions with a view to determining if those markets were willing to absorb silent pictures in an era of sound films. The decision to make silent versions of U. A. talkers supplies the answer.

Grubel Circuit Leased by Publix, Feld Now Admits

Kansas City—Although both the Grubels and Publix officials last week denied that any deal had been closed, Milton Feld, division manager for Publix, states the four theatres have been leased by his firm. The houses are of the de luxe type located at Kansas City, Kan., Joplin, Springfield and St. Joseph, Mo. Negotiations have been under way for about a year.

This compares with $1,860,798 or $6.28 a share on the common in the year ended Dec. 29, 1928.

RKO Has Sold 185 Franchises in N. W.

Minneapolis.—One hundred and eighty-five RKO franchises have been sold in Minnesota and North Dakota by M. J. Frisch. This number does not include South Dakota, which is served by the company's Sioux Falls exchange. Tiffany franchise sales in this territory, including South Dakota, some time ago passed the 200 mark.

A Natural

First National may well be steamed up over the performance being made by "Sally," Marilyn Miller's starring vehicle, which is off to a flying start throughout the country. Its draw is being emphasized by the manner in which it refuses to be daunted by weather handicaps, having already bucked and licked zero weather and snowstorms in a number of keys.

New Run Wrinkle for San Antonio

San Antonio—Radical changes in the local run situation will be launched Monday by Publix, when the Texas and State start a split week policy, the former showing films and Publix stage shows, and a special the last half, which after its run moves to the Aztec for a week's stand. This eliminates the master of ceremonies at the Texas. Vic Insirilo has been transferred to the Paramount, New York, and Jimmy Ellerd, M.C. at the Palace, Dallas, is to rotate between this city and there. Opposition to Publix are the Fox Majestic and the independently-owned Empire.

Dallas.—Split week policy was to be instituted here Friday at the Palace.

Omaha.—Split week policy has been adopted at the Paramount, which plays a special Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and a picture and stage show the last half of the week. The special then moves into the World for a week's run.

Warner-Equity Chain Is Observing First Birthday

Philadelphia—Warner-Equity theatres this week are celebrating their first anniversary. The circuit, which was organized last February consists of 50 theatres in Philadelphia, Allentown, Reading, Bridgeton, Pennsgrove and Woodsbury, N. J., and Baltimore. Special screen and stage features are being offered.

Barthelmess Next in Flight Film, "The Dawn Patrol"

When Richard Barthelmess returns from a European vacation soon, he will work out production plans with First National for his next, "Dawn Patrol," which will be a flight story built up to road show type.

"Son of the Gods," starring Richard Barthelmess, opens its New York run at the Warner Theatre on Thursday.

Boston Finds Theatre Trade on Steady Upward Swing

Boston—Business has been on the upgrade at local houses, following the spotty and worse business of the holiday season. This has resulted in an optimistic feeling locally.

A Medal for Oswald

Universal turns out what is easily one of the cleverest and funniest cartoon subjects to date in the current Oswald reel, "Kisses and Kurses," a burlesque on "Show Boat" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It is full of laughs and new gags, the value of which, are enhanced a hundredfold by sound and music. Great stuff.

CUNNINGHAM.

Architects Seek Billboards' Ban

Abolition of billboards and similar outdoor advertisements are advocated in a resolution passed by the American Institute of Architects. Civic organizations, legislative bodies, press and the public are urged to aid in complete removal of billboards, signboards and related structures from the roads, highways and boulevards of the country, except in such limited areas as may be set aside for such advertising by direct action of the proper authorities."

New Company to Produce Jewish-Dialogue Films

Production of Jewish dialogue films is planned in New York by Judea Pictures Corp., which states it has signed 12 Jewish performers and units, among them Cantor Hirschman and Samuel Goldenberg. The performers are working on percentage, with the films slated to be state-righted. Budget for the first four shorts is $15,000 apiece, it is stated. Sydney Goldin will direct.

After making some shorts, the firm plans a feature on Zion history with Jerusalem for the locale. Joe Seiden, equipment firm head, is president of Judea; Sam Berliner, secretary and treasurer, and Moe Goldman, Bronx showman, is general manager.

Corinne Griffith Through With F. N. After One More

Hollywood—Corinne Griffith will leave the ranks of First National stars upon completion of one more picture. Although two program pictures remained on her present contract, adjustment has been made whereby she will appear in one special instead. This will be a talker based on "The Lost Lady," a novel by Willa Cather, and William A. Seiter is to direct. Production starts in May.

Miss Griffith's voice in talkers has not recorded well. This factor, it is reported, had a decided bearing on the First National decision.

A Great Life

Exhibitors have four big problems in arranging shows these days, one prominent exhibitor would have you believe. First, he says, he must decide, what to play; second, try to buy what he has decided upon; third, determining when to play what he has bought; and fourth, finding out which of the pictures bought distributors will let him play.

National Review Board to Hear Hoover's Film Views

President Hoover's views on the child problem of America will be outlined at the annual conference and luncheon of the National Board of Review, to be held Friday and Saturday at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York. The general topic of this year's conference will be "The Motion Picture as a Social Study," with many noted educators, social workers, industry and stage celebrities present.

Board members and community workers for better films from all sections of the nation will attend the sessions to be broadcast over a nation-wide Columbia Broadcasting hook-up. The President's views will be explained Saturday by Dr. Harry E. Barnard, director of the White House Conference for Child Health and Protection.

Many Speakers Lined Up

Speakers on Friday who will discuss "attitudes and reactions with relation to motion pictures," will be Dr. Louis I. Harris, former health commissioner of New York City and a member of the National Board's executive committee; Dr. Frances D. Tyson, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Lee F. Hanmer, of the Russell Sage Foundation; Dr. Joseph L. Holmes, department of psychology, Columbia University; Dr. Walter W. Pettit, New York School of Social Work, and Ed M. Fay, Providence, exhibitor. Prof. Leroy E. Bowman, of Columbia University, will discuss "Social Implications of a Community Program on Motion Pictures." Friday evening, Mrs. Douglas Robinson will receive the delegates when the following speakers will discuss "the Motion Picture in Its Various Expressive Forms and Values": Dr. William H. Dudley, regional director, Yale Chronicles of America Photoplays; Gilbert Seldes, critic and author; Dr. George J. Ryan, president of the New York City board of education, and Sophie Kerr, author.

Final Luncheon Saturday

At the luncheon on Saturday, which concludes the conference, speakers will include Dr. Barnard, Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, Pastor, First Baptist Church, Pittsburgh; Rep. Franklin W. Fort, (N. J.); secretary of the Republican national committee; Senator Clarence C. Dill, (Wash.); Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former Governor of Wyoming and vice chairman of the Democratic national committee; Harry M. Warner; Fannie Hurst, novelist; and Mayor John T. Alsop, Jacksonville, Fla.

Motion picture celebreties expected to attend the luncheon will be Estelle Taylor, Irene Bordoni, Charles Ruggles, Sally O'Neil, Greta Nissen, Claudette Colbert, Winnie Lightner, George K. Arthur and Chester Conklin

Le Maire Finished His Pathe Contract

There will be no "let-up" in release of Pathe comedies due to sudden death of George Le Maire, Phil Reisman, general sales manager of the company, states. Le Maire, who had furnished a considerable portion of the Pathe sound comedy output, had completed his contract with the company prior to his death, due to heart failure, early this week. He produced a series of 11 two-reel comedies in sound.

Last Rites for Le Maire Are Held at Fort Worth

Victim of heart disease which claimed his life at his New York home early Monday, George Le Maire, 46, Pathe comedy producer, is to be buried Friday at Fort Worth, Tex. Funeral services for the veteran star and producer were held Tuesday in New York. He is survived by a widow and son.

Warners Get L. A. House

Los Angeles—Warners have acquired the Forum, suburban house. It will play second runs following the Warner Hollywood and Downtown.

Despite Theatre Ban, 'Changes Supplying Quebec Churches

Quebec—Despite rigid provincial regulations prohibiting attendance of minors at theatres in this province, picture shows for kiddies are being given by churches of various denominations, and distributors are supplying the film. Straight admissions are taboo and are not posted, but a coin, dropped in boxes near the entrance gates, is expected.

In many instances, the shows are staged especially for youngsters. Usually church auditoriums used, while of brick construction, are not properly equipped and as such, constitute a fire hazard. Old pictures feature most of the programs.

Exhibitors in both key points, all of whom have experienced considerable box-office grief since the enactment of laws forbidding youngsters, are not generally aware of the existence of the church competitive situation, which is prevalent principally in outlying districts.

Quebec Exhibitors Aiding to Uphold Ban on Kids

Montreal—Promise of exhibitors to uphold the law banning children under 16 from attending picture shows in the province, is being kept, it is demonstrated by the annual report showing that only ten cases for alleged violations have been brought last year. The exhibitors promised to get behind the child law if the government "went easy" on Sunday show prosecutions.

Sullivan Working On Coast

Hollywood—Pat Sullivan, cartoonist creator of Felix the Cat, is here producing the first three Felix sound cartoons for independent release. It is reported Sullivan will move his animation headquarters and staff from New York to Hollywood upon completion of the three.

Hot Title for Norma

Hollywood.—"Flame of the Flesh" is the title of Norma Talmadge's talker version of "Du Barry," which will be produced by United Artists with Miss Talmadge starred. Sam Taylor is adapting the story and will direct.

Colleen Still Free

Hollywood.—Contrary to general report, Colleen Moore has not signed a starring contract with any producing or distributing organization. The former First National star is resting from a recent visit to the hospital, and states no deal has been made for her future services.

Cohn Out of F. N.

Hollywood—Alfred A. Cohn resigned as scenario editor at First National after eight months with the organization. He recently completed the adaptation of "Jailbreak" for that studio.

Paramount Rentals Soar

Domestic rentals of Paramount for the first three weeks of January were 47 per cent. ahead of the same period last year, the company states.

"Night Ride," Thriller, N. Y. Critics Agree

"Night Ride" (Universal) is placed by New York critics in the class of thrilly newspaper-crook-racketeering yarns. Plausibility is sacrificed at times to pack thrills, some state. Their opinions, briefly told, appear below:

American— . . . moves along at a fairly rapid pace and once in a while attains a momentum that will make one forget its implausibilities. . . . audience seemed pleased.

Daily News— . . . a thriller if ever I witnessed one . . . a decidedly worthwhile program talkie.

Evening Journal— . . . holds one's interest throughout. . . .

Evening World— . . . Producers . . . sacrificed plausibility to pack thrills. . . .

Graphic— . . . For those who like plenty of excitement . . . "Night Ride" . . . is recommended . . . starts off in high and maintains a peppy speed as its exciting plot unreels.

Post— . . . starts off at a breezy enough pace, but after a few reckless swerves, the plot suddenly sinks into a haze.

Telegram—If you like good, old-fashioned, thumping melodrama, you will enjoy . . . the film. . . . It is exciting, fast moving and entertaining.

World— . . . movement is fast, dialogue salty, the incidents racy and shot through with broad and sweeping gestures.

"It's good," Motion Picture News stated in its review of "Night Ride," on Dec. 28, "with a whale of a lot of audience appeal."

"Pointed Heels" Gets Mild Reception from N. Y. Critics

New York critics find merit here and there in "Pointed Heels," but in toto, greet the production with only lukewarm interest. Irene Thirer in the Daily News, for instance, thinks the story weak. George Gerhard in the Evening World finds the picture entertaining, and so it goes. The consensus of opinion of seven additional critics follows:

Daily Mirror—Back-stage stories . . . are not new . . . but "Pointed Heels" has some new angles and some fresh qualities . . . uniformly entertaining.

Daily News— . . . has a couple of pleasant qualifications . . . but the story's pretty weak. . . .

Evening World— . . . an entertaining picture . . .

Graphic—Helen Kane and Skeets Gallagher go over big. . . .

Herald-Tribune— . . . rather a hodge-podge . . . painfully slow at the start . . . its continuity was jerky, though at times it has charm and originality in its telling.

Morning Telegraph—It's as good as the next, and a lot funnier than most.

Post— . . . a rather better than average . . . film. . . .

Sun— . . . a mild little piece that is pleasant enough without quite coming off.

Times— . . . another of those mildly diverting affairs with spasmodic bursts of brightness.

World— . . . a disconcerting disappointment.

"Not outstanding, but of satisfactory program calibre" is how Motion Picture News described "Pointed Heels," reviewed in the issue of December 21.

Businessmen May Reopen Theatre

Willshire, O.—Business men here, realizing the beneficial effect of trade of picture houses, are sponsoring plans to reopen the Dull, dark four months on account of lack of patronage.

Is Silence Golden?

Then there is the famous film star who took a terrific licking in the stock market. The young man also failed dismally in his first two talkers. A Hollywood wisecracker reports that the star should explain to producing executives that the stock market crash left him speechless.

Pathe Studios, with Derr in Charge, Getting Set

Hollywood—With E. B. Derr, executive vice-president, in charge of production, Pathe is preparing to enter upon an extended schedule. Plans are under way for concentrating production of shorts at the studio, with Wallace Fox now making a series of two reel western talkers. Derr took over the reins, when a proposed deal between Joseph P. Kennedy and Edwin Carewe fell through.

Arch Heath has been called from the East to take charge of units engaged in making talking short comedies for Pathe.

Additional Sound Classes Planned by M. P. Academy

Hollywood—Foster Goss has been added to the staff of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences to assist in detail work in connection with the Academy sound school activities among studio employees. The reception accorded initial classes makes it necessary for the Academy to start additional classes in both fundamentals and advanced practice during the next two months.

FitzPatrick Leaves to Make New Travel-Talks

Planning a new series of Travel-Talks, James A. FitzPatrick, independent producer, and a staff carrying recording and color equipment have left for abroad. Going Up?

The financial editor in "Daily Investment News," New York, has this to say:

"Warner Pictures is worth having. Heard this one was due for a further spurt in the not distant future."

Recently Warners jumped eight points in a day and Wall Street brokerage houses began to wonder.

Mayer and Rapf, Brothers of L. B. and Harry, Turn Agents

Hollywood.—The firm of Mayer and Rapf is the latest to invade the present over-crowded field of agents and artists' managers representing talent on the coast. The new agency gets off to a flying start by exclusively handling loan-outs of M-G-M contract players, to other companies.

Jerry Mayer, brother of Louis B. Mayer, producing head of M-G-M, and Arthur Rapf, brother of Harry Rapf, M-G-M producer, are equal partners in the new agency. Rapf recently came from the east, while Jerry Mayer has been a unit business manager at M-G-M for several years.

Charlie Mack Temporarily Checked on "Black Crow" Case

Warners Start Albany "Tab" When Newspaper Rates Soar

Albany, N. Y.—Advertising rate increase by local newspapers has resulted in publication of a tabloid newspaper by Warners, which has cut down advertising in the newspapers for attractions at its two first run and two subsequent run houses here.

Charles A. Smakwitz, head of Warner theatres in this district, is placing the sheet, "Warner Brothers' Theatre News," on a permanent basis, selling copy to local merchants and specializing in general and theatre news. The paper also carries copy on the firm's Troy houses, making a bid for Sunday patronage, as no shows are permitted here on the Sabbath. It now claims a family circulation of 22,000 and is applying for a second class privilege.

The Buckley houses, opposition theatres, are using big newspaper space.

Expect Warner Net For Quarter of $5,250,000

Warners will show a net of approximately $5,250,000 for the first quarter of its fiscal year according to forecast. Company officials estimate present earnings at the rate of $25,000,000 for the year to end Aug. 31, 1930.

The net jumped to $17,271,805 for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1929, compared with $2,044,842 for the corresponding period last year.

Current assets in the balance sheet as of Aug. 31 are $34,947,191, compared with $8,103,374 as of August 31, 1928. Total assets are $167,189,024, compared with $15,785,801 as of August 31, 1928.

Earnings a share on the $2.20 preferred stock for the fiscal year are $59.96 a share, and on the common shares $6.28 a share was earned. This compared with $1.86 on the common shares in 1928. Capital stock outstanding consists of 269,969 shares of the preferred stock and 2,768,448 common shares, both of no par value. Holders of the common stock on July 2 received one additional common share for each share held.

7,000 Theatres Controlling 75 Per Cent of Rentals Wired, Gov't States

More Than 200% Increase in Construction, Improvements, Anticipated in 1930 by M. P. Division, Dept. of Commerce

Washington—Total sound installations in the United States are placed at 7,000 by N. G. Golden, assistant chief of the M. P. Division, Dept. of Commerce, who claims this figure embraces practically all the first runs in keys and other large centres which supply about 75 per cent. of all revenue to distributors.

"The greatest year in the history of the motion picture industry was experienced in 1929," according to Golden, who attributed this era of prosperity to "the popularity of color and talking pictures."

Golden, in his report, stated that "the outlook for the future, as viewed by executives in the industry, is one of optimism and the consensus holds that the current year will show even greater increases in earnings.

"Statistics compiled by non-governmental agencies indicate that financial returns during 1929 were the highest ever recorded. Substantial earnings were registered by a number of the leading picture establishments, and this was said to be due primarily to the new life and popularity injected into the industry through sound. The year 1929 was the first full year in which the larger percentage of producers was making and releasing talking pictures, and the result was characterized by augmented earning power.

Attendance Increases

"It was revealed in report that the past year was marked by a greater utilization of color photography. Although there are still a number of theatres showing silent pictures, it was stated that there is a growing demand for sound and color pictures both at home and abroad.

"Weekly theatre attendance closely parallels the population of the United States. The film houses draw an estimated weekly attendance of 120,000,000 persons, while the population, as of July 1, 1929, totals 119,206,000. The theatre attendance is reported to be an increase of 14,299,000 during the last 10 years.

"Activity in new theatre construction in the United States was somewhat hesitant. The sentiment was largely in the form of a temporary suspension of contemplated building operations rather than a definite program of curtailment. The causes for the temporary curtailment of new construction was due to the rapidly changing conditions brought about by the advent of talking pictures.

Overseating Corrected

"The average cost per seat for new theatre building in 1929 is placed at $207.74. The aggregate number of new projects was 539, with the estimated cost of construction totaling $157,287,500. Average cost per project was $291,812.61. The total number of new seats was 575,146, with the average seating capacity per project totaling 1,400.

Who's Right?

Seven thousand theatres are wired in the United States, according to N. G. Golden, Department of Commerce.

Eight thousand houses are now equipped, states the new Sound annual of "Exhibitors' Daily Review."

Nine thousand is the installation total advanced by "The Film Daily."

"A recent survey of national proportions indicates that theatre construction and reconsruction will increase more than 200 per cent. during the coming year as compared with 1929 and nearly 100 per cent. over the big year of 1928. During 1928 approximately $90,000,000 was spent on theatre building and reconstruction. In 1929 this fell to $40,000,000 and based upon advance indications, approximately $120,000,000 will be spent during 1930.

"The overseating problem in many localities has been more or less corrected during the present year, partly by the reduction in new building, partly by conversion of some theatres into commercial structures and in some degree by increased audiences created by talking pictures.

7,000 Wired for Sound

"There are now 7,000 theatres wired for sound in this country out of approximately 20,000 theatres. In this number of wired theatres is included practically all the first-run houses in the key cities and other large centres which supply about 75 per cent. of the total film revenues to the distributors. With the installation of sound apparaus in a theatre a certain amount of reconstruction and refitting, some of it a necessary nature and some being considered advisable from a standpoint of showmanship. Since the 7,000 theatres wired for sound only represents about one-third of the country's theatres, a vast amount of alteration work still is in prospect.

"It is predicted by leaders that fewer pictures will be made in the next year than previously. The number of pictures produced for the 1931 season is expected to be probably 25 per cent. less than the current year's output. Extended runs of pictures, occasioned by popular acclaim of talking and color films, is seen as one of the leading factors in decreasing the output of pictures. Many theatres which formerly played but a few days are now showing specific pictures for several weeks, and also staging frequent recurrences."

First indication that the industry would curtail product for 1930-1931 by approximately 25 per cent., to which the Golden report refers, was made in MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Minimum of 70 Remakes on Current Season's Schedule of Ten National Producer-Distributors, with 125 Expected in 1930-31

Talking picture versions of at least 70 features previously made as silents will be released during the current season, it is disclosed in an exhaustive survey just completed by MOTION PICTURE NEWS. These remakes, emanating from the studios of ten national producer-distributors, are not to be considered as pepped-up reissues but as made-over, new material. The story is changed entirely in many cases.

Columbia is the only national producer-distributor without remakes on this year's schedule. First National has 13; Fox, 5; M-G-M, 9; Paramount, 8; Pathe, 1; RKO, 1; Tiffany, 8; United Artists, 4; Universal, 7; and Warners, 12.

Big Jump Next Season

Next year's lineup will contain more than 125 remakes, a preliminary check-up discloses, indicating a growing intention on the part of producers to revamp old silent hits on a large scale.

Box-office performances of re-made pictures have not been generally influenced by the fact that they appeared previously in silent form, except in a few scattered instances, although there is much speculation regarding future reaction at the till when this policy is practiced on a wider scale.

Preparing Now

Producers are already lining-up heavy remake schedules for next season. Some of the highlights determined upon so far include "The Spoilers," "Manslaughter," "Adventure," "Dancing Mothers" and "The Humming Bird," from Paramount; "Common Clay," "Country Beyond" and "Oregon Trail," Fox; "Captain Blood," Warners; "The Dove," United Artists," and "Tin Hats" and "Merry Widow," from M-G-M. These represent but a few of the 1930-31 remakes.

Two "Lasca" Bids

Universal and Tiffany both announce "Lasca" on their 1929-30 release chart. Tiffany claims the rights are in public domain and it intends to carry out plans for producing the film which was originally made by Universal in 1919.

Sound Bringing Remakes Into B. O.?

Despite the reticence of several important producer-distributors to associate the word "remakes" with certain of their current product which has been re-produced in talker form, from old silents, Carl Laemmle states that "prejudice against the remaking of pictures is being swept away," claiming that "silent successes of other years, remade with sound and dialogue, are registering heavily at the box-office. Shortage of talker story material, which producers are reported as viewing with concern, can be and is being overcome, to a large extent, by the remaking of pictures upon which the public put its stamp of emphatic approval in other years."

"U" Digging Into Files for Sound Remakes of Silents

Hollywood—Universal is digging deep into the files of material which made exceptional silent pictures in former years. "The Signal Tower," originally produced in 1924, will be remade as a talker. Universal has closed for the dialogue rights with Wadsworth Camp, author of the novel.

Held 5 Years; Now Ready

Hollywood — After holding rights to "Black Ivory" for nearly five years, Warners have decided to produce the story as an all-talker with Monte Blue starred. Upon its completion, Blue will move over to First National to star in a talker re-make of Sabatini's "Captain Blood," which was produced by Vitagraph in silent form several years ago.

Original for Tiffany

Hollywood.—Ben Westland has completed an original story titled "Extravagance" for Tiffany.

M-G-M Buys Four Vehicles

Arthur Schnitzer's "Daybreak," "Let Us Be Gay," by Rachel Crothers, "Red Dust," by Wilson Collinson, and Zeigfeld's musical, "Rosalie," are new story purchases by M-G-M.

Rattlin' the Skeleton

Producers are digging deep to unearth old material for talkers. Silents released as far back as 1916 are set for new talker versions this year, the Motion Picture News' remake survey reveals.

An interesting analysis of the age of 1929-1930 remake material discloses the fact that two were released in 1916, and, in 1917, three; in 1918, two; 1919, six; 1920, six; 1921, four; 1922, eight; 1923, 13 (the record); 924, six; 1925, ten; 1926, seven; 1927, two; and and one in 1929.

Sponsor Holds No Hope for Passage of Welfare Measure

Proposed Governmental Bureau Would Provide for Censorship of Films Shown by Organization Benefiting

Washington—Congressmen Lankford (Ga.) does not expect passage in the near future of his bill to establish a department of public welfare to furnish films for the government and for distribution among schools, churches, lodges and other organizations, as well as to exercise complete control over radio.

The congressman admitted as much in a discussion in the house, in which members called upon him to explain his reform measure.

He said that censorship would be established only so far as the films provided for the organizations benefitting under the bill, that free speech would not be interfered with because the organizations could select their own films and that Sunday legislation did not enter into the question, although the proposed films could be shown on the Sabbath since no admission charge need be imposed.

Other Legislators Hit Bill

Rep. Lankford appeared to feel a confidence in the government departments which is not shared by his colleagues, it being pointed out by Rep. Knutson (Minn.), who criticised the censorship angle of the bill, that the proposed bureaus could put out propaganda and mislead the people, perpetuate themselves in office and "turn the government upside down.

"The government would only attempt to furnish clean, high class, instructive, beneficial entertainment to the people," declared Rep. Lankford. "I feel that there are wonderful possibilities in the operation of a department of general welfare.

Lankford Hopeful

"I realize that this bill contains many new provisions and that it contains some which will bring about controversy and that probably I will not be able to get the bill passed in the immediate future. I do hope, though, for its enactment as soon as the people become fully aware of its real merits."

Chaney Will Talk in Films, But Wants More Money First

Hollywood—Lon Chaney will star in one more silent production for M-G-M, and then it is generally understood will appear in talkers. Jack Conway will direct the star in "Sergeant Bull," and production will start in two weeks.

It is reported that Chaney is willing to dialogue before the microphone, but declares he should have a straight two-year contract calling for added compensation for talking. Delay in reaching an agreement is understood to arise from fact Chaney and M-G-M executives are still arranging minor details, with a silent picture being made while everything gets ironed out.

Cline Directing White

Hollywood—Eddie Cline will direct Alice White in her next starring talker for First National, "Sweet Mamma," instead of Ray Enright as previously announced. The switch was made to allow Enright's return to Warner.

Signs Mary Forbes

Hollywood.—Mary Forbes, former stage actress, who has appeared in several recent talkers, has been placed under contract by M-G-M. Her first assignment will be a prominent part in "The Circle," which David Burton is directing.

Langford Would Make Whole Nation 'Blue'

Washington Bureau, Motion Picture News

Washington—Undismayed by failure of his District of Columbia "blue" measure at the last session of Congress, Rep. Langford (Dem., Ga.) has decided to take in more territory, and has introduced a bill to prohibit film and stage shows on the Sabbath throughout the entire nation.

Fine of not less than $1,000, or imprisonment at hard labor or both are provided in the measure. Further, the measure would make it unlawful to ship films for Sunday exhibition.

Congressman Langford previously had introduced a bill to foist Sunday closing on the District of Columbia, as a model measure for the balance of the nation.

Home Television Set at Low Price Seen

Pittsburgh—Home television sets at a cost but little higher than present radio. sets will soon be available, D. E. Replogle, assistant to the president of Jenkins Television Co., declared in an address at the Wharton Alumni Institute of Business at the University of Pennsylvania. He described the television set of the future as being fitted in a small cabinet with an opening in front through which the family group may view the pictures. Complete programs of pictures and sound will be broadcast, he predicts.

Starting "Bride 66"

Hollywood.—Arthur Hammerstein's initial venture into operetta filmusicals, "Bride 66," goes into rehearsal this week at United Artists under the direction of Paul Stein. Rudolph Friml is writing original musical numbers for the production. Members of the cast signed to date include Lois Moran, Dorothy Dalton, Joseph Macauley, and Joe E. Brown.

Levy with Exhibitor Unit

Richmond, Va.—Lee Levy, who succeeded his brother, Joel Levy, as manager of Virginia Wilmer & Vincent houses, has been named district manager of the Virginia exhibitor unit. A meeting of directors here recently was attended by Muriel H. Stevenson, secretary; Walter J. Coulter, Samuel Bendheim, Jr., Morton Thalhimer, Richard Carrington, Isaac Weinberg, and Herman Ruben.

Growing Up

With 1930, the talkey reaches the age of one and a half years. In this short length of time, the infant has learned to control his voice and general behavior, although its producer-daddies spent many sleepless nights and oodles of dough developing the babe into a healthy youngster.

Only 3 N. Y. Critics Like "Locked Door"

Five out of 12 reviews on "Locked Door" in New York newspapers panned this U. A. release, with three sending in good breaks and the remaining three registering a 50-50 opinion. The lineup follows:

American— . . . emerges . . . as a fair enough program attraction which fails to attain extended run calibre . . . audience seemed only moderately entertained.

Daily Mirror—Very old-fashioned. Just a mediocre movie . . . so old-timey it often borders on burlesque.

Daily News— . . . sure, smooth, always active directorial touch . . . displays good taste in settings, and dignity in performances. Besides, it offers at least a couple of hair-raising sequences.

Evening Journal— . . . fair entertainment, with the long arm of coincidence spanning the stock situations.

Evening World— . . . is excellently fabricated . . . a worthwhile opus.

Graphic— . . . neither age nor repetition add to the entertainment value of this murder tale.

Herald-Tribune— . . . story shows its age . . .

Morning Telegraph—Zasu Pitts . . . has saved another picture. . . . Except for her expert clowning in an outrageously small part, "The Locked Door" would be pretty poor entertainment.

Post— . . . Except for certain sequences . . . picture follows the method of the stage rather than the screen, a fact which partially accounts for the awkward, stilted development of the plot. . . .

Sun— . . . Additionally retarded by being badly acted. . . . Indeed, it is principally the poor performances . . . that cause "The Locked Door" to be an uninteresting secret.

Telegram—Just why the mediocre narrative . . . was deemed worthy of the intelligent treatment, expert acting and stunning settings it has received I cannot explain, but because it has, it turns out to be a picture that is considerably better than just average.

World— . . . despite the excellent acting of Rod La Rocque and Barbara Stanwyck and Betty Bronson it is just a little too much to believe in.

Max Steiner Joins RKO As Assoc. Musical Director

Hollywood—Max Steiner, musical conductor well known through his connection with many Broadway shows, is in Hollywood to become associate musical director at RKO with Victor Baravelle. Steiner was for several years conductor of stage musicals written by Harry Tierney, now writing original filmusical operettas for RKO.

Harry Tierney Finishes One, Starts Another for RKO

Hollywood.—Harry Tierney has completed the incidental music, score and song numbers for "Dixianna," RKO's original operetta which will be produced as a special with Bebe Daniels starred. He is now working on another original operetta film musical for RKO.

Stars, Worried Over Status Abroad, Now Develop a Linguistic Complex

Out Come Text Books and School Is On As First Step to Keep Reputations Overseas Intact, Say They

Hollywood—The foreign language talker is setting Hollywood on its ear. The latest solution to a troublesome question calls for the organization of foreign language classes to be attended by all players who desire to learn specific tongues for ultimate appearance in foreign talker versions of their Hollywood-made product. The intention is wholly serious, although many here concede it has its angles—including bids for publicity.

It's like this:

Stars and prominent players who have developed followings in foreign countries through long appearance in silent pictures, appear to be concerned over their sustained popularity in those markets. Many of them openly declare they have no intention of giving ground to unknown players who are primarily linguists, not actors. What to do, but dust off text-books and get down to work.

School Begins Soon

Producers may be worried about the foreign problem, but actors are asking what about them? They feel they have plenty of interest in any plans made for foreign versions of their talkers. And so it happens after many discussions, they think a solution has been found.

They propose to study foreign languages and already, it is whispered about, preliminary plans for classes have been made. The pupils will be ultra-exclusive but stars and leads will brush shoulders for once anyway; the cause is that common.

Spanish Tackled First

The first language will be Spanish, in view of the large number of talker versions in that tongue planned to cover the South American field. The instruction will not only teach the language itself, but will stress proper speech, enunciation, and correct delivery of lines. Which moves one wit to remark: "Why don't they learn English first?"

There is a possibility that classes will be organized by the actors themselves, but a tie-up will be made with the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences whereby the latter will take the entire proposition in charge to operate along similar lines to the recent courses in sound instruction.

Skirboll Studies Plan for German, Spanish Talkers

Production of bi-lingual talkers for distribution in the foreign markets is a plan under consideration by Joseph S. Skirboll, who has resigned as general sales managers of Sono-Art-World-Wide. He left Thursday for the Coast, to work out details of the plan, which calls for production of Spanish and German dialogue films.

Spanish Version Made

"Her Private Affair," Ann Harding talker, has a Spanish version being released by Pathe.

The King's English

Hollywood.—Deciding that expert advice was needed on correct dialogue, Hunt Stromberg has an editorial assistant at M-G-M in the person of Gordon Davis, former professor of dramatics at Stanford University. Davis will pass on the dialogue scripts for all productions made by Stromberg.

French Merger May Be Extended, Paris Hears

Paris — The Aubert-Franco-Film-Gaumont merger, which brought together the companies named, as well as Radio Cinema, Studio des Reservoirs, G. M. Film, Societe General de Films and Societe des Romans Historiques, may be extended to include Establissments Continsouza (equipment firm) and probably the Franco-American group headed by Robert T. Kane. Equipment manufacture, theatre circuit development and distributing offices are declared under consideration.

New Process of Cartoon Animation

Van Beuren Corp., Aesop Fable producer, has developed a new process of cartoon animation and synchronization, which, it is claimed, will completely revolutionize the field of sound pen-and-ink production. John Foster, Harry Bailey, Mannie Davis and Jack Ward are the inventors.

By means of the new process, Van Beuren states, it will now be possible to present on the screen as many as a hundred different cartoon characters at the same time, each working in synchrony with the accompanying musical score.

Jack Cohn on Coast For Columbia Confabs

Planning to remain at the studios about four weeks, during which the company will outline plans for its new production policy, Jack Cohn, treasurer of Columbia, is now on the Coast for conferences with Harry Cohn. While there he will be joined by Joe Goldberg, general sales manager. The new production policy calls for higher negative costs on all pictures, designed primarily for de luxe house showing.

It is understood Harry Cohn will arrive in New York shortly en route to Europe on his annual vacation.

Spanish Talker Plans Progress at Paramount

Hollywood.—Paramount is rapidly progressing with plans whereby Spanish dialogue versions of a substantial group of productions will be available for wired houses in Spanish-speaking countries this year.

Although Spanish dialogue translation of "The Doctor's Secret" is being prepared, plans for actual shooting will not proceed pending possibilities of securing a prominent Spanish actress, Teresina Boronat, for the lead.

A screen test of the actress, reported a big favorite in both Spain and France, was taken this week by a Paramount representative in Paris. If it shapes up satisfactorily, she will come to the coast immediately to assume the lead.

It is understood Paramount is dickering with Ernest Wilchas, who has his own stock company on a tour of Central and South America, to appear in Spanish versions. Wilchas is reported to have about 25 Spanish players under contract. This stock company would naturally be available for Paramount if a deal is closed.

Talkers Not Stage Knell, Sarnoff Says

Rochester, N. Y.—Talking picture and radio development will not mean elimination of the stage or opera, in the opinion of David Sarnoff, president of RCA. Sound equipment as an adjunct to pictures has "revivified the art and the industry," he says, declaring that more than 10,000,000 people have been added to the weekly audience in the United States "by this single development."

When sound made its advent, says Sarnoff, the declining interest in the art which had reached its zenith was being felt at the nation's box-offices, and the quick development of talking motion pictures soon gave a new lease on life to theatre owners.

"Nevertheless, the true significance of the talking picture extends beyond the fact that it is a new industrial development. We so readily accommodate ourselves to the limitations which art or nature imposes, that we are apt to see the end of the road at every turning."

Better Reproduction Seen Assured by Using Common Sense in Theatre Booth

M-G-M Urges Exhibitors to Study Fundamentals in Operation

STRANGE and interesting facts about sound reproduction, as well as those having great practical value, are developed in the course of nearly every conversaiton which M-G-M sound technicians hold with exhibitors. The elemental nature of many of these dimensions is the best possible argument for the service which M-G-M is rendering and for the publication of this series of articles. Here are just a few facts, selected at random from the daily reports of the technicians:

Sound sometimes bounces off the backs of seats.

Hat racks under theatre chairs have been known to react in the same manner as tuning forks when sound reaches a certain volume.

Women's clothing does not have the same sound absorbing qualities as the woolen suits worn by men.

The light beam by which sound is reproduced from film is one thousandth of an inch wide—about one-third as wide as a human hair.

The fly wheel of the projection machine should be turned down one complete revolution of the disc to assure the needle tracking properly into the first groove. Film should be threaded into the projection machine before turning down by hand in order to maintain synchronization.

Needles Important

There is a proper and an improper method of inspecting film. It should be handled between the thumb and first finger, the palm being cupped upward.

Dropping a needle in a pick-up arm on a disc will almost certainly result in chipping.

Half-tone needles, being more flexible than full-tone and not responding so rigidly to high and low intensities, follow the grooves of a record more easily and with less liability of cutting over or repeating.

Discs have been played before $2 audiences at the Astor, New York, as many as sixty-five times and have then been discarded while giving perfect reproduction. In special tests, disc records have been used up to three hundred runs without impairment of sound quality.

A disc record is likely to play better the second time it is used than it did the first time. This is because the first run has eliminated any little surface inequalities that may exist. The needle, so to speak, has swept out the groove.

Unless laid flat when not in use, discs are likely to warp, and unless kept in manila paper envelopes, except when being played, may easily become scratched, dust charged, greasy or otherwise impaired. Discs should always be dusted with a soft cloth before being played.

Lifting the reproducer arm from the disc before the turn-table has ceased to move may easily cause a back lash of the needle which will break down the groove.

Two reproducing machines will not necessarily give the same results at the same fader settings, unless the normal volume from both machines is identical. To determine comparative values, place two identical records from two sets of the same production on the two machines. Set the faders similarly on the two machines. Play part of one record on one machine. Then play the same part of the other record on the other machine. Switch the sound thus from one machine to the other until a thorough test has been made. If one reproducer is lower in volume than the other, it should be serviced immediately. As a rule, low reproduction is also dull in quality.

Valuable Dope

Investigation has demonstrated that sound reproducers fail to deliver the expected in results because of a large variety of reasons, many of them trivial. For instance, halftone needles are more flexible than any other type; splicing is a problem because of the sound track. All elementary in the operation of sound-equipped theatres, yet many exhibitors are unfamiliar with their detail.

This series, prepared by M-G-M, and appearing exclusively in Motion Picture News, is the most exhaustive of its kind and contains a wealth of information hitherto undivulged for the benefit of the exhibitor body at large.

Every theatre has its own normal fader setting which must first be established by tests before fader cues can be used in a manner truly promoting the illusion of naturalness.

Volume Should Be Watched

Hearing sound in the theatre day after day sometimes so accustoms theatre attaches to it that the volume seems insufficient. The tendency resulting from this is gradually to increase volume until it is considerably greater than it should be.

The change-over is generally the most ineffectively accomplished part of sound reproduction. Fast action is often slowed down, sound is distorted and continuity is sometimes even broken.

Failure to keep the fader of an incoming machine at zero until the machine is up to speed may produce blue notes or unintelligible dialogue.

Needles, Discs, Tubes All Demand Constant Inspection

A break in sound-on-disc film which occurs below the intermittent need not throw a picture out of synchronization. Do not remove the film at the aperture plate nor take the reproducer off the disc. By use of the fly wheel, run out enough film for winding around the take up. Then start the machine and when the motor is up to speed bring the fader to normal setting. This should maintain synchronization. Splicing can be done after the reel has been run.

Sound film splices, if quickly made during projection to avoid a delay in the show, should always be carefully re-inspected before the reel is again run. Very often rough temporary splices are causes of further trouble.

The volume of sound provided in a theatre should not be based on the judgment or inclination of any one person. What is to be sought is that which is pleasing to the ears of the majority. Opinions of persons sitting in various parts of the house often may be advantageously obtained.

The fader setting should be raised as a theatre fills and be lowered as the audiences decreases in number. Theatres whose business varies materially on different days will find that a uniform standard of volume for all days is not conducive to the best results.

A photo-electric (PEC) cell should be kept in darkness when not in use because light causes it to throw off the electrons which are its active principle.

Splicing a Problem

If a photo-electric cell is broken near a basin of water, a serious explosion may result. The photo-electric cell has no determinable length of life, lasting anywhere from a few days to two or three months.

Re-splicing of sound film which has been placed on 2,000 foot reels may cause "dead" spots. This is because lack of familiarity with the action causes the action match point to be missed. The result is that there is a dead scene every one thousand feet.

Mounting sound film on 2,000 feet reels tremendously increases the difficulties of quickly repairing breaks during operation, or may unnecessarily and materially lengthen the period of non-synchronization.

Mounting sound film on 2,000 foot reels throws a great burden of time-consuming work upon exchange inspection departments. Replacing start and finish marks, accurately measuring footage and doing the necessary resplicing requires on the average about thirty minutes for a six-

Before the "Mike" In N. Y. Studios

WHEN Sylvia Clark, the comedienne who made the Vitaphone Variety "Seeing Sarah Off" under Murray Roth's direction, first saw Ethel Gordon at the Vitaphone eastern studios, she said: "I know you." Ethel said, "I know you, too" and—no, you see it wasn't another case of the finale being "It must have been two other girls." Not by a long shot or close-up or whatever the favorite colloquial expression may be. These two girls were classmates in dear old P. S. 92. Sorry, but it wouldn't be very ethical to say how long ago.

WE tried our hand on some of the gym paraphanalia which was set up over in Flatbush and learned that what we didn't know about gymnastics would fill an Encyclopedia Brittanica when Lew Mayer did his stuff for the Vitaphone Variety "Gym-Jams." Anyhow, we did get a good sock at the rubber dummy.

ALTHOUGH Eddie Buzzell's Vitaphone Variety "Keeping Company" called for about forty parrots, nobody fell a victim to the dreaded psit-psitti-pa-psittico—aw—parrot disease. We can't understand why doctor folks can't use English terms, and save all those silent letters, instead of——

THREE other Broadway comedians besides Eddie are slated to make a series of Varieties for Vitaphone. Bert Lahr, Lester Allen and William C. Gaxton will shortly face the "mike" under Murray Roth's direction.

ROBERT PRESNELL, young man of Long Island, who is adapting "The Young Man of Manhattan" for Paramount, decided to take a three-day vacation at Atlantic City, so with his wife he hopped into his chariot and headed south. When he arrived at the resort, a light snowfall brought visions of getting stalled on the highway, snowed under, and other such catastrophies to his imaginative mind, so without more ado "he turned around and went right back" like the duck in Mother Goose's family. On arriving in New York he learned that the snowfall amounted to little less than a flurry and that Atlantic City enjoyed the balmiest day of the winter.

JOHN FINGERLIN, executive studio manager of Paramount Long Island studios, is on a two weeks' business trip in Cuba. He observed his birthday aboard ship. Birthday greetings covered every language but English.

BARNEY ROGAN, film cutter at Paramount, who spent a year in a French hospital while "over there" with the 69th, is now at work on the French version of "The Big Pond," Maurice Chevalier's latest. What memories the lingo ought to revive for Barney!

SAMMY FAIN, Irving Kahal and Pierre Norman have finished the song numbers for "The Big Pond." The songs are, "Oh, How She Can Boop-Boop-Po-Do-Poo," "Mia Cara" and "You've Brought a New Kind o' Love," the latter being the theme song. Here's a tune that has been hummed by the folks over at the studios since the first day it was sung.

THE STUDIO SLEUTH.

Fowler Maps Heavy Program of Sound Shorts on Coast

Hollywood—Herman Fowler, head of Fowler Studios, has leased the California Studios for production of short sound novelties and comedies. Fowler plans extensive producing activities for the coming year in his new quarters.

Seek Standard Camera Hood To Improve Sound Recording

Hollywood—Extensive tests are under way by the technical committee of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences to determine the efficiency and adaptability of the various sound-proofing devices being used on cameras in the studios with a standard hood as the objective.

During the development period in sound production, various companies devised their own hoods to cover cameras in order to prevent the noise of the mechanism from reaching microphones. Each of the large producing organizations has several types of hoods, or sound-proof equipments for cameras, and each device eliminates one or more difficulty presented in making sound pictures. It is the expectation of the Academy technical committee that every type of camera hood can be closely studied in the laboratories with a result that a standard type hood can be designed to overcome many current production problems.

All of the large producing organizations are scheduling their various hood devices for specific periods in the Academy laboratory, so that complete data can be obtained by representatives of the technical committee. A standard design for camera sound proof attachment will be prepared after the correlation of laboratory tests.

"It's a Great Life" Is Called "Year's Worse"

"Dull entertainment" is how one New York newspaper critic described the new Duncan vehicle, "It's a Great Life" (M-G-M), while "The Telegraph" calls it "the year's worse." "The Sun," too, chalks it up as "one of the vainest efforts in recent months." Others let it down more easily, including both Hearst papers, "Eve. Journal" and "The American," the latter, sending in a great plug, stating "it will attract capacity houses" and "send the customers home satisfied." The Technicolor sequences were not well liked. Reactions of N. Y. critics in detail, follow:

American— . . . safe to say that it will attract capacity houses . . . and send the customers home thoroughly satisfied.

Daily Mirror—Too long, too trite, too much Duncan. . . . If you're a Duncan addict, "It's a Great Life" is a good stiff dose of them. If you're not, it's pretty poor entertainment.

Daily News— . . . Duncan sisters . . . sing. And they dance. And they act out a story which is familiar and for most part unbelievable in treatment.

Evening Journal— . . . Rosetta and Vivian Duncan can do a number of songs and dances. . . .

Graphic— . . . Banal dialogue, far-fetched excuses for bringing in Technicolor . . . give the two blondes little opportunity to do more than repeat their old vaudeville numbers.

Evening World— . . . The result is only fair. . . . But, despite the shoddy plot, Sam Wood . . . has managed to keep his picture moving, and there isn't a doubt that the piece will get over in most theatres. . . .

Morning Telegraph—Just to prove their versatility, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer . . . have gone out and made one which will have little competition for the dubious distinction of being the year's worse.

Post— . . . consists almost entirely of the Duncans . . . there are some color scenes . . . which for their spectacular staging and camera work deserve mention . . . poorly written, obvious in theme and badly acted.

Sun— . . . One of the vainest efforts in recent months. . . . Technicolor scenes . . are imaginative in design and quite elaborate, but they come too late to save a generally mediocre talkie.

Telegram—Do you remember the Duncan Sisters' vaudeville act? They have decked it out with one of the worse narratives to reach the screen in a long time . . . dull entertainment.

Times— . . . more pleasing than the usual run of such yarns. . . .

World— . . . As long as the sisters are together . . . the picture is entirely disarming and thoroughly amusing.

Reviewed by MOTION PICTURE NEWS as "Imperfect Ladies" on Nov. 2, 1929, this publication stated that "the Duncans are the entire show—and carry it along without any difficulty."

De Sano Quits Paramount: Leaves Story Hanging Fire

Hollywood—Marcel De Sano has again left Paramount suddenly, but this time it looks as if he took a one-way ticket. The director was preparing a story for Ruth Chatterton when he decided work was too strenuous. He walked out.

De Sano may take an extended trip abroad, which was the case when he was set to direct a picture for Paramount about three years ago.

"Greatest Stride Made in Men" at Studios, Says Shearer

Hollywood—Technical development of the men on the staffs of all studios is more important than the development of sound apparatus, in the opinion of Douglas Shearer, sound chief at M-G-M, who claims that the performance of the technical personnel at studios in one year is almost unbelievable.

Shearer calls attention to a new wrinkle, called "sound perspective," which he says obtains a much wider band of variation of sound recording in production of talkers.

Sam Wood Finishing Up At M-G-M; Has One More To Go

Hollywood—Sam Wood will direct "Father's Day" as the last picture under his present contract with M-G-M, and will not handle the filmusical remake of Gloria Swanson's "Queen Kelly," as reported.

"Father's Day" is an original by Samuel Ornitz and will have a stellar cast of players, including Louis Mann, Bessie Love, J. C. and Elliott Nugent, and Robert Montgomery.

32 Comedies on Year's Schedule of Hal Roach

Culver City—Thirty-two comedies will comprise the output of the Roach studios in 1930. Each will be made in four versions, English, Spanish, French and silent, with possibility that a German version also may be determined upon. The studio considers 80 weeks the average life of a talker, which is one half its estimated period of productivity.

Switch to Friday Change

Dallas—Loew theatres in Texas have switched to a Friday change policy.

Seek Sunday Referendum

Sebring, Fla.—Referendum on Sunday shows is being sought in petitions being circulated here.

More Grief at Lynn

Lynn, Mass.—Pity the poor exhibitor, particularly if his show shop happens to be located in Lynn. Here they were figuring on a respite from the cares caused by Mayor Ralph S. Bauer's pet ban on films showing women smoking, and other "Shalt Nots," when Mayor Manning succeeded him as chief executive.

Not so, however, for the new mayor insists not only that a better moral tone must be established in pictures shown, but that higher quality films must be presented. He charges that Lynn has been getting the poorer films instead of the specials, threatens to bar children from shows and establish a censor board of citizens.

Another for Hall Chain

Beeville, Tex.—Hall Industries has reopened the Rialto here after remodeling. The chain has ten houses in eight cities of this vicinity. Others are at Kingsville, Kenedy, Sinton, Arkansas Pass, Taft, Three Rivers and Ingleside. The Beeville, Kenedy and Kingsville houses are wired for sound.

Plan Hollister Remodeling

Hollister, Cal.—Fox West Coast Theatres is planning to remodel the Opal.

Buys "Call of Circus"

Cleveland—Jess Fishman has purchased "The Call of the Circus" from Continental for distribution through his Standard Film Service exchanges in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Detroit.

Weiss Joins Publix

Syracuse, N. Y.—Harry Weiss, for 11 months managing director of Loew's State, has resigned to become city manager at Tampa for Publix, with five houses under his jurisdiction.

Gets Syndicate Series

Kansas City—Midwest Film Distributors has taken over distribution of Syndicate pictures in this territory.

Another Wrinkle

Cedar Grove, N. J.—Believe it or not, talking pictures are a detriment to passenger buses, Harvey Diblle, son of a bus line operator found out, when he tried them as an experiment. He tried it with detective stories between here and Thumb Point. One woman was so interested she missed a train connection, while another insisted upon remaining until she found out how the story ended, when, by miscalculation, it was not finished by the time it reached Thumb Point.

The talking apparatus has been removed.

Publix Building at El Paso

Dallas—Cooperating with the mayor and city commissioners who called for all possible building permits to be taken out before the first of the year in order to swell the 12 months total, Publix has received permission to proceed on a $200,000 plan for one unit of the Plaza, to be built in the near future.

Stoll is Transferred

Cleveland—M. Stoll, formerly theatre district manager for Warners in New Jersey, has been appointed manager of Warner theatres in the Ohio district, succeeding Ralph Walsh, who is now in charge of the opening of the Palace, Canton, under the Warner banner.

To Vote on Sunday Shows

Canton, N. Y.—Sunday shows will be voted upon at the annual election here in March. Proposed liberal Sabbath was defeated several months ago.

Sells Miami, Okla., House

Miami, Okla.—Mrs. L. G. Waggoner has sold her Pastime here to an unnamed purchaser.

Competition Ends at Malden

Malden, Mass.—Competition has been ended here with acquisition of the Auditorium by Ramsdell Bros., who operate the Granada, Orpheum, Mystic and Strand. The change is effective Feb. 1.

New Boston Distributor

Boston—Herman and Pauline Rifkin and Theodore Shaps have formed Hollywood Films Corp., to operate an exchange here. The new company has 1,000 shares of no-par stock.

New Cincinnati Firm

Cincinnati—Clifton Theatre, Inc., has incorporated to operate Clifton theatre here.

Boston Censor Recovers

Boston—John M. Casey, local censor board chairman, has resumed work following recovery from serious illness.

Dissolving Akron Firm

Akron, O.—Max Ferderhar states that RCR Theatres, of which he is president, is dissolving.

Radio Music Firm Now Functioning

Radio Music Co., headed by E. C. Mills, formerly of the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, formed recently to assure a music supply for RKO and other RCA-affiliated companies, has started activities at 711 Fifth Ave., New York. Five hundred manuscripts already have been received, according to Mills.

Executive staff includes S. L. Ross, who was the first member of the staff of Station WEAF when it was established in 1922, Bocco Vocco, credited with popularizing "Ramona," "My Blue Heaven," "Over There" and others. Nathan Feist, son of Leo Feist, who will work in conjunction with Vocco on the development and exploitation of the catalogue, and Franklin Dunham, formerly with the Aeolian Company, whose work will be the development of educational music in its relation to broadcasting.

New Quarters Opened for Witmark Publishing Firm

M. Witmark & Sons, music publishers for Warners and First National, Tuesday formally opened their new studios and offices at 1659 Broadway. The initial catalogue includes: "When a Woman Loves a Man," "Cooking Breakfast for the One I Love," "Kickin' a Hole in the Sky" and "Sasha the Passion of Pasha," all from the United Artist production, "Be Yourself," Fannie Brice.

Red Star Preparing to Sell Opening Catalogue

Red Star Music Co. will temporarily be quartered on the sixth floor at 729 7th Ave., New York, but will move to its main offices in three or four weeks, Pat Flaherty, vice-president and general manager of the firm, states. Meanwhile the staff is busily engaged arranging the exploitation of the opening catalogue, which includes songs from the following Fox productions: "Harmony at Home," "Happy Days," "Let's Go Places," "The Big Party," "One Mad Kiss," "The Golden Calf" and "High Society Blues." Flaherty also stated that deals with Campbell-Connelly of England and Davis & Co. of Australia are under way at figures four or five times in excess of any previous price paid for an American catalogue.

High and Low Along Music Row

CONSIDERABLE comment is current along "the Alley" concerning the remarkable showing of the Santly Brothers songs. This firm which started in business about a year ago, has always managed to be represented in the best seller ranks. The opening catalogue included, "I've Got A Feeling I'm Falling," "To Be In Love," "Sweethearts' Holiday" and "Miss You," which made money despite tremendous opposition from the picture songs of other publishers. In the present catalogue are, "My Fate Is In Your Hands," "Gone" and "Singing a Vagabond Song." The latter, sung by Harry Richman in the United Artists' "Puttin' On the Ritz," is the firm's first picture song.

WITH selection of Joseph Littau as successor of Erno Rapee at the Roxy, Maurice Baron, staff composer, assumes the position of conductor together with Mischa Violin. Baron has composed all the original stage presentation scores, including "Babes In The Wood," "Cinderella" and "The Three Musketeers."

* * *

IT is estimated that Erno Rapee, director emeritus of the Roxy, has entertained about 4,000,000 people. About 3,000,000 heard him at the Roxy and the rest, totaling—figure it out yourself—were favored during the 600 hours that he was featured on the air.

* * *

A SAFE was thrown at us when we entered the portals of Gene Austin, Inc., the other day. In last week's colyum we misquoted the title of one of their songs, saying "Will You Dance—" instead of "When You Dance With An Old Sweetheart." Sorry.

* * *

WE are very glad to learn that Sam Serwer, impresario of M. Witmark & Sons, has been promoted to exploitation manager for all Warner music subsidiaries. Good boy, Sam. Lots of luck.

* * *

THERE seems to be no end to the uses of the theme song. This type of song originally intended for pictures, is now being written for individuals. A song dedicated to the achievements of Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, entitled "It Can Be Done," has been written by Lou Herscher and Ralph E. Lund and published by Lewis Publishing Co.

* * *

IF the move of Helen Riley, director of Atlanta's new music centre, in tabooing "Mammy" and jazz songs, becomes general throughout the south, the poor songwriters will have to cultivate an entirely new vogue. For instance they could write something going like this: "In An Igloo Just For Me And You," or "On the Old Klondike Trail," or "When I Long To Paint My Greenland, Red," or even "Sliding In Iceland To You."

* * *

MONTE WILHITE, writer of "When Summer Is Gone," "My Heart Is Bluer Than Your Eyes," "Yesterday," "I Promise," and many others, is seriously thinking of taking Horace Greeley at his word, sign a contract, and hie himself to the land of sunshine, moom pitchers and theme songs.

* * *

RAE ZELDA, formerly with Davis, Coots & Engel, is again working for Will Rockwell. These two used to be with Villa-Moret and are now with Harms, Inc. Will, as professional manager and Rae on his staff.

* * *

TWO new songs have been added to the Bibo-Lang roster. They are, "Amos 'N' Andy," written by William Tracey and Jack Stanley, and "La La Mama," theme song of the Christie comedy "So This Is Paris Green." The latter is by Irving Bibo, writing member of the firm, and Henry Cohen.

WITMARK has received permission from the Victor Herbert estate to publish "Thine Alone" from the Herbert operetta "Eileen." Harold Sanford, musical director of the Philco hour over NBC, and protege of Victor Herbert, has revised the song and will feature it on the air.

* * *

"I'M Nuts About Nuts," comedy song published by Charles Bayha Music Co., has been recorded by Macy and Smalle for the Gennett Recording Co. "So Lonesome," which Bayha has just released, looks as if it will top the sales of "That's When I Learned To Love You."

* * *

AGER, YELLEN & BORNSTEIN will publish the songs for two new pictures, "Lucky Me, Lovable You" and "Happy Days Are Here Again," written by Jack Yellen and Milton Ager for the M-G-M pictures "Chasing Rainbows." Also "Molly," "Alone In The Rain" and "Moanin' For You," written by Dan Dougherty and Edmund Goulding for the Pathe flicker, "The Grand Parade."

* * *

HARRY RICHMAN has dedicated "You Can't Stop Me From Falling In Love With You" to Clara Bow. This number, written by Freddie Coots and Bennie Davis, is published by Davis, Coots & Engel.

* * *

BERNARD PRAGER, sales manager for Robbins Music Corp., is on a six weeks business trip through the country. He will concentrate on dealer tie-ups with songs from current M-G-M productions, namely "Hollywood Revue Of 1929," "Untamed," "Devil-May-Care," "Marianne" and "Dynamite."

* * *

JOE KEDEN, pianist-composer for Helen Kane, and who again is wearing the Shapiro-Bernstein silks, has written a number called "I'll Go Barefoot All Winter Long," which looks like a good bet. Shapiro-Bernstein are the publishers.

* * *

REMEMBER "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," and "King For A Day"? Well, Remick has a new number called "Cryin' For The Carolinas" from the forthcoming First National production "Spring Is Here," which has every chance of outselling those two hits. "Have A Little Faith In Me," also from "Spring Is Here," is rapidly climbing into popularity. These tunes were written by Joe Young, Sam Lewis and Harry Warren.

* * *

"JUST as pictures and plays can be revived, so can songs," says L. B. Curtis of L. B. Curtis Publishing Co., who proved his statements with copies of trade orders for "San" and "Drifting And Dreaming." "Every Moon's A Honeymoon," written by Dale Wimbrow, is also a steady seller.

* * *

MAYBE those pictures in the newspapers showing the recent snowfall in California, are responsible for so many of the songwriters in the East not signing on the dotted line. Photographs of the beach or the links would be much better inducements.

Reissuing "Sari" Songs

With the revival of "Sari," the Emmarich Kalman operetta, featuring Mitzi Kajos, at the Liberty, New York, E. B. Marks, publisher of the entire score, has issued new copies of the "Sari" waltzes, including "Love's Own Sweet Song," "My Faithful Stradivari," "Love Has Wings" and "Softly Thru the Summer Night."

Common Sense on Sound Is Stressed

reel subject. If all of the 7,000 sound theatres in the United States doubled up their features on 2,000 foot reels and if these theatres averaged three shows weekly, the exchanges of the country would devote 546,000 hours or 22,750 days yearly merely to putting joined reels of film back into their original shape. This alone would impose an added burden of 38 days' work a year on each of the 600 film exchanges in the United States.

Sound-on-film prints should never be handled with bare hands. Finger marks on sound tracks materially affect the quality of reproduction.

Splices that are out of frame should never be made in sound film. There must not be more or less than four sprocket holes to a frame and never more or less than sixteen frames to a foot.

Sound film should never be clinched, hammered or loosely wound. The best and most even winding affords the minimum of protection which the sound track requires.

Keep Film Track Clean

Good reproduction is practically impossible unless the film tracks of the aperture plate and tension pad are kept absolutely clean. So little wax, oil or grit in either of these places that it seems infinitesimal to the eye or to the touch, may cause annoying trouble and even results in permanent injury to the film. Both of these areas may be cleansed by using a pipe cleaner and a tooth brush. The film track should never be scraped with a knife because of the danger of scratching.

When running new reels, especially those which never previously have been projected, it is advisable to clean the projection machine aperture plates and tension pads at the end of every reel. Wax tends to accumulate much more rapidly when the print is new than when an old print is run.

Sound reproducing devices are precision equipment. Sprocket wheels which pull the film through the sound pick-up unit, if not made with extreme accuracy, will cause a distortion of reproduced sounds. The eccentricity of the assembled sprocket wheel must be less than three ten-thousandths of an inch, otherwise there will be a flutter in any long sustained note. Many other parts also are very delicate and require microscopic measurement and adjustment in manufacture. All fine machinery requires proper lubrication and intelligent attention.

The Danger of Dust

Dirt or dust in the old days of silent prints affected only visual enjoyment of a good picture. The smallest amount of dirt or dust on a film sound track, or on a disc, will create distortion against which the sensative human ear will rebel. Oil spots on a rewind table or dust, dirt or grit any place in the projection booth is likely to be a source of trouble. All M-G-M inspection room walls, for instance, are wiped down daily because of the accumulation of dirt from the air.

The purpose of the grid leak is to keep the grids from over loading. It acts as a safety valve for the first amplifier tubes. When sound becomes tubby a change in the measurement of the grid leaks will often help to overcome the difficulty. If the measurement of the grid leak is lowered, the high notes will be brought up and the low notes reduced. If the grid leak measurement is too high, the low tones will be heard and the high notes will be lost.

In several types of reproducers there are four tubes in the motor control box. If the second tube burns out, the motor will decrease in speed. If the third tube becomes useless, the speed is increased. When either of these troubles develops, test the proper tube.

Filling caps should never be left off while charging storage batteries. A fine acid spray from the batteries is deposited on their tops when the filling caps are off. These deposits will cause short circuits and noisy operation.

Acid mixed with dust from the air in the battery room will form an electric leak on the battery top. Therefore, it is necessary to wipe off the top of the batteries at least once a week with a rag moistened with a solution of baking soda in water. Care must be taken that this liquid does not get into the battery. After using the solution, carefully wipe it off with a clean dry rag.

The Hollywood Way

Hollywood—A well-known gag man worked with a director on several pictures and finally asked to be transferred to another unit after falling out with the director. It was the practice of the comedy man to work through script preparation and actual shooting.

After leaving the director, the gagger was loud in his claims that the director could not shoot a scene without him—he actually did all of the comedy business, etc. The story became a joke in the studio among those in the know. But the director picked up another comedy man and prepared and shot his next picture without difficulty. When the picture was previewed and proclaimed a laugh riot by studio officials, the gag man was stopped cold on any alibis—and is now strangely silent.

Thomas Now at Winnipeg

Winnipeg—Famous Players Canadian Corp. has switched Western division headquarters from Toronto to Winnipeg. H. M. Thomas, general manager of Western theatres, returns to Winnipeg. All F-P and R-K-O houses in four provinces are under his jurisdiction.

Fire in Quincy Theatre

Quincy, Mass.—Nine firemen were badly affected by fumes as a result of a fire in the booth of the Merchants theatre. Manager Kenneth Forkey requested the audience to file out of the theatre and there was no disorder. Operators fought the fire with extinguishers and had the blaze almost out when firemen arrived.

New Boston Exchange Planned

Boston—Joseph M. and Max L. Levenson and Benjamin Rosenthal have incorporated United Strand Theatres, with 1,000 no par shares. The firm will build a film exchange at 131 Arlington St.

Pawtucket Firm Incorporates

Pawtucket, R. I.—Darlington Auditorium, Inc., has been incorporated with $50,000 capital by Alfred Drouin, Adilon J. Gagnon, Philias Benoit, Henry Dufresne and others.

Fireproof Screens Ordered in Philly

Philadelphia—Approved fireproof sound screens will be an essential part of equipment of wired theatres here, or their licenses will not be renewed, Fire Marshal James O. Mulhern has notified local houses. The eastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware exhibitor unit has named a committee to work with the marshal, and is requesting extension of time.

Make Theatres Safe or be Closed, Ontario Orders

Toronto—"Make your theatres fireproof and panic-proof within 12 months or they will be closed," is the substance of a warning to exhibitors sounded by Provincial Treasurer Monteith. An intensive inspection campaign now is under way, the government being determined to make all 428 theatres of the province safe.

Petition of operators, presented by W. P. Covert, international vice-president, requesting that blame of operators in booth fires or accidents be fixed in court, has been denied by Premier G. Howard Ferguson. As a consequence, the present regulation stands. It provides for cancellation of operators' licenses by government inspectors if the operator is at fault when a film fire occurs.

New Code Regulations for Toronto Exchanges Is Sought

Toronto.—Housing of film exchanges in fireproof buildings of small units containing exchanges exclusively is recommended by the court of inquiry in its report to the provincial government. The court found that present regulations are insufficient and recommends drafting of a new fire code.

Exchange Building Planned

Toronto.—Work will begin Feb. 1 on a new film exchange building here. It will be a seven-story structure, adjoining the present six-story exchange building and built of reinforced concrete. The cost is $250,000.

Fire Committee Checkup on New York Studios Launched

Commissioner Dorman's newly-appointed studio fire inspection committee is making the rounds of New York studios to determine if violations have been eliminated.

Hearing on municipal charges that 50 cans of film were stored in the Pathe studio building when a fire resulted in loss of life to ten, will be held on Feb. 10, at which time John C. Flinn and Henry Lalley, of Pathe, will again appear on charges of violating a local ordinance prohibiting the storage of more than five reels of film.

Flinn Goes to Coast

John C. Flinn of Pathe is en route to Hollywood on a short trip and is due back in New York in February in connection with resumption of hearings into the Pathe studio fire.

Opinions On Pictures

Lone Star Ranger

(Fox—All Dialogue)

A Pip of a Picture

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

THIS is the first talking picturization of a Zane Grey story, and it's a humdinger. It has speed, action, comedy and for pictorial beauty is outstanding. Add to this a fine cast and intelligent direction, and you have a well dressed western, which should click with any save the so-called highbrow audiences.

George O'Brien is an outlaw because he killed a man. But the Texas Ranger captain sees his side of it and decides to give O'Brien a chance to be exonerated, provided he joins the Rangers and helps bring a gang of rustlers and killers to justice. O'Brien is lightning-fast on the trigger, and puts over his role well.

Much of the picture was filmed in Arizona and the natural settings are beautiful, appearing like a series of paintings, before which the fast action takes place. There is plenty of excitement, all the heroics necessary to westerns, but done in a manner that furnishes entertainment.

Musicals with this one will make nice balance.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Directed by A. F. Erickson. Stage director, A. H. Van Buren. Story by Zane Grey. Dialogue by John Hunter Booth and Seton I. Miller. Edited by Jack Murray. Photographed by Daniel Clark. Length, 5,940 feet. Running time, 1 hour, 6 mins. Release date, Jan. 5, 1930.

The Locked Door

(United Artists—All Dialogue)

Of Program Calibre

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

A REMAKE of Channing Pollock's "The Sign on the Door," modernized, however, with the introduction of a rum ship on which Barbara Stanwyck, lured under false pretenses, is arrested for disorderly conduct.

Rod La Rocque, extremely actory in his part, is the culprit. After her marriage to William Boyd, Miss Stanwyck attempts to keep La Rocque's attentions from her young sister-in-law, played by Betty Bronson. La Rocque is shot in a scuffle by Boyd, who covers his traces and locks the door, not knowing his wife is in the apartment. The situation is cleared when La Rocque, regaining consciousness before his death, tells the police it was all an accident.

The story seems a bit old-fashioned, certainly is theatrical, but is lifted by generally good characterizations. Nobody is called upon to deliver unusual performances, but maybe the story didn't call for any. A pleasing programmer—that's all.

Cartoons in sound will fit in perfectly.

Produced by United Artists. Directed by George Fitzmaurice. Story based on "Sign on the Door" by Channing Pollock. Scenario by C. Gardner Sullivan. Dialogue by George Scarborough. Photographed by Ray June. Length, 6844 feet. Running time, 1 hr. 4 mins. Release date, Nov. 16, 1929.

Woman Who Was Forgotten

(States Cinema—All Dialogue)

Great B. O. Possibilities

(Reviewed by J. P. Cunningham)

IF you don't intend to cash in on an ace-high publicity angle, don't play this one. The value of this production lies entirely in its suitability to a big ballyhoo.

Belle Bennett, as the lead, makes a direct appeal to the successful manhood and womanhood of the country, on behalf of all school 'marms who have sacrificed their all to mould rough and troublesome youngsters into a finished product, at the expense of their own future. Of course, the film story offers an incentive to aid teachers in their old age. And that's where the exhibitor comes in with exploitation.

Dick Thomas, director, lays the sob stuff on too thickly. The big kick comes when Belle Bennett, as an old and decrepit teacher, living in poverty in the unused wooden school from which she was ejected for aiding one of her old scholars threatened with imprisonment for fraud, finds herself surrounded by a group of now-grown representatives of classes she taught, assembled to do her honor and provide financial comforts.

Lighten your bill with a good comedy.

Produced by Charles Goetz and distributed by States Cinema Corp. Directed by Richard Thomas. From the book by Bess Streeter Aldrich. Scenario by Bert Levino. Footage, 7,650 ft. Running time, 1 hour, 18 mins. Release date, Jan. 1, 1930.

'Neath Western Skies

(Syndicate Pictures—Silent)

Just Another Film

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

TOM TYLER has a following and on the strength of that this may get by as a double-feature offering. It's pretty crude otherwise and nothing to get excited about. There are several fights, some hard riding and a sprinkling of comedy to make up for its other shortcomings. Except for Tyler, the cast is just so-so, Director McGowan playing a comedy part.

It's all about the efforts of a crooked oil promoter to obtain possession of Tyler's ranch, in order to drill for oil. The key to the success of his efforts is a set of carbon diamond drills, without which the hero can't carry on operations. There is plenty of juggling of the cigar box containing the drills, but finally everything turns out okeh.

For houses which play this type of western, this will get by, chiefly as a Tom Tyler vehicle. The star is a good-looking chap and has been appearing in out-door pictures for years, which should invest him with a certain amount of box-office value.

Plenty of support is needed to hold up the bill.

Produced and distributed by Syndicate Pictures. Directed by J. P. McGowan. Story by Sally Winters. Scenarist, not credited. Editor, not credited. Photographed by Frank Cotner. Length, 4,924 feet. Running time, about 1 hour, 4 mins. Release date, Aug. 1, 1929.

The Feminine Touch

(Reid-Broughton—All Dialogue)

Will Lasso Some Laughs

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

MRS. WALLACE REID delivers a knockout program picture—but why she took a rip-snorting, semi-western tale such as Caroline Lockhart's "Dude Wrangler" and re-labeled it "Feminine Touch" is a mystery.

The picture will satisfy the demands of almost any audience for an hour's entertainment. It has society atmosphere, quite a bit of western ranch life, some pathos, more or less of a romance—and plenty of comedy.

Ethel Wales and Virginia Sale team up as a pair of old maids and steal most of the picture, while Clyde Cook manages to spring a bunch of wisecracks productive of laughs aplenty. The balance of the cast is very satisfactory. Direction by Richard Thorpe was quite acceptable.

This is the type of story that won't bring forth ringing cheers, but is handled in so pleasing a manner that it is destined to please all and sundry.

Dramatic shorts will fit to diversify.

Produced by Mrs. Wallace Reid and Cliff Broughton. From novel "The Dude Wrangler," by Caroline Lockhart. Directed by Richard Thorpe. Adaptation and dialogue by Robert Lee. Photography by James Diamond, Bert Baldridge & Ernest Laszlo. Length, running time and release date undetermined.

Across the World

(Talking Picture Epics—All-Dialogue)

Fine Audience Stuff

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

IN which the Martin Johnsons, globe trotters and big game hunters, take you on a combination trip of their various expeditions. A trifle long in the telling, but an interesting document of adventure and travel with a very definite appeal for audiences and box-offices.

J. Leo Meehan and, it is understood, Terry Ramsaye concocted the dialogue used by Johnson to unfold the story, although Johnson is given the credit. Before a drawing room of guests he spins his yarn and shows that audience in picture form exactly what happened. Then comes the switch to the actual travel pictures with Johnson maintaining a generally breezy and rapid-fire conversation. The dialogue does much to keep the proceedings lively, but the thrills somehow don't thrill, because to this reviewer, at least, many of them were palpably faked.

Mrs. Johnson, the pictures would have you believe, is an expert marksman and no doubt she is, but while she purports to shoot down the kings of the jungle, you never actually see her do it. That, too, is O.K., except that persistent efforts to impress you otherwise are made throughout the entire picture. In other words, an attempt is made to sell you on something that is not entirely backed up.

However, many of the shots are decidedly unusual and of real interest.

Musical shorts suggested.

Produced by the Martin Johnsons and distributed by Talking Picture Epics. Dramatic direction by J. Leo Meehan. Dialogue credited to Johnson. Edited by Russell Shields. Photography the same. Length, 8,860 feet. Running time, 1 hr. and 8 mins. Release date, not set.

Take the Heir

(Big 4—Synchronized)

Very, Very Weak

(Reviewed by J. P. Cunningham)

THE names in this may get it over. Edward Everett Horton, a polished comedian, is wasted in a time-worn, ill-directed and flat story which reeks of slowness, nothing else. Six full reels of the old situation in which the English heir to a dead uncle's estate in America, is threatened with disinheritance because of his capers. Upon his arrival in the States, accompanied by a valet (Horton), to claim the fortune, the valet is forced to act as Lord Tweedham because his master has partaken of too much whoopee water. Lloyd Ingraham injected some cross-romance between the valet, Lord Tweedham (Frank Elliott), the fat daughter of the uncle's executor, and the latter's maid. In the final washup, Horton, at a reception in the home of the wealthy executor of the will, unearths the imposition and marries the maid, while the real lord is left with the big fat daughter.

The players do their best. And that's very little. The only laughs which the audience received from the comedy in this one came from the out-of-synchronization effects, but blame the theatre where this was caught for that.

Use this on a double feature bill.

Produced by John Freuler and C. Stimson, with state right distribution through Big 4 Prod. Lloyd Ingraham directed from an original and story by Beatrice Van. Photographed by Al Siegler. Running time, 1 hr. 6 mins. Length, 5,700 ft. Release date, Jan. 15.

Smithers	Edward Everett Horton
Susan	Dorothy Devore
Lord Tweedham	Frank Elliott
Lady Tweedham	Edythe Chapman

Made to Order

(Jesse Weil—All Dialogue)

Good Programmer

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

JULIAN ELTINGE makes his talking picture debut in "Made To Order," titled from the theme song presented by the impersonator in one of the night club scenes.

While Eltinge's work is sufficient to make this a picture of good program calibre, it is Betty Boyd who flashes into action late in the picture to steal much of the glory. As a French diamond smuggler Betty is both wicked and pretty, beside displaying unusual ability.

Elmer Clifton directed, and while the picture has some soft spots, it holds together satisfactorily. The story, although not new, makes use of Eltinge as a female impersonator to get the inside dope on a gang of smart crooks who smuggle diamonds by airplane, using a night club as headquarters. Eltinge's song numbers go over well. Exhibitor exploitation might well hinge around this performer's reputation as a female impersonator. Eltinge has played vaudeville for many years and should be well known generally throughout the country.

Will get by as a program feature generally.

Comedies with drawing power would suit here.

Produced by Jesse Weil. Released independently. Story by Doris Denbo. Directed by Elmer Clifton. Adaptation and dialogue by Grace Elliott. Songs by Fred Thomson and Jack Stone. Photography by Don Keyes. Length, 6,240 feet. Running time, 1 hour 9 minutes. Release date not set.

Slightly Scarlet

(Paramount—All Dialogue)

Entertaining Crook Setting

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

HERE is a "Cheating Cheaters" theme that seems rather obvious story material, but nevertheless developed in such a manner that it carries plenty of suspense to assure a new entertainment rating.

Two society crooks—a girl and man—separately set out to secure a valuable necklace purchased by an American tourist in France. Both become friends of the American and his family to purloin the jewels—and then fall in love. For a climax they leave the jewels after each discovers the other's attempts to obtain them, and decide to go straight.

Evelyn Brent is the girl, with Clive Brook holding the other featured spot. Eugene Pallette as the American business man gives an excellent and not overdone characterization that provides comedy.

Louis Gasnier and Edwin Knopf, co-directing, provided a fast moving tempo that was not noticeably retarded by dialogue characterization. Gasnier, director of many silent productions, was undoubtedly responsible for the tempo secured.

Slapstick two-reeler and musical short would fit with this one.

Produced and released by Paramount. Story by Percy Heath. Screen play and dialogue by Howard Estabrook and Joseph Mankiewicz. Directed by Louis Gasnier and Edwin Knopf. Editor, Edna Warren. Photographed by Allen Siegler. Length, about 7 reels. Release date, Feb. 22, 1930.

THE CAST

Hon. Courtenay Parkes	Clive Brook
Malatroff	Paul Lukas
Sylvester Corbett	Eugene Pallette

Lord Byron of Broadway

(M.G.M.—All Dialogue)

Fair Stuff

(Reviewed by Edwin Schallert)

THIS is a real puzzler, because there isn't a strong drawing name in the entire cast, and it will depend on how fond your audiences are of the talkies to determine how well it will go over. Cliff Edwards' name is worth featuring, perhaps, after "Hollywood Revue." Marion Shilling and Gwen Lee are pleasantly present. Benny Rubin is the chief comic.

The story's all about a song writer, who gets the swell head. He overlooks the little girl who plays in the same act with him in favor of a lot of other dizzy dames, who make him pretty speeches. Edwards does a dramatic role, as the chap that tries to save him, and has to die to do it. The whole thing is good as a glimpse of Broadway's tin-pan alley, but the human and popular appeal may be somewhat lacking. The picture is embellished with some very spectacular dance numbers, by the Albertina Rasch ballet in color. These will be a real hit. They are fine.

Good snappy comedy or cartoon short of Walt Disney type are required.

Produced and distributed by M-G-M. Adapted from novel by Nell Martin. Directed by William Nigh and Harry Beaumont. Dialogue and continuity by Crane Wilbur and Willard Mack. Music by Nacio Herb Brown and Dimitri Tiomkin. Lyrics by Arthur Freed. Length, 7200 feet; running time 1 hour 20 min. Release date Feb. 28, 1930.

Praise Powell, Skelly But Not Their Vehicle

New York critics place their stamp of approval on "Behind the Makeup" (Paramount)—with many ifs and buts. The majority agree that it is better fare than many of its back-stage predecessors, although it is claimed Skelly and Powell, who are given credit for fine work, were hampered with the story material, as reflected in the following opinions:

American— . . . One of the very finest photodramas of back-stage life, distinguished in direction and notable for the excellent characterizations contributed by Skelly and Powell. . . .

Daily News— . . . Might have gone over much better if they hadn't turned it out in such an obvious manner . . . slow-moving and so Pollyannaish as to ring almost untrue. . . .

Evening Graphic— . . .Skelly's work is so superior to every other phase of this talkie that it seems one of Hollywood's minor tragedies he should have been featured. . . . Powell was effective. . . .

Evning Journal— . . . Hal Skelly . . . is the bright spot. . . . Direction of the piece, which was developed somewhat slowly, is by Robert Milton. . . .

Evening World— . . . Done so well by William Powell and Hal Skelly that you don't mind repetition (of the stage-type story). . . . Bill Powell steals the honors. . . . You'll like this one. . . .

Herald-Tribune—This story . . . though unconvincing and often reminiscent of other recent back-stage films, is told interesting most of the time and with a certain refreshing newness, except in the latter reels, when it drags considerably and is without suspense.

Morning Telegraph— . . . "Sonny Boy" grown up, but still underdeveloped intellectually . . . another stereotyped back-stage story, . . .

Post— . . . story is rather tepid, and an unconscionable amount of time and footage is expended before the plot gets down to business. . . .

Sun— . . . Despite the usualness of its pattern, the film has rather a strange quality—considering that it came from Hollywood. . . .

Telegram— . . . With all . . . virtues the film fails lamentably at its attempts to be diverting entertainment . . . an excellent collection of loose strings that needs only vitality of direction to knot it into a firm, taut rope.

Times— . . . Ably directed and cleverly acted. . . . The story is rather limp and disappointing. . . .

World— . . . all right if you can stand for a little novelty in the form of a drama about dejected vaudeville actors and love and disillusionment and the restoration of hope and cheer and happiness.

"An outstanding picture as entertainment for the more discriminating," MOTION PICTURE NEWS stated in its review of "Behind the Makeup," which appeared in the issue of Oct. 26, 1929.

"Congo" Acclaimed as Fair Film Entertainment

"Up the Congo," which opened this week in New York, is considered fairly interesting entertainment by the majority of critics. Consensus of opinion shows thrills are lacking, but sufficient interesting material is contained in the production to put it over where travel pictures are liked.

American— . . . despite the fact that it is utterly lacking in thrills, the strange beings of the primal wilds are sufficiently interesting to hold the audience. . . .

Daily News— . . . lively pictorial record which . . . smacks too much of tribal dances and too little of native customs to be thoroughly absorbing. . . .

Evening Journal— . . . entertaining and instructive.

Evening World— . . . picture is an entertaining one . . . profoundly informative and instructive. . . .

Herald-Tribune— . . . while it is not continually interesting, for the most part, it manages to be, every now and then, amusing and original. . . .

Morning Telegraph— . . . fair film entertainment. . . .

Post— . . . if you are weary of civilization, or even if you aren't, you will find interesting things go on. . . .

Sun— . . . manages to be of far greater interest than the customary trek through Africa with gun and camera. . . .

World—A fascinating travel picture. . . . No picture of the African jungles yet shown has seemed . . . to be more continuously interesting than this one. . . .

Several Corking Comedies Highlight The Week in Shorts; Cartoons, Too

"The Einstein Theory of Relativity"

(Red Seal—Silent—2 Reels)

Splendid and Diverting

"THE Einstein Theory" is not a new film. It was produced by Edwin Miles Fadman several years ago as a pictorial explanation to the layman of what the famous relativity theory is all about.

Audiences probably won't know after seeing this extremely interesting and generally fascinating film, but it will convey to them an idea of what Einstein was driving at.

Popular ideas of size, space, time and dimension are knocked galley west. For instance, it is demonstrated that what is up might be down, or both, and that a huge rock may be huge when it stands alone, but by comparison with a mountain, for example, isn't so high. In other words, size is relative, dependent upon that with which you compare it.

Vastly diverting and well worth a play, if you want to treat your audiences with something different.

Comedies and sound acts should make a good combination.

"The Big Kick"

(M-G-M-Talker—2 Reels)

Laughs a la Langdon

HARRY LANGDON and Hal Roach—'snuff said! They feature several gags in this which are bound to tear the house down with laughter. The funny antics of Harry, as the owner of a gas station on a lonely road frequented by desperate rum runners, offer comedy that is ace-high.

A novelty reel, or a dramatic short, will prove a fine contrast.

"So This Is Paris Green"

(Paramount-Christie—2 Reels)

Clever Kidding

A TAKE-OFF—very broad—on the Apaches of Paris and the nice, cool sewers they live in. Louise Fazenda is the woman of many passions; Bert Roach, the king of the Apaches, and Arthur Stone, the wife's lover—number unknown. All of the trimmings are gone through: The dance in the Parisian underworld dive, the dishing out of the poison to remove the husband so the two lovers can finally get together. The kick is the reward given Louise for having rid the city of its worst criminal. The principals are very good, but it is the treatment that sends this over as an extremely satisfying comedy. Directed by William Watson. Time, 20 mins.

Jass numbers O. K. with this.

"Sister's Pest"

(Universal—Talker—2 Reels)

One Reel Too Long

THEY drag "Sunny Jim" through two reels of foolishness, when one would do just as well. And why do they insist upon a baby-bonnet for the youngster? Harry Beaudine wasted 900 feet in the early reel with "Sunny Jim's" annoyances in the kitchen while his mother is preparing a picnic basket for the big sister, who is finally forced to take baby brother on the party. Speeds up a bit from that point on.

Use a dramatic short. But it must be good.

"Glorious Vamps"

(U. A. Featurette—1 Reel)

Grab It Now

SHORT subjects don't come better than this. All of the production qualities of a feature and a lot that many features don't get has been thrown into this comical affair of the glorious vamps of history. Bobby Watson waxes romantical and what you see are his experiences with the famous hot mamas of ages past from Eve down the line to Delilah, Cleopatra, Lucretia Borgia, and Carmen. Clever, fast-moving, tinkling, and extremely effective. O. O. Dull directed, Hugo Riesenfeld handled the music and William Cameron aided the latter in production. Enough credit for all. Time, about 9 mins.

Very unusual. Book it, advertise it and don't worry about other shorts when you show this.

"Royal Four Flush"

(Universal—Talker—1 Reel)

Only Average

BEN HOLMES, director, offers half-rate film fun in this "Sporting Youth" subject, in which a cub reporter succeeds in obtaining an interview from a visiting Indian prince, after he and his girl-friend prevent the getaway of the prince's valet who has robbed the famous royal ruby. Slow-moving in many spots, and, as a whole, registers in between good and bad entertainment.

Use strong surrounding numbers.

"Happy Golf"

(Pathe Sportlight—1 Reel)

Fine Audience Appeal

AN enlightening and interesting sport talker for those who go in for golf. Alex Morrison, teacher of the game and an authority on its fine points, reveals the modern methods of turning a duffer into a champ. Grantland Rice scores again.

Musical short, or a good comedy, would go well with this novelty.

"I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark"

(Paramount-Screen-Song—1 Reel)

Immensely Clever

AMUSING effects and music added to the inimitable Fleischer cartoon touch send this soaring over the top. "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark" is the theme song of this funny episode of a cartoon character drunk and afraid to go home. The audience is invited to join in the chorus and did—when this was caught at the Rialto, New York. Sure-fire stuff. Time, 9 mins.

This might well be the only short on any given bill—it's that good.

"Pathe Audio Review No. 4"

(Pathe—Sound—1 Reel)

Top-Notch Entertainment

THREE finely selected units, including "High Life In Borneo," which reveals interesting and exciting scenes of wild monkey life in the jungle; the Jugoslav Singers chanting hymns while the camera catches shots of Parisian church architecture; and Youri Yourlo, Russian dancer, who, accompanied by Royal Russian Balalaika orchestra, shakes his hoofs, a la Cossack. One of the best novelties from the scissors of Terry Ramsaye.

Light comedy would be suitable.

"A Million Me's"

Paramount Act—2 Reels

Pleasing, Not Unusual

LEE MORSE'S record vogue is the basis of this sound act. The idea is clever; the picture not so. Miss Morse falls out with her boy friend and refuses to make any more records. The argument used to change her mind hinges around the fact that all over the land presumably her records are supplying entertainment. The first episode is in a college dormitory, Miss Morse stepping out of the Victrola to do her number. Then in a speak-easy and finally out of the picture frame on her sweetheart's table. Sweetie hears her, phones the pining gal and everything is forgiven. Directed by Monte Brice. Time, 12 mins., but seems longer.

Hot jazz number suggested for additional short subject.

"Pathe Review No. 4"

(Pathe—Silent—1 Reel)

50% Rating for This

TWO of the four units in the current review are almost inexcusable. Maurice Kellerman's assignment is a flop. What interest can there possibly be in showing back-yard fences in Newfoundland, or any other place for that matter? "The Street That Jack Built" is the second. Here we see automobiles and tall apartment hotels on Park Ave., New York, and that's all.

The reel is redeemed by "Temple of India," a Pathechrome color subject showing where the Hindus worship, and "Chicken," in which thousands of white leghorns are caught scampering about an immense Western chicken farm.

Bolster this up with a good musical comedy short.

"Kisses and Kurses"

(Universal—Cartoon—1 Reel—Sound)

Don't Miss It

REACHING the height of merriment for a cartoon subject, Universal puts Oswald through the paces in a very funny burlesque on "Show Boat" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Lots of new gags, all of them laugh-getters. And how!

Book something heavy. Enough comedy in this for your whole bill.

"Old Vamps for New"

(Darmour-RKO—Sound—2 Reels)

Good Farce for Laughs

ALBERTA VAUGHN, Al Cooke, Dot Farley and Lewis Sargent have the leads in this Witwer series comedy that has several nice comedy sequences spotted in a nicely rounded farce.

The boy goes to jail for speeding, but the judge releases him in custody of his henpecked father. Then father and son step out—getting into trouble and landing back in jail. But the judge's daughter is the boy's sweetheart, which surprises his honor. Finally, father and son are released in charge of the irate wife and boss of the family. There is an interesting story with lots of laughs, and just enough music to balance things nicely.

Good enough to spot on any bill where a laugh two-reeler is required.

Additional short subject reviews appear on page 52.

Weekly Box Office Check-Up And Showmen's Ad. Tips

In Figuring Percentage Rating On Pictures, The Normal Or Average Business Of The Theatre Is Taken As 100%

Alibi (U.A.)

DES MOINES.—Strand (1,100), 20 and 30 cents, 3 days. Other attractions: U. comedy, "Delicatessen Kid," Kinograms. Opposition: "New York Nights," "The Racketeer," "Love Comes Along," "It's a Great Life." Weather, very cold. Rating, 75%.

Argyle Case (W.B.)

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Rialto (700), 15 to 25 cents. Four days. Other attractions: Pathe News, Aesop Fables. Weather, heavy snow and sleet. Opposition: "Sally," "Broadway," "Shannons of Broadway," "Love Parade," "Bishop Murder Case." Rating, 100%.

Aviator, The (W.B.)

BOSTON, MASS.—Scollay Square (1,800), 25c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions: vaudeville, Paramount News. Weather, rain. Opposition: "Dynamite," "It's a Great Life," "Lost Zeppelin," "The Kibitzer," "First Command," "Sky Hawk." Rating, 105%.

Battle of Paris (Para.)

BALTIMORE. — Hippodrome (2,500), 6 days, 20 to 60 cents. Other attractions: Pathe Sound News, Aesop's Fables, "Hot and How" (Educ'l comedy), Bert Smith Players in "The Stronger Sex," with acts, chorus, orchestra, organ. Weather, cloudy, moderate, rain, clear, snow, cold. Opposition: (screen) "Peacock Alley," "Paris," "This Thing Called Love," "Passion of Joan of Arc," "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up," "Second Choice," "Chasing Rainbows," "Condemned." Stage: "Follow Through," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," "Girls From Happyland," Performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists. Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—Gertrude Lawrence and Charles Ruggles are the names to play up. Use a line cut in the ad showing Lawrence in arms of hero. Tell them here is the star of "Charlot's Revue," in a swift-moving comedy drama of Paris and the A. E. F. during the war. Get in touch with the American Legion post, arrange for special Legion night. Tie up with radio, music, phonograph, record shops for display of song hits. Use French mobilization notice in your lobby to create curiosity. Audience appeal is fine for all who like a story of the war told in a very entertaining way—Nat Keene, Mgr., Hippodrome, Baltimore.

Bishop Murder Case (M-G-M)

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Capitol (1,200), 25 to 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions: Hearst Metrotone News, Charles Chase in "Stepping Out." Weather, heavy snow and sleet. Opposition: "Sally," "Broadway," "Shannons of Broadway," "Love Parade," "Argyle Case," Rating, 100%.

OMAHA.—State (1,200), 25 to 40 cents, 4 days. Other attractions: "Let Me Explain" (Par.), Universal News. Weather, sub-zero. Opposition: "Pointed Heels," "Dance Halls," "Chasing Rainbows." Rating, 90%.

Ad Tips—Previous success of S. S. Van Dine's mystery pictures was aid in this one, but cold weather hurt too much. Lots of murders and suspense with a thread of romance. Didn't seat patrons during last 10 minutes. Audience appeal principally for men.—Irving Cohen, Mgr., State, Omaha.

Broadway (U)

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Liberty (1,800), 25 to 50 cents, 7 days. Weather, heavy snow and sleet. Other attractions: Fox News, short subjects. Rating, 100%. Opposition: "Sally," "Shannons of Broadway," "Love Parade," "Bishop Murder Case," "Argyle Case."

Chasing Rainbows (M-G-M)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Stanley (3,654), 6 days, 25 to 60 cents. Other attractions: Metrotone News, "My Pony Boy" (organlogue), "The Hoose Gow" (Laurel and Hardy comedy). Weather, cloudy, moderate, rain, clear, snow, very cold. Opposition: (screen) "Peacock Alley," "Paris," "Battle of Paris," "This Thing Called Love," "Passion of Joan of Arc," "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up," "Second Choice," "Condemned." Stage: "Follow Thru," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," "Girls From Happyland," Performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists. Rating, 100%.

OMAHA.—World (2,500), 25 to 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions: "Merry Dwarfs" (Col.), Pathe News. Weather, sub-zero. Opposition: "Pointed Heels," "Dance Hall," "Tiger Rose," "The Bishop Murder Case." Rating, 80%.

Ad Tips—Exploit Bessie Love and Charles King in this as stars of "Broadway Melody," with a superb supporting cast. Tell them all (name your town) will be humming the melodies, and singing their praise of this musical romance. In newspaper ads use mortised panel at bottom for copy with King and Love sitting on top with backs to each other and heads toward reader as if singing a song. Use criss-cross line background with mortised circle back of King and mortised panel back of Love with catchlines. Audience appeal is strong for all who like revue picture with story. Combination is very good.—Charles Raymond, Gen'l Mgr., Loew's Stanley, Baltimore.

Ad Tips—Team of Betty Compson and Charles King go big as the stars of "Broadway Melody," now "back together again." Another backstage, musical comedy story, but it has all the marks of a great picture. Music especially good and worked radio and music store tieups successfully. Audience appeal, general.—Lionel Wasson, Mgr., World, Omaha.

Christina (Fox)

TACOMA—Fox Colonial (965), 7 days, 25c-35c. Other attractions: "Wednesday at the Ritz" (Pathe sound comedy) "Too Much Acting" (Fox) and Fox Movietone News. Weather, cold and bad for matinees especially. Opposition: "Tanned Legs," "The Great Divide" and "Romance of Rio Grande." Rating, 85%.

Ad Tips—Exploited Janet Gaynor in new type of role; Schildkraut and Charles Morton; story also. Audience appeal general, but believe it would have registered better with full speaking, rather than but a reel or two at close.—Doug. Kimberley, Mgr., Fox Colonial, Tacoma.

Condemned (U.A)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Valencia (1,500), 6 days, 25 to 35 cents. Other attractions— Metrotone News, "Irish Fantasy" (U. A. featurette), Taylor Holmes "He Did His Best" (Paramount comedy). Weather, cloudy, moderate, rain, clear, snow, very cold. Opposition: (screen) "Peacock Alley," "Paris," "Battle of Paris," "This Thing Called Love," "Passion of Joan of Arc," "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up," "Second Choice," "Chasing Rainbows." Stage: "Follow Thru," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," "Girls From Happyland." Performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists. Rating, 80%. (Shown simultaneously at Valencia and Parkway after one week at Stanley.)

BALTIMORE.—Loew's Parkway (1,092), 6 days, 15 to 35 cents. Other attractions: Metrotone News, Taylor Holmes in "He Did His Best" (Paramount comedy). Weather, cloudy, moderate, rain, clear, snow, very cold. Opposition: (screen) "Peacock Alley," "Paris," "Battle of Paris," "This Thing Called Love," "Passion of Joan of Arc," "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up," "Second Choice," "Chasing Rainbows. Stage: "Follow Thru," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," "Girls From Happyland," Performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists. Rating, 100%. (Shown simultaneously at Valencia and Parkway after one week at Stanley.

Dance Hall (RKO)

KANSAS CITY—Mainstreet (3,067), 35c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions: Irene Rich appearing in person in playlet, "Ask My Wife"; four acts of vaudeville. Weather, cold, snow. Opposition: "Disraeli." "Sunnyside Up," Sacred Flame," "Flight." Rating, 90%.

NEW ORLEANS.—Orpheum (2,500), 60 cents, 7 days. coupled with five acts of vaudeville, Pathe News, orchestration novelty. Opposition, "Love Parade," "Dynamite," "Show of Shows" and "Hard to Get." Rating, 100%.

OMAHA.—Orpheum (3,000), 25 to 60 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions: J. C. Flippen and RKO bill, Pathe News. Weather, subzero. Opposition: "Pointed Heels," "Chasing Rainbows," "Tiger Rose," "Bishop Murder Case." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Vina Delmar's authorship of this picture-made novel helped the draw and was the chief plug for business. Title and the glitter of jazz stressed in all ad copy. Audience appeal, generally.—Ralph W. Thayer, Mgr., Orpheum, Omaha.

Box Office Check-Up And Ad. Tips

Ad Tips—Played up from the modern youth angle. Advertised as better than Vina Delmar's first stories, "Bad Girl" and "Kept Woman." Sensational advertising for this picture.—Lawrence Lehman, Mgr., Mainstreet, Kansas City.

Disraeli (W.B.)

KANSAS CITY—Newman (2,000), 25c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions: Taylor Holmes in "Let Me Explain," Paramount News; western novelty, "Mountain Melodies." Weather, cold, snow. Opposition: "Sunnyside Up," "Sacred Flame," "Flight," "Dance Hall." Rating, 110 per cent.

Dynamite (M-G-M)

BOSTON—Loew's State (3,700), 7 days, 30c-50c. Other attractions: miniature revue, song and dance numbers, Hearst Metrotone News. Weather, rain. Opposition: "It's a Great Life," "Lost Zeppelin," "Sky Hawk," "The Kibitzer," "First Command," "The Aviator." Rating, 210%.

NEW ORLEANS.—Loew's State (3,000), 60 cents, 7 days, coupled with Dave Harris Revue on stage, newsreels, orchestration. Opposition: "Love Parade," "Show of Shows," "Hard to Get," "Dance Hall." Rating, 100%.

PROVIDENCE.—Loew's State (3,800), 15 to 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions, Disney sound cartoon, Hearst Metrotone News, Joe Stoves' organlogue. Weather, warm, rain. Opposition: "Sunny Side Up," "Paris," "His First Command." Rating, 115%.

Ad Tip—A natural smash that will go as fans have a chance to talk about it. Business here capacity all week. Nagle beat name to hang individual billing on with mention, of course, to De Mille. Stress exotic society background and contrast with mining conditions. Strong drama throughout. Should appeal to every one irrespective of age.—J. P. McCarthy, Mgr., Loew's State, Providence.

First Command (Pathe)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Proctor's Grand (1,800), 25 to 75 cents, 6 days. Other attractions: vaudeville acts. Weather, pleasant. Opposition: "Sky Hawk," "South Sea Rose," Show of Shows," "Three Live Ghosts." Rating, 94%.

BOSTON—Keith-Albee (2,500), 25c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions: Robert L. Ripley in person, vaudeville, News, Comedy. Weather, rain. Opposition: "Dynamite," "It's a Great Life," "Lost Zeppelin," "Sky Hawk," "The Kibitzer," "The Aviator." Rating, 110%.

LOS ANGELES.—RKO (2,700), 7 days, 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions RKO vaudeville revue and Pathe Sound News. Opposition: "Seven Days' Leave," "Hot for Paris," "Show of Shows," "Hit the Deck," "New York Nights," "South Sea Rose."

PROVIDENCE.—Victory (1,600), 15 to 50 cents, 7 days. Other attractions: "Kiddie Troupers in Town Scandals," "In Old Madrid," Sound New. Weather, warm, rain. Opposition: "Paris," "Sunny Side Up," Dynamite." Rating: 95%.

Ad Tip—William Boyd as breezy as ever. Setting in U. S. Calvary Post makes for strong drama. He-man exploitation pays in this one. Should have strong appeal to males because of action and for feminine fans due to star's magnetism.—Matt. Reilly, Mgr., Victory, Providence.

Flight (Col.)

TROY, N. Y.—Proctor's (2,000), 25 to 60 cents, 4 days. Other attractions: vaudeville. Weather, pleasant. Opposition: "Sally," Three Live Ghosts." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Put this up in newspaper advertising as a story of romantic love set against daring air maneuvers and play up heavy Jack Holt, Lila Lee and Ralph Graves as all three have their following. Audience appeal, general.—Jacob Golden, Mgr., Proctor's Troy, N. Y.

Great Divide (F.N.)

TACOMA—Hamrick's Blue Mouse (601), 8 days, 25c-75c. Other attractions: two Vitaphone acts and Grantland Rice sports on dogs. Weather, bad, especially for matinees. Opposition: "Christina," "Tanned Legs," and "Romance of Rio Grande." Rating, 90%.

Hallelujah (M-G-M)

HOUSTON.—Loew's State (2,700), 7 days, 25 to 60 cents. Other attractions: Five acts vaudeville led by Ross Wyse, Jr., Metrotone News and local newsreel. Weather, cold and rain. Opposition: "New York's Nights," "Kibitizer" and "Hot for Paris." Rating, 150%.

Ad Tips—In Houston we stressed King Vidor, local man in all advertising, and used such catch lines as "music that cannot be written," "most discussed picture of a decade," and "a saga of the most picturesque people on earth." The picture proved a great success, stirring much comment, the great majority favorable, for Southern people appreciate the scenes which Easterners believe exaggerated. Of course advertise the all-negro cast, and unusual theme. Appeal is to every one.—W. V. Taylor, Mgr., Loew's State, Houston.

Hot for Paris (Fox)

HOUSTON.—Majestic (2,250), 25 to 60 cents, 7 days. Other attractions: five acts vaudeville headed by Parker and Babb, Aesop's Fables, Fox Movietone News, orchestra overture. Weather, cold and rain. Opposition: "New York Nights," "Hallelujah," "Kibitzer." Rating, 120%.

LOS ANGELES.—Fox Criterion (1,652), 35 to 65 cents. Other attractions: "Copy" and Fox Movietone News. Opposition: "Seven Days' Leave," "South Sea Rose," "Show of Shows," "Hit the Deck," "His First Command," "New York Nights."

Ad Tips—Billed this one as directed and written by Raoul Walsh, who made "Cock-Eyed World." Also McLaglen, El Brendel and Fifi Dorsay should have big play in all billing. "Hot tune, hot dances and hot mammas" was the line used here. Light side of the production should be played up, everything in facetious vein and light burlesque. Appeal is to youth, men and adults.—Eddie Bremer, Mgr., Majestic, Houston.

Isle of Lost Ships (F.N.)

OTTAWA—Avalon (990), 3 days, 25c-35c. Added attractions, "Happy Birthday," Fox Movietone News, "Hawaiian Love Call." Weather, clear and cold. Opposition, "The Trespasser," "In The Headlines," "Glorifying American Girl," "Great Divide," "Flight." Rating, 92%.

Ad Tips—Here we have the most novel dialogue melodrama of the year and that was the way we advertised it, calling it "The Year's Most Bizarre Melodrama." Views of the graveyard of wrecked ships are creepy in themselves and when you add about 75 of the wildest and roughest human derelicts you can find, you have the theme. We told the public "Isle of Lost Ships" would stick out in their memory. Gave Noah Beery, Virginia Valli and Jason Robard big type in all advertising. Juveniles raced to see this picture and it had appeal for grown-ups too.—P. J. Nolan, Mgr., Avalon, Ottawa.

Is Everybody Happy (W.B.)

SALT LAKE CITY—Victory (1,278), 4 days, 15c-50c. Other attractions: sound acts and sound news. Weather, unsettled. Opposition: "Thirteenth Chair," "Pointed Heels," and "Laughing Lady." Rating, 115%.

Ad Tips—Exploit popularity of Ted Lewis of musical fame as star, and cheering value of production. Appeal to all classes.—P. A. Speckart, Mgr., Victory, Salt Lake.

It's a Great Life (M-G-M)

BOSTON—Loew's Orpheum (3,100), 25c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions: vaudeville, Laurel-Hardy comedy, Hearst Metrotone News. Weather, rain. Opposition: "Dynamite," "Lost Zeppelin," "Sky Hawk," "The Kibitzer," "First Command," "The Aviator." Rating, 110%.

DENVER—Orpheum (1,650), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions: RKO Vaudeville, Pathe Sound News. Weather, very cold. Opposition: "Sunny Side Up," "New York Nights," "Tanned Legs," "Lady Lies." Rating 75%.

DES MOINES—Paramount (1,700), 25c-35c-50c65c, 7 days. Other attractions: Paramount News, Herbie Koch organ number, "Hungarian Rhapsody," Publix unit of "Farmyard Frolics," featuring Sen, Francis Murphy and Frank Hamilton. Opposition: "New York Nights," "Three Live Ghosts," "Alibi," "The Racketeer," "Love Comes Along." Weather, very cold. Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Just say that the famous Broadway stars, the Duncan Sisters, in an all-talking comedy-riot, are here. The whole bill was a wow and the weather, the only handicap. A picture that is talked up by the ones who come first. Frank Hamilton, returning to this theatre, big welcome, and Sam Murphy went over big.—Jack Roth, Mgr., Paramount, Des Moines.

Ad Tip—Name of Irene Bordoni carries weight, but ads must bill her as a shining star of the musical comedy stage. Title also is good draw and affords opportunity for lavish whoopee in art. Has appeal for those who like action and sophisticated chatter.—Ed Reed, Mgr., Strand, Providence.

Ad Tips—This being Irene Bordoni's first film appearance play heavily upon her name and in all poster and newspaper advertising feature her head and shoulders, calling her "The Toast of Broadway and the Idol of Paris." In newspaper ads use full sun effect with tide and star it in black type, shining over shoulder of Bordoni's shoulder, using line cut of star looking toward reader. On each side at bottom have line cuts of girls in costumes as in revue scenes of play. Also play up spectacular angle. Audience appeal is strong from those who know Miss Bordoni from her stage work and the revue angle with the story should prove a good draw.—Charles Raymond, Gen. Mgr., Loew's Century, Baltimore.

Passion of Joan of Arc (Societe Generale des Films)

BALTIMORE—Little (267), 6 days, 35c-50c. Other attractions: Scenic, piano, musical translation by Orchestraphone. Weather, cloudy, moderate, rain, clear, snow, cold. Opposition: (screen) "Peacock Alley," "Paris," "Battle of Paris," "This Thing Called Love," "Show of Shows, "Sunny Side Up," "Second Choice," "Chasing Rainbows," "Condemned." Stage: "Follow Thru," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," "Girls From Happyland," Performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists. Rating, 130%.

Ad Tips—Play this up in your advertisements as the French film silent "masterpieces of all times," which, according to critics, ranks with the greatest pictures ever produced, including "Caligari," "Last Laugh," "Potemkin," etc. Notify all schools and colleges that here is the film par excellence that all should see and in which, without partiality or buncumb, the trial of Joan of Arc is given as nearly as possible as it is to imagine the actual trial took place. Arrange to have classes to attend in groups with reduced ticket rates. Notify French societies in your town. H. G. Weinberg, Mgr., Little, Baltimore.

Holmes," "Girls From Happyland," performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists.

Ad Tips—Exploit Mae Murray strong in this and tell them it is her talking picture debut. Let them know it is an all-talking, singing, musical production with natural color sequences. Use top part of window card of Miss Murray in abbreviated costume with peacock and halftone head and on either side at bottom use Murray with dancing partner on right and Murray in dancing pose at left. Place banner across street in front of theatre and use banners around marquee. There are several songs in this which you can get co-operative results in advertising and window displays with music, radio, phonograph, record shops and dear department stores. Also press stills can be used for displays for modern furnishings, hosiery, jewelry and women's ware. Audience appeal is strong from all who want to see what Miss Murray can do after such a long absence from the screen. Story is entertaining for many others.—Fred C. Schanberger, Jr., Mgr., Auditorium, Baltimore.

DENVER—Aladdin (1,400), 35c-75c, 7 days. Other attractions: Fox Movietone News and Vitaphone acts. Weather, very cold. Opposition: "New York Nights," "It's a Great Life," "The River," "Tanned Legs," "Lady Lies." Rating, 90%.

PROVIDENCE—Majestic (2,400), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions, News reel. Weather, warm, rain. Opposition: "Dynamite," "Paris," "His First Command." Rating, 125%.

KANSAS CITY—Midland (4,000), 25c-60c, 7 days. Other attractions: Hearst Metrotone News, five acts of vaudeville, headlining Trixie Friganza and Joe Laurie, Jr., in "Pint Sized Comedy." Weather, cold, snow. Opposition: "Disraeli," "Dance Hall," "Sacred Flame," "Flight." Rating, 110%.

Ad Tips—Clever idea for ad is to have title in setting sun at bottom with a dancing girl on either side at bottom and heavy black and white rays going from top of sun to top of ad. On seven mortised white rays have titles of seven song hits set with bars of music at top of each ray where space permits. Have signature of house in center at top in white on black and two bands, one a top, other a bottom with words All talking, singing, dancing, musical comedy and names of stars at bottom.—Morris .A. Mechanic, New Theatre, Baltimore.

Ad Tips—Street car hangers, bill boards, window cards, music store windows, and newspapers all contributed generously in space to advertising, reading notices and comments about this A1 box office attraction that is attracting whole families not once, but repeatedly.—William Watson, Mgr., Hippodrome, Cleveland.

Ad Tip—What a natural! So strong that crowds were milling around all week and must be held over. Lavish and colorful. Has five song hits that everybody can whistle, great love theme and plenty of comedy. Mention them all in telling the public about this smash! Cannot fail to click with young and old and has plenty of stuff for children.—Sol Braunig, Mgr., Majestic, Providence.

Taming of Shrew (U.A.)

MILWAUKEE—Palace Orpheum (2,587), 7 days, 25c-60c. Weather, cold and sunny. Other attractions, newsreel and comedy. Opposition, "Marriage Playground," "Welcome Danger," "Sally," "Sacred Flame," "Second Choice" and "Dynamite." Rating, 100%.

Tanned Legs (RKO)

DENVER—Tabor (2,269), 35c-75c, 7 days. Other attractions: Universal and Pathe Sound News and Fanchon and Marco stage show. Weather, very cold. Opposition: "Lady Lies," "New York Nights," "The River," "Sunny Side Up," "It's a Great Life." Rating, 70%.

TACOMA—RKO Pantages (1,500), 7 days, 25c-75c. Other attractions: R-K-O vaudeville unit headed by Olsen and Johnson, who had with them Johnny Fulton and Peggy Parker, and Gaynor & Byron, skaters. Weather, bad. Opposition: "Christina," "Great Divide," and "Romance of the Rio Grande." Rating, 85%.

Their Own Desire (M-G-M)

CLEVELAND—Allen (3,300), 7 days, 30c-60c. Weather, partly rain, partly clear. Other attractions: "Night Owls" (MGM), "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" (Paramount song), "On the Seas" (Paramount), Hearst Metrotone News. Opposition: "Sunny Side Up" (2nd week), "Sally," "Pointed Heels," "The Painted Angel," "So Long Letty." Rating, 115%.

Thirteenth Chair (M-G-M)

SALT LAKE CITY—R-K-O Orpheum (2,500), 7 days, 15c-75c. Other attractions: Vaudeville, headed by Mildred Hunt, billed as "Radio Sweetheart." Weather, unsettled. Opposition: "Laughing Lady," "Pointed Heels," and "Is Everybody Happy." Rating, 110%.

This Thing Called Love (Pathe)

BALTIMORE—Keith's (3,016), 6 days, 25c-50c. Other attractions: "Road to Mandalay" (Van Beuren Song Sketch), "Barnyard Battle" (Mickey Mouse sound cartoon), Fox Movietone News. Weather, cloudy, moderate, rain, clear, snow, very cold. Opposition: (screen) "Peacock Alley," "Paris," "Battle of Paris," Passion of Joan of Arc," "Show of Shows," "Sunny Side Up," "Second Choice," "Chasing Rainbows," "Condemned." Stage: "Follow Through," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," "Girls From Happyland," Performances of German Grand Opera Company and other concert artists. Rating, 70%.

Three Live Ghosts (U.A.)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Mark Ritz (1,146), 25c-35c. Other attractions: A Ritz talking comedy "Don't Get Excited," Vitaphone act, "The Barber Shop Chord," Pathe Sound News. Weather, pleasant. Opposition: "Sky Hawk," "South Sea Rose," "Show of Shows," "First Command." Rating, 108%.

DES MOINES—Strand (1,100), 20c-30c, 4 days. Other attractions: Pathe News, Paramount song cartoon, "Bedelia," "Sporting Youth," "The Steeple Chase." Opposition: "The Racketeer," "Love Comes Along," "It's a Great Life," "New York Nights." Weather, cold. Rating, 90%.

TROY, N. Y.—Lincoln (1,000), 25c-35c, 4 days. Other attractions: One Vitaphone act, Fox Movietone News. Weather, pleasant. Opposition: "Flight," "Sally." Rating, 98%.

Ad Tips—We used three men dressed up as ghosts walking the business center of the city. In our newspaper space we featured this as the greatest of all talking comedy and one that kept New York laughing for months. Audience appeal, general.—Byron Farley, Mgr., Mark Ritz, Albany, N. Y.

Ad Tips—Play up the mystery angle but also play up the fact that the picture carries much to amuse and is in fact a comedy riot. Audience appeal, general.—Harold Janecke, Mgr., Lincoln, Troy, N. Y.

Ad Tips—"All star cast in the laugh sensation of the year" was the way this was billed. Good picture for general audience.—L. A. Carter, Mgr., Strand, Des Moines.

Tiger Rose (W.B.)

OMAHA—State (1,200), 25c-40c, 3 days. Other attractions: "Big Time Charley" (Pathe), Universal News. Weather, sub-zero. Opposition: "Pointed Heels," "Dance Hall," "Chasing Rainbows." Rating, 80%.

Trespasser, The (U.A.)

OTTAWA—Regent (1,225), 6 days, 25c-60c. Other attractions, "They Go Boom," starring Laurel and Hardy, Fox Movietone News, orchestra overture. Weather, clear and cold. Opposition, "Great Divide," "In The Headlines," "Glorifying American Girl," "Bulldog Drummond," "Isle of Lost Ships." Rating, 100%.

Ad Tips—Patrons seemed to be waiting for this production as they had read and heard much about it. Called it "The Supreme Triumph of Gloria Swanson's Career," and heralded it as "The Sensation of the Talking Screen," asking the public to hear the talking and singing of Gloria. She does give an impressive portrayal and helps much to establish a high standard of quality in the production. This is a feature that particularly appeals to women because of the story and it is of special interest to adults.—T. R. Tuban, Mgr., Regent, Ottawa.

Untamed (M-G-M)

SAN FRANCISCO—Fox, 50c-65c-90c , 7 days. Other attractions: Fox Movietone News, concert orchestra, Fanchon-Marco stage revue, "Hot Dominos Idea." Weather, wet. Opposition: "Hell's Heroes," "Disraeli," "Sunny Side Up," "Love Parade," "Broadway," "Song of Love," "New York Nights." Rating, 90%.

Welcome Danger (Para.)

MILWAUKEE—Strand (1,406), 25c-60c. Weather, cold and sunny. Other attractions, Fox Movietone news and comedy and fashion review. Opposition, "Taming of the Shrew," "Marriage Playground," "Sally," "Second Choice," "Sacred Flame." Rating, 110%.

Short Subject Reviews

"Footlight Follies"

(Universal—Talker—2 Reels)

Very Much O. K.

THEY followed channels other than the flighty-youngster type for the story used in this new "Sporting Youth" unit. Ben Holmes directed and did a good job. The local "legit" manager discovers that his troupe is stranded, after he has a full house, and enlists the aid of the town's collegiates to carry on. They give a burlesque performance centering around "Our Nell" on a farm, her hero lover, the villain, a mortgage on the old homestead, etc., etc.

This comedy with a nice musical number and you'll have enough short material for an average show.

"Up and Down Stairs"

(Universal—Sound—2 Reels)

Fair Slapstick

AVERAGE comedy short, directed by Harry Edwards, who injected a few laugh-getting gags, but none which will tear down the house. Vernon and his wife move to a neighborhood far removed from Vernon's friend, Lou, an evil influence, who soon finds out their whereabouts and again splits the camp into two opposing factions. Dialogue is good.

Needs support of a good dramatic short. A sound cartoon would go well, too.

M-G-M Unit To Mexico

Hollywood—M-G-M will send a full production unit to Mexico to make all of the exteriors for "The Sea Bat." This is said to be the first invasion of Mexico by a picture company for some years. Wesley Ruggles will direct.

Interesting Material in New Johnson Film

Majority of the critics in New York accept "Across the World with the Martin Johnsons" as interesting fare, although they recognize in the production a collection of considerable material which had been seen previously in Johnson films.

A cross-section of their reactions to the new Talking Picture Epics release can be gleaned from the following:

American— . . . decidedly novel entertainment, holding its main interest in the fact that none of its thrills is the synthetic studio-made product of Hollywood. Everything that is shown . . . has the appeal of reality. . . .

Daily Mirror— . . . exactly like all other lion killing pictures except that the Johnsons in a "sound" accompaniment lecture on their  (African) invasion. . . .

Daily News— . . . We enjoyed every minute of our trip across the world. . . .

Evening Journal— . . . an effective film of out-of-the-way places . . . scenic shots and the photography are good.

Evening World— . . . a new idea in travel things . . . the high lights . . . were rendered infinitely more dramatic and compelling. . . .

Graphic— . . . interesting.

Herald-Tribune— . . . should not be missed by anyone with an inquiring mind.

Morning Telegraph— . . . fascinating entertainment for those who must seek their adventures vicariously. . .

Post— . . . there are some scenes . . . which in their panoramic magnificence are unmatched . . . entertaining and thrilling. . . .

Sun— . . . much more interesting than "Simba."

Telegram— . . . despite some familiar sequences is . . . much the best of the recent adventure and exploration films. . . .

Times— . . . its interest is enhanced by Mr. Johnson's vocalized description of the scenes.

World— . . . The pictures, for the most part . . . are nicely photographed. . . . The record seemed . . . an interesting one.

The Johnson picture "carries fine audience appeal," according to MOTION PICTURE NEWS, which reviews the African film on page 42 of this issue.

A Thought For To-morrow

WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH YOUR MONEY? Of course, the smart boys will up and say: "Where are we to get it from?" but if we put all kidding aside we may be more successful in getting down to honest facts and the important subject on hand.

Regardless of how bad salary conditions may be at this time among some of the economy-crazed circuits, the average pay of the house manager is not near as bad as a lot of the boys would have you believe.

But just the same, whether you are getting a lot or getting a little the point we are inquiring about is: "WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH YOUR MONEY?"

Only this morning a manager who had always rated a good fat salary was in to see us in the hopes of landing a job. He has been "out" for only three weeks and already he is feeling the pinch of want. His money is running low and he must get something to do or else ——?

Out of consideration for this man's feelings we refrained from asking him what we are venturing to ask the "gang" as a group. But in all fairness, that man should certainly have put some money aside against the time he might be out of work or perhaps have sickness in his family.

It is neither fair to you yourself, nor those who are dependent upon you to squander the money you are making. The "hail fellow well met" spirit is great, but wait until you reach the more wealthy class before you start to practice the various methods in popular vogue for the spending of it.

This is really more of a plea than a warning. PLEASE, put aside some of your salary or income and don't run the risks of want in your family. Standing for a round of drinks might make you popular with the other boys, but those "other boys" will only offer you sympathy, and plenty of it, if you come to them for a loan.

I've been through the mill, boys, and how ——! I know the fun we can all have spending our salary, but I have also learned the logic of putting a "little" aside and if you don't believe I thanked my lucky stars time and again for doing so, you're nuts.

Whether it's only a five spot or more, according to your income, something should go into the good old savings account—and—what a "kick" to watch it mount up week by week and what a thrill of satisfaction to feel more and more confident as you see it grow.

Try it yourselves and if you don't agree with us after a few months, well, we'll stand for that "round."

Don't be a sucker. Even if you are carefree right now, remember that in a year or two you may have a wife and perhaps a kiddie to think about. Then you'll know what being "short" means.

To hell with the old formulas of: "We'll always make a living." Take no chances on Lady Luck. Put it away while the putting's good and let the other fellow be the sap.

L. L. Chambers Puts Them OverDifferentinNewburgh

L. L. Chambers ran an identification contest in the local newspaper to help publicize Richard Barthelmess in his current picture, "Young Nowheres," playing at the Broadway Theatre, Newburgh, N. Y.

Five different ads appeared in the paper for five consecutive days prior to the playing of picture—each ad using the caption "Do You Remember?" and then a cut of the star and then followed copy about one of the star's pictures.

The idea of the contest was to fill in the title of the picture after reading the description. One of the ads follows: In this picture Dick was a doughboy and a fighter. A great natural born fighter in the ring. But he had to prove his worth on the battlefield. Do you remember the name of this picture? If you do fill in the blank line on this and others to follow, and save until you have the whole series of five. The person turning in the correct list and best essay on the role they liked best, will receive $5 in gold, second $2.50 in gold, and the next fifteen nearest correct will receive two tickets each to see "Young Nowheres" his newest picture at the Broadway starting Monday, Nov. 18th.

The contest created an unusual amount of interest as was evidenced by the number of answers. And a surprising number of answers were correct.

SOME FINE DISPLAY WORK

There are few pictures that have presented the marvelous exploitation angles than Harold Lloyd's latest, "WELCOME DANGER."

In the group of photographs which we have made up into a cut, which you will see on this page, you will find various methods worked out by the exhibitors to exploit and attract attention toward his picture. It would be more than worth your while to study as closely as the size of the cut will permit the different layouts and see if you cannot find an angle here and there among these many photographs that will lend itself to exploitation of Lloyd when he plays your theatre or any other attraction, in the event you have already played him.

We are indebted to Leslie Whelan of the Harold Lloyd organization for securing these photographs and we want to thank him through the medium of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages for his interest and many kind expressions about the CLUB.

Any of the managers of the theatres whose photographs are included in this group, who have been successful in engineering unusual exploitation on other pictures, would confer a favor on the ROUND TABLE CLUB, as well as their many brother managers throughout the country if they would forward us the details, so that we in turn can broadcast the glad tidings on our pages from week to week. This is an open invitation to them, and we would welcome their contributions at any time.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Solomon Gave the Town a Real Laugh on This One

S. S. Solomon used one of those old-fashioned Pierce limousines with the top down to ballyhoo "Three Live Ghosts," playing at the Paramount Theatre, Youngstown, O.

Three men condescended to put on complete skeleton costumes; their faces were made up with white cosmetic trimmed with black and then they rode around in the old-fashioned limousine.

The ballyhoo was on the streets three days in advance as well as appearing on the streets eight hours daily throughout the picture's one-week engagement.

Appropriate copy was placed on the wheels, rear tire rack and windshield. And banners were placed on the sides and rear.

The three men not only took the town by storm with their many original antics but distributed 5,000 heralds on the attraction.

The "three skeletons" not only rode around in the car to various places but also visited stores, a football field where a game was in progress, as well as other places where a large number of people were sure to see them.

The ballyhoo proved an excellent plug for the picture as was evidenced by the unusually large patronage.

The idea of his other stunt was to invite every child under ten years of age to get a kiddie Christmas gift. Santa Claus and a Christmas tree plus an array of gifts were on display on the mezzanine floor.

The card makes the invitation specific as the blank lines are filled in by the canvasser with each child's name and address and must be presented by the child in person to receive one of the gifts.

Besides bringing the family with the child to the theatre, this campaign has a direct goodwill appeal and the canvasser also picks up and reports in writing some very interesting conversations both of commendation and criticism.

Unusual Window Display Sold Picture for Mgr. Ward

John B. Ward, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, certainly worked out a mighty impressive and attractive window display on "Rio Rita" when that picture opened at his theatre with a midnight engagement on New Year's Eve.

So cooperative was the tie-up that the music store, whose window we are showing with this story, reported a complete sell-out of sheet music on this attraction even before the engagement had opened and was compelled to repeatedly wire for more music.

Mr. Ward has always shown a keen sense of showmanship by reason of the way he lays out his shows and assembles the proper short subjects so as to make a most entertaining evening regardless of whether there may be weakness on the bill. In connection with "Rio Rito" he took advantage of the famous cartoon novelty, "Skeleton Dance," which repeated a riot of triumph at every other showing up there in Niagara Falls.

Thank you kindly, Mr. Ward, for this photograph, and let us hope that it will be just the beginning of regular frequent correspondence between us.

NOTICE

PLEASE notify the Chairman of any change in address.

Highlanders Band Was a Peach for Earle Holden

Earle M. Holden of the Fairfax Theatre, Miami, Fla., took advantage of his opposition to do some plugging for "Rio Rita."

On the opening night of the Royal Scotch Highlanders Band in Bayfront Park, there were approximately 10,000 people present for the opening concert. The next to the last number of their program was selections from "Rio Rita." Some of these "Rio Rita" numbers were sung by a quartet and some by a woman.

Arrangements were made with the Highlanders to announce at the conclusion of the Rio Rita selections that these numbers were from "Rio Rita" and that "Rio Rita" was the attraction at the Fairfax Theatre starting tomorrow as well as announcing the special midnight show. This announcement was made through loud speakers where everyone in the park could easily hear it. The same announcement went over the local broadcasting station.

The announcement was first made in Spanish and then explained in English. The Spanish ballyhoo talk attracted a lot of attention and had a decided effect in selling the picture.

The ushers, bedecked in Spanish costumes mingled with the crowd in the park throughout the entire concert; the ushers wearing signs on their backs advertising the picture, theatre and play dates.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

"What Constitutes Good Theatre Management"

Here is an article by a steady contributor to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages whose name we do not want to divulge in connection with it. We suggest that you read it over, and if there are any points that apply to you, give them every possible consideration. At any rate, rest assured that your own expressions on similar conditions are just as welcome to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages if you care to put them in words, as the member who kindly sent us this article. We offer our apology for withholding his name, but trust that he will believe that we are doing so in his own interest.

"CHICK"

Good theatre management, I could write a book on this subject, but in the end I should have accomplished little more than what I am going to say in these few lines.

A theatre, any theatre, is managed on nine basic principles, only nine, yet on these few salient points rests the security and success of, or the failure and destruction of every theatre.

Loyalty, Honesty, Hospitality, Courtesy, Service, Efficiency, Cleanliness, Economy, Salesmanship, these are the nine fundamentals upon which a theatre is properly guided, and if you happen to be the manager of Broadway's finest motion picture cathedral, or the guiding genius of a little theatre on the avenue, or perhaps you are out in some hamlet far from the maddening throngs, yet do all these nine factors mentioned here govern your particular theatre.

* * *

Loyalty

Be loyal to your employer and always "praise the bridge that carries you over."

Honesty

The old adage, "Honesty is the best Policy," will not go amiss here; above all else be honest; beside honesty all else fades into insignificance.

Hospitality

Always remember that as Manager of a theatre you are master of the house and the master of the house is always a dispenser of gracious hospitality.

Courtesy

Probably of the nine principles the most important one is courtesy and every good manager knows the need for undivided courtesy in his theatre and remember that the patron is always right.

Service

So much has been said and written about this particular feature which distinguishes every theatre that renders it, that I will boil it down to a few words: render unselfish service to all, your employer, your patrons, your employees and to yourself and insist that this type of service be dominant in your house.

Efficiency

Strive to be efficient in your capacity as manager, insist upon efficiency on the part of every one connected with your theatre, every man should know his job, because only when we know our job are we qualified to successfully manage a theatre.

Cleanliness

The theatre must always be spotlessly clean, patrons are your guests and every manager should feel that when they come to your theatre they are visiting your home and naturally you would want the theatre to be as clean as your own home. And why not? After all, a manager spends more of his time in the theatre than he does in his home. That also goes for everything and everybody in and around the theatre. An atmosphere of absolute cleanliness should prevail at all times.

Salesmanship

We now reach a point in our little article which, if properly handled, means good business for your house. Assuming that every good manager should know how to sell his show, I will not take up any space with this subject. I simply mention it, since it is one of the nine principles governing my treatise on Theatre Management.

Economy

Last but not least, we have old man Thrift in another make-up and we'll call him Economy. The continuous war cry of every executive is "keep down expenses" and they are justified in doing so. As "little holes sink big ships" so do little items of needless expense in a theatre eat up the profits. Practice economy in your management, in your personal life, it's a great habit. We all know how hard it is to get the dollars into the box office, and when you do get 'em there, for goodness' sake keep 'em there.

* * *

I did not intend to make this a speech, as we get plenty of them all year around, but I feel that the above outlines present problems with which we are all confronted in our duties as theatre managers and these should be our watchword throughout the year, and I am certain that if every one of these nine principles is practiced faithfully we will be better and bigger managers.

And now—my best wishes for the season to our chief executive, all the executive staff of the — — — Circuit, and to the boys who are piloting the houses in the field, to each and every one I extend my sincere wishes for health, prosperity and longevity.

Radio Tie-Up Clicks for Irvin on This Attraction

C. Warren Irvin tied in on a special Majestic Radio ten-page section in the "Charlotte Observer" to publicize Joan Crawford in "Untamed," playing at the Carolina Theatre, Charlotte, N. C.

Joan Crawford's picture appeared in ten ads in the special radio section with a notation, "Joan Crawford, who is playing in 'UNTAMED' at the Carolina, selected a Majestic Radio." A special story about the picture also appeared in the Radio section.

By special arrangement with Efird's department store, a ticket was given away with each purchase which admitted the holder by paying an additional 25 cents to attend the Monday matinee. Efird's mentioned this ticket tie-up in its newspaper ads with the result that many people requested the ticket when making purchases. The store also had a neat co-operative window display which also helped to advertise the star, picture, theatre and play dates.

Once more we offer one of Ed Hiehle's recent "brain children" in the line of a circular made up to exploit some of his recent attractions. If there is any portion of this make-up that appeals to you, you are, of course, at liberty to make use of it. We feel that it is good and suggest that you give it a little attention.

Sound and Its Importance in the Small Theatre

We are in receipt of a most interesting letter from a good friend of the ROUND TABLE CLUB and MOTION PICTURE NEWS in which he tells us that he paid a recent visit to one of the smaller Long Island Theatres and found the reproduction of the talking pictures over their equipment so brutal, as to endanger the popularity and prestige of the particular theatre which he was visiting.

His expression that in his opinion they will kill the talking picture in the small house if more care is not taken with proper amplification is certainly a truthful and broad statement of the condition that exists in many of the smaller theatres today.

Here is a phase that is of utmost importance to every real wideawake showman, and if the smaller theatre's reproduction is not what it should be, it is the fault nine times out of ten of the manager or projectionist who fails to pay attention to this phase of his theatre's operation.

We only recently had the same experience when we stopped into a theatre one afternoon when the attendance was rather slim and the fader was set so high that several of the women folks of the audience went to the back of the house and complained to the management that the noise was deafening.

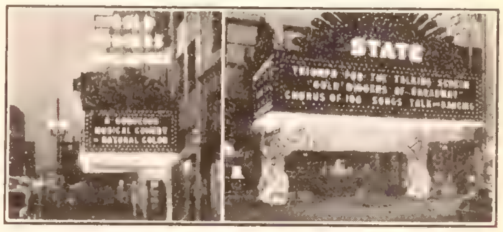
The mistake probably lay in the fact that the fader had been set the previous night when the house was crowded, and when it was necessary to bring up the fader in proportion to the size of the house.

We issue this little story, not so much in the nature of a suggestion as we do in the form of a warning that the manager of a small theatre must be on his toes constantly so that the sound reproduction and sound amplification in his theatre is 100% at all times, or he is again faced with the problem of his patrons going to the larger theatres where these details are more carefully watched and thereby lose his patronage.

While we do not care to mention the correspondent's name in connection with this story, we are grateful to him nevertheless, and trust that he will continue to express himself as frankly in his future mail as he did in his latest letter we received.

Better take stock, boys, of this angle, and with more theatres going sound every day, it may be your house that will be in line for either praise or criticism before very long, so why wait for trouble to knock at your door when proper supervision and attention to your duties, as well as the duties of your staff in the booth, will help eliminate a lot of trouble or hurt business in general.

"Flashy" Front Brought Business for Cochrane



Here we show you the marvelous side and front view of the marquee of the State Theatre in Flint, Mich., under the management of James H. Cochrane.

You will note that the sign letters are cut out of a twenty-four sheet poster with electric socket inserted, which makes it rather easy to turn out, since it was never before used in Flint made it something for the natives to talk about.

The front is a compo board frame painted with all gold paint and the 24 sheet letters were covered with sparkle. This was mounted on a board set about two inches away from the frame giving it an appearance of depth far greater than it actually was, and naturally made it far more effective than we could show on a photograph or thru an explanation. The small figures, incidentally, were also cut-out from the 24 sheet, showing that with one 24 sheet they had plenty of material to dress up the front of the entire theatre.

We certainly appreciate Mr. Cochrane's fine CLUB spirit in feeling that this information would be of benefit to his brother members. We know that our members will make use of the suggestion and elaborate on it, not only for this attraction, but in many others to come.

REWARD!!!

We don't say what the reward will be, maybe only a fur-lined press book, or perhaps a suit-case to carry the keys to the cup machine—but, we want a picture of Wally Allen in a bathing suit.

Now then, all you Publix Florida managers, get your trusty snapshot cameras ready and when the opportunity presents itself—just "shoot," then forward the print to us. We'll do the rest.

Junior Mercy and Frank B. Hill Join the M.R.T.C.

The MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB announces with much gratification the enrollment of two outstanding theatrical figures from the Northwestern part of the country in the persons of Fred Mercy, Jr., secretary and general manager of the Inland Theatres, Inc., and Frank B. Hill, house manager of the Liberty Theatre in Walla Walla, Wash.

Mr. Mercy, Jr., is a product of N. Y. C., having been born there in 1902, and has spent practically his entire life around the theatre. After graduating from the University of Washington, he took over the active management of the American Theatre in Walla Walla, has continually mounted the ladder until he is now General Manager of the entire circuit of ten houses covering a portion of the State of Washington, including Walla Walla, Pasco, Kennewick, Kapowsin and Sunnyside.

"While this VITAPHONE ALL-TALKING PRODUCTION is a rare dramatic gem, it will gain public acclaim ONLY in the larger cities, such as New York, Boston and Chicago, because there are not enough people of higher intelligence in the smaller cities to warrant a theatre running the picture"

WE SAY THEY ARE ALL WRONG! We know, and the people here know, that the intelligence of Walla Wallans is higher than anywhere else in the United States We have often heard it said that there are more so called real "hicks" in our larger cities than our "small towner" could ever dream of

We have found that the people appreciate pictures that are not just formula made Feeling certain this is right, "DISRAELI" has been booked in the

What a great delight it is going to be, to write to those all wise critics and tell them just how little they know about how much intelligence the people of a smaller city have

There have been many types of plugs to try and create interest & business on the picture Disraeli due to its unusual appeal to distinctive classes. In this case, Mercy & Hill have worked out a most attractive circular, which we have before us and measures about 9 x 12 , but printed on fairly good stock in heavy cardinal red ink. The wording and layout are both worth looking over.

His goodwill activities include membership in such organizations like the Elks, the Chamber of Commerce, the Advertising Club and the Kiwanis Club. In addition to these activities, he takes care of all the advertising for the City of Walla Walla and with this background, he is certainly ably fitted for the important work that he is doing in the Inland Theatre Circuit.

We are certainly delighted to know that a man of his type has found the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages so valuable a medium in his every day routine of supervising these ten theatres, and we are sure that every one of the house managers working under him is of the same opinion.

MONDAY DECEMBER 16th

LIBERTY Sunday and Monday Dec. 15-16

Are you complaining about Monday being a Blue Day? Why not follow Fred Mercy, Jr.'s and Frank Hill's idea of boosting businesss on this day, by working it with the laundry the same as they have with the circular we are showing above. Look it over, it is more than worth the time it will take you to analyze it.

Mr. Hill being one of the house managers, and who conveys to us valuable information about their circuit, as well as about Mr. Mercy, Sr. and Jr., is more than welcome into the CLUB, and we regret that he failed to send us his photograph. However, we are hoping that he will remedy this oversight, by including not only his own photograph, but Mr. Mercy, Jr.'s, as well in his very next letter.

At this time we want to take the opportunity of showing you a full page ad run by the various theatres in Walla Walla belonging to the Inland Circuit, which clearly demonstrates the type of advertising they are doing in a group form. It might be well for you other ROUND TABLE CLUB members and readers of these pages, to keep in mind the possibilities that this suggestion holds for every one of you, not that it must necessarily run the full page advertising, but the same idea can be boiled down to a smaller space and still be mighty effective.

We rather like the way they have handled the cutting up of the mats, and the reading matter with it, and it smacks a little bit of the Loop in Chicago, when it comes to a great deal of reading matter contained in the ad. However, if that is the way the Walla Walla public has been educated, then unquestionably they find it profitable and good advertising.

Although we have rather roughly introduced these two new members, we are certain that we will have ample opportunity from their future letters and contributions to make them better known to our host of members and readers, and we sincerely trust that they continue to find our pages as interesting in the future as they have in the past.

Thank you very kindly, Mr. Hill, for your well wishes for the New Year, and we can only re-echo them as far as you are concerned, and ask that you convey to the rest of the boys up in your part of the country our best wishes.

David A. Lustig Has Become a Dynamo for Action

We have run into all kinds of publicity men and exploitation demons, but it remains for us to visit the Manhattan Playhouses and find out that the busiest guy in the world is Dave Lustig. But the only difference between Dave and the other so-called busy guys is that Dave is really accomplishing something.

It is all very well to eulogize the publicity and exploitation directors who have a raft of local [illegible]ers and Chambers of Commerce, or what have you, to work with, but when it comes to handling a string of strictly New York neighborhood houses lacking the marvelous cooperation of local newspapers and other mediums for exploitation of their theatres through cooperative tie-ups, then any man that can keep the pot a-boiling is entitled to all the credit that can be heaped upon him. And if it were up to us we'd heap plenty on Dave.

Although we have been assured by several of his friends that he is the most retiring of individuals, the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB shall take upon itself the task of bringing him into the limelight, a spot which he so well deserves.

Listen, Dave, it is only a matter of time, so you might as well accommodate now as well as later with one of your photographs so that we can give you a proper introduction, because the gang who follows the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB from week to week should know more about you and the things you are doing.

How about it, Dave, and in the meantime, don't fail to let us know what you have been doing in the line of publicity and exploitation for Manhattan Playhouses here recently.

Irving Feinman a Coming Showman in Our Opinion

Advance information and the Round Table Club Secret Service (whatever that may be) leads us to suspect that the young gentleman pictured here is going to make both a name and a mark for himself in the show business.

While he is still Assistant Manager of the Fox Leader Theatre in Brooklyn, we want you to make the acquaintance of Irving Feinman, and by closely following the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, you will learn before very long that he is advancing himself in great strides as rapidly as his experience will allow.

We would certainly like to know what Irving is doing to help put the Leader over for Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, and if any of the stunts possess the merit that we feel they should, we will gladly pass them along for the benefit of the rest of the crowd.

WELCOME TO THE CITY, JACK!

A most welcome visitor to New York, and Club headquarters, just the other day was Jack O'Connell, nationally known managing director of the Vita Temple Theatre in Toledo, Ohio.

If refreshing of the memory is necessary, we will just have to call your attention to the fact that the Vita Temple was one of the very first all sound theatres to operate in this country, and Jack made a phenomenal success of it, and a marvelous reputation for himself at the same time.

He not only has been a faithful and loyal member of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB, but is in hearty accord with the many activities that we publish and sponsor on these pages. In the photograph with this story you will see just a portion of the little over 4,000 youngsters who assembled for the Vagabond Kiddie Christmas Party, sponsored by Jack O'Connell, the Vita Temple theatre and the Toledo Blade.

If you can just stop long enough to let your mind become active you will readily understand the terrific value that this stunt must have had when the 4000 odd kiddies went out shouting the praises of the Vita Temple Theatre and the great time that they had.

Jack was our luncheon guest at the Motion Picture Club, and we must admit that it was the most enjoyable luncheon that we have had in many a day, and he left for Toledo the same day, firm in his determination to keep us posted on his further activities, and to make up for his inactive membership of the past few months.

Lots of luck, Jack, and here's hoping that we do hear from you mighty soon.

Boosting the Round Table A Habit With Ken Reid

We certainly appreciate Kenneth A. Reid's frank expression in his recent letter to the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and we want him to know that the feeling is more than reciprocated.

If there is anything that encourages us to continue the work that we feel we are accomplishing here in CLUB headquarters, it is the frank expression of men like Mr. Reid and other showmen throughout the world.

Kenneth A. Reid is the resident manager of Loew's Liberty Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio, and he wishes us to convey to all of the members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB a happy and prosperous New Year.

We feel we are not speaking out of turn, when, in behalf of the rest of the membership we reciprocate by expressing to Mr. Reid the CLUB'S best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year for himself and his family.

Let us hear some more from you Ken, and don't be so much of a stranger and wait for holidays to drop us a line. We know for an absolute fact that you are accomplishing fine things not only in the line of exploitation, but in the methods you are using to operate your theatre, and there is no reason why the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages should not carry something about them all the time. How about a little story by return, for which we are going to take the liberty of thanking you in advance?

P. S.—Listen, Ken, you are Ken to me and I'm Chick to you, just as though we've known each other for the past twenty years, and don't think it is necessary to "Mr." us at any time; we are both just regular showmen and we want every one of the boys to feel the same.

Future Issues Will Contain Much About Sutaria

Just how foreign showmen in the far corners of the earth are operating and exploiting their theatres has always been and will continue to be a most interesting phase of the ROUND TABLE CLUB news from week to week.

We have told you how the Canadian boys are doing things, even though they may almost be considered "domestic" as far as we're concerned, we also told you something about Australia, about Germany, about England, about Ireland, about Scotland, about South Africa and numerous other spots far removed from where we are writing this little article.

Now we have promise of a most interesting story dealing with how the showmen out in India are handling and selling the pictures in that corner of the earth, and we are indebted to Mr. S. F. Sutaria, manager of the Excelsior Theatre in Hyderabad, India, for lining up the necessary information for us.

Thank you, Mr. Sutaria, and let us hope that the promised photographs mentioned in your letter will be forthcoming in the very next mail from your country. Remember us to all of the other showmen down there and tell them to write us as often as they get an opportunity.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

A THOUSAND THANKS!!!

It would be a total impossibility to try and compute the number of Christmas and New Year's cards received at CLUB headquarters from all over the world during the last three weeks.

To those whom we may possibly have overlooked in thanking for their thoughtfulness, we want to take this means of conveying our appreciation for their fine spirit in sending us those little mementoes of Holiday Greetings, and we want them to know that the feeling is more than mutual.

This is your CLUB, and your Clearing House for anything pertaining to theatre operation, exploitation and operation, and if there is anything we can do to serve you both in a business or personal way, you are at liberty to call upon your Chairman at any time regardless of what the circumstances may be.

Thanks again, boys, and here's wishing you everything you so well deserve for the year 1930.

"CHICK."

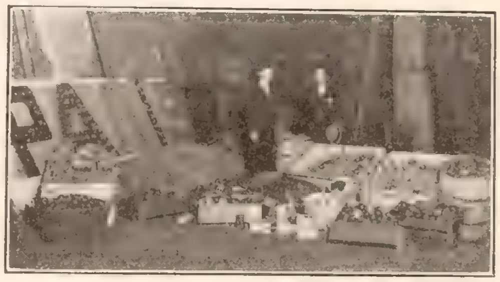
"The Andersons" Seem to Know Their Business!

When you start telling the cock-eyed world about Holiday performances, for the benefit of Salvation Army and other noteworthy communities, wishing to help the poor around Christmas, then you must not pass up the fine work of Andy Anderson, manager of the RKO Theatres in New Brunswick, and John B. Anderson, director of publicity and advertising for the RKO State & Rivoli Theatres in New Brunswick, N. J.

A few weeks before Christmas they ran a special performance at which a revival of a silent Western picture and several talking comedies were to be exhibited with the admission fee of fruit or potatoes. At 9 a.m. the Saturday on which the show was to be held, between 400 and 500 kiddies with bags of edibles were waiting for the doors to open and for your own information, we want you to know that it took six doormen and four ushers to help carry the barrels of fruit from the door. Forty-five minutes later, or at 9:45 the entire 2,800 seats of the State Theatre were packed and they were forced to close the front doors.

In the meantime, another lot of youngsters gathered so rapidly, that they arose to the occasion realizing that they could not turn them away, and they opened the Rivoli Theatre which was likewise packed with these youngsters all bent on having a happy Christmas and at the same time helping the poorer folks have one as well.

We show here a picture of some of the kids in front of the theatre and it will also give you an opportunity of seeing John B. Anderson who is the gentleman on the right, and Andy Anderson who stands along side of him helping control these youngsters. In addition we want you to see the back stage of the theatre at the end of the collection, which will give you some idea of the foods that were collected at these special shows for distribution to the City Club and Salvation Army of New Brunswick.



A total of 4,100 children attended the two theatres, and the proceeds amounted to 28 barrels of fruit, potatoes, canned goods and other edibles, and as we mentioned above these were passed out to the poor people through the agency of two well known organizations.

To get down to the meat of this story, we want you to know that the entirety netted the theatre ten front page stories in the daily home news and the Sunday Times besides any number of stories in the weekly papers in and around the city.

We certainly appreciate the fine CLUB spirit of J. B. and Andy Anderson in sending us this material, so that we could pass it on to our host of members and readers.

"It Won't Be Long Now" Says Larry B. Jacobs??

Whenever Larry B. Jacobs breezes into New York, he is always sure to bring in with him either some samples of that Circuit's wide-awake publicity and exploitation activities or a most interesting conversation that reveals similar peppiness of Larry and the gang of house managers in Ace Berry's division.

We happened across a neat little yellow sheet with a cut of a page boy holding an enlarged newspaper reading "Good morning." Upon inquiry we find that Larry sent one of these things out every morning to all the boys on the circuit which keeps them posted on coming holidays, important dates and attractions that have been booked for their respective theatres.

With the cheery tone that Larry manages to inject into his bulletins and other letters, to the house managers, we know that the boys look forward to getting this "Good morning" bulletin with as much pleasure as Larry gets in turning it out.

Here's a hint for some of those hard-boiled pest supervisors who think that the only way to talk to a house manager is to get rough. We suggest that that particular type get in touch with Larry or this office to furnish them with a copy of this "Good morning" bulletin which may help the house manager to a better frame of mind when he gets an office communication. (Better known as "office joke-books.")

We're always glad to see Larry, and here's hoping that we get to see a Hell of a lot more of him than we have in the past. Regards to Ace and the gang, boy, and let's hope we see you all again real soon.

Oh, excuse us, it hardly seems possible to conclude a story about Larry Jacobs without showing some of the recent activities in his particular specialized line. Do you see this sticker on the telegraph pole pertaining to "Sally"? Well, for your information, every telegraph pole in the city and suburbs of Pittsburgh carried it. Laugh that one off if you can.

Talking about Santa Claus, Larry felt that when the Warner's Grand Theatre in Pittsburgh presented "Show of Shows" it was a real Christmas present from Warner Brothers to Pittsburgh, and this is the way he ballyhooed the fact to the public. Not bad at all, boys, and the funny part is you could pull it right in the middle of July and still get away with it, because it will attract attention and get many a laugh.

Also, talking about "Sally" again, how do you like this 55-inch banner which was suspended from their upright sign and is ample evidence that everybody in Pittsburgh who got anywhere near the theatre would know that "Sally" was playing at that house?

Just a few of Larry's activities, but all worthy of your attention any time you get a chance to read them.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Danbury Gives the Club Bill Evans—Real Showman

We have sort of had a weather eye on Bill Evans, manager of the New Capitol Theatre in Danbury, Conn., and wondered how long it would be before he "signed on the dotted line" and became one of the cooperative idea exchange members of this CLUB.

Bill has been located in Danbury, which, incidentally, is a pretty lively show town, with three peppy theatres, for quite a while, and they pride themselves up there that their de luxe shows are rivaled only by such places as Times Square and the Loop.

Their campaigns for publicity are more or less original and are entitled to the same rating as the campaigns of much larger theatres backed up with special exploitation and publicity departments.

Bill only recently received a wonderful break in the Universal Weekly in connection with some of the advertising he has been executing up there in Danbury, and it is now the turn of the ROUND TABLE CLUB to look forward to hearing about his future activities, because he now practically owes allegiance to the thousands of members and readers of our pages because he has become a regular active member.

We are very grateful to Mr. Evans for his well wishes, and we hope that he finds the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages as interesting to read as we are to get his letters. Don't forget to enclose one of your own photographs, Bill, in your next letter, so that we can give you a more intimate introduction on the CLUB pages. So long for the present, and remember us to Jack Sanson and the rest of the live wires from up your part of southern New England.

Assistant Managers as Members!

In order that we may dispel a wrong impression, we want all assistant theatre managers to know they are eligible for membership in the Round Table Club, PROVIDING their manager certifies as to the position they hold.

Many assistant managers have important duties in their respective theatres, such as publicity and exploitation directors, treasurers, etc. We therefore feel that their activities are many times just as important to the Club pages as the managers.

The reason we make this one provision is that it is difficult for us to know whether an applicant who calls himself an assistant manager is really just that. We can check up on the managers, but the managers must help us check up on the assistants and we would rather they expressed their willingness before their assistants joined the Club.

M.R.T.C.

Bair's Advertising Continues to Click at B. O.

In recounting the activities of our various managers and members on their Christmas shows for the poor youngsters, we would certainly be doing E. E. Bair of East Liverpool, Ohio, an injustice, were we to pass up the fact that he also engineered a show of this kind, and engineered it mighty successfully through the cooperation of the Elks in East Liverpool.

In addition to the marvelous front-page publicity that he secured by reason of his fine goodwill act, he also shows us the little tickets which were distributed to the poor youngsters admitting them to the State Theatre on Christmas morning at 9 o'clock. The mere fact that the Elks were tied in assures us that the Kiddies had not only a good show, but went home with plenty of other things besides.

As in the past, we will take advantage of this story to show two of Mr. Bair's recent newspaper ads and, as you already know from past ravings on these pages, we are great boosters for the type of stuff that he is getting into his local papers.

Local Tie-Ups Work Wonders for Sid Finkelstein

Sid Finkelstein, manager of the Oasis Theatre out in Ridgewood section of Brooklyn, N. Y., recently found another angle to ballyhoo his theatre by arranging for the set-up of several attractive signs on parking lots and gasoline stations in his neighborhood.

Considering the limited capacity the average neighborhood theatre in a big town has to exploit or advertise his theatre every angle is valuable and here is one that is open in every community in the country, regardless of size of town or theatre.

You will notice from the photograph with this story that they secured a Ford to be given away free as set forth in the wording of the sign and in addition the man undertook to help them advertise it. All this stunt cost the theatre was a little cooperative advertising for the gasoline station and dealer, and it certainly was well worth the investment. On the day they had the drawing, the car was placed in front of the theatre with signs attached setting forth the details of what it was all about.

Great work, Sid, and many thanks for your well wishes for the New Year, and we can only repeat them and say that we hope you have the same and more besides. Remember us to the rest of the gang on the circuit, and let's hear from you again real soon.

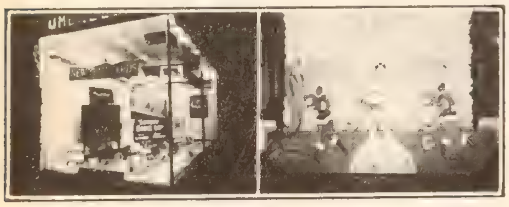
York Theatres Respond To Shewell's Activities

Here we show you two mighty effective window displays on "Sunny Side Up" which were worked out in a cooperative tie-up through the efforts of George Shewell, Exploitation Manager for Nathan Appel's York Theatres in York, Pa.

They succeeded in getting these plans into the windows almost ten days before the opening of the picture, thereby giving them the advantage of creating and building up interest over so long a period. Whereas the majority of us are lucky if we get a break a day before or on the opening of an attraction in the various trade stores.



In addition to the tie-ups we show here, he succeeded in planting a large cut-out in the new Postal Telegraph office in the leading hotel in York and naturally that did no harm.

Glad to hear so much from you, George, and don't think that you're wearing out your welcome by any means. Send us as much stuff as you can and as often as you can, because we are a great believer in our ability to exploit any theatre or attraction and we are sure that your many suggestions receive a welcome haven in the files of our thousands of members and readers.

Frank Celoud Gave the Lion a Corking Reception

Another angle worth talking about was the reception that Frank gave to Leo the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lion when that animal visited Sedalia and was presented with the Key to the City in the form of meat, as you will note from the accompanying photograph.

In addition to the presentation of the "meat" key to the City, he arranged with the Sedalia boys band of over 60 pieces to meet Leo and his caravan at the edge of the City and they staged a parade right to the theatre. The advance publicity was, of course, handled in a very diplomatic and showmanship manner, with the result that interest was created to a high pitch and everybody was on edge to see and greet Leo the Lion at Mr. Celoud's theatre.

We are showing you here a portion of the boys' band in the parade of welcome, as well as the Mayor of Sedalia presenting Leo with the Key to the City, made up of the meat that we have told you about previously. Incidentally, this was the first time in Leo's world wide tour that he received this form of recognition, although he has had heaps of honors showered upon him, and Charles Glickauf, who is in charge of the caravan, was delighted with the outstanding reception that Frank had arranged for Leo's benefit.

Great stuff, Celoud, and now that you have a new baby daughter, you are, no doubt, pepped up to such an extent that our pages and the midwest in general will ring with the many fine activities that you are constantly engineering out in your part of the country. Be sure and let us know what it is all about, as you now have plenty of sound theatres on your hands to exploit, and of course you are continually doping out new stunts to put them over.

Jack Retlaw's Work on West Coast is Clicking

It is sometimes very difficult to really analyze the reactions of the various members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, especially those who had joined but recently and just received their membership applications.

But Jack Retlaw, who supervises the Fox Alcazar Theatre in Bell, Calif, the California Theatre in Huntington Park, Cal., and the Lyric in Walnut Park, Cal., was sport enough to drop us a line immediately, and he said in part as follows:

> "It was indeed an unexpected surprise for me to receive the handsomely framed Certificate of Membership in the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. . . . It came as quite a New Year's gift. . . . I have many times read the CLUB news and have watched with much interest the growth of the CLUB and your Department."
>
> Jack Retlaw,
> Fox West Coast Corporation,
> California.

Congratulations are certainly in order for Frank. The occasion being the arrival of a 7½ lb. daughter, named Jo Ann, who made her first public bow on December 31st, and it certainly looks like a mighty Happy New Year for Frank and the Mrs.

Congratulations, Frank, to the whole three of you.

Tommy Wear's Fine Personality Will Get Him Far

Tommy Wear, Jr., who came to the Albany and Troy section from Boston not so very long ago, has been certainly whooping it up for the various Stanley houses in that section with particular emphasis on the Lincoln Theatre.

We were rather proud that he has found many CLUB suggestions of value, in the exploitation activities he has handled in the houses up there, and we rather liked the "reserved seat" gag that he used in connection with "SO LONG LETTY."

Another good angle which he has revived was the use of a wedding ring in connection with the picture "Womantrap" and with the ring worked right into the throw away itself. No question about this one getting the attention that they wanted, and apparently it clicked at the box office because every one seemed to be happy.

William A. ("Billy") Stillman says:

"It was always my ambition to shoot for the honor to tender my application for membership in the ROUND TABLE CLUB because I was always a little jealous of Charlie Brennan's certificate hanging in the office of the Rialto Theatre."

Berman's Post Office Tie-Up a Real Biz. Builder

After calling to the attention of the local Postmaster, the speech by Postmaster General Brown in Paramount Sound News, urging early shopping and mailing, City Manager M. E. Berman of the Publix Theatres in Kankakee, Ill., was successful in effecting a tie-up with the Post Office Department which resulted in a most effective campaign for stimulating his holiday business.

8,000 booklets which urged Kankakee people to shop early and attend the theatres, were distributed by letter carriers. The booklets listed December attractions and the keynote of the copy was that Publix theatres, in cooperating with the Post Office Department and local stores, was bringing an unusual array of attractions to Kankakee as a means of urging people to come downtown early in the month to see these attractions and do their shopping on the same trip. The booklets were entirely paid for by outside advertising, and did not cost the theatre a cent.

200 letter boxes about town were placarded with cards which read: "By all means, ATTEND PUBLIX THEATRES—but do not let your entertainment interfere with getting your Christmas parcels in the Mail early."

Ten motor trucks, used to transport mail to and from the postoffice and railway stations were similarly bannered.

Needless to say, the campaign had not only excellent direct sales value for December attractions in the theatres, but did much institutional good as well.

Bank "Co-Op" Made This Possible for F. C. Croson

To combat the usual pre-Christmas slump, Manager F. C. Croson, Fremont Theatre, Fremont, Nebraska, sold the Fremont National Bank the idea of distributing checks through the theatre. These checks were made payable to the bearer and were good for the amount of $1.00, provided the check was used to start a new savings account in the bank. In order to collect the dollar, the Christmas Club Savings Account must remain on deposit until December 15, 1930.

TRAILERS!

There is no more impressive way to put over announcements than right on your own screen and we don't hesitate a moment to say that we heartily recommend the use of trailers for such a purpose.

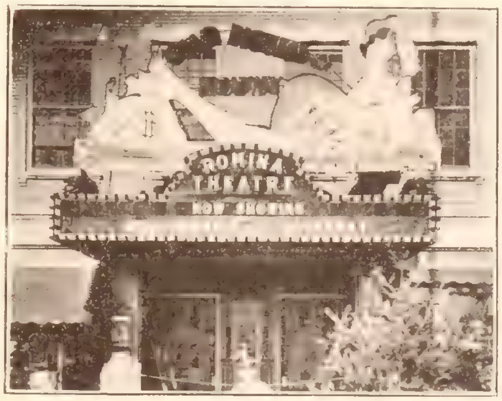
True, we have run into some theatres (?) where they still tell the customers a special message via a slide, but it's not really in keeping with any well-run theatre and a trailer can be made so individual and dignified that it will add prestige to any theatre.

If you have something to say on your screen use good trailers and the results will more than cover their cost.

Marquee Cut-Out Dressed Front for C. D. Hughes

If you are constantly on the lookout for something new and attractive (as we have every reason to believe you are), then here is a suggestion for a cut-out of a 24-sheet on "Gold Diggers of Broadway," which was executed at the Romina Theatre at Forest City, N. C., of which C. D. Hughes is the manager, and forwarded to the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages through the courtesy of Mr. Hughes.

In reproducing this photograph as well as telling you about this remarkable looking front which is really remarkable when you take into consideration the very ordinary front the theatre itself has, we do not want to overlook the credit that is due Hugh M. Gibbs, their operator, who is such a hard worker and anxious to see the pictures go over. He was the one that cut this display out and he deserves a lot of credit for the fine piece of work that he has engineered.



We are certainly hoping that we hear from Mr. Hughes again very shortly, and will close this little article with the fond hopes that his next letter contains his own photograph.

Harvey's Conn. Activities Bring Real Results to B. O.

We were just beginning to wonder what had happened to our friend, E. J. Harvey, manager of the Warner Brothers Commodore Hull Theatre in Derby, Conn., because we have not heard from him in so long, when lo and behold, in comes a letter which unfortunately was improperly addressed and therefore took several weeks longer to reach us that it should have.

However, we know Harvey will overlook our neglect in using his story even though it is a little old.

In this stunt, you will notice that he tied up with an aeroplane, whereby they had about 10,000 throw-aways containing advertising on the attraction "Speedway" and with each throw-away so numbered and tied up with the newspaper that free admissions were offered to those who picked them up.

There are a lot of mighty good angles to this one and aside from the circular and throw-away gag, this type of aeroplane advertising must have created a tremendous amount of interest in not only the attraction, but the theatre itself. We doubt whether Derby, Conn., has been accustomed to this kind of high powered advertising and exploitation, and undoubtedly Mr. Harvey's activities are meeting with the box-office results that he hoped for when he planned them.

Come on, "E. J.," suppose you make it a point to write us not less than every other week so that we will know that you are still on the map. It need not necessarily be a stunt, or a story, just so long as it is a few personal lines and we know you are still interested in what your brother members are doing via the pages of the ROUND TABLE CLUB.

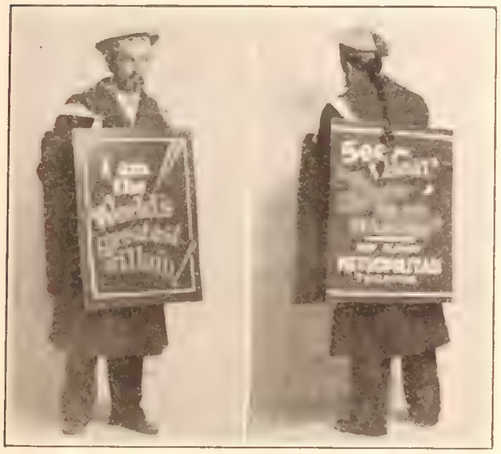
Dave Borland Suggests A Fine Street Ballyhoo

Here is a corking street ballyhoo worked out and successfully engineered by Dave Borland, Manager of the Metropolitan Theatre in Regina, Saskatchewan, Can.

In this case Dave was stuck with a corking attraction just around the holidays, but had to make the most of it, so he went out after it in a real big way.

This picture was run just three days before Christmas and he had his ballyhoo men go through all the department stores which were crowded with shoppers as well as appearing on all of the main streets. When he reports that business was very good on the picture and that the entire stunt only cost him $17, then we don't have to reecho what we have already said about Dave Borland. He is a real showman in every sense of the word and deserving of the fine rep that he has, not only in Canada, but in many parts of the U. S.



I am the World's Greatest Villain
Metropolitan

We are very grateful to Dave for sending us these photographs and we are sure that the suggestion will be used by many of his brother members and managers, because it really holds merit and is effective without being expensive, and that, brothers, is the secret of real exploitation. Any Tom, Dick or Harry can go out and become a great exploitation man if he spends a fortune, but real exploitation consists of getting this type of stuff so reasonably, that whatever improvement the box office shows is not paid out in expense.

So long, Dave; remember us to Pete and the rest of the gang up your way and be sure and let us hear from you again very soon.

ADVERTISING AND MATS

Since our request for sample of newspaper advertising we have received so many that to attempt to reproduce them would be suicide.

One point, however, was very evident in the majority of the ads received. That was the absence of "peppy" mats to liven up the ads and to get away, in most cases, from solid type.

Ordinary, plain type ads can be made mighty attractive providing the man who is laying the ad out knows what it is all about; unfortunately, in many instances, they don't, or else the newspaper composing room plays hell with the ads. If you don't know type layout and composition well enough to make your ads stand out on your paper's theatrical page, better keep away from that angle all together and use mats, not necessarily complete, but broken up so as to lend a little interest to the ad itself.

Attractive borders and lines always help when laid out from the proper angles. Broken up portions of mats worked into your type copy lend importance to certain phases of your attractions without necessarily compelling your readers to spend the better part of the evening doping it out.

Experiment a little both ways and try to arrive at the happy medium, which, in our humble opinion, consists of a variety in your advertising that will compel real reader interest and probably draw attention to your ads where previously they may have only rated a glance or two.

In towns and cities where the local paper is the most important means of theatre advertising this portion of a manager's work is of the utmost importance, and careful attention to all details may soon lead to specialized work along these lines for a group of houses instead of plugging along as "Jack of All Trades" in just one.

Max Melincoff Another To Mount the Ladder

The big parade of advancements and promotions continues, this time the announcement centering upon Max Melincoff, formerly connected with the E. M. Loew Circuit in Pawtucket, R. I., who has been appointed manager of the Palace Theatre in Torrington, Conn., the Warners Bros.' Circuit, succeeding Johnny Scanlon, whose recent promotion to Lynn, Mass., was announced in these columns.

We feel that everything that we have said previously about Max has more than been justified by this latest position of his, and we know that not only will he make good, but we expect to hear that he has been further advanced by his superiors on the Warner Brothers' Circuit.

Here's wishing you all the good luck in the world, Melincoff, but continue your fine CLUB activities, and let us know what you are doing to follow in the footsteps of a fellow like Johnny Scanlon.

BOOST YOUR CLUB!

Waterson Sure Used a Good One on This Picture

R. W. Waterson worked a good gag on "This Is Heaven," when that picture played at the Marion Theatre, Marion, O.

Two boys—one wearing a full dress, silk hat, whiskers, etc., and the other wearing regular attire, put on a stunt that got oodles of attention.

One boy with a ladder followed the boy dressed in full dress, etc. At busy street corners, the ladder was set up against a building and then the boy climbed to the top of the ladder. When he had attracted the attention of a large gathering, he unfurled a banner which carried copy, "THIS IS HEAVEN," etc., so as to connect the stunt with the picture.

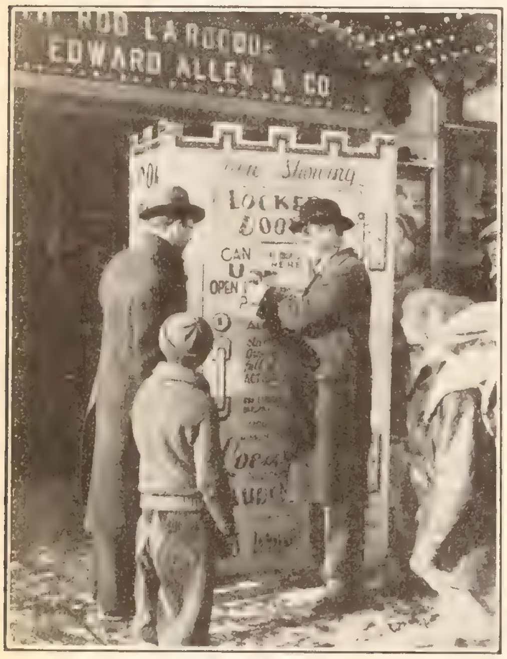
The stunt attracted plenty of attention and undoubtedly sold many tickets for the picture.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Here's One You Can All Use to Good Advantage

Here's a peach of a gag engineered by the manager of Loew's Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y., to exploit "The Locked Door."

They offered all sorts of prizes to anyone who could bring forth a key that could unlock the door, and in order to further stimulate interest in the idea, they distributed several thousand keys of their own, a limited number of which really would open the lock.



Here is a good gag, that you can use, not only in connection with this particular attraction, but any picture that will lend itself to this particular type of exploitation, and our suggestion is to keep it handy because it will kick up the necessary interest that you are constantly seeking for your theatre and attraction.

William Evans Says:

"I notice that a good many of my friends have joined, and as I read this week's issue I am taking time enough off to fill in the application blank."

Manager,
New Capitol Theatre,
Danbury, Conn.

Baker Used His Head to Make This One Get Space

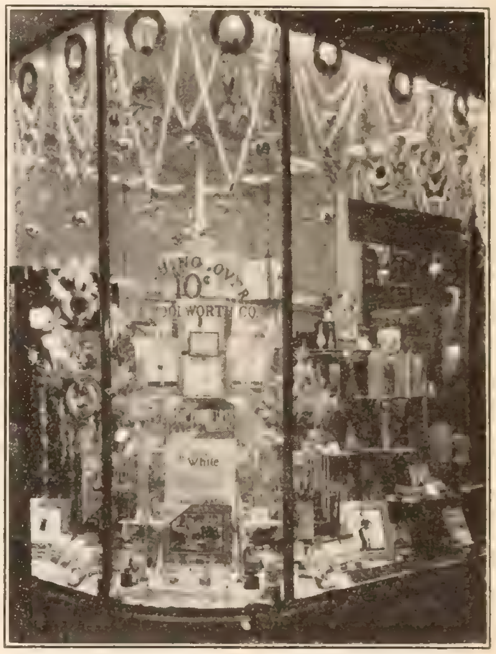
M. A. Baker, manager for the Publix Colfax Theatre in South Bend, Ind., worked a unique stunt when he doctored up a regular exchange still on "The Mighty" which was playing recently at the Colfax Theatre, and succeeded in crashing the local paper with a two-column cut.

"M. A." worked a gag of selecting a picture of Bancroft and Esther Ralston, and worked into Bancroft's hand in the still an inserted card bearing the "Shop Early" slogan. When this was reduced to the regular two-column size, the actual reproduction had all the appearance of the genuine article, which gave the impression that Bancroft was actually holding in his hand this card with the advice to the Christmas shoppers and mailers.

Although the Holiday Season is over, we could not help but make mention of Mr. Baker's thoughtfulness and foresight in working this gag, and thereby succeeding in crashing some valuable space in the paper.

Ewing's Splendid Work is Attracting Much Attention

This photograph will give you just a brief and rather vague idea of how effectively the Earle Theatre in Washington, D. C., dressed up Woolworth's pep window on "The Girl from Woolworth's" under the direction of that capable exploitation and publicity man, William C. Ewing, of the Stanley-Crandall Division of Warners Theatres.



We have been trying to accumulate quite a lot of Ewing's activities in order to make up a story, but this window attracted our attention to such an extent, that we decided we would not hold it up any further.

Thank you, Mr. Ewing; why not make it a habit to send us all your activities?

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

MORE NEW MEMBERS!

WILLIAM M. EVANS manages the new Capitol Theatre in Danbury, Conn., and chalks up still another one of the boys from the old home state. Tell us, Bill, what are you doing to meet competition out there in Danbury, and what methods do you use to exploit various big attractions that are constantly playing your theatre? Incidentally, you might enclose your own photograph with your letter so that we can give you the proper kind of an introduction.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

S. J. SUTARIA is another member from a far off country. This time it is Hyderabad, India, where Mr. Sutaria manages the Excelsior Theatre. He tells us he is in complete charge of the publicity of eight theatres and we sure would like to hear what he is doing out there to help keep these theatres on the map theatrically. You might include your own photograph, Sutaria, so that we can show the rest of the boys what you look like.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

WILLIAM L. GREENBAUM manages the Uptown Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Ace Berry Division of the Stanley Warner Theatres and knowing practically every one of these boys the way we do, makes it quite unnecessary to encourage him to communicate with us regularly. We know that he will do that of his own volition, and once more we are sure that his photo will be in his very next letter. Congratulations, Bill, and remember us to the rest of the Ace Berry boys up your way.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

EARL N. WILLEY, manager of the Bijou Theatre in Savannah, Ga., is still another from the land of hospitality to join our ranks, and from the short and peppy letter he writes with his application, we know he is going to be an active member. Come on, Willey, we're waiting for you, tell us what methods you are using down there to "pack 'em in."

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

JOHN H. CAMPBELL manages the Avon Theatre in Watertown, N. Y., and since this is not so very far away from a lot of our other members, he should already be enthused about the ROUND TABLE CLUB activities. Why not talk to the rest of your brother members up your way, Johnny, and then follow their example by telling us exactly what you are doing in the way of exploitation and advertising. Incidentally, your own photograph is just as important as all members should keep their photos on file in CLUB headquarters.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

HERBERT A. DUNBAR is the assistant manager of the National Theatre out in Akron, Ohio, but what we would like to find out is how he is putting that theatre over along the lines of exploitation.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

NEIL WATKINS is the assistant to L. O. Davis, General Manager of the Virginia Amusement Company and has been in the show business for the past twelve years. He promises to send us something later for publication, and be sure to include your photograph, Neil, so that we can give you a more intimate introduction on the pages.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

ART B. TAYLOR is connected with the Rialto and Mission Theatres in Beeville, Texas, and promises to send us some photos and stunts of what he is pulling off down there in the land of cotton. Well, Art, we are waiting patiently for them. Send them along, and the more the merrier.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

GEORGE MORRELL who manages the College Theatre in Toronto, Canada, says he feels guilty using our material every week and not having joined sooner. Well, George, there is one mighty good way to rectify that guilty feeling and that is to send us some of your own stuff so that the other boys in turn can take advantage of what you are doing. And let's have your photo while you're at it.

———Wear Your Club Pin! ! !———

NEW MEMBERS!

Please be patient if your application was sent in and your name has not been published as a new member.

The increase in membership during the past few months has been so great that we are behind in the announcing of these new members.

More names will be published hereafter in an attempt to catch up with the newcomers.

Thank you.

LOW-COST TINTS

that match every mood in

SOUND PICTURES

THE widest range of tints ever offered the industry is embraced by Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films. They can be used to match every mood in the story, or to reproduce the one lighting or tone that predominates throughout the picture.... In either case Sonochrome gives beautiful color. It gives faithfully reproduced sound. And it costs no more than regular black-and-white positive.

PARAMOUNT NEW SHOW WORLD

ALL AMERICA LAUGHS AND SINGS WITH THIS BOUNCING BALL!

EXHIBITORS large and small agree that the most successful single reel talking subjects on the market today are PARAMOUNT SCREEN SONGS and PARAMOUNT TALKARTOONS.

WHEN the famous bouncing ball of the SCREEN SONGS appears on the screen with the words and music of an old favorite song, all types of audiences clear their throats and joyfully SING. And LAUGH. And get into a happy frame of mind for your whole bill!

THE TALKARTOONS are a brand new idea instantly successful. So popular was "Noah's Lark," the very first release, at the de luxe Paramount Theatre, New York, that it got a special colored stand on Broadway outside the theatre and display in the newspaper ads.

SEE and hear for yourself and be convinced.

Vol. XLI NEW YORK CITY, FEBRUARY 1, 1930 No. 5

INTERNATIONALLY MINDED

By William A. Johnston

HOLLYWOOD.—It is safe to say that three years ago Hollywood had a decidedly provincial outlook. Stars were pretty well satisfied with themselves; so were the studio folk in general. Producers admitted that they made the world's best pictures.

Things in general are greatly changed these days. Stars that were no longer are. New stars have arisen overnight, and there will be many more to arise. Stage directors are competing with picture directors. Speech is grappling with pantomime. So many writers from so many points of the compass are here that Hollywood today may well be called the story centre of the world.

And last, but not least, Hollywood has a brand new and cosmopolitan viewpoint.

Whatever it is due to, does not matter. Maybe it's the talkers; perhaps the foreign legion of professional people here has helped; perhaps the insistent activity of the Hays association to drive home to producers their responsibility to the people of foreign lands.

Consideration for Other Nations

But the fact stands at any rate that, to-day, in every studio there is a constant and practical effort, in the making of every picture, to consider the national pride of other countries and not to offend it. It isn't the fact that one or more individuals in each studio are hired for and fixed with this responsibility that counts. The producing heads themselves are, pretty generally, fully alert to the important problem.

The job isn't being perfectly done; nor can complete satisfaction ever be given.

If the whole world were to put politeness above all other considerations we might evolve a pleasant tea party, but nothing much in the way of human endeavor and progress. In our own United States there is, right along, a considerable degree of acrimony between different sections and states, evolved largely by the newspapers but it doesn't seem to rock the Union.

In the creation of picture plays there must be villains for melodrama and buffoons for comedy. If the writer and director happen to fix these parts upon foreigners it is for reasons of entertainment as they see them; there is certainly no studied reason or effort to offend, any more than we could charge Europe with a desire to demean us by certain stock and often outrageous caricatures of our speech, dress and manners.

Undoubtedly, if the State Departments of all countries, including our own, should draw up their rules on this subject and our studios were compelled to observe them verbatim, we would have to confine production to scenic pictures or at least a very limited cycle of dramatic themes.

Another thing, it is to be hoped, for the sake of good pictures, that Hollywood does not become too travelled and suave.

The greatest virtue of Hollywood production is its naive spirit, its eagerness to create anew, its freshness of viewpoint, its freedom from the traditions of story telling and play making. It is just this quality, we firmly believe, that so interests the people of other lands.

We would suggest that those in high places abroad be a little less sensitive about, and a little more tolerant of, the entertainment hunger of their masses of people. It should be remembered, too, that a great variety of opinion exists everywhere and always will, about religion, politics—and entertainment.

Handling a Big Job Intelligently

There is, nevertheless, a big and serious job facing the American producer. Every country has a right to expect intelligent characterization of its people. And the motion picture will fall far short of its great power if it does not take full advantage of its unique opportunity to hasten international understanding, and, thereby, international amity.

We may rely, I believe, upon our Hollywood producers. The severest critic of them must admit their idealistic enterprise, their uncompromising effort to give pictures the best ideas and the best talent that is available. I am also sure that any well merited criticism from any quarter, placed sincerely before them and without unnecessary and ill advised publicity, will have prompt and full recognition.

An Insider's Outlook

THE industry is roaming about in squared circles. Nobody knows exactly what course to pursue, yet everybody is guessing.

The difficulty, all of it, is directly attributable to the Thacher decision holding arbitration to be illegal. Whether or not the eminent judge realized exactly what he had brought upon the industry is something which only his own thoughts can divulge, but true it is that near-chaos already has been caused with the real thing immediately around the corner.

Last week this column described that decision as a film bill of rights. The developments of the week bore out the monicker. The one disturbing factor in the entire situation, as it now stands, is how many are going to be hurt and whether they can survive their injuries before the inevitable adjustment can be made.

Three Slants

Take the distributor: He is confident. Arbitration, as currently constituted, must go, since the entire exhibitor body had no part in building its structure. Therefore, the distributor proposes what he terms a selective contract: one with arbitration, the machinery of which will be set up by the buying and selling parties; the other, advance deposits. So far as a peek into the future of this plan is concerned, the consensus of opinion has it the distributor feels he is in the clear.

Now the chain. Two questions figure in here: Controlling practically all important theatres, will the distributor insist upon either arbitration or deposits? You must remember he is dealing with an appendage of his own business structure. The reasonable answer is, of course, that he won't. Preferential treatment, as a consequence, for the chain.

Thirdly, the so-called independent exhibitor, or more properly, the unattached showman. What about him? If he fails to get together with the distributor, his one recourse is a court of law. That means time, money and delay. If he accepts the contract which insists upon deposits, his credit system stands in fair chance of being seriously impaired remembering, as you must, that each distributor will insist upon advances ranging from ten to thirty per cent. It looks pretty tough for the underdog.

One light that struggles through the whole murky atmosphere is the definition of industry rights which the Thacher decision expounds. At least, the business knows where it may or may not tread. All of which is something.

The Background

Digging further into the conditions which dragged an inter-industry matter such as this into disinterested and calloused courts of law, it seems to us that the entire state of affairs is nothing more or less than a biting, drastic indictment of the manner in which this business has conducted itself.

When the uniform contract, which provided for arbitration, came into being a half dozen or more years ago, general opinion held that a workable instrument had been evolved. Not perfect by a long shot. Nobody made claims for that. But at least, a foundation had been laid upon which to build.

Then what happened? Not satisfied with the uniformity of the uniform contract, distributors began to add riders. One covered road shows; another concerned protection. There were others. The clauses varied in number and purpose in ratio with the distributors' desire. Under such circumstances, it was inevitable that no contract could hold up.

In addition, arbitration had been used as political football for some years by leaders of exhibitor organizations. The evidence would indicate that more often than not the complaints were proper, but it is a fact that arbitration was turned into a ballyhoo when the fodder supplied by other issues began to run thin.

And so it is today that the machinery so expensively set up all over the land lies dormant. It stands, but cannot function under the ruling of the Federal Court. Build into this picture of the present situation the general agreement that prevails over the soundness of arbitration in principle and you will about round out the story.

Fox!

Heavy barrages early in the week. Then quiet on the Fox front. Three banking houses that count have entered the lists now on Fox's behalf, provided——. You know what that means. At any rate, Lehman Brothers, Bancamerica-Blair — which may mean "Doc" Giannini — and Dillon, Read and Company are the big three who so altruistically gather around the Fox standard. KANN.

Deposits, Thorn of "Old Days," are Alternative of Arbitration Contract

Two Sets of Contracts to be Drawn Up, One Calling for Arbitration, Other Deposits—Advance Levies for Financing

Levying of advance deposits, if carried out, will result in advance collections of between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000, it is estimated, basing it on yearly rentals of $120,000,000. The minimum levy expected to be attempted will be ten per cent. Some companies, it is understood, will take advantage of such a situation to aid in financing production, as was done several years ago when deposits were in vogue.

Deposits, bugaboo of exhibitors in former years, are expected to make a startling comeback, as a result of the decision of Judge Thacher in declaring compulsory arbitration illegal.

Deposits will be the alternative to those exhibitors who decline to solve a voluntary arbitration agreement, if present indications are borne out.

Deposits already have been determined upon for the new Paramount contracts, and other companies may follow suit, with the levy ranging from ten to thirty per cent, according to the individual deal.

Fortified by a Federal Court ruling, handed down in U. S. District Court at Omaha, declaring illegal the Nebraska law which provided that all deposit monies must be kept in escrow within the state, distributors are preparing for a return to "the old days" when millions of dollars of exhibitor money was collected in advance annually. The Omaha decision resulted in a permanent injunction invalidating the deposit law.

Distributors individually now are engaged in a study of the contract problem, outlining clauses which they will incorporate in their separate forms of agreement. The crazy-quilt of contract forms which covered the industry before the days of any uniform contract or arbitration, is expected to play a return date, as a result of the ruling in the arbitration case. The various distributors, a Motion Picture News check-up shows, are as yet undecided on their particular line of procedure. However, it is understood two sets of contracts will be offered, one providing for arbitration, the other for advance deposits.

Copyright Law to Curb Holdovers

Minneapolis—Prosecution of exhibitors under the copyright law, for unauthorized holdover of prints is being undertaken by distributors here, demanding the maximum penalty provided by law of $250. Both the Northwest exhibitor unit and "Greater Amusements," regional trade paper, have refused to lend aid to violators.

CourtEnforcement Of Contracts Seen

Cleveland—Decision of Judge Thacher on arbitration has put the industry "back where it was ten years ago," in the opinion of Frank Drew, president of the Cleveland Film Board.

"All contractual obligations will have to be enforced by process of law," Drew stated. "And this method of operation will cause serious losses to both exhibitors and distributors, because of the perishable nature of films. Pictures tied up in litigation from six to 18 months will have lost their value to all concerned."

In its seven years of operation, arbitration here has resulted in the filing of two restraint of trade cases, neither of which ever came to trial, with only seven cases, an average of one a year, requiring a seventh arbitrator. The record is regarded as due in great part to the fact that evidence in cases was not confined exclusively to terms of the contract. The anti-trust cases were filed by John Romwebber, State, Akron, and George Schade of Schade's, Sandusky.

No Chance of Film Board of Trade Disbandment

There is no likelihood of disbandment of Film Boards of Trade as the result of the arbitration decree handed down by Judge Thacher, it is pointed out at the Hays office. Arbitration is a separate system and institution although distributors usually utilize the machinery of the Film Boards in helping to handle arbitration work. This represents but 15 per cent of the work of the various boards, who handle credit committee work and other association matters.

De Sylva, Brown, Henderson Series for U. A. and Fox

De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, song writers, have signed jointly with United Artists and Fox to make two pictures for each organization the next year. The deal, it is reported, will net them about $1,000,000. The trio will produce the pictures as well as write the music for each company.

Appeal to U.S. on Deposits Slated

Levying by distributors of deposits from exhibitors who decline to sign voluntary arbitration agreements will be followed by an appeal to the Dept. of Justice by Allied States Ass'n, its president, Abram F. Myers, stated in an exclusive interview recently with Motion Picture News. Allied, he says, will insist that a greater element of coercion would be involved in such a procedure, than in the system declared illegal by Judge Thacher.

Arbitration Clause Cut from Contracts

Pending drafting of new contracts by the various distributors, the arbitration clause and all reference to arbitration is being stricken out of forms used. The warranty clause, and all references to the standard exhibition contract, also are being removed. Although Paramount is said to have drafted a contract calling for deposits, a number of contracts signed this week contained no deposit provision.

HarwoodForecasts ArbitrationReturn

Cleveland—Return of arbitration in the industry is forecast by J. J. Harwood, head of the Cleveland exhibitor unit, who believes that, given his choice between the advance deposit and arbitration, the exhibitor will choose arbitration "as the lesser evil." If the Thacher decision means abolition of the uniform contract and arbitration of any kind, it is a setback to the entire industry is his contention.

Music License Deal for W. E. in England Closed

London—Music licenses controlled by the association have been granted to Western Electric by the Music Publishers' Ass'n. The agreement, which runs from July, 1930, to July, 1932, covers making of films and records for talkers.

Several interests, it is understood, are contemplating wholesale invasion of the domestic sound film field.

No Decision On Appeal

No decision has been reached as yet by distributors as to whether appeal will be taken from the decision of Judge Thacher outlawing compulsory arbitration.

5-5-5-Conference May Be Dropped As Result of Judge Thacher Decree

Distributors and M. P. T. O. A. Take View That Nothing Can Be Accomplished Feeling Associations Can't Bind Non-Members

Blow-up of the 5-5-5-conferences between committees of the M. P. T. O. A., Allied States Ass'n, and the Hays organization may result from the Judge Thacher decision ruling illegal the system of arbitration practiced in the industry.

While there has been no definite announcement, distributors and the M. P. T. O. A. are declared to feel that nothing can be accomplished at the sessions for the reason that exhibitors not members of the two exhibitor organizations could not be bound by any agreements made, and that a collective agreement on arbitration might be viewed as restraint of trade.

Allied takes the opposite view, hoping the conferences will continue, and that the proposals it made at former conferences will be adopted.

Positions of the M. P. T. O. A. and Allied have been indicated by statements of their respective presidents. Distributors, however, have not made any statements in the matter and probably will not do so pending return next week to New York of S. R. Kent, Paramount general manager, who sponsored the conferences.

Urges Confabs

Washington—Speedy continuation of the 5-5-5 conferences is urged by Abram F. Myers, president of Allied States Ass'n, who says the Judge Thacher decree "clears the way" for a system of arbitration such as proposed by his organization at the conferences.

"There would seem to be no reason why the distributors should further delay calling the conference again into session, to the end that the industry, conforming to the principles laid down by the court, may quickly resolve all remaining differences," he states.

N. J. Unit Studies Number of Issues

Arbitration, protection and adverse legislation will be chief topics of discussion at next general meeting of the M. P. T. O. of New Jersey, an adjournment of the meeting held on Monday of this week. At this convention, the Jersey unit will hear outlined a report on the Judge Thacher decision, the progress of the organization's stand against extended protection and its efforts to halt oppressive legislation. Twenty-six exhibitors attended Monday's meeting. Illness prevented attendance of President Joseph N. Seider.

New Padlock Law Makes Dirty Show Misdemeanor

Trenton, N. J.—Presentation of "an obscene, lewd, indecent or immoral" picture or any other form of entertainment tending to debauch morals is made a misdemeanor under terms of a padlock law introduced in the New Jersey assembly. Producer, distributor and all who assist in such presentation are equally guilty under the law. Leasing of premises for such presentations also constitutes a misdemeanor.

Paramount Spent $285,422 in 89 Magazines in '29

Paramount spent $285,422 in 1929 for advertising in 89 national magazines, according to figures in an analysis by the Denny Publishing Co., in New York. This compares with $257,865 spent in 1928.

Electrical Research Products in 1929 spent $145,580 in these magazines, according to the analysis.

Film Production Census Under Way

Washington.—Schedules for a 1929 census of picture production are now being sent out to the industry by the United States Census Bureau.

Detailed information regarding sound as well as silent films will be asked for each class of films—theatrical, educational, news and advertising—being subdivided so as to show the number, expenditures during the year and total cost of production of sound, dialogue (in whole or in part) and silent. Producers will also be asked to show the expenditures for the year on unfinished productions, the cost of positive films, and receipts for laboratory work done for others.

Information regarding the number of days the plant was operated during the year, the normal hours per day and per week, the normal number of shifts per day, the normal number of hours per week for the individual wage earner, and reasons for prolonged part-time operation also is asked.

As usual, the government will request figures as to the number of persons engaged in various capacities, salary and wage payments, and costs of materials and raw stock, fuel and electric current.

The law requires that every establishment shall furnish census data, but it is provided that all reports shall be kept confidential and that the Census Bureau shall divulge no facts or figures from any individual report to any other agency, government or private.

Lightman Doubts Value of Confabs

Declaring that, in view of Judge Thacher's decision, only distributors and exhibitors party to the negotiations would be bound by an agreement reached at the 5-5-5 conferences and that the present exhibitor organizations or committees cannot bind a majority of the nation's exhibitors, M. A. Lightman, president of the M. P. T. O. A., questions the advisability of future conferences. However, he adds, if a feasible plan for accomplishment can be suggested, the M. P. T. O. A. group is willing to go ahead with the meetings.

"I have carefully read both Judge Thacher's decision and decree, and while the court says that distributors have a right to enter into negotiations with exhibitors with reference to a form of standard exhibition contract and with reference to provisions for the arbitration of disputes, the court also clearly indicates that only these distributors and exhibitors so negotiating would be bound by any such agreement.

"In other words, as I interpret the court's decision, if all distributors entered into such negotiations through their representatives they could all be bound. I see no way, however, in the court's decision, that exhibitors can be bound by any such agreements or negotiations unless practically every exhibitor in the United States were personally represented—to negotiate such contract and rules for arbitration and to be bound by such agreement.

"I do not think that the present exhibitor organizations or committees, could bind a majority of individuals, firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures. A great number of the theatre owners in the United States are not members of any national exhibitor organization. It would seem that the distributors are in a position to go ahead with such negotiations, but exhibitors are not; and unless some feasible plan can be devised whereby a great majority of the exhibitors in the country can likewise be bound by such agreements, and in such negotiations, I cannot see what can be accomplished by continuing the conferences. However, if such a plan can be suggested by anybody, or by Mr. Kent on his return, the group from the M. P. T. O. A. is, of course, ready and desirous of going ahead and accomplishing anything that will prove to be constructive and helpful.

"Judge Thacher's decision does one thing—it is conclusive. Its intent and purpose leaves no half-way ground. Perhaps, after all it is best that this is so. There are some people in this business who seem to prefer having the courts settle our differences and my impression is that they will certainly have this opportunity. My personal observation is that it might prove a 'noble experiment' to return, for the time being to the old method of doing business."

Unwired Houses To Get Talkers?

Minneapolis—Talking pictures for unwired theatres may be the outgrowth of a stunt tried here with "Hit the Deck," showing at the Hennepin-Orpheum, where Frank Burke is publicity and exploitation chief. The gag was the broadcasting over the radio of sound from "Hit the Deck," which was synchronized with showing of a silent print of the picture at the War Veterans' Hospital. Except for cutovers, the synchronization is said to have been perfect. The Hennepin-Orpheum and the President, St. Paul, cashed in on the publicity, holding the film for a second week, with the Hennepin doing $18,000 on the first week. Similar broadcasts are declared prepared by RKO.

Sound Newsreel and Newsreel Chain Backed by Hearst, Smith, Brisbane?

Wall St. Money Said to be Interested — Brisbane in Editorial Chair — Courtland Smith Calls It "All Poppycock"

William Randolph Hearst, Arthur Brisbane and Courtland Smith are linked together as sponsors of a new sound newsreel to operate its own chain of newsreel grind houses. Smith yesterday denied that such a move is contemplated, discounting it as "all poppycock" and a product of "one of the industry's greatest faults—the rumor factory."

However, William Rudolph's resignation ten days ago as manager of the Embassy, New York newsreel, stand, is understood to have been brought about following a tie-up with Smith to develop the theatre end of proposed unit. He now is declared lining up sites for a proposed chain of newsreel houses. Wall Street and "big electric" money are backing the project. Details for distributing the reported reel have not been worked out.

Smith, a brother-in-law of Brisbane, important editorial factor in the Hearst newspaper organization, brought Hearst into the Fox Movietone fold when Fox and Case split the original Fox-Case Corp. Smith resigned as general manager of the Fox unit two weeks ago, climaxing a shakeup which resulted in dismissals and resignations of several important department heads, including E. I. Sponable, who quit as chief engineer and technical director. Sponable and Smith have been in conference for several days, and Smith already is said to have lined up a number of Movietone News associates, who resigned in the shakeup. Brisbane is slated for the editorial chair of the proposed reel.

It is not known whether Hearst's alignment with Smith in the new enterprise will interfere with the former's Fox tie-up. The Hearst newsreel staff also produces a reel for M-G-M, and those in the know point out that with a trained newsreel staff in the field there should be little difficulty in producing another sound reel.

What Next?

RKO will follow its January "Good Times Jubilee" drive at circuit houses with a February "Thank You" plug.

In March they will probably stage a "You're Welcome" sales campaign, and a "Don't Mention It" drive in April.

Deal Under Way for Coast Television Set

San Francisco—Negotiations are nearing consummation for acquisition of Farnsworth television patents by a large unnamed Eastern radio manufacturer, which is dickering for outright purchase, or a license. The set would be combined with a radio receiver and sell at popular prices.

"U" Complete Service Contracts Total 18,426

Universal has sold 18,426 Complete Service Contracts to date, the company states. Last year, most of the company's sound pictures were made available under the complete service plan.

Loew on Coast Arranging Foreign Talker Versions

Hollywood.—Arthur Loew is here to confer with M-G-M officials on problems connected with production of foreign talker versions of that company's pictures.

During a two-week stay, it is expected that Loew will definitely set his requirements of foreign versions in Spanish, German and French so that a production schedule for each language might be laid out.

British Demand Standards of Quota Films Be Raised

London—Raising of the standard of pictures produced here if they are to be proposed as quota films is being demanded by British exhibitors. The showmen contend that the palming off of cheap pictures is harmful to the British industry generally.

New Technicolor Plant on Coast Set for March Opening

Los Angeles—Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president, will open the new Technicolor laboratory here on March 1. Kalmus arrives in Los Angeles Friday from a six weeks' trip to Europe and will at once assist Universal officials with color sequences of Paul Whiteman's "King of Jazz."

Brown on Coast

Los Angeles.—Hiram S. Brown, president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, is here from New York.

Broadway Competition To Be Plenty Tougher

They're going to make competition tougher on Broadway, "they" in this case being the Warners, who, with their Warner, Winter Garden, Strand, Beacon and Central, have been real competition for the other houses, with the Hollywood, soon to open, slated to make it even tougher for opposish houses to get the customers in.

The new Warner move is a long term lease on the Winter Garden, with $250,000 to be used to reseat and redecorate the house. An entrance and box office will be built through to 7th Ave., facing the Roxy, with the Broadway entrance to be continued in a bid for that trade which might otherwise go to the Capitol. Harvey L. Charnas closed the deal for the Warners.

Kentucky Bill Hits School Competition

Louisville—Any school or college in Kentucky, supported in whole or in part by the state, would be prohibited from charging entertainment or amusement fees from pupils, in a bill introduced in the House by Rep. Davis. The measure is in the hands of the committee on education.

Berry May Head New RKO Division

Ace Berry will work with Nate Blumberg in RKO's Chicago division, pending formation of the new Washington, D. C., district, which he is expected to head. Berry was formerly with Warners in Pittsburgh.

Revision of Copyright Law Expected Soon in Germany

Berlin—The present copyright law, which allows an author protection until 25 years after death, will be changed to 50 years, if revisions to be submitted by the minister of justice are adopted.

Christie Schedule Finished

Hollywood.—Last of the 37 two reelers on the current Christie comedy line-up will be finished this week.

Grubel Brothers Retained by Publix After Sale

Kansas City—Publix has retained Edward Grubel, president of the Grubel Brothers circuit, and Frank Grubel, secretary, following the acquisition of the chain by Publix. Theatres in the group, all named the Electric, are at Kansas City, Kas., Springfield, Mo., Joplin, Mo., and St. Joseph, Mo. A. F. Baker, general manager, also has been retained by Publix and will be given supervision of a group of houses in this territory.

Vallee, Beware!

Flapper idolizers of Rudy Vallee, John Gilbert, and other bulk "pash" note receivers may have a change of heart when they see and hear Lawrence Tibbett in "The Rogue Song." One opinion has it that that boy radiates more personality of the type which makes the "flaps" dizzy than anyone since Valentino.

No Signs of the State Right Field Reopening, NEWS Survey Reveals

Independent Market, Killed Off by General Instability, Quotas, Sound, Lack of Financial Support, Continues a Dead Issue

Inactivity in the state right field, practically a dead factor in the industry, is likely to continue, an investigation by Motion Picture News discloses.

When sound entered the business, followed shortly after by withdrawal of credit by laboratories and raw film agencies, the independent producing field petered out, climaxing a hectic three years' existence. Other factors were contributory, however. First, there was the lack of stability among state right exchanges, except in a few spots. Numerous territories could not be sold because of irresponsible exchanges. Such territories meant a dead loss to the producer.

Independent exchanges which have been operating successfully are gradually feeling the tightening of a limited field, due, principally, to the constant trend toward chains. Most of the exchanges turn a deaf ear on silent releases, and with the majority of wired houses now operated by circuits, the independent is finding himself frozen out with the few sound pictures at his disposal.

One former independent producer, well known in the field, states he has two portfolios of uncollectable promissory notes given him by state right exchanges for pictures he distributed during the past five years. He told a Motion Picture News representative that the general attitude of state right operators was to obtain their profits at the expense of the producer, rather than give a fair return to the latter by securing rentals from exhibitors commensurate with the value of productions booked.

Producer Held the Bag

Another important production head in the old scheme of independent picture-making believes any business that depended on the manufacturer (producer) carrying all losses and expenses of the middleman (exchange) was doomed, and that this was the exact condition which existed in the independent field for many years. The exchanges, he claimed, milked the producers dry.

Financiers soon got wise to the heavy and unsound burden on the shoulders of the independent producers which they were aiding and tightened the strings on their money-bags. Outside financial sources were putting up capital for independent production units. where exchange contracts covered the production cost, but that procedure has been practically discontinued.

One for the Lights

Mack Sennett has climaxed his popular series of talking comedies with a knockout laugh-getter titled "Sugar Plum Papa." This new two-reeler is a rapid succession of good hearty laughs, with a raft of gags, some old and some new, but all good.

Daphne Pollard's screen return is marked by this comedy, which should find a happy reception from exhibitors in any kind of house. Play it and play it up big.

HYNE

Grace Moore, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, signs contract to make musical talkers for M-G-M. In the group from left to right are: Nicholas M. Schenck; Lawrence Tibbett, also under contract to the company; Miss Moore and Louis B. Mayer.

The next mode of operation involved the securing of about 75 per cent financial backing from a sucker source, and then have the laboratory advance negative and lab charges for a first lien against the picture. This method, likewise, is no longer being worked.

Sound a Factor

Although instability of the state right market generally was the principal cause for collapse, talkers and wholesale passage of quotas in foreign countries helped sound the death knell. While quota restrictions could be better handled by national companies, the independent was helpless. The introduction of talkers with necessity for various talker versions to cover foreign countries failed to hurt the field because it did not survive that long.

One production man, entirely conversant with the independent market over a period of years, believes that the only chance for an independent producer at present lies in $100,000 to $200,000 negatives, which would give him a chance to break into first runs. He declared that even then the gross would be decidedly uncertain, because if the picture turned out to be exceptional, the chains would force the independent producer, or exchange, to make absurd deals on rental or percentage, which would pay the independent about 40 per cent on an average of what a big distributor would get for a booking in the same situation.

An independent producer recently offered what looked to be a money-maker to a national company. The picture cost more than $140,000 to make, a high figure for an independent. The national unit, which also operates a large chain, gave the independent a long list of bookings, but at percentages that were preposterous.

Another former independent producer states:

"There is no room today for the independent picture. A national organization secures its big revenue from the first run. That producer can afford to sell the second and subsequent runs for less money than the independent exchangeman can sell his. The independent hasn't a chance."

Demand for Westerns

There seems to be some interest at present in cheap silent Westerns. There is a big demand in the independent field in the South. South America, too, is after silent outdoor films. Although a market is offered, it is so limited that even the quickies in Hollywood hesitate to get into the field. They would not realize sufficiently on the silents, and sound Westerns are almost out of the question, because it requires almost double the capital to make a talker Western than it does to turn out silents.

In recent years, Warners, besides Columbia and Tiffany, grew from the independent field. Many strong state right factors who are now with national producing companies include Schulberg, Fineman, Goldstone, Stromberg, Bud Barsky. Numerous others are producing independently for national distributors, including Halperin Bros., under contract for a series for Tiffany.

Cliff Broughton Prod., working in association with Mrs. Wallace Reid, Trem Carr, Audible Pictures, Harry Webb Prod., Weiss Bros., J. Charles Davis Prod. and Pickwick Pictures are among those still producing for the independent field.

Cruze Plans to Devote All Time to Filming

Hollywood.—James Cruze is to devote all his time to production, under a reorganization of his company just completed. Samuel Zierler and Harry Thomas are associates, holding world rights to all Cruze pictures. The former has taken over administration of the studio organization and is now at work on details for the distribution of future James Cruze releases, which are being offered on the states rights market.

Speedy

Quick change is Grant Wither's middle name, according to First National's publicity department, which states the leading man had to change his trousers seven times in 30 minutes in a scene for "Back Pay." The other day, he took Loretta Young for an airplane ride which wound up with their marriage at Yuma, Ariz. Back at Hollywood he is reported to have agreed to an annulment of the wedding to 17-year old Loretta, upon insistence of her mother.

Exhibitors Nearest in Years to Securing Rights, Myers Declares

Unity All That Is Needed, Allied Head Tells Illinois Independent Ass'n., Which Votes Affiliation with Myers

Chicago.—Theatre owners today are nearer a realization of their rights than at any time for years past, and unity is all that is needed to bring their campaign to a successful close, Abram F. Myers, president of Allied States Ass'n., read at their meeting here. The Illinois unit, recently formed, voted to affiliate with Allied, as had been exclusively forecast by MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

"The battle," said Myers whose wife's illness prevented him from attending, "would have been won long ago had not a few organizations allowed producer influence to control their policy, thus giving a semblance of disunity which did not actually prevail. The exhibitors now are making it plain that they want the things that Allied stands for and this is greatly strengthening our position."

Outlines Remedial Measures

"We hope," he continued, "that our efforts to get new contracts, new arbitration, a reasonable policy with respect to protection, fair prices and equitable distribution, and to keep theatre expansion within bounds, will have the approval and support of your body.

"The real menace to exhibitor welfare," he continued, "is not so much the treacherous leader who is subsidized by the producer, but the indifferent leader who sits on the fence while others wage the battle."

Steffes Attacks Hays

W. A. Steffes, president of the Northwest exhibitor unit, and H. M. Richey, general manager of the Michigan unit, addressed the meetings, speaking on exhibitor organization, with Steffes continuing his attacks on Hays.

Attacks Hays

Chicago—"Will H. Hays should take a vacation in Europe and let the producers run their own business," W. A. Steffes, head of the Northwest exhibitor unit, declared in climaxing a bitter attack on the producer-distributor head at the meeting of Illinois independents here.

Hays, Steffes charged, is responsible for theatres "being in bad with every church in the country as well as ministers' associations and women's clubs." The Northwest leader for some months has been carrying on a campaign attacking Hays, declaring the producer-distributor head should resign.

3 More States to Join Allied, Claim

Chicago—Three more states within 30 days will follow lead of the Illinois Independent Exhibitors' Ass'n, in joining the fold, recalls publication by "Greater Amuse-Richey, Michigan, and W. A. Steffes, Northwest unit leaders, who addressed the meeting here.

Omaha and K. C. Zones To be Next for Allied?

Minneapolis—Decision of the new Illinois independent unit to enter the Allied fold, recalls publication by "Greater Amusements" of the conversations reported to have been under way in both Omaha and Kansas City for new units which would affiliate with Allied.

Allied Now in 33 States, is Claim

Washington—Enrollment of the new Illinois exhibitor unit under the banner of Allied States Ass'n gives the organization representation in 33 states, it is claimed. This doesn't mean, however, that there are 33 state or regional units affiliated, for some of the states overlap with others served by the exchange zone in which the Allied member has headquarters.

60,000 Seats Claim For New Ill. Group

Chicago—Membership of the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners' Ass'n is claimed to embrace 60,000 seats. The organization was formed a few weeks ago by independent exhibitors, chiefly in Chicago. A drive to increase membership is anticipated.

Yearly dues of Cook County members have been set at 20 cents per seat to cover an estimated budget of $12,000. A lower assessment for other exhibitors of the state will be set at a later date.

Fight to Oust Otterson and Stuart As Fox Trustees Launched by Fox

Trusteeship Agreement Breached by Pair, Fox Affidavit Charges, Claiming He Was Urged to Leave the Country

William Fox was advised to leave the country for six months in a suggestion allegedly made by Harry Stuart, co-trustee with Fox and John E. Otterson, and told to Fox by another, he charges in the affidavit submitted in Federal Court, New York.

This advice was given, it was said, because the co-trustees intended to do "so many drastic things it would be impossible for me to suffer the humiliation that would be heaped upon me."

Fight to oust John E. Otterson of Electrical Research Products and Harry Stuart of Halsey, Stuart and Co. as trustees of Fox enterprises is expected to be undertaken with renewal shortly of the hearings in Federal Court, New York, in the receivership cases.

This is indicated in an affidavit filed with the court by Fox, charging that Otterson and Stuart breached the trusteeship agreement, when they demanded resignation of Jack Leo as vice president and director of Fox Theatres Corp. It was further indicated when Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Fox, hinted that Fox intends to defend the suits for payments of obligations brought by Halsey, Stuart & Co. on notes for $12,000,000 due April 1.

Fox Claims Breach—10 Cent. bld

Fox's charge that the trustees breached the agreement, contains the accusation that they offered Harold B. Franklin a salary of $150,000 a year and five per cent of the net to become president of Fox Theatres, whereas Fox had served several years as president without any salary.

Otterson and Stuart, through counsel, have flatly refused to resign until they see something "laid on the line" in the form of money, a plan which will assure payment of their unsecured loan to Fox. The trusteeship has been dormant, due to inability to secure resignation of Fox directors.

Fox's affidavit stated that Fox Film and all wholly-owned subsidiaries have a net worth of $65,005,000, not including net for the quarter ended Dec. 31, estimated at $3,500,000. Earnings for 1930 are estimated at $13,573,000. The affidavit also was accompanied by evidence that ten members of the Kuser family disapproved of the receivership action.

Fox Film-Roxy Pact on Films Is Under Scrutiny

What agreement, if any, in relation to booking Fox production exists between Fox Film Corp. and Roxy Theatre Corp. the Class A stockholders' committee is principally interested in ascertaining, Joseph Whelan, lawyer and member of the committee, asserts. The committee now represents about 2,000 shares of stock and effort is being made to obtain sufficient proxies so that if the Class A stock becomes voting, through passing of the necessary number of dividends, the committee may become a factor in election of directors.

5 Year Franchise for Buying Notes

Fox Film Corp. intends to grant a five-year franchise for its pictures to its exhibitor customers who subscribe "in adequate amounts" to the seven per cent three year gold notes being offered by Fox Securities Corp., states the prospectus being issued by that organization. A drive now is under way to raise $35,000,000 through sale of the gold notes to the public, to stockholders and employes of Fox enterprises and to exhibitors.

W. E.-RCA Rivalry Seen Fox Obstacle

Rivalry between American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and RCA, through their subsidiary interests in the film industry is seen by "The Wall St. Journal" as a possible stumbling block in the proposed adjustment of the Fox situation. The entrance of Lehman Brothers, presumably working in behalf of Radio-Keith-Orpheum seeking to buy control in Fox, as exclusively reported by Motion Picture News, is seen as a difficulty in the situation.

"It is understandable that Western Electric Co., a subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which has been supplying Fox with his sound equipment, and which loaned him $15,000,000 for the purpose of expanding his business and at the same time its own sales of sound equipment, will be reluctant to consent to a plan which would place Fox's business in the hands of the Radio Corp., who have competing sound device," the newspaper states.

"Undoubtedly, these differences can be adjusted, but it is not unlikely that before this is done the Western Electric Co. will gain a position in the new set-up.

"If the bankers' plan is adopted, it seems probable that at least a portion of the properties of Fox will eventually be merged with Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. The possibility of the Loew holdings being taken over

All Fox Debts To Be Paid In Full, Untermeyer Promises

"I have been asked on behalf of the managament of Fox Film Corp. to answer, publicly, the many inquiries from its subsidiary companies, its stockholders and others, from various parts of the country, as to the meaning of the large judgments that are being entered by the banks, and their effect on the financing that is now under way.

"The purpose of the banks in entering these judgments is undoubtedly to liquidate their claims to enable them to act promptly to protect themselves in case the financing plan now in progress should unexpectedly fail. There is no question whatever about the debts being paid in full—the net assets of the company are admittedly many times the amount of these debts. These are measures of over-abundant caution on the part of the banks. The aggregate of such debts is under $10,000,000, of which about $4,000,000 is said to be secured.

"Any plan will, of course, provide for the payment of all debts in full.

"I am asked to convey the further assurance that the business was never so prosperous; that it is being prosecuted and all preparations made by Mr. Fox for the coming season, without the slightest interruption in the ordinary course of business.

"I would like to express on my own behalf, and I believe I speak for all interested in the Fox Co., my appreciation and admiration for the action of Judge Coleman in this business.

"Statements are appearing, from time to time, that Mrs. Kuser, who brought the third of the three stockholders' suits for a receiver, owns 20 per cent of the stock. The papers filed with the court show, on the contrary, that she owns only owns two per cent, and the documents signed by all the other members of the family show that they are opposing her action and do not want a receivership. These papers further show that the Fox Company was originally organized with $500,000 of preferred stock and 10,000 shares of common stock; that Colonel Kuser subscribed for $200,000 of this preferred stock and received 20 per cent or 20,000 shares of common stock as a bonus. That is the present B stock. It further appears that a few years later Colonel Kuser's investment of $200,000 was repaid in full and that the stock now owned by the family represents no investment and a profit of over $5,000,000."

Fox Offered $12,500,000 by R-K-O Bankers to Retire, Report Says

All Debts Would be Taken Over if Fox Accepts Reported Arrangement, Is Claim—Bankers Working on Refinance Plan

Offers for purchase of the Fox West Coast Theatres have been made by several distributors, it is understood. One of these offers, Isidore Kressel, attorney for Mrs. Susie M. Kuser declared in court, had reached his ears and called for a price of $20,000,000.

It was this report that led him to ask and receive the stipulation that none of the Fox holdings would be disposed of during the two week period, during which bankers will try to work out proposed refinancing plan.

William Fox has been offered $12,500,000 to sever his connection with the Fox enterprises, by Lehman Brothers, one of the banking firms engaged in working out refinancing plans it is said. The bankers are ready to assume all obligations of his various companies if the offer is accepted, according to report current Thursday night. In this reported offer, Lehman Brothers are understood to be acting for Radio-Keith-Orpheum, which interests are said to be seeking control, with the Loew circuit as one of the prime objects.

If this reported plan materializes, a stipulation would be an attractive contract on talker equipment for Western Electric, as a condition of its withdrawal from the present trusteeship, say the reports. Western Electric has been reluctant to grant any delay, and has been contending for a receivership.

Meanwhile, a truce on the various actions for a receivership has been declared until Feb. 11, while Lehman Brothers, Bancamerica-Blair, and Dillon, Read & Co., seek to work out a plan of refinancing to provide the $45,000,000 necessary to extricate the Fox companies from their present difficulties. Four receivership actions are pending in Federal Court, New York, but it is anticipated these will be withdrawn if a satisfactory plan is worked out. The refinancing plan will include increase of the Class A by 400,000 shares, from the present outstanding 900,000 shares. While the plan is being worked out, the present trusteeship of Fox, John E. Otterson and Harry Stuart is being continued.

Under terms of the voting trust agreement, to become operative if a satisfactory agreement is worked out, a new trusteeship is provided. Members are: William Delafield, president of the Bancamerica-Blair Corp., Herbert B. Powell, president of the Commercial National Bank, and Barney Baruch. The trustees would "elect" seven directors of the 12 to be named, these to include: Fox, Jack G. Leo, Winfield Sheehan, Bernard Baruch or his son, Edward R. Tinker, capitalist; Louis Abrons, head of the General Realty and Utilities Co., and Elmore Higgins, banker. The remaining four would be elected by stockholders at the meeting, April 15.

Robert T. Swain, counsel for the bankers working out the refinancing, estimates 30 days would be required to complete draft of the plan, but promises all speed "humanly possible." During duration of the "truce," judgments may be entered but not executed by creditors. Four judgments already have been entered.

Fox Resignation Terms Outlined

Resignation of William Fox and directors of the corporation, contingent upon withdrawal of J. E. Otterson and Harry Stuart as trustees, is agreed to in a letter from Fox to his counsel, Samuel Untermyer, and was read by the latter in Federal Court in New York this week. Fox, in his letter, outlines his understandings of conditions under which he would resign as follows:

"That I am to procure for you the resignation of at least a majority of the directors of the Fox Film Corporation and of the Fox Theatres Corporation. In addition to this you want the resignation of all the officers of Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theatres Corporation.

"It is your purpose to deposit these resignations with the court with the stipulation that they are to be held by the court until such time as the court receives from John E. Otterson and H. L. Stuart their resignations under the trustee agreement entered into between William Fox, John E. Otterson and H. L. Stuart, dated December 3, 1929.

"It is understood that the trustee agreement dated December 3 is to be abrogated; that the following certificates of stock belong to me.

"That 50,101 shares of Fox Film Corp. Class 'B' voting stock and the other certificates of 100,000 shares of Class 'B' voting stock of Fox Theatres, now on deposit with the Bankers Trust are to be withdrawn from the Bankers' Trust and deposited with the court, provided they are obtainable.

"The form of the voting trust agreement is to be satisfactory to you, and in the event it is not satisfactory the resignations deposited with the court are to be redelivered to the parties who signed the same. You have examined the draft submitted to me and it is satisfactory in substance to me if it is to you.

"Among other things, the voting trust will provide that the voting trustees will re-elect the same board that are now to be put into office, upon the designation of the present directors, for a further term of one year, or until a new setup has been arranged under the plan of financing which the bankers are now considering and with respect to which they are now having the accounts investigated. The same board is to be elected for the theatres company."

Eastward Expansion of Fox West Coast Continues

Joplin, Mo.—Further eastward extension of Fox West Coast Theatres is indicated by its purchase of the Hippodrome. The Hippodrome is largest theatre in Joplin, a city of 30,000, and has a seating capacity of 1,500 seats. The purchase was negotiated by Harold B. Franklin. The theatre will be operated by Fox Rocky Mountain Theatre Co., a subsidiary under supervision of Fox West Coast Theatres, and operating in Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Nebraska and Missouri.

Ohio Unit Pledges Fox Moral Support

Columbus, O.—Moral support to William Fox in the present financial situation has been pledged by the board of trustees of the Ohio exhibitor unit, P. J. Wood, business manager, has advised members in a general letter. Following is the telegram despatched to Fox:

"In the belief that any radical disarrangement of the operations of the Fox Film companies will cause a loss of public confidence and have a tendency to affect the industry generally, and also endanger the prestige now enjoyed by the motion picture theatres of the country, it gives me considerable pleasure to advise you that the Board of Trustees of The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Ohio has authorized me to address a communication to all of our members urging them to cooperate with you to the best of their ability in your endeavors to raise funds and thus assist to prevent the elimination or submergence of one of the factors which has so largely contributed to the rapid and remarkable growth of the industry."

"We sincerely trust that you will not only back up our assurances in the best of your ability but will also point out to those with whom you have occasion to discuss the Fox situation, that this unit of our business represents one of the most remarkable achievements of present day industrial progress and that for the ultimate good of the industry these interests should be properly reestablished. In other words, aim to create a feeling of confidence instead of alarm.

"Let us forget personalities and treat the matter broadmindedly. Let us do our share to avert an irreparable harm to the industry by extending a hand of helpfulness to one whose vision has enabled this industry to make such tremendous strides forward."

Merging of Famous Players Canadian And Gaumont British Again Proposed

Stock Spurt and Report Fox Abandoning British Deal Revives Yarn Two Chains Will Consolidate

"We have no comment to make on any subject," Jeffrey Bernerd, who is in New York with Isadore Ostrer of Ostrer Brothers, told MOTION PICTURE NEWS, when queried on reports of possible acquisition of the Fox interests in Gaumont by Fox, or proposed merging of Gaumont and Famous Players Canadian.

Montreal.—Proposal to unite the largest theatre chains of Canada and Great Britain, envisioned months ago by N. L. Nathanson, former managing director of Famous Players-Canadian Corp., when he sought to unite the circuit with Gaumont British, again is reported under discussion.

The sudden spurt of ten points in Famous Players stock, coupled with report that Fox may abandon the Gaumont deal, has revived reports of a merger, under the original terms offered by Gaumont of $75 a share.

Zukor Blocked Nathanson

Nathanson retired from Famous when Adolph Zukor and I. W. Killam, the other two voting trustees, blocked his plan to submit the proposition for the sale to stockholders. Their stand was based on Fox's projected plan to acquire control of Gaumont.

Following his resignation, Nathansan announced plans for a rival Canadian chain, presumably with Fox backing. This has been denied, as have reports that Nathanson's proposed circuit had been sidetracked, as a result of the Fox financial situation.

Would Merge 500 Houses

The proposed Gaumont British amalgation with Famous Canadian would unite around 200 Canadian and about 300 British houses. As Gaumont is a producing firm, as well as exhibiting, the consolidation would greatly cut into playing time of American films in Canada, distribution of many of which are controlled through franchises by Famous Players Canadian.

P. F.-L-Gaumont Deal On, London Hears

London—Effort is understood being made by Paramount to acquire the Fox holdings in Gaumont British, which, it is said, may be abandoned for non-payment of notes. Isadore Ostrer of Ostrer Bros., banking firm backing the chain, and Jeffrey Bernerd are in New York in connection with the reported deal. S. R. Kent, general manager of Paramount, and J. C. Graham, the company's general manager here, sailed Wednesday for New York.

Previous report from London that any deal was under way for acquisition by Paramount of the Fox holdings in Gaumont-Berhead were emphatically denied at the company's home office.

Canada Expansion Program Still On

Toronto—With talk of the Gaumont British and Famous Players Canadian deal revived, the latter is continuing its steady expansion program, entrenching its already strong position throughout the Dominion. Enjoying record intake, Famous Canadian has plans for a number of new houses in various sections of the country, notably in the eastern and Maritime provinces.

Allens Drop Out of Canadian Exhibition

Renfrew, Ont.—Finis was written to the Canada exhibition career of the Allens, with reversion of their Renfrew, Pembroke, Arnprior and Almonte theatres to M. J. O'Brien, local millionaire. J. H. Bruck, former general manager for the Allens, who once were a big power in the field in opposition to Famous Players, continues as general manager under O'Brien. The firm now is building a $75,000 house here and wiring others.

Deal Likely?

Toronto—Providing the matter is reopened, "it is quite possible that a merger between the Gaumont British Picture Corp. and Famous Players might be considered, states Arthur Cohen, managing director of Famous Players-Canadian.

His statement was made in commenting upon a report that Fox interests had abandoned plan to secure a controlling interest in the $25,000,000 chain, England's largest.

Warners To Enter Educ'l Field Soon

Entrance of the Warners into the educational field on a wholesale scale is in the offing. Harry M. Warner touched upon the future development briefly at the luncheon tendered by him this week to Oscar Straus.

Warner pointed out that the educational field was an important appendage of motion pictures and indicated his organization intended to pay it full attention.

Straus Off for Coast to Write an Operetta

Oscar Straus, celebrated Viennese composer, is en route to the coast to write an original operetta for the Warners. He returns to New York April 1. Straus was honor guest at a Ritz luncheon this week at which Harry M. Warner was host. Many notables in the world of music attended.

Chicago Theatre To Test Fire Law

Chicago—Whether or not the acoustical materials now being used in numerous Chicago theatres conform to the regulations of local fire prevention ordinances will be decided in court here in the near future.

A small southside house which rebelled against the order to remove its acoustical insulation, to which fire prevention inspectors had taken exception, has decided to make a test case of the order. Horns, walls and ceiling drops also are mentioned as targets for the inspectors. Inspection visits have been going on for more than a month, resulting in many changes in some theatres.

Pathe Starts Short Reel Production in Hollywood

Hollywood.—Pathe has launched production of its one and two reel program at its coast studio, with Wallace Fox directing a talking and singing musical western, "Flame of the West," to be shown in two reels.

Keep Newsreel 40% British, Ontario Warns

Toronto.—Legislation to aid production of Canadian newsreels is being sought to remedy the situation caused by a drop in the ratio of British or Canadian shots below the required 40 per cent. American companies have been warned against drop of the ratio, due to the sound development. Canadian firms are being urged to issue at least one all-Canadian newsreel each week.

A Popular Patent

England's most popular patent is the Eugene A. Lauste master patent on sound-on-film and numbered 18057, which was obtained by the pioneer inventor Aug. 11, 1906, it is declared. Seven editions of the patent have been printed to take care of the demand.

Critics Find Shearer Film Very Faulty

"Dull and ineffective," "below the Shearer standard," "mediocre entertainment," are some of the lines which New York critics dubbed Norma Shearer's latest, "Their Own Desire." On the other hand, The Sun claims "it has a chance for financial success, despite its many faults," and The Mirror accepts it as "a good movie," so there you are. Brief opinions of the critics follow:

American— . . . difficult to find much that is meritorious in the mediocrity of "Their Own Desire." . . .

Daily Mirror—Norma's (Shearer) acting makes a conventional story great with entertainment. . . . a very good movie.

Daily News— . . . isn't going to do Norma Shearer's talkie career much good . . . it just manages to make the grade.

Graphic— . . . holds only mild interest.

Herald-Tribune— . . . dull and ineffective. . . .

Post— . . . In every respect, "Their Own Desire" is the dernier cry of motion picture mediocrity. . . .

Sun— . . . it has a chance for financial success, despite its many faults . . .

Telegram—Shearer and Montgomery give such engaging performances and the work of the . . . cast and director is so good that there is a possibility of "Their Own Desire" . . . being considered a good film. . . .

Telegraph— . . . Turns out to be a fashion parade rather than a screen drama, and this may prove to be it's saving grace. . . .

Times— . . . a feature with both pleasing and annoying incidents.

World (Evening)— . . . below the Shearer standard.

World (Morning)— . . . second grade film entertainment, with nothing offered by any of its principals to relieve its monotony.

"Story unwinds too slowly. Better-than-program stuff," commented the MOTION PICTURE NEWS in its review of "Their Own Desire," which appeared Nov. 16.

Griffith Chain Buys Two

Oklahoma City—Expansion of the Griffith chain brings two more Texas houses into the field, the Ritz and Palace at Midland.

New "U" English House

London—Universal has opened the Theatre Royal at Bolton. "Broadway" was the initial attraction.

Publix at Stillwater, Minn.

Stillwater, Minn.—Publix has acquired option of Louis Rubenstein on the Auditorium at Stillwater. Rubenstein is taking over the Forest, St. Paul, from Publix under the deal.

Valley City Deal Off

Valley City, N. D.—Deal of Publix for John Piller's Piller and Rex here has fallen through.

Latham on Radio Staff

Hollywood.—William Le Baron has signed Frederick G. Latham, musical comedy and operetta director, for Radio's staff. Macklin Megley, general manager of RKO's vaudeville production department, will work at the studio, assisting in stage direction.

13-Month Operating Year Is Jensen, Von Herberg Plan

Seattle—Adoption of the 13-month calendar for houses in the Pacific Northwest circuit operated by Jensen and Von Herberg of this city is announced by J. G. Von Herberg, president.

Bookings, receipts, salaries, operating costs and other matters pertaining to the business of the chain are naturally figured on a weekly basis, so that a straight four-week month is the ideal solution, according to Von Herberg. A single change over the plan recently suggested by George Eastman has been inaugurated by the local company. Each year will be started on the Friday closest to the "regular" Jan. 1, because Friday has been selected as the key change day for the Jensen-Von Herberg houses.

Trust Suit Not Dropped at Omaha

Omaha—Suggestion made to M. Stern of the Classic Pictures Exchange, that he withdraw his suit charging restraint of trade, has not been acted upon. The suit is the result of alleged refusal of service to the Strand, Newtown, Ia., then the Classic and operated by Stern Brothers. It has been thought here that Stern would withdraw the suit, due to his position as a member of the Film Board. Earl Miller now operates the Newton house.

Barrymore in "Sea Beast" Sequel, All in Dialogue

Hollywood—Warners will produce a sequel to "The Sea Beast," one of the most successful of John Barrymore's silent productions. Barrymore will be starred, with Lloyd Bacon directing.

Banks to Direct First Two P.D.C. Quota Films

London—Monty Banks will direct the first two of four pictures to be produced here by P. D. C. as quota pictures. Gordon Bostock will produce the films. They are: "Eve's Fall," "Amateur Night," "Crystal Gazers" and "Life in a Night Club."

Texas Theatres Lose Fight on $75 Tax

Fort Worth, Tex.—Operators of a group of small houses, in a concerted effort to prevent enforcement of the new $75 occupational tax, lost their fight when the Second Court of Civil Appeals upheld the ruling of Judge Hal S. Lattimore, who denied an injunction asking that the tax be set aside.

The tax was levied upon all theatres in cities having population of more than 40,000. Judge Buck, in the new ruling, stated that relief must come from the legislature and not from the courts.

Publix Opens Office in K. C to Handle Real Estate Holdings

Kansas City—Lou B. Metzger's brother, Arthur S., heads the new Publix unit formed to manage the 100 property holdings of the chain in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa.

The Road to Better Sound Production

Reverberation bothered one exhibitor. He couldn't get good sound in his theatre.

In another instance the horns were improperly placed. The third theatre had satisfactory results in reproduction, but investigation proved that the sound waves were crossing tripping each other up. Once remedied, sound showed considerable improvement.

The fourth exhibitor had wired his theatre, but was all set to turn back his equipment and revert to a silent policy. His trouble hinged around the fact that the audience was unable to distinguish the dialogue. His difficulty—only he didn't know it—was attributable to his house which was box-shaped, had wooden seats, plaster walls and a very low wooden ceiling. Here the problem was one of acoustics, but a remedy was found.

Echoes have caused considerable exhibitor disturbance. Likewise, pilasters, plaster-finished walls, over-loaded speakers, and improperly placed drapes. These and other reasons for poor sound have been unearthed by M-G-M sound technicians in their tour of the nation's theatres.

The experts themselves tell of the houses they have treated in another of the exclusive series of articles published by Motion Picture News and this week one of the features of the February issue of

Fox West Coast Conspiracy Case to Be Brought to Trial on Wednesday

Restraint of Trade Charged in Criminal Action Will Be Heard as Result of Protection Granted to West Coast Chain

Washington—Cases brought by the government against Fox West Coast Theatres and other defendants, charging conspiracy to restrain trade, will be tried February 5, according to testimony of John Lord O'Brian, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust enforcement, before the House committee on appropriations, made public this week with the introduction in Congress of the appropriation bill for the Dept. of Justice.

O'Brian laid before the committee details of the cases against Fox and Warners, filed November 27, charging violation of Section 7 of the Clayton act, by Fox in the acquisition of stock in Loew's and M-G-M and by Warners in the acquisition of stock in First National.

Case against M-G-M and others, resulting from the 1927 strike of operators in Chicago, is awaiting trial, as is the case against Balaban & Katz, and others, charging restraint of trade by use of clearance agreements and long-term exclusive contracts.

Talking Picture Epics Has Three in Work

Following "Across the World with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson," Talking Picture Epics will release the Harold McCracken story of the discovery of American mummies in the Arctic, Capt. Jack Robertson's story of his Yukon adventures, and Dr. Ernest Cadle's account of the discovery of the reputed birthplace of the human race in the Kalihari desert. Titles are "Aleutian Islands," "The Break-Up" and "Wild Men of Kalihari."

The entire group is now being edited.

Returns to Paramount

Hollywood—With completion of an assignment for an adaptation and script on an untitled Fox production, Howard Estabrook has returned to Paramount to resume work under his contract there.

British Reject Poor 'Quota' Films

London.—Extension of the powers of the film advisory committee to enable it to refuse to certify any "British" picture, which is "not a bona-fide attempt to produce a picture for marketing," but merely a device to defeat the quota act, looms as a strong possibility, following selection of John Maxwell, chairman of British International Pictures, as a member of the committee. Maxwell is author of the suggestion to scrutinize so-called quota films. Meanwhile, there has not been any support of Sir Gordon Craig's proposal that the quota be increased to 25 per cent.

Graham to Head Renter Association in England

London.—J. C. Graham, managing director of Famous Lasky Film Service, Ltd., is to be elected president of the Kinematograph Renters Society, when that body holds its general meeting Feb. 11. His nomination, tantamount to election, was voted recently.

May Switch to Hollywood

Hollywood — Although intended for production in Paramount Long Island Studios, it is expected that the company will announce "Subway Express" to be made early in the spring in the west coast studios. Switch in production responsibility is now being discussed.

Fox Gets 2 Denver First Runs

Denver.—Acquisition of the two first runs and two suburbans of the Harry Huffman chain here, marks another step in the keen building race under way throughout the inter-mountain and far western states between Fox West Coast and Publix.

Denver for long has been a Publix stronghold, with Fox having had negotiations under way for some months to strengthen its position here.

Denver—Fox West Coast has closed a deal for the four Denver theatres of the Aladdin Theatre Corp., chain of which Harry E. Huffman is general manager. In addition, the firm plans erection of a $1,000,000 house to seat more than 3,000. Huffman is to be general manager of Fox theatre interests here. Houses acquired are the Aladdin, 1,400-seat house, which was first in this territory to be wired; America, downtown, and Bide-a-Wee and Blue Bird, suburbs. The option runs until Feb. 23.

Other Fox houses here are: Isis, Queen, Oriental, Egyptian and Mission. It is expected that Frank Culp, manager for Fox here, will be assistant to Huffman.

Price War May Be Due in Seattle, Cut Indicates

Seattle.—Whether this city is due for a price war is being asked following cut of the Fox Coliseum for a 25 cents matinee top and a 35 cents evening top, from 35 and 50 cents respectively. The house plays a few program first runs and second runs of extended attractions from the Fox or Fifth Ave. The cuts follow opening of the "pop"-priced Liberty, first run, which runs at 15 cents up to 1 P.M., 25 cents matinee and 35 cents night. The Liberty has 1,850 seats, the Coliseum a few less.

Hamrick Cuts Prices

Portland, Ore.—Due to the overseated condition existing here, John Hamrick, operating the Music Box has cut his 50 cent prices to 25 cents with children's admission a dime at all times and a few loge seats at 50 cents. This puts some 1,837 seats on the market at the lower price. At the Blue Mouse, also under Hamrick's management, prices will remain at 50 cents top. This change marks a return by Hamrick to a policy of low prices that he adopted in Portland several years ago.

Winkler Producing Staff To Headquarter in L. A.

Charles B. Mintz of Winkler pictures has completed arrangements to transfer his staff to Hollywood where production will be concentrated in the future. Ben Harrison and Manny Gould head the group of animators now turning out the Krazy Kat series of sound cartoons which Columbia is distributing.

Winkler plans another cartoon series, the nature of which is yet to be determined.

Independents Lining Up Several at Metropolitan

Hollywood—Caddo, Sono-Art, Halperin Bros., Christies, Hamilton Comedies, and Robert Bruce are at work, or will be shooting soon, at Metropolitan Sound Studios.

Robert Bruce will again do an outdoor talking scenic for Paramount. Alf Goulding, directing Lloyd Hamilton talking comedies, is preparing for another in this series of shorts.

Three features are being whipped into shape by Sono Art, one from Reginald Denny, already in work; Ruth Roland's first talker, and a new James Cruze production.

The Halperin vehicle will be a sequel to "Party Girl." Tiffany will release.

Caddo is half way finished with cutting on "Hell's Angels," and is preparing a new one, "Front Page," which starts early in February.

Cleveland Clinic Fire May Bring Strict Regulations

Cleveland—Hospitals, exchanges and photographers storing film will be forced to revamp their handling systems, if an ordinance now before the Public Safety Committee is passed. The measure is an outgrowth of the clinic disaster, in which 123 lives were lost when X-ray film destroyed the structure.

Coast Equity Actors Plan to Bring About Proposed Reforms at Studios

Hollywood Players Meet with Producers to Form A New Association For Protection of Own Studio Rights

Hollywood—Actors in the film colony, apparently jealous of the influence attempted to be inflicted upon them as the result of the recent Actors Equity strike, last week, took the first step toward the formation of an independent association rivaling Equity among Hollywood actors.

This contemplated action was intimated at meetings last week, of actors, producers, and legal advisors. The meetings were the direct result of the failure recently of the Actors Equity Ass'n to enforce Equity shop in the studios. The differences sought to be straightened out are: Computation of working time on contracts; starting and quitting time; retakes and other minor phases. The committee of actors represented at the meetings included Lawrence Grant, Sam Hardy, Jean Hersholt and Conrad Nagel. William C. DeMille represented the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences.

Leaders in the player ranks were assured, it was understood, that producers would give full cooperation when acting in conjunction with the players' organization. It was intimated that the players branch would have equal representation with producers on an arbitration board to sift any complaints coming from the actors.

Western Tour for Major Vaudeville

Minneapolis—Return of a western major vaudeville tour, with the Twin Cities as starting point, is planned by Radio-Keith-Orpheum. The Hennepin-Orpheum here, which some time ago became a de luxe picture house, is to be key theatre of the tour announced by J. L. McCurdy, division manager who succeeded Claude Saunders here, when the latter was transferred to the Easy. The tour is to include St. Paul, Winnipeg, Vaucouver, Seattle, Portland, Spokane, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver and Omaha.

The Seventh St. here and the President, St. Paul, are to be de luxe picture houses under the plan.

Ind. Exhibitors Rally to Help Flood Victims

Indianapolis—A "canned goods" matinee for the benefit of flood sufferers in southwestern Indiana is to be held in 37 neighborhood theatres, according to Louis R. Markum, state representative and local theatre owner. The committee in charge is composed of Markum, Charles Metzger, manager of the theatre owners of Indiana; Robert L. Moorhead, Taylor Gronninger, Bert Fuller and Roy Bair.

"If this plan works out as we expect, we should have well over a carload of food for the flood sufferers," Markum asserted. "Mr. Metzger will inform theatre owners over the state of the plan and we expect a hearty response on the part of the public."

Branch offices of film exchanges here are co-operating, Markum said, and will contribute films for the matinee. Admission will be one or more cans of food.

One Day Rest in 7 for N. Y. Operators Asked

Albany, N. Y.—One day's rest in seven, and tightening of license requirements for operators are provided in two bills introduced in the legislature. Sen. Williams is author of the one-day rest bill, while Assemblyman Schwartz sponsors a bill calling for age minimum of 21 years and six months' apprenticeship for operators. Applications would be accompanied by statement of character and responsibility and by approval of the fire commissioner and the city clerk.

Fox European Heads in N. Y. for Sales Meetings

European sales managers of Fox are in New York for conferences with Clayton P. Sheehan, head of the foreign department. Those in attendance at the meetings, which continue into next week, are from five foreign branches.

Ohio Unit Pledges Fox Moral Support

"The Fox interests represent one of the foundation stones of this industry," Wood points out to members, "and if it crumbles a reflection will be cast upon the entire industry. Further, from your standpoint as an exhibitor the elimination of Fox from the producing and of the business can only result in a tightening up of production to the probable extent of the number of pictures produced by the Fox organization—and fewer good pictures mean higher film rentals. Therefore if for no other reason than this you should desire to see a perpetuation of the Fox interests."

Otterson and Stuart Fight Launched by Fox

Fox defends his action pledging credit of the corporation for $17,500,000 loan to Fox Theatres to acquire control of Loew's, stating consolidation of the three firms would effect economies of $17,000,000 a year and produce net of $50,000,000 annually. The deal was discussed with Electrical Research and Halsey, Stuart & Co. at the time, he says, adding these firms knew a permanent financing plan would have to be undertaken to pay the debts incurred. The large block of stock purchased could not have been acquired at less than the price paid, he asserts.

Acquisition of the Gaumont British chain of 300 houses, was necessary as a protective measure, Fox asserts, because the houses were being offered for sale, which would endanger $500,000 a year in rentals. He expected profit of $1,500,000 yearly from the theatres, says the affidavit.

byRadio-Keith has been discussed and there is little doubt that financing for this purchase can easily be arranged. Interests associated with Radio-Keith have been endeavoring for some time to acquire the Loew holdings of Fox.

"It is also probable that the Fox properties may eventually be combined with Radio-Keith. It is likely, however, that the Fox business may be left undisturbed to the Western Electric Co. and that only the Loew holdings will be acquired by Radio-Keith."

San Bernardino, Cal.—Fox West Coast has acquired the Fox here for a reputed

New Protective Committee Formed By Fox Note Holders

Claiming to represent a "substantial number of Fox Film Corp., gold notes" a protective committee has been named to protect noteholders. A number of bankers are members of the committee, which is calling for deposit with it of notes, together with coupons due April 1. Halsey, Stuart and Co. is urging deposit of the notes as requested, stating the company has defaulted certain of the covenants of the notes by incurring indebtedness prohibited by such covenants.

Dee-licious

At the Warner luncheon to Oscar Straus:

John Philip Sousa, leading American band leader, voiced his appreciation for the musical capabilities of Straus by launching into a eulogy of the man who wrote "The Blue Danube." Sousa explained his reluctance to play it while in Vienna some years ago as he felt he could not do the famous melody full justice.

It was a nice tribute to the composer and very well put. The guests appreciated the sentiment, but as a matter of fact it was Johann Strauss and not Oscar Straus who wrote the piece.

Stop Us If We're Wrong

COLUMBIA PICTURES is clicking with shorts at four Broadway houses. These are: "The Cat's Meow," Paramount; "Hell's Bells," Globe, "Canned Music," "Talking Screen Snapshots" and "Busy Fingers," at the Cameo.

Patrons of Universal theatres in Wisconsin whose birthday fell on Jan. 17 were admitted free to company houses, in honor of Carl Laemmle's birthday.

Urges Pay by Check

Washington—James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, urges American industry to develop a policy of paying all wages by check to stop the wave of banditry and lawlessness now flooding the country.

The labor chief claims the transportation of money to meet pay rolls is a deliberate incentive to crime, and the adoption of the modern check method would result in an annual saving of lives and millions of dollars.

Your Order, Please!

Rochester, N. Y.—Down-and-outers will probably take full advantage of the coffee and cake menu in the new coffee foyer at Loew's Rochester, largest house in town, which also provides bridge tables for those waiting for seats.

A. H. BLANK, long a dominant power in Iowa and Nebraska, prior to sale of his chain to Publix, rapidly is building up an independent circuit in Iowa. The veteran showman has left for the Coast on an extended vacation.

Jockeying

Minneapolis.—Salesmen who have had experience in routing shows have the edge in the Northwest in seeing to it that they are spotted into the right towns in these days of heavy snows. Then if they get snowbound, they at least get a break on the hotel, rather than being stranded in some hoop-de-doo tank where even keeping warm is a problem.

Russians Developing Own Sound Systems

Engineers in Soviet Russia are applying their own inventions for the development of sound recording and reproducing apparatus, according to Leon Monosson, Amkino president, who has just returned to New York from an extended trip through Russia, during which he said he found a willingness on the part of the Russian industry to develop an understanding with American manufacturers on sound equipment.

Although Russian film leaders are interested in developing the sound field, he said it is not their intention to drop silents as completely and quickly as American producers. Russian studios now are geared to turn out 260 features yearly, and several hundred shorts. At the end of 1930 they will be in a position to make 280 a year, and by 1931, 350.

"In Moscow, there is installed an RCA Photophone, and numerous Russian systems," states Monosson. "In Soviet Russia films are considered not only as entertainment, but also as an invaluable educational medimu and production chiefs proclaim that sound must be an integral part of each production and by no means only a mechanical combination with the action," he said.

Studios Studying Sound.

"At present, the largest companies of the Soviet have groups of scenarists, directors, artists, musicians and technicians all studying and developing new methods and forms for making and reproducing sound films different from those already applied in other countries. Educators are working with directors on sound educational films.

"In a very short time, a large group of directors and other production factors will visit the United States to study achievements in the technical development of sound."

Amkino, the American unit of Sovkino, will release 39 pictures in 1929-1930, in addition to a group of short subjects.

Warner Copy Pulled After Film Rap at Baltimore

Baltimore.—C. S. Langue, manager of Warners' Metropolitan, has pulled all advertising from "The Baltimore Sun" morning, evening and Sunday. The action is said to have followed a rap printed by "The Morning Sun" reviewer on "The Show of Shows." Meanwhile, "General Crack," which opens the house Saturday, will play day and date at the Rivoli, which is using "The Sun."

Pinched for Midnight Shows

Davenport, Ia.—Midnight shows at the Star have brought indictments of Harry Pabst, owner, his wife and two employes, charged with giving immoral plays, exhibitions and entertainments. The shows are said to have been in operation since last October.

Publix, Wyo., Opening Feb. 14

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Walter Bradley's Capitol Avenue, turned over to Paramount on a lease, reopens as a Publix house Feb. 15, re-christened the Paramount.

Watters on Viertel Story

Hollywood—George Manker Watters is writing the story, adaptation and dialogue for Berthold Viertel's next assignment at Fox. The picture was suggested by a magazine short story.

Estabrook at F. N.

Hollywood—Following a scenario assignment for Fox, Howard Estabrook has joined First National for one picture. He is under contract to Paramount.

Intelligentsia Knock Old-Man Reformer for Series of Loops

Reformer, that black-bonnetted old man, frequently pictured as the undertaker of motion pictures, was knocked for the count by a group of important and nationally-known educators assembled at the closing session of the annual National Board of Review conference in New York, which delivered what was generally agreed to be one of the greatest verbal bombardments against federal and state censorship, on record. It was heard by millions over a 42-station radio hook-up of the Columbia broadcasting system.

Four hundred delegates from all points of the country heard a dozen speakers sound the death-knell of censors. Addresses were made by Dr. Geo. W. Kirchway, former Sing Sing warden and now dean of Columbia Law School; Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming, and now vice-president of the Democratic National Committee; Representative Franklin Fort, New Jersey, secretary of the Republican National Committee; Harry H. Warner, Fannie Hurst, Estelle Taylor, Geo. K. Arthur, Giovanni Martinelli, Dr. Harry Barnard, director of the White House Conference for Child Health and Protection; Mayor John T. Alsop, Jacksonville, Fla., John M. Casey, representing Mayor Curley, of Boston; Prof. LeRoy E. Bowman, Columbia University, and others. President Hoover, in a message to the delegates, commended the board for its work.

Playing It Alone

"The National Board of Review is not in any way connected with an organization in the motion picture industry with a long name, and headed by a former United States postmaster general," stated Prof. LeRoy E. Bowman, of Columbia University, in speaking for the Board, of which he is a director, at the annual conference held in New York. The organization took advantage of a 42-station radio hook-up to voice its independence, following charges made a few weeks ago by Canon Chase, who intimated that the association was directly associated with the business.

Orchestra Retained in Fort Wayne Strike Settlement

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Orchestra at the Palace is to be retained under a settlement of the musicians' strike, calling for employment of seven men. The scale is $55 for musicians and $80 for the leader. The settlement indirectly affects 368 performers. A strike of building workers over the open shop question has been called at the Paramount, under construction here.

Leo McCarey May Sign As Universal Director

Hollywood.—Leo McCarey, who directed "The Sophomore" and now is megaphoning "Let's Go Native" for Paramount, may sign with Universal. McCarey, it is understood, is under contract to Pathe to direct one more picture following completion of "Let's Go Native" for Paramount.

Warners Will Reopen L. A. Formu Feb. 6 After Repairs

Los Angeles.—Warners on Feb. 6 will reopen the Forum, recently acquired. The house has been remodeled and redecorated. Gus A. Metzger and Harry Srere, former owners, plan the Fairfax at Fairfax Ave. and Beverly Blvd. to seat 1,800 and open March 15.

Thorpe Joins Tiffany

Hollywood—Richard Thorpe has been signed by Tiffany to direct "Paradise Island," a South Sea Island story by A. P. Younger, with adaptation by Monte Katterjohn.

Sunday Election Provided

Albany—Referendum on the question of Sunday shows at Peekskill is provided in a bill introduced in the Assembly.

Dissolution of Seattle Pantages Firm is Sought

Seattle—A petition for the dissolution of the theatre company founded in the state of Washington by Alexander Pantages twenty years ago has been filed in the King County superior court. The company was known as the Rodney-Lloyd Northwestern Theatres Co. of Washington, named after the two sons of Pantages.

It was originally known as the Pantages Theatres Co. of Washington, the name being changed nine years ago when Pantages moved his original headquarters from Seattle to Los Angeles and formed the Pantages Theatre Co. of California, which now has taken over all the assets of the local incorporate group. After Pantages sold his Tacoma and Spokane interests to RKO a few months ago the local corporation was kept in existence to handle the affairs of the Seattle and Vancouver Pantages theatres, now to be handled from the California offices.

Studio "Rep" of Clubwomen Soon to View Story Material

Mrs. Thomas Winter, representing clubwomen of America at Hollywood studios, who now sits in at production conferences to voice sentiments of club interests, will soon discuss story material with producers, Harry Warner told delegates at the National Board of Review conference in New York.

Murray on "Jango" Tour

Capt. Ben F. Murray, lecturer and explorer, will appear in connection with road showings of "Jango," African picture made by the Davenport-Quigley Expedition.

23 Units Busy at Paramount Studio

Hollywood—With 23 units busy, day and night staffs are being maintained at Paramount, where eight pictures are being filmed; seven are being made ready for early starting dates, and eight others are in the editing rooms.

Those being edited are "Vagabond King", all technicolor musical starring Dennis King; "Sarah and Son," with Ruth Chatterton and Fredric March; "Men Are Like That," from "Show-Off," with Hal Skelly; Gary Cooper's "Only the Brave"; the Evelyn Brent-Clive Brook vehicle, "Slightly Scarlet"; William Powell's first starring production, "Street of Chance"; and the Richard Arlen picture, "Burning Up."

Occupying the sound stages are the following: "Paramount On Parade"; Charles Rogers' "Young Eagles"; new Moran-Mack comedy, "Two Black Crows in the A. E. F."; the musical, "Let's Go Native"; George Bancroft's "Ladies Love Brutes"; "Benson Murder Case", with William Powell; Nancy Carroll's "Honey"; and the first all-talking Zane Grey story, "Light of Western Stars," starring Richard Arlen.

Arlen in Westerns

Hollywood—Richard Arlen, together with Mary Brian, is to step from one western starring role to another, according to plans of Paramount. Following completion of "The Light of Western Stars," Arlen will start work on another Zane Grey picture, "The Border Legion," with Miss Brian again featured opposite. Jack Holt will be in the cast.

Zilahy on Script

Hollywood—Paramount has imported Lajos Zilahy, Hungarian playwright, to assist on the film adaptation of his play "The General," which B. P. Schulberg purchased during his recent trip abroad. The picture is scheduled for production in April under direction of Lothar Mendes.

"Jane Eyre" Again

Hollywood—Pathe will use a modernized picturization of "Jane Eyre" as Ann Harding's next production. Russell Mack, recently with RKO as a dialogue director, has been engaged to handle direction and Rollo Lloyd is writing adaptation and dialogue.

Director to Sign

Hollywood.—Benjamin Christensen, former stage director and more recently picture director, is to be added to the directorial staff of one of the leading studios shortly.

Sloman with Columbia

Hollywood—Edward Sloman, contract director with Universal for several years, has been signed by Harry Cohn, producing head of Columbia to direct a series of special productions. His first assignment will be "Hell's Island," with a big cast.

Clara in "Quarantine"

Hollywood—"Quarantine," a magazine story by F. Tennyson Jesse, is being prepared as a talker production for Clara Bow. Maude Fulton is writing the adaptation and dialogue.

Story Editors, Beware!

Only middle-aged persons "with inactive minds" read sensational, cheaply romantic novels, a survey by the N. Y. Public Library reveals, pointing out a waning interest in so-called trashy books, with non-fictions steadily gaining in popularity.

Wild Rush by Publishers to Overload Market with Song "Hits" Causes Slump

Independents and Companies with Producer Tie-ups Suffering From Sales Snag Brought About By Over-Production

Wholesale marketing of theme and picture songs has created a worrisome situation in the music field, with affiliated and non-picture song publishers, except in a few cases, suffering from a general slump in sales.

Counter material no longer receives the heavy and consistent plug of the old days, because the ink on the sheets is barely dry before songs from a new production are placed in the racks. From four to eight "hits" are turned out on the average musical vehicle, and with new pictures released weekly, the market has become cluttered.

The independent field is likewise suffering from over-production, in an attempt to compete with picture-song publishers.

Louis Bernstein, head of Shapiro-Bernstein, is one of the first in the independent field to tone down heavy production. Several others are expected to follow suit shortly.

J. J. Robbins, of Robbins Music Corp., verifies the existence of over-production, stating that the policy must be changed with the publisher deciding on only one or two hits from each picture and exploiting no others from the same vehicle.

Robbins Firm Has Eleven Branches in Music Field

There now are 11 branch offices in the Robbins Music Corp chain. The firm is affiliated with M-G-M.

The executive, professional and sales heads are, J. J. Bregman, general manager; Bernard Prager, sales manager; Billy Chandler, professional manager; Stephan Levitz, production manager; George D. Lottman, director of publicity and advertising; Harry Koch, manager of band and orchestra; Fred Smith, office manager; Frank Kelton, eastern promotion and Phil Wilcox, western promotion managers.

Managers of the branch offices are: Sig Bosley, Los Angeles; Carl Zoehrns, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington; Chick Castle, Chicago; Chick Wilson, entire South with headquarters at Atlanta; Newton Kelly, San Francisco; Carl Winge, entire Northwest with offices in Seattle; Dick Arnold, Minneapolis and St. Paul; John Sandusky, Kansas City; Ben Goldberg, Boston; Charles MacLaughlin, Denver, and Al Skinner, Detroit.

Tremaine Records D. & H. Tune

"That Four-Four Rythm Band," written by Ted Brewer and Eddie Kilnosky and published by Denton & Haskins, has been recorded by Paul Tremaine and his Aristocrats.

Irony

James B. Eggert, Chicago manager for Ager, Yellen & Bornstein, Inc., killed in the airplane crash near the Fairfax airport in Wichita, Kansas, was on a tour of sales and exploitation for the songs in the M-G-M production "Chasing Rainbows" according to Ben Bornstein.

High and Low Along Music Row

DE SYLVA, BROWN & HENDERSON will soon bear down on three new tunes: "One Never Knows," written by Bobby Dolan and Walter O'Keefe, for "Rich People" (Pathe); "Mona," by Conrad, Gottler and Mitchell, and "I'm on a Diet of Love," by L. Wolfe Gilbert and Abel Baer. These last two are from the Fox Grandeur production, "Happy Days." "If I Had a Talking Picture of You," written by the boys, ranks third in sales for the entire country to date.

SHAPIRO-BERNSTEIN & CO., INC., have a sure hit in "What Do I Care?", from Harry Carroll's "Music Box Revue." Chalk this one up for Ray Klages, Jesse Greer and Harry Carroll. Incidentally, this firm is introducing a new character in "The Man From the South With the Big Cigar in His Mouth," the brain child of Rube Bloom and Harry Woods. "There'll be a hot time in the old town" when this boy meets "the big butter and egg man from the West."

* * *

MARTY BLOOM, general manager for Gene Austin, Inc., showed us a cablegram from Campbell-Connelly of England, saying that "At Twilight" is stepping out as one of the big hits of the year there. "Vell," as Charley Dale would say, "who sed dat it vasn't a goot sonk anyway?"

* * *

PAUL VAN LOAN, director of the Jeddo Highlanders on Station WEAF, is the owner of the original manuscript of "The Pagan Love Song," which was written by Nacio Herb Brown eight years ago. As for "Chant of the Jungle," Jack Robbins tells us that Nacio wrote it ten years ago.

* * *

TALKING about Nacio reminds us about that party Robbins gave him last week. It was a veritable "song pluggers' Utopia." Every orchestra leader and radio artist of note was there with the exception of Alexander of the famous "Rag-time Band."

* * *

PHIL KORNHEISER, over at Feist, is all het up over a new song entitled, "Like a Dream," a fox-trot ballad which was written by Vincent Rose, Benee Russell and Harold Soloman. "Love Me," the American version of the French song, "Deja," has been a Feist representative among the "best sellers" of the past few weeks.

* * *

LOVERS of every type of music will enjoy Pathe's "Buck and Bubbles," the series of Negro comedies directed by Monte Brice. What'll you have?

Jazz? Step this way. We've got "If I Had You," Mean to Me," "St. Louis Blues," "I'm Ka-razy for You" and "12th St. Rag."

Southern folk tunes? Sure, How about "Coal Black Mammy O' Mine," "Dixie," "Swannee River," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe."

Yeh, here's a couple of old-time tunes that ought to revive a memory or two: "When I Get You Alone Tonight," "In the Good Old Summer Time" and "Oh, You Beautiful Doll."

Opera? You bet. "Chopin's Funeral March," "Wagner's Wedding March" and "Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C Sharp Minor."

* * *

THIS Rudy Vallee influence has reached the American marines stationed at various posts in Nicaragua. One of the officers said, "Send by the next boat two victrolas and 50 records of varied, soft, agreeable, pleasant and melodious strains."

* * *

HOWARD PHILLIPS, the dancing maestro, whose orchestra is featured at the Manger Grill, is proving to be a hit with the patrons. And he doesn't croon. He sings.

* * *

TWO new songs have been added to the Joe Morris Music Co. roster. "I Still Remember," written by Charles Tobias, Sam Ward and Peter deRose, and "Take Your Hands Out of Your Pockets and Put Your Arms Around Me," by Al Sherman and Al Lewis. "All That I'm Asking Is Sympathy," another Morris song, has been selling like proverbial "hot cakes" these past few weeks.

* * *

DAN DOUGHERTY, who is under a three-year contract to write exclusively for Ager, Yellen & Bornstein, Inc., has moved his manuscripts over to the Columbia lot, and will fill in the notes there.

* * *

CARL EDOUARDS, for the past eight years musical director for the Mark Strand, New York, has signed with Affiliated Sound Recordings, Inc., where he will synchronize and record music for pictures and also arrange music for radio broadcasting.

Drive to Open Philadelphia On Sunday Being Renewed

Philadelphia—Renewed effort is being made to modify the "blue" laws, which prohibit Sunday shows when admission is charged. Market St. merchants have passed a resolution calling for poll of sentiment in the city's theatre district, in the belief that the "Sour Sabbath" is a drawback to the city.

Councilman Apt declared Sunday films, theatricals, baseball and football must be permitted if the city is to prosper. The city, he said, is suffering from too much legislation.

"It is time to erase obsolete laws from the statute books of the city and state," he declared. "A city dead in the amusement sense soon becomes dead in a business sense also. Millions of dollars are spent outside this city by Philadelphians who journey to points in New Jersey or New York, where they will not be molested in their innocent diversions."

Mayor Mackey in an address before the Independent Young Men's Beneficial Ass'n voiced an appeal for Sunday amusements and stated that the Penna. Blue Laws should be replaced by legislation more adaptable to the thoughts and practices of the Twentieth Century.

The ancient blue laws were also denounced at a luncheon of the Poor Richard Club.

K. C. Exhibitor Is Killed in Air Crash

Kansas City—William Flynn, who operated the Globe here, downtown house and for several years a partner in the distributing firm of Richards & Flynn, was one of the five persons killed in an airplane crash and fire near Wichita this week.

Flynn was first to install a pipe organ in a Kansas City theatre, first to have an orchestral accompaniment to pictures here and first to wire his house for sound. He had been planning to reopen the Globe, which has been dark several months. Nugent Flynn, his brother, is associated in the enterprises.

Indiana Indorsers to Hold Meeting on Apr. 22-23

Indianapolis—Annual convention of the Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays will be held here April 22 and 23, states Mrs. Earl Peters of Fort Wayne, Ind. The executive board of the organization met recently, when plans for the spring convention were started. One of the convention days will be devoted to an institute when all phases of the motion picture industry will be discussed.

New Writers at Studio

Hollywood.—Grace Henry and Maurice Hamilton have joined the Fox song writing staff and are now on the Fox lot.

Repeat Sound Classes

Hollywood — Definite decision has been made to repeat the Academy sound school, with courses starting early in March. There will be only minor changes made in the original course of ten weeks, with new additions bringing developments in recording methods up to date. The new classes will be limited to 250, with present applications totaling 200.

Exhibitor Stakes Dough on Silents

Lancaster, Pa.—So confident in his belief that there is an enduring place in the field for silent pictures is W. L. Benedict, veteran exhibitor, that he has seized upon an opportunity to sub-lease the Fulton Opera House, one of the oldest and largest houses here and rendered temporarily "dark" by the discontinuance of stock company productions, and reopened it as an exclusively silent film house.

It is his expressed intention to operate the theatre permanently on this basis in opposition to a number of first-run sound theatres now running in Lancaster. He builds his confidence in his ability to make the venture a profitable one not only a firm belief that there is even now a big demand for strictly silent films but on his opinion that the present great popularity of sound pictures is passing fancy of the public which, like many other fads, will ultimately wane.

The Fulton Opera House, centrally located, has been successfully operated for almost three-quarters of a century with various types of entertainments, but it has never before been a picture house. For several years it has been run as a theatre for stock company productions which had prospered there until the inroads of sound pictures rendered it unprofitable.

Starting with a matinee on a Saturday afternoon Benedict presented his first silent picture program, featuring "Moulin Rouge." There was also a special "Sunday midnight" showing of the program, actually starting at 12:05 A. M. the following Monday morning. The same bill was continued through Monday and Tuesday, following which another attraction was put on. The theatre seats about 1,400 persons, Benedict advertising "all seats at any time for 25 cents," except children, who are admitted for ten cents at any performance.

Trade Mark Jam in Canada Over Vitaphone Settled

Vitaphone Corp. now is using its trademark in Canada without molestation, following settlement of litigation over the matter with Baldwin International Radio of Canada, Ltd. The Canadian firm renounced all claim to the trademark under terms of the settlement.

Pathe Signs Two

Hollywood—Pathe's directorial roster has been augmented by Russell Mack, stage director. Lynn Riggs is another addition at Pathe, signing to write originals.

Drys vs. Wets

At "The Rogue Song" premiere in New York this week, M-G-M ran a Hearst-Metrotone Newsreel on the bill which included arguments of Senators Walsh and Jones, pro and con on prohibition. The dry talk by Jones brought catcalls and hisses from the hihat audience, an unusual occurrence at a ritzy opening, but resulted in an unenjoyable evening for one old woman, apparently an ardent dry who attempted to persuade her party to leave the theatre, claiming the management and audience was too sympathetic with the wet cause.

She threatened to have her dry crusaders picket the place if the "disgraceful conduct" continued.

"World" Thinks Expansion of Films Deserving; Knocks Legit

Amusements are recipients of a generous handout of brickbats and bouquets editorially by the New York "Evening World," which states that "bad as the movies are, it deserves to expand. And good as many of the plays in the theatre, it deserves to shrivel on thin pickings."

In discussing alleged unbusiness-like principles in the "legit" field, the paper pointed out that "the theatre, so far as we know, is the only business that disregards all the known principles of economics; which seeks to stimulate the demand for its product by putting the price of it up instead of down; which treats the customer as though he were some kind of low thief merely because he shows up at the box-office and tries to buy tickets. And the theatre is the only business that failed to wax bigger in the period of expansion we have seen in the last ten years, with the single exception of the hairpin business.

"All these things being as they are, it does not strike us as surprising that the cinema business, which treats the principles of economics with the deference they deserve, posting reasonable prices, and according the customer all possible courtesy, has expanded along with the rest."

Bus Line Sues Paramount for Damage from Film Fire

San Antonio, Tex.—Charged with negligence in packing films in transport, Paramount is defendant in a suit filed by Union Bus Lines, which seeks to recover $2,975, representing damage to a bus when two cases of film exploded on Dec. 5, killing three passengers. This has resulted in general order by distributors against transportation of film on buses.

Enforcement of New Sunday Ordinance Stopped by Court

Eldon, Mo.—Local enforcement of the new Sunday closing measure is restrained by an injunction secured in circuit court by H. M. DeWitt, who claims the ordinance is illegal because it was not passed by majority vote of the city council.

New Carnegie Manager

Milton H. Chamberlain, for many years associated with Leo Brecher as manager of the Plaza has been appointed manager of The Little Carnegie Playhouse, New York.
